40 <sup>m</sup>Then <sup>1</sup>cried they all again, saying, Not him, but Barabbas: now this Barabbas was a murderer.

1 Then <sup>m</sup>Pilate took Jesus and <sup>1</sup>scourged him.

2 And the soldiers platted a crown of thorns, and put it on his head, and they put on him a purple garment,

3 And said, Hail King of the Jews. And they smote him with their rods.

4 <sup>1</sup>Then Pilate went forth again, and said unto them, Behold, I bring him forth to you, that ye may know, that I find no fault in him at all.

5 Then came Jesus forth wearing a crown of thorns, and a purple garment. And Pilate said unto them, Behold the man.

6 Then when the high Priests and officers saw him, they cried, saying, <sup>1</sup>Crucify, crucify him. Pilate said unto them, Take ye him, and crucify him: for I find no fault in him.

7 The Jews answered him, We have a law, and by our law he ought to die, because he made himself the Son of God.

8 ¶ <sup>1</sup>When Pilate then heard that word, he was the more afraid, 9 And went again into the common hall, and said unto Jesus, Whence art thou? But Jesus gave him none answer.

10 Then said Pilate unto him, Speakest thou not unto me? Knowest thou not that I have power to crucify thee, and have power to loose thee?

11 Jesus answered, Thou couldest have no power at all against me, except it were given thee from above: therefore he that delivered me unto thee, hath the greater sin.

12 From thenceforth Pilate sought to loose him, but the Jews cried, saying, If thou deliver him, thou art not Caesar's friend: for whosoever maketh himself a King, speaketh against Caesar.

13 ¶ <sup>1</sup>When Pilate heard this word, he brought Jesus forth, and sat down in the judgment seat in a place called the pavement, and in Hebrew, <sup>2</sup>Gabbatha.

14 And it was the Preparation of the Passover, and about the sixth hour: and he said unto the Jews, Behold your King.

15 But they cried, Away with him, away with him, crucify him. Pilate said unto them, Shall I crucify your King? The high Priests answered, We have no King but Caesar.

16 <sup>1</sup>Then delivered he him unto them, to be crucified. <sup>b</sup>And they took Jesus, and led him away.

17 And he bare his own cross, and came into a place named of dead men's skulls, which is called in Hebrew, Golgotha:

18 Where they crucified him, and two other with him, on either side one, and Jesus in the midst.

19 ¶ <sup>1</sup>And Pilate wrote also a title, and put it on the cross, and it was written, JESUS OF NAZARETH THE KING OF THE JEWS.

20 This title then read many of the Jews: for the place where Jesus was crucified, was near to the city: and it was written in Hebrew, Greek, and Latin.

21 Then said the high Priests of the Jews to Pilate, Write not, The King of the Jews, but that he said, I am the King of the Jews.

22 Pilate answered, What I have written, I have written.

23 ¶ <sup>1</sup>Then the soldiers, when they had crucified Jesus, took his garments (and made four parts, to every soldier a part) and his coat: and the coat was without seam woven from the top throughout.

24 ¶ Therefore they said one to another, Let us not divide it, but cast lots for it, whose it shall be.

18:38 <sup>1</sup> It was requisite that Christ should be pronounced innocent, but notwithstanding (in that that he took upon him our person) was to be condemned as a most wicked man.

19:1 <sup>1</sup> The wisdom of the flesh, chooseth of two evils the least, but God curseth that same wisdom.

19:4 <sup>1</sup> Christ is again acquitted by the same mouth wherewith he is afterward condemned.

19:6 <sup>1</sup> They will have him crucified, whom by an old custom of theirs, they should have stoned and hanged up as convict of blasphemy: but they desire to have him crucified after the manner of the Romans.

19:8 <sup>1</sup> Pilate's conscience fighteth for Christ, but straightway it yieldeth, because it is not upholden with the singular virtue of God.

19:19 <sup>1</sup> Christ sitting upon the throne of the cross, is openly written everlasting king of all people, with his own hand, whose mouth condemned him for usurping a kingdom.

19:23 <sup>1</sup> Christ signifieth by the division of his garments amongst the bloody butchers (his coat except, that hath no seam) that it shall come to pass, that he will shortly divide his benefits, and enrich his very enemies throughout the world: but so notwithstanding that the treasure of his Church shall remain whole.

This was that the Scripture might be fulfilled, which saith,<sup>d</sup> They parted my garments among them, and on my coat did cast lots. So the soldiers did these things indeed.

25 ¶<sup>1</sup> Then stood by the cross of Jesus his mother, and his mother's sister, Mary the wife of Clopas, and Mary Magdalene.

26 And when Jesus saw his mother, and the disciple standing by, whom he loved, he said unto his mother, Woman, behold thy son.

27 Then said he to the disciple, Behold thy mother: and from that hour, the disciple took her home unto him.

28 ¶<sup>1</sup> After, when Jesus knew that all things were performed, that the Scripture might be fulfilled, he said, I thirst.

29 And there was set a vessel full of vinegar: and they filled a sponge with vinegar: and put it about an Hyssop stalk, and put it to his mouth.

30 Now when Jesus had received of the vinegar, he said, It is finished, and bowed his head, and gave up the ghost.

31 The Jews then (because it was the Preparation, that the bodies should not remain upon the cross on the Sabbath day: for that Sabbath was an high day) besought Pilate that their legs might be broken, and that they might be taken down.

32 Then came the soldiers and brake the legs of the first, and of the other, which was crucified with Jesus.

33 But when they came to Jesus, and saw that he was dead already, they brake not his legs.

34 But one of the soldiers with a spear<sup>2</sup> pierced his side, and forthwith came there out blood and water.

35 And he that saw it, bare record, and his record is true: and he knoweth that he saith true, that ye might believe it.

36 For these things were done, that the Scripture should be fulfilled,<sup>3</sup> Not a bone of him shall be broken.

37 And again another Scripture saith,<sup>4</sup> They shall see him whom they have thrust through.

38 <sup>b1</sup> And after these things, Joseph of Arimathea (who was a disciple of Jesus, but secretly for fear of the Jews) besought Pilate that he might take down the body of Jesus. And Pilate gave him license. He came then and took Jesus' body.

39 And there came also Nicodemus (which first came to Jesus by night) and brought of myrrh and aloes mingled together about an hundred pounds.

40 Then took they the body of Jesus, and wrapped it in linen clothes with the odors, as the manner of the Jews is to bury.

41 And in that place where Jesus was crucified, was a garden, and in the garden a new sepulcher, wherein was never man yet laid.

42 There then laid they Jesus, because of the Jews' Preparation day, for the sepulcher was near.

1 Now <sup>a1</sup> the first day of the week came Mary Magdalene, early when it was yet dark, unto the sepulcher, and saw the stone taken away from the tomb.

2 Then she ran, and came to Simon Peter, and to the other disciple, whom Jesus loved, and said unto them, They have taken away the Lord out of the sepulcher, and we know not where they have laid him.

3 Peter therefore went forth, and the other disciple, and they came unto the sepulcher.

4 So they ran both together, but the other disciple did outrun Peter, and came first to the sepulcher.

5 And he stooped down, and saw the linen clothes lying: yet went he not in.

6 Then came Simon Peter following him, and went into the sepulcher, and saw the linen clothes lie,

7 And the kerchief that was upon his head, not lying with the linen clothes, but wrapped together in a place by itself.

19:25 <sup>1</sup> Christ is a perfect example of all righteousness, not only in the keeping of the first, but also of the second table.

19:28 <sup>1</sup> Christ, when he hath taken the vinegar, yieldeth up the Ghost, drinking up indeed that most bitter and sharp cup of his Father's wrath in our name.

19:29 <sup>1</sup> Galatinus witnesseth out of the book called Sanhedrin, that the Jews were wont to give them that were executed, vinegar mixed with frankincense to drink, to make their brains somewhat troubled: so charitably the Jews provided for the poor men's consciences which were executed.

19:31 <sup>1</sup> The body of Christ which was dead for a season (because it so pleased him) is wounded, but the least bone of it is not broken: and such is the state of his mystical body.

19:34 <sup>1</sup> Christ being dead upon the cross, witnesseth by a double sign, that he only is the true satisfaction, and the true washing for the believers.

<sup>2</sup> This wound was a most manifest witness of the death of Christ: for the water that issued out by this wound, gave us plainly to understand, that the weapon pierced the very skin that compasseth the heart, which is the vessel that containeth that water, and that being once wounded, that creature which is so pierced and stricken, cannot choose but die.

19:38 <sup>1</sup> Christ is openly buried, and in a famous place, Pilate writing and suffering it, and that by men which did favor Christ, in such wise, that yet before that day, they never openly followed him: so that by his burial, no man can justly doubt either of his death, or resurrection.

19:41 <sup>1</sup> That no man might cavil at his resurrection, as though some other that had been buried there, had risen, Theophylact.

20:1 <sup>1</sup> Mary Magdalene, Peter and John are the first witnesses of the resurrection: and such as cannot justly be suspected, for that they themselves could scarcely be persuaded of it, so far is it off, that they should invent it of set purpose.

8 Then went in also the other disciple, which came first to the sepulcher, and he saw it, and believed.

9 For as yet they knew not the Scripture, That he must rise again from the dead.

10 And the disciples went away again unto their own home.

11 ¶<sup>b</sup> But Mary stood <sup>1</sup>without at the sepulcher weeping: and as she wept, she bowed herself into the sepulcher, 12 <sup>1</sup>And saw two Angels in <sup>2</sup>white, sitting, the one at the head, and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain.

13 And they said unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? She said unto them, They have taken away <sup>1</sup>my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him.

14 <sup>1</sup>When she had thus said, she turned herself back, and saw Jesus standing, and knew not that it was Jesus.

15 Jesus saith unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou? She supposing that he had been the gardener, said unto him, Sir, if thou hast borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away.

16 Jesus saith unto her, Mary. She turned herself, and said unto him, Rabboni, which is to say, Master.

17 <sup>1</sup>Jesus saith unto her, Touch me not: for I am not yet ascended to my Father: but go to my <sup>2</sup>brethren, and say unto them, I ascend unto <sup>3</sup>my Father, and to your Father, and to my God, and your God.

18 Mary Magdalene came and told the disciples that she had seen the Lord, and that he had spoken these things unto her.

19 ¶<sup>c,1</sup> The same day then at night, which was the first day of the week, and when the <sup>2</sup>doors were shut where the disciples were assembled for fear of the Jews, came Jesus and stood in the midst, and said to them, Peace be unto you.

20 And when he had so said, he showed unto them his hands, and his side. Then were the disciples glad when they had seen the Lord.

21 <sup>d</sup>Then said Jesus to them again, Peace be unto you: as my Father sent me, so send I you.

22 And when he had said that, he breathed on them, and said unto them, Receive the holy Ghost.

23 <sup>1</sup>Whosoever's sins ye remit, they are remitted unto them: and whosoever's sins ye retain, they are retained.

24 ¶<sup>1</sup> But Thomas one of the twelve, called Didymus, was not with them when Jesus came.

25 The other disciples therefore said unto him, We have seen the Lord: but he said unto them, Except I see in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and put mine hand into his side, I will not believe it.

26 ¶ And eight days after, again his disciples were within, and Thomas with them. Then came Jesus, when the doors were shut, and stood in the midst, and said, Peace be unto you.

27 After said he to Thomas, Put thy finger here, and see mine hands, and put forth thine hand, and put it into my side, and be not faithless, but faithful.

28 Then Thomas answered, and said unto him, Thou art my Lord, and my God.

29 <sup>1</sup>Jesus said unto him, Thomas, because thou hast seen me, thou believest: blessed are they that have not seen, and have believed.

30 <sup>c,1</sup> And many other signs also did Jesus in the presence of his disciples, which are not written in this book.

31 But these things are written that ye might believe, that Jesus is that Christ that Son of God, and that in believing ye might have life through his Name.

21 <sup>1</sup> Jesus appeareth to his disciples as they were fishing. 6, 7 whom they know by a miraculous draught of fishes. 15 He committeth the charge of the sheep to Peter, 18 and foretelleth him of the manner of his death.

1 After these things, <sup>1</sup>Jesus showed himself again to his disciples at the sea of Tiberias: and thus 20:11 <sup>1</sup> That is, without the cave, which the sepulchre was cut out of.

20:13 <sup>1</sup> Many speak as the common people use to speak: for they speak of a dead carcass, as they do of a whole man.

20:14 <sup>1</sup> Jesus witnesseth by his presence, that he is truly risen.

20:17 <sup>1</sup> Christ which is risen, is not to be sought in this world according to the flesh, but in heaven by faith, whither he is gone before us.

<sup>3</sup> He calleth God his Father because he is his Father naturally in the Godhead, and he saith your Father, because he is our Father by grace, through the adoption of the sons of God: that is, by taking us of his free grace to be his sons, Epiphanius.

20:19 <sup>1</sup> Christ in that that he presented himself before his disciples suddenly through his divine power, when the gates were shut, doth fully assure them both of his resurrection, and also of their Apostleship, inspiring them with the holy Ghost, who is the director of the ministry of the Gospel.

<sup>2</sup> Either the doors opened to him of their own accord, or the very walls themselves were a passage for him.

20:23 <sup>1</sup> The publishing of the forgiveness of sins by faith in Christ, and the setting forth and denouncing the wrath of God in retaining the sins of the unbelievers, is the sum of the preaching of the Gospel.

20:24 <sup>1</sup> Christ draweth out of the unbelief of Thomas, a certain and sure testimony of his resurrection.

20:29 <sup>1</sup> True faith dependeth upon the mouth of God, and not upon fleshly eyes.

20:30 <sup>1</sup> To believe in Christ, the Son of God, and our only Savior, is the end of the doctrine of the Gospel, and especially of the history of the resurrection.

21:1 <sup>1</sup> In that, that Christ here is not only present, but also eateth with his disciples, he giveth a most full assurance of his resurrection.

showed he himself:

2 There were together Simon Peter, and Thomas, which is called Didymus, and Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, and the sons of Zebedee, and two others of his disciples.

3 Simon Peter said unto them, I go a fishing. They said unto him, We also will go with thee. They went their way and entered into a ship straightway, and that night caught they nothing.

4 But when the morning was now come, Jesus stood on the shore: nevertheless the disciples knew not that it was Jesus.

5 Jesus then said unto them, Sirs, have ye any meat? They answered him, No.

6 Then he said unto them, Cast out the net on the right side of the ship, and ye shall find. So they cast out, and they were not able at all to draw it, for the multitude of fishes.

7 Therefore said the disciple whom Jesus loved, unto Peter, It is the Lord. When Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he girded his <sup>1</sup>coat to him (for he was naked) and cast himself into the sea.

8 But the other disciples came by ship, (for they were not far from land, but about two hundred cubits) and they drew the net with fishes.

9 As soon then as they were come to land, they saw hot coals, and fish laid thereon, and bread.

10 Jesus said unto them, Bring of the fishes, which ye have now caught.

11 Simon Peter stepped forth and drew the net to land full of great fishes, an hundred, fifty and three: and albeit there were so many, yet was not the net broken.

12 Jesus said unto them, Come, and dine. And none of the disciples durst ask him, Who art thou? seeing they knew that he was the Lord.

13 Jesus then came and took bread and gave them, and fish likewise.

14 This is now the third time that Jesus showed himself to his disciples, after that he was risen again from the dead.

15 ¶ <sup>1</sup>So when they had dined, Jesus said to

CHAPTER 21

Simon Peter, Simon the son of Jonah, lovest thou me more than these? He said unto him, Yea, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee. He said unto him, Feed my lambs.

16 He said to him again the second time, Simon the son of Jonah, lovest thou me? He said unto him, Yea, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee. He said unto him, Feed my sheep.

17 He said unto him <sup>1</sup>the third time, Simon the son of Jonah, lovest thou me? Peter was sorry because he said to him the third time, Lovest thou me? and said unto him, Lord, thou knowest all things: thou knowest that I love thee. Jesus said unto him, Feed my sheep.

18 <sup>1</sup>Verily, verily I say unto thee, When thou wast young, thou <sup>2</sup>girdedst thyself, and walkedst whither thou wouldst: but when thou shalt be old, thou shalt stretch forth thine hands, and another shall <sup>3</sup>gird thee, and lead thee without thou wouldst <sup>4</sup>not.

19 And this spake he signifying by what <sup>1</sup>death he should glorify God. And when he had said this, he said to him, Follow me.

20 <sup>1</sup>Then Peter turned about, and saw the disciple whom JESUS loved, following, which had also <sup>2</sup>leaned on his breast at supper, and had said, Lord, which is he that betrayeth thee?

21 When Peter therefore saw him, he said to Jesus, Lord, what shall this man do?

22 Jesus said unto him, If I will that he tarry till I come, what is it to thee? follow thou me.

23 Then went this word abroad among the brethren, that this disciple should not die. Yet Jesus said not to him, He shall not die: but if I will that he tarry till I come, what is it to thee?

24 <sup>1</sup>This is that disciple, which testifieth of these things, and wrote these things, and we know that his testimony is true.

25 <sup>b</sup>Now there are also many other things which Jesus did, the which if they should be written every one, I suppose the world could not contain the books that should be written, Amen.

21:7 <sup>1</sup> It was a linen garment, which could not let his swimming.

21:15 <sup>1</sup> Peter by his triple confession is restored into his former degree from whence he fell by his triple denial: and therewithal is advertised, that he is indeed a pastor, which showeth his love to Christ in feeding his sheep.

21:17 <sup>1</sup> It was meet that he that had denied him thrice, should confess him thrice, that Peter might neither doubt of the forgiveness of his so grievous a sin, nor of his restoring to the office of the Apostleship.

<sup>2</sup> They that took far journeys, especially in the East country, and in those places [where] the people used long garments, had need to be girded and trussed up.

<sup>3</sup> He meant that kind of girding which is used toward captives, when they are bound fast with cords and chains, as who would say, Now thou girdest thyself as thou thinkest best, to go whither thou listest, but the time will be, when thou shall not gird thee with a girdle, but another shall bind thee with chains, and carry thee whither thou wouldst not.

<sup>4</sup> Not that Peter suffered ought for the truth of God against his will: for we read that he came with joy and gladness when he returned from the Council where he was whipped: but because this will cometh not from the flesh, but from the gift of the Spirit which is given us from above, therefore he showeth there should be a certain striving and conflict or repugnancy, which also is in us, in all our sufferances as touching the flesh.

21:19 <sup>1</sup> That is, that Peter should die by a violent death.

21:20 <sup>1</sup> We must take heed, that while we cast our eyes upon others, we neglect not that which is enjoined us.

21:24 <sup>1</sup> The history of Christ is true and warily written: not for the curiosity of men, but for the salvation of the godly.

THE
OF THE HOLY APOSTLES, WRITTEN BY LUKE THE EVANGELIST

1 I have made the <sup>1</sup>former treatise, O Theophilus, of all that Jesus began to <sup>2</sup>do and teach,

2 Until the day that he was taken up, after that he through the holy Ghost, had given commandments unto the Apostles, whom he had chosen:

3 <sup>1</sup>To whom also he presented himself alive after that he had suffered, by many <sup>2</sup>infallible tokens, being seen of them by the space of forty days, and speaking of those things which appertained to the kingdom of God.

4 <sup>a</sup>And when he had <sup>1</sup>gathered them together, he commanded them that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but to wait for the promise of the Father, <sup>b</sup>which said he, ye have heard of me.

5 <sup>c</sup>For John indeed baptized with water, but ye shall be baptized <sup>1</sup>with the holy Ghost within these few days.

6 <sup>1</sup>When they therefore were come together they asked of him, saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time <sup>2</sup>restore the kingdom to Israel?

7 And he said unto them, It is not for you to 9 <sup>c</sup><sup>1</sup>And when he had spoken these things, while they beheld, he was taken up: for a cloud took him up out of their sight.

10 And while they looked steadfastly toward heaven, as he went, behold, two men stood by them in white apparel.

1:1 <sup>1</sup> A passing over from the history of the Gospel, that is, from the history of the sayings and doings of Christ, unto the acts of the Apostles.

1:3 <sup>1</sup> Christ did not straightway ascend into heaven after his resurrection: because he would thoroughly prove his resurrection: and with his presence confirm his Apostles in the doctrine, which they had heard.

<sup>2</sup> He calleth those infallible tokens, which are otherwise [termed] necessary: now in that Christ spake, and walked, and ate, and was felt of many, these are sure signs and tokens that he truly rose again.

1:4 <sup>1</sup> They were dispersed here and there, but he gathereth them together that they might altogether be witnesses of his resurrection.

1:5 <sup>1</sup> Either of the Father, or of me: so that either the Father or Christ is set here against John, as the holy Ghost is against the water, as things answerable the one to the other.

1:6 <sup>1</sup> We must fight before we triumph: and we ought not curiously to search after those things, which God hath not revealed.

1:7 <sup>1</sup> That is, the fit occasions that serve to doing of matters which the Lord hath appointed to bring things to pass in.

1:9 <sup>1</sup> After that Christ had promised the full virtue of the holy Ghost, wherewith he would govern his Church, although he should be absent in body, he took up his body from us into heavenly tabernacles, there to continue until the latter day of judgment, as the Angels witness.

1:11 <sup>1</sup> That is, out of your sight.

1:12 <sup>1</sup> About two miles.

1:13 <sup>1</sup> Ecclesiastical assemblies to hear the word, and to make common prayer, were first instituted and kept in private houses by the Apostles.

<sup>2</sup> They went into the house, which the Church hath chosen at that time to be a receipt for the whole assembly.

1:14 <sup>1</sup> The Greek word signified an invincible constancy, and steadiness.

<sup>2</sup> It is to good purpose, that this concord is mentioned: for those prayers are most acceptable to God which are made with agreeing minds and wills.

mother of Jesus, and with his <sup>5</sup>brethren.

15 <sup>1</sup>And in those days Peter stood up in the midst of the disciples, and said (now the number of <sup>2</sup>names that were in one place were about an hundred and twenty.)

16 <sup>1</sup>Ye men and brethren, this scripture must needs have been fulfilled, Which the <sup>3</sup>holy Ghost by the mouth of David spake before of Judas, which was <sup>8</sup>guide to them that took Jesus.

17 For he was numbered with us, and had obtained fellowship in this ministration.

18 He therefore hath <sup>1</sup>purchased a field with the reward of iniquity: and when <sup>6</sup>he had <sup>2</sup>thrown down himself headlong, he brast asunder in the midst, and all his bowels gushed out.

19 And it is known unto all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, insomuch, that that field is called in their own language, Akel Dama, that is, The field of blood.

20 For it is written in the book of Psalms, <sup>1</sup>Let his habitation be void, and let no man dwell therein: <sup>7</sup>also, Let another take his <sup>1</sup>charge.

21 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore of these men which have companied with us, all the time that the Lord Jesus was <sup>2</sup>conversant among us, sabas, whose surname was Justus, and Matthias.

24 And they prayed, saying, Thou Lord, which knowest the hearts of all men, show whether of these two thou hast chosen, 25 That he may take the <sup>1</sup>room of this ministration and Apostleship, from which Judas hath <sup>2</sup>gone astray, to go to his own place.

26 Then they gave forth their lots: and the lot fell on Matthias, and he was by a common consent counted with the eleven Apostles.

1 And <sup>1</sup>when the day of Pentecost was <sup>2</sup>come, they were <sup>3</sup>all with one accord in one place.

2 And suddenly there came a sound from heaven, as of a rushing and mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they sat.

3 And there appeared unto them cloven tongues, like fire, and it sat upon each of them.

4 And they were all filled with the holy Ghost, and began to speak with <sup>1</sup>other tongues, as the <sup>2</sup>Spirit gave them utterance.

5 And there were dwelling at Jerusalem Jews, men that feared God, of every nation under heaven.

6 Now when this was noised, the multitude came

1:15 <sup>1</sup> Peter is made the mouth and interpreter of the whole company of the Apostles, either by secret revelation of the holy Ghost, or by express judgment of the Congregation.

1:16 <sup>1</sup> Peter preventeth the offense that might be taken of the falling away of Judas the betrayer, showing that all things which came unto him, were foretold by God.

1:18 <sup>1</sup> Luke considered not Judas's purpose, but that that followed of it, and so we used to say, that a man hath procured himself harm, not that his will and purpose was so, but in respect of that which followed.

<sup>2</sup> The Greek words signify thus much, that Judas fell down flat and was rent in sunder in the middle, with a marvelous huge noise.

1:20 <sup>1</sup> His office and ministry David wrote these words against Doeg the King's herdsman: And these words, Shepherd, Sheep, and Flock, are put over to the Church office and ministry, so that the Church and the offices thereof are called by these names.

1:21 <sup>1</sup> The Apostles deliberate upon nothing, but first they consult and take advisement by God's word: and again they do nothing that concerneth and is behoovable for the whole body of the Congregation, without making the Congregation privy unto it.

<sup>2</sup> Word for word, went in and out, which kind of speech betokeneth as much in the Hebrew tongue, as the exercising of a public and painful office, when they speak of such as are in any public office, Deut. 31:2; 1 Chron. 27:1.

1:23 <sup>1</sup> Apostles must be chosen immediately from God, and therefore after prayers, Matthias is chosen by lot, which is as it were GOD'S

1:25 <sup>1</sup> That he may be fellow and partaker of this ministry.

2:1 <sup>1</sup> The Apostles being gathered together on a most solemn feast day in one place, that it might evidently appear to all the world, that they had all one office, one Spirit, one faith, are by a double sign from heaven authorized, and anointed with all the most excellent gifts of the holy Ghost and especially with an extraordinary and necessary gift of tongues.

<sup>2</sup> Word for word, was fulfilled: that is, was begun, as Luke 2:21. For the Hebrews say that a day, or a year is fulfilled or ended, when the former days or years are ended, and the other begun, Jer. 25:12. And it shall come to pass, that when seventy years are fulfilled, I will visit, etc. For the Lord did not bring home his people after the seventieth year was ended, but in the seventieth year. Now the day of Pentecost was the fiftieth day after the feast of the Passover.

2:4 <sup>1</sup> He calleth them other tongues, which were not the same which the Apostles used commonly, and Mark calleth them new tongues.

<sup>2</sup> Hereby were understood that the Apostles used not now one tongue, and then another by haphazard and at all adventure, or as fantastical men used to do, but with good consideration of their hearers: and to be short, that they spake nothing but as the holy Ghost governed their tongues.

together and were astonished, because that every man heard them speak his own language.

7 And they wondered all, and marvelled, saying among themselves, Behold, are not all these which speak, of Galilee?

8 <sup>1</sup>How then hear we every man our own language, wherein we were born?

9 Parthians, and Medes, and Elamites, and the inhabitants of Mesopotamia, and of Judea, and of Cappadocia, of Pontus, and Asia,

10 And of Phrygia, and Pamphylia, of Egypt, and of the parts of Libya, which is beside Cyrene, and strangers of Rome, and <sup>1</sup>Jews, and Proselytes, 11 Cretes, and Arabians: we heard them speak in our own tongues the wonderful works of God.

12 <sup>1</sup>They were all then amazed, and doubted, saying one to another, What may this be?

13 And others <sup>1</sup>mocked, and said, They are full of new wine.

14 ¶ But Peter standing with the eleven, <sup>1</sup>lifted up his voice, and said unto them, Ye men of Judea, and ye all that inhabit Jerusalem, be this known unto you, and hearken unto my words.

15 For these are not drunken, as ye suppose, since it is but the <sup>1</sup>third hour of the day.

16 But this is that, which was spoken by the <sup>1</sup>Prophet <sup>4</sup>Joel,

17 <sup>1</sup>And it shall be in the last days, saith God, I will pour out of my Spirit upon <sup>2</sup>all <sup>3</sup>flesh, and your sons, and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams.

18 And on my servants, and on mine handmaids I will pour out of my Spirit in those days, and they shall prophesy.

19 And I will show wonders in heaven above, and tokens in the earth beneath, blood, and fire, and the vapors of smoke.

20 The Sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before that great and notable day of the Lord come.

21 <sup>1</sup>And it shall be, that whosoever shall <sup>2</sup>call on the Name of the Lord, shall be saved.

22 <sup>1</sup>Ye men of Israel, hear these words, JESUS of Nazareth, a man <sup>2</sup>approved of God among you with great works, and wonders, and signs, which God did by him in the midst of you, as ye yourselves also know:

23 Him, I say, being delivered by the determinate counsel, and <sup>1</sup>foreknowledge of God, after you had taken, with wicked <sup>2</sup>hands you have crucified and <sup>3</sup>slain.

24 <sup>1</sup>Whom God hath raised up, and loosed the <sup>2</sup>sorrows of death, because it was impossible that he should be holden of it.

25 For David saith concerning him, <sup>4</sup>I beheld the Lord always before me: for he is at my right hand, that I should not be shaken.

26 Therefore did mine heart rejoice, and my tongue was glad, and moreover also my flesh shall rest in hope, 27 Because thou wilt not <sup>1</sup>leave my soul in grave, neither wilt suffer thine Holy one to see corruption.

28 Thou hast <sup>1</sup>showed me the ways of life, and

2:8 <sup>1</sup> Not that they spake with one voice, and many languages were heard, but that the Apostles spake with strange tongues: for else the miracle had rather been in the hearers, whereas now it is in the speakers, Nazianzen in his oration of Whitsunday.

2:10 <sup>1</sup> By Jews, he meaneth them that were both Jews by birth, and Jews by profession of religion though they were born in other places: and they were Proselytes, which were Gentiles born and embraced the Jews' religion.

2:12 <sup>1</sup> God's word pierceth some so, that it driveth them to seek out the truth, and it doth so choke others, that it forceth them to be witnesses of their own impudency.

2:13 <sup>1</sup> The word which he useth here, signifieth such a kind of mocking which is reproachful and contumelious: And by this reproachful mocking we see, that there is no miracle so great and excellent, which the wickedness of man dareth not speak evil of.

2:14 <sup>1</sup> Peter's boldness is to be marked, wherein the grace of the holy Ghost is to be seen, even straight after the beginning.

2:15 <sup>1</sup> After the sun rising, which may be about seven or eight of the clock with us.

2:16 <sup>1</sup> There is nothing that can dissolve questions and doubts, but testimonies taken out of the Prophets: for men's reasons may be overturned, but God's voice cannot be overturned.

2:17 <sup>1</sup> Peter setting the truth of God against the false accusations of men, showeth in himself and in his fellows, that that is fulfilled which Joel spake concerning the full giving of the holy Ghost in the latter days: which grace also is offered to the whole Church, to their certain and undoubted destruction, which do contemn it.

2:21 <sup>1</sup> The chiefest use of all the gifts of the holy Ghost, is to bring men to salvation by faith.

<sup>2</sup> This word, Call on, signifieth in holy Scriptures, an earnest praying and craving for help at God's hand.

2:22 <sup>1</sup> Christ being innocent, was by God's providence crucified of wicked men.

<sup>2</sup> Who is by those works which God wrought by him, so manifestly approved and allowed of, that no man can gainsay him.

2:23 <sup>1</sup> God's everlasting knowledge going before, which can neither be separated from his determinate counsel, as the Epicureans say, neither yet be the cause of evil: for God in his everlasting and unchangeable counsel, appointed the wicked act of Judas to an excellent end: and God doeth that well which the instruments do ill.

2:24 <sup>1</sup> Christ (as David foretold) did not only rise again, but also was in the grave void of all corruption.

<sup>2</sup> The dead that was full of sorrow both of body and mind: therefore when death appeared conqueror and victor over those sorrows, Christ is rightly said to have overcome those sorrows of death, when as being dead, he overcame death, to live forever with his Father.

2:27 <sup>1</sup> Thou wilt not suffer me to remain in grave.

2:28 <sup>1</sup> Thou hast opened me the way to the true life.

shalt make me full of joy with thy countenance.

29 Men and brethren, I may boldly speak unto you of the Patriarch David, 'that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulcher remaineth with us unto this day.

30 Therefore, seeing he was a Prophet, and knew that God had <sup>d,1</sup>sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins he would raise up Christ concerning the flesh, to set him upon his throne.

31 He knowing this before, spake of the resurrection of Christ, that 'his soul should not be left in grave, neither his flesh should see corruption.

32 <sup>1</sup>This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we all are witnesses.

33 Since then that he by the <sup>1</sup>right hand of God hath been exalted, and hath received of his Father the promise of the holy Ghost, he hath shed forth this which ye now see and hear.

34 For David is not ascended into heaven, but he saith, <sup>f</sup>The Lord said to my Lord, Sit at my right hand, 35 Until I make thine enemies thy footstool.

36 Therefore, let all the house of Israel know for a surety, that God hath <sup>1</sup>made him both Lord, and Christ, this Jesus, I say, whom ye have crucified.

37 Now when they heard it, they were pricked in their hearts, and said unto Peter and the other Apostles, Men and brethren, what shall we do?

38 <sup>1</sup>Then Peter said unto them, Amend your lives, and be baptized every one of you in the Name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins: and ye shall receive the gift of the holy Ghost.

39 For the <sup>1</sup>promise is made unto you, and to your children, and to all that are far off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call.

40 <sup>1</sup>And with many other words he besought and exhorted them, saying, Save yourselves from this

41 <sup>1</sup>Then they that gladly received his word, were baptized, and the same day there were added to the Church about three thousand souls.

43 ¶ <sup>1</sup>And fear came upon every soul: and many wonders and signs were done by the Apostles.

44 <sup>1</sup>And all that believed, were in one place, and had all things common.

45 And they sold their possessions, and goods, and parted them to all men, as everyone had need.

46 <sup>1</sup>And they continued daily with one accord in the Temple, and breaking bread at home, did eat their meat together with gladness and singleness of heart, 47 Praising God, and had favor with all the people: and the Lord added to the Church from day to day, such as should be saved.

1 Now <sup>1</sup>Peter and John went up together into the Temple, at the ninth hour of prayer.

2 And a certain man which was a cripple from his mother's womb was carried, whom they laid daily at the gate of the Temple called Beautiful, to ask alms of them that entered into the Temple,

3 Who seeing Peter and John, that they would enter into the Temple, desiring to receive an alms.

4 And Peter earnestly beholding him with John, said, Look on us.

5 And he <sup>1</sup>gave heed unto them, trusting to receive some thing of them.

2:30 <sup>1</sup> Had sworn solemnly.

2:32 <sup>1</sup> Peter witnesseth that Jesus Christ is the appointed everlasting King, which he proveth manifestly by the gifts of the holy Ghost, and the testimony of David.

2:33 <sup>1</sup> Might and power of God.

2:36 <sup>1</sup> Christ is said to be made, because he was advanced to that dignity: and therefore it is not spoken of his nature, but of his state and dignity.

2:38 <sup>1</sup> Repentance and remission of sins in Christ, are two principles of the Gospel, and therefore of our salvation: and they are obtained by the promises apprehended by faith, and are ratified in us by Baptism, wherewith is joined the virtue of the holy Ghost.

2:39 <sup>1</sup> The word that is used here, giveth us to understand that it was a free gift.

2:40 <sup>1</sup> He is truly joined to the Church which separateth himself from the wicked.

2:41 <sup>1</sup> A notable example of the virtue of the holy Ghost: but such as are of age, are not baptized before they make confession of their faith.

2:42 <sup>1</sup> The marks of the true Church of the doctrine of the Apostles, the duties of charity, the pure and simple administration of the Sacraments, and true invocation used of all the faithful.

<sup>3</sup> The Jews used thin loaves, and therefore they did rather brake them than cut them: So by breaking of bread, they understood that living together and the banquets which they used to keep. And when they kept their love feasts, they used to celebrate the Lord's Supper, which even in these days began to be corrupted, and Paul amendeth it, 1 Cor. 11.

2:43 <sup>1</sup> So oft as the Lord thinketh it expedient, he bridleth the rage of strangers that the Church may be planted, and have some refreshing.

2:44 <sup>1</sup> Charity maketh all things common concerning the use, according as necessity requireth.

2:46 <sup>1</sup> The faithful came together at the beginning with great fruit, not only to the hearing of the word, but also to meat.

3:1 <sup>1</sup> Christ in healing a man that was born lame, and well known to all men, both in place and time very famous, by the hands of his Apostles, doth partly confirm them which believed, and partly also calleth others to believe.

3:5 <sup>1</sup> Both with heart and eyes.

6 Then said Peter, Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have, that give I thee: In the Name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, rise up and walk.

7 And he took him by the right hand, and lifted him up, and immediately his feet and ankle bones received strength.

8 And he leaped up, stood, and walked, and entered with them into the temple, walking and leaping, and praising God.

9 And all the people saw him walk, and praising God.

10 And they knew him, that it was he which sat for the alms at the Beautiful gate of the Temple: and they were amazed, and sore astonished at that which was come unto him.

11 ¶ And as the cripple which was healed, <sup>1</sup>held Peter and John, all the people ran amazed unto them in the porch which is called Solomon's.

12 <sup>1</sup>So when Peter saw it, he answered unto the people, Ye men of Israel, why marvel ye at this? or why look ye so steadfastly on us, as though by our own power or godliness, we had made this man go?

13 The God of Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, the God of our fathers hath glorified his Son Jesus, whom ye betrayed, and denied in the presence of Pilate, when he had judged him to be delivered.

14 But ye denied the Holy one and the just, and desired a murderer to be given you, 15 And killed the Lord <sup>1</sup>of life, whom God hath raised from the dead, whereof we are witnesses.

16 And his Name hath made this man sound, whom ye see and know, through faith in his Name: <sup>1</sup>and the faith which is by him, hath given to him this perfect health of his whole body in the presence of you all.

17 <sup>1</sup>And now brethren, I know that through ignorance ye did it, as did also your governors.

Acts 7:37<sup>c</sup> Gen. 12:3
Gal. 3:8

18 But those things, which God before had showed <sup>1</sup>by the mouth of all his Prophets, that Christ should suffer, he hath thus fulfilled.

19 Amend your lives therefore, and turn, that your sins may be put away, when the time of refreshing shall come from the presence of the Lord.

20 And he shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you.

21 <sup>1</sup>Whom the heaven must contain until the time that all things be restored, which God had spoken by the mouth of all his holy Prophets since the world began.

22 <sup>1</sup>For Moses said unto the Fathers, The Lord your God shall raise up unto you <sup>1a</sup>a Prophet, even of your brethren, like unto me: ye shall hear him in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you.

23 For it shall be that every person which shall not hear that Prophet, shall be destroyed out of the people.

24 Also all the Prophets <sup>1</sup>from Samuel, and thenceforth as many as have spoken, have likewise foretold of these days.

26 First unto you hath God <sup>1</sup>raised up his Son Jesus, and him he hath sent to bless you, in turning everyone of you from your iniquities.

1 And <sup>1a</sup>as they spake unto the people, the Priests and the <sup>2</sup>Captain of the Temple, and the Sadducees came upon them.

3:11 <sup>1</sup> Either because he loved them, who had healed him: or because he feared that if he once let them go out of his sight, he should be lame again.

3:12 <sup>1</sup> Miracles are appointed to convince the unbelievers, and therefore they do wickedly abuse them, who standeth amazed either at the miracles themselves, or at the instruments and means which it pleaseth God to use, take an occasion to establish idolatry and superstition by that, which God hath provided for the knowledge of his true worship, that is, Christianity.

3:15 <sup>1</sup> Who hath life in himself, and giveth life to others.

3:16 <sup>1</sup> Because he believed on him being raised from the dead, whose Name he heard of by us.

3:17 <sup>1</sup> It is best of all to receive Christ so soon as he is offered unto us: but such as have neglected so great a benefit through man's weakness, have yet repentance for a means. As for the ignominy of the cross, we have to set against that, the decree and purpose of God, foretold by the Prophets, of Christ, how that first of all he should be crucified here upon earth, and then he should appear from heaven the judge and restorer of all things, that all believers might be saved, and all unbelievers utterly perish.

3:18 <sup>1</sup> Though there were many Prophets, yet he speaketh but of one mouth, to show unto us the consent and agreement of the Prophets.

3:21 <sup>1</sup> Or, be taken up into heaven.

3:22 <sup>1</sup> This promise was of an excellent and singular Prophet.

3:24 <sup>1</sup> At what time the kingdom of Israel was established.

3:25 <sup>1</sup> The Jews that believe are the first begotten in the kingdom of God.

3:26 <sup>1</sup> Given to the world, or raised from the dead, and advanced to his kingdom.

4:1 <sup>1</sup> None are commonly more diligent or bolder enemies of the Church, than such as profess themselves to be head builders: but the more they rage, the more constantly the faithful servants of God do continue.

<sup>2</sup> The Jews had certain garrisons for the guard and safety of the Temple and holy things, Matt. 26:65. These garrisons had a Captain, such as Eleazarus Ananias, the high Priest's son was, in the time of the war that was in Judea, being a very impudent and proud young man, Josephus, lib. 2, of the taking of Judea.

2 Taking it grievously that they taught the people, and preached in Jesus' Name the resurrection from the dead.

3 And they laid hands on them, and put them in hold, until the next day, for it was now eventide.

4 Howbeit many of them which heard the word, believed, and the <sup>1</sup>number of the men was about five thousand.

5 ¶ And it came to pass on the morrow, that their <sup>1</sup>rulers, and Elders, and Scribes, were gathered together at Jerusalem,

6 And Annas the chief Priest, and Caiaphas, and John, and Alexander, and as many as were of the <sup>1</sup>kindred of the high Priest.

7 <sup>1</sup>And when they had set them before them, they asked, By what power, or in what <sup>2</sup>Name have ye done this?

8 Then Peter full of the holy Ghost, said unto them, Ye rulers of the people, and Elders of Israel,

9 <sup>1</sup>For as much as we this day are examined, of the good deed done to the impotent man, to wit, by what means he is made whole,

10 <sup>1</sup>Be it known unto you all, and to all the people of Israel, that by the Name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom ye have crucified, whom God raised again from the dead, even by him doth this man stand here before you, whole.

11 "This is the stone cast aside of you builders, which is become the head of the corner.

12 Neither is there salvation in any other: for among men there is <sup>1</sup>given none other <sup>2</sup>Name <sup>3</sup>under heaven, whereby we must be saved.

13 <sup>1</sup>Now when they saw the boldness of Peter and John, and understood that they were unlearned men and without <sup>2</sup>knowledge, they marveled, and knew them, that they had been with Jesus:

14 And beholding also the man which was healed standing with them, they had nothing to say against it.

15 Then they commanded them to go aside out of the Council, and <sup>1</sup>conferred among themselves, 16 <sup>1</sup>Saying, What shall we do to these men? for surely a manifest sign is done by them, and it is openly known to all them that dwell in Jerusalem: and we cannot deny it.

17 But that it be noised no farther among the people, let us threaten and charge them, that they speak henceforth to no man in this Name.

18 So they called them, and commanded them, that in no wise they should speak or teach in the Name of Jesus.

19 <sup>1</sup>But Peter and John answered unto them, and said, Whether it be right in the sight of God, to obey you rather than God, judge ye.

20 For we cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard.

21 <sup>1</sup>So they threatened them, and let them go, and found nothing how to punish them, because of the people: for all men praised God for that which was done.

22 For the man was above forty years old, on whom this miracle of healing was showed.

23 <sup>1</sup>Then as soon as they were let go, they came to their fellows, and showed all that the high Priests and Elders had said unto them.

24 <sup>1</sup>And when they heard it, they lifted up their voices to God with one accord, and said, O Lord, thou art the God which had made the heaven, and 4:4 <sup>1</sup> While they thought to diminish the number, they increased them.

4:5 <sup>1</sup> These were they that made the Sanhedrin, which were all of the tribe of Judah, until Herod used that cruelty against David's stock.

4:6 <sup>1</sup> Of whom the high Priests were wont to be chosen and made, the execution of the yearly office being now changed them.

4:7 <sup>1</sup> Against such as brag of a succession of persons, without a succession of doctrine, and by that means beat down the true ministers of the word, so far forth as they are able.

4:9 <sup>1</sup> Wolves which succeed true pastors plead their own cause, and not God's neither the Churches'.

4:10 <sup>1</sup> He is indeed a true Shepherd, that teacheth his sheep to hang upon Christ only, as upon one that is not dead, but hath conquered death, and hath all rule in his own hand.

4:12 <sup>1</sup> Of God.

<sup>2</sup> There is no other man, or no other power and authority whatsoever: which kind of speech being usual among the Jews, rose upon this, that when we are in danger, we call upon them at whose hands we look for help.

yet thus much good that such as lay hid under a vizard of zeal, do at length bewray themselves to be indeed wicked men.

<sup>2</sup> The word used here, is idiot, which being spoken in comparison had to a Magistrate, betokeneth a private man, but when we speak of sciences and studies, it signifieth one that is unlearned: and in account of honor and estimation it importeth one of base degree, and no estimation.

4:16 <sup>1</sup> He that flattereth himself in ignorance, cometh at length to do open wickedness, and that against his own conscience.

4:19 <sup>1</sup> We must so obey men to whom we are subject, that especially and before all things we obey God.

4:21 <sup>1</sup> So far off are the wicked from doing what they list, that contrariwise God useth even that to the setting forth of his glory, which he giveth them leave to do.

4:24 <sup>1</sup> We ought neither to be afraid of the threatenings of our enemies, neither yet foolishly condemn their rage and madness against us: but we have to set against their force and malice, an earnest thinking upon the power and good will of God (both which we do manifestly behold in Christ) and so flee to the aid and succor of our Father.

the earth, the sea, and all things that are in them.

25 Which by the mouth of thy servant David hast said, <sup>b</sup>Why did the Gentiles rage, and the people imagine vain things?

26 The kings of the earth assembled, and the rulers came together against the Lord, and against his Christ.

27 For doubtless, against thine holy Son Jesus, whom thou hadst anointed, both Herod and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles and the <sup>1</sup>people of Israel gathered themselves together.

28 To <sup>1</sup>do whatsoever <sup>2</sup>thine hand, and thy counsel had determined before to be done.

29 And now, O Lord, behold their threatenings, and grant unto thy servants with all boldness to speak thy word, 30 So that thou stretch forth thine hand that healing, and signs, and wonders may be done by the Name of thine holy Son Jesus.

31 <sup>1</sup>And when as they had prayed, the place was shaken where they were assembled together, and they were all filled with the holy Ghost, and they spake the word of God boldly.

32 <sup>1</sup>And the multitude of them that believed, were of <sup>2</sup>one heart, and of one soul: neither any of them said, that anything of that which he possessed, was his own, but they had all things <sup>c</sup>common.

33 And with great power gave the Apostles witness of the resurrection of the Lord Jesus: and great grace was upon them all.

34 <sup>1</sup>Neither was there any among them, that lacked: for as many as were possessors of lands or houses, sold them, and brought the price of the things that were sold,

35 And laid it down at the Apostles' feet, and it was distributed unto every man, according as he had need.

36 Also Joses which was called of the Apostles, Barnabas (that is by interpretation, the son of consolation) being a Levite, and of the country of 37 Where as he had land, sold it, and brought the money, and laid it down at the Apostles' feet.

Cyprus,

2 And <sup>1</sup>kept away part of the price, his wife also being of counsel, and brought a certain part, and laid it down at the Apostles' feet.

3 Then said Peter, Ananias, why hath Satan <sup>1</sup>filled thine heart, that thou shouldst <sup>2</sup>lie unto the holy Ghost, and keep away part of the price of this possession?

4 While it remained, appertained it not unto thee? and after it was sold, was it not in thine own power? how is it that thou hast <sup>1</sup>conceived this thing in thine heart? thou hast not lied unto men, but unto God.

5 Now when Ananias heard these words, he fell down, and gave up the ghost. Then great fear came on all them that heard these things.

6 And the young men rose up, and took him up, and carried him out, and buried him.

7 And it came to pass about the space of three hours after, that his wife came in, ignorant of that which was done.

8 And Peter said unto her, Tell me, sold ye the land for so much? And she said, Yea, for so much.

9 Then Peter said unto her, Why have ye agreed together, to <sup>1</sup>tempt the Spirit of the Lord? behold, the feet of them which have buried thine husband, are at the <sup>2</sup>door, and shall carry thee out.

10 Then she fell down straightway at his feet, and 4:27 <sup>1</sup> Although the people of Israel was but one people, yet the plural number is here used, not so much for the twelve tribes, every one of which made a people, as for the great multitude of them, as though many nations had assembled themselves together, as Judg. 5:14.

4:28 <sup>1</sup> The wicked execute God's counsel, though they think nothing of it, but they are not therefore without fault.

4:31 <sup>1</sup> God witnesseth to his Church by a visible sign, that it is he that will establish it by shaking the powers both of heaven and earth.

4:32 <sup>1</sup> An example of the true Church, wherein there is consent as well in doctrine as in charity one towards another: And the Pastors deliver true doctrine both sincerely, and constantly.

4:34 <sup>1</sup> True charity helpeth the necessity of the poor with its own loss: but so, that all things be done well and orderly.

5:1 <sup>1</sup> Luke showeth by contrary examples, how great a sin hypocrisy is, especially in them which under a false pretence and cloak of zeal would seem to shine and be chief in the Church.

<sup>2</sup> For when they had appointed that farm or possession for the Church, they stuck not at it to keep away a part of the price, as though they had had to do with men, and not with God, and therefore he saith afterward that they tempted God.

5:4 <sup>1</sup> Hereby is declared an advised and purposed deceit, and the fault of the man in admitting the devil's suggestions.

5:9 <sup>1</sup> Look how oft men do things with an evil conscience; so oft they pronounce sentence against themselves, and as much as in them lieth, provoke God to anger, as of set purpose, minding to try whether he be just and almighty or no.

yielded up the ghost: and the young men came in, and found her dead, and carried her out, and buried her by her husband.

11 <sup>1</sup>And great fear came on all the Church, and on as many as heard these things.

12 Thus by the hands of the Apostles were many signs and wonders showed among the people (and they were all with one accord in Solomon's porch.

13 And of the other durst no man join himself to them: nevertheless the people <sup>1</sup>magnified them.

14 Also the number of them that believed in the Lord, both of men and women, grew more and more)

15 Insomuch that they brought the sick into the streets, and laid them on beds and couches, that at the leastway the shadow of Peter, when he came by, might shadow some of them.

16 There came also a multitude out of the cities round about unto Jerusalem, bringing sick folks, and them which were vexed with unclean spirits, who were all healed.

17 ¶ <sup>1</sup>Then the chief Priest rose up, and all they that were with him (which was the <sup>2</sup>sect of the Sadducees) and were full of indignation, 18 And laid hands on the Apostles, and put them in the common prison.

19 <sup>1</sup>But the Angel of the Lord by night opened the prison doors, and brought them forth, and said, 20 <sup>1</sup>Go your way, and stand in the Temple, and speak to the people, all the <sup>2</sup>words of this life.

21 <sup>1</sup>So when they heard it, they entered into the Temple early in the morning, and taught. And the chief Priest came, and they that were with him, and called the Council together, and all the Elders of the children of Israel, and sent to the prison, to cause them to be brought.

22 But when the officers came, and found them not in the prison, they returned and told it, as sure as was possible, and the keepers standing without, before the doors: but when we had opened, we found no man within.

23 Saying, Certainly we found the prison shut

24 Then when the chief Priest and the captain of the Temple, and the high Priests heard these things, they doubted of them, whereunto this would grow.

25 <sup>1</sup>Then came one and showed them, saying, Behold, the men that ye put in prison, are standing in the Temple, and teach the people.

26 <sup>1</sup>Then went the captain with the officers, and brought them without violence (for they feared the people, lest they should have been stoned.)

27 And when they had brought them, they set them before the Council, and the chief Priest asked them, 28 <sup>1</sup>Saying, Did we not straightly command you, that ye should not teach in this name? and behold, ye have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, and ye would <sup>2</sup>bring this man's blood upon us.

29 <sup>1</sup>Then Peter and the Apostles answered, and said, We ought rather to obey God than men.

30 <sup>1</sup>The "God of our fathers hath raised up Jesus whom ye slew, and hanged on a tree.

31 Him hath God lifted up with his right hand, to be a Prince and a Savior, to give repentance to Israel, and forgiveness of sins.

32 <sup>1</sup>And we are his witnesses concerning these things which we say: yea, and the holy Ghost, whom God hath given to them that obey him.

33 Now when they heard it, they <sup>1</sup>brast for anger, and consulted to slay them.

34 <sup>1</sup>Then stood there up in the Council a certain Pharisee named Gamaliel, a doctor of the Law, honored of all the people, and commanded to put the Apostles forth a little space, 35 And said unto them, Men of Israel, take heed to yourselves, what ye intend to do touching these men.

5:11 <sup>1</sup> The Lord by his marvelous virtue bridleth some, that they may not hurt the Church: other some he awe and fear: and other some he allureth unto him.

5:13 <sup>1</sup> Highly praised them.

5:17 <sup>1</sup> The more that the Church increaseth, the more increaseth the rage of Satan, and therefore they proceed from threatenings, to prisoning.

5:19 <sup>1</sup> Angels are made servants of the servants of God.

5:20 <sup>1</sup> God doth therefore deliver his, that they may more stoutly provoke his enemies.

5:25 <sup>1</sup> The more openly that Christ's virtue showeth itself, the more increaseth the madness of his enemies which conspire against him.

5:26 <sup>1</sup> Tyrants which fear not God, are constrained to fear his servants.

5:28 <sup>1</sup> It is the property of tyrants to set out their own commandments as right and reason, be they never so wicked.

<sup>2</sup> Make us guilty of murdering, that man whom yet they will not vouchsafe to name.

5:29 <sup>1</sup> We ought to obey no man, but so far forth as obeying him, we may obey God.

5:30 <sup>1</sup> Christ is appointed and indeed declareth Prince and preserver of his Church in despite of his enemies.

5:32 <sup>1</sup> It is not sufficient for us that there is a right end, but we must also according to our vocation go on forward till we come unto it.

5:33 <sup>1</sup> This reckoneth that they were in a most vehement rage, and marvelously disquieted in mind, for it is a borrowed kind of speech taken from them which are harrishly cut in sunder with a saw.

5:34 <sup>1</sup> Christ findeth defenders of his cause even in the very routs of his enemies, so oft as he thinketh it needful.

36 <sup>1</sup>For before these times, rose up Theudas <sup>2</sup>boasting himself, to whom resorted a number of men, about a four hundred, who was slain: and they all which obeyed him were scattered, and brought to naught.

37 After this man, arose up Judas of Galilee, in the days of the tribute, and drew away much people after him: he also perished, and all that obeyed him, were scattered abroad.

38 And now I say unto you, <sup>1</sup>Refrain yourselves from these men, and let them alone: for if this counsel, or this work be of <sup>2</sup>men, it will come to naught:

39 But if it be of God, ye cannot destroy it, lest ye be found even fighters against God.

40 And to him they agreed, and called the Apostles: and when they had beaten them, they commanded that they should not speak in the Name of Jesus, and let them go.

41 <sup>1</sup>So they departed from the Council, rejoicing, that they were counted worthy to suffer rebuke for his Name.

42 And daily in the <sup>1</sup>Temple, and from house to house they ceased not to teach, and preach Jesus Christ.

1 And <sup>1</sup>in those days, as the number of the disciples grew, there arose a murmuring of the <sup>2</sup>Grecians towards the Hebrews, because their widows were neglected in the <sup>3</sup>daily ministering.

2 <sup>1</sup>Then the twelve called the multitude of the disciples together, and said, It is not <sup>2</sup>meet that we should leave the word of God to serve the <sup>3</sup>tables.

3 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore brethren, look you out among you seven men of honest report, and full of the holy Ghost, and of wisdom, which we may appoint to this business.

4 And we will give ourselves continually to prayer, and to the ministration of the word.

5 And the saying pleased the whole multitude: and they chose Stephen a man full of faith and of the holy Ghost, and <sup>a</sup>Philip, and Prochorus, and Nicanor, and Timon, and Parmenas, and Nicolas a Proselyte of Antioch,

6 <sup>1</sup>Which they set before the Apostles: and they prayed, and <sup>2</sup>laid their hands on them.

7 <sup>1</sup>And the word of God increased, and the number of the disciples was multiplied in Jerusalem greatly, and a great company of the Priests were obedient to the <sup>2</sup>faith.

8 ¶ <sup>1</sup>Now Stephen full of faith and <sup>2</sup>power, did great wonders and miracles among the people.

9 <sup>1</sup>Then there arose certain of the <sup>2</sup>Synagogue, which are called Libertines, and Cyrenians, and of Alexandria, and of them of Cilicia, and of Asia, and disputed with Stephen.

10 <sup>1</sup>But they were not able to resist the wisdom, and the Spirit by the which he spake.

11 Then they suborned men, which said, We have heard him speak blasphemous words against Moses, and God.

5:36 <sup>1</sup>In matters of religion we must take good heed that we attempt nothing under a color of zeal, beside our vocation.

5:38 <sup>1</sup> He dissuadeth his fellows from murdering the Apostles, neither doth he think it good to refer the matter to the Roman Magistrate, for the Jews could abide nothing worse, than to have the tyranny of the Romans confirmed.

5:41 <sup>1</sup> The Apostles, accustomed to suffer and bear words, are at length inured to bear stripes, yet so, that by that means they become stronger.

5:42 <sup>1</sup> Both publicly and privately.

6:1 <sup>1</sup> When Satan has assailed the Church without, and that to small purpose and in vain, he assaileth it within, with civil dissension and strife betwixt themselves: but the Apostles take occasion thereby to set order in the Church.

6:2 <sup>1</sup> The office of preaching the word and dispensing the goods of the Church, are different one from another, and not rashly to be joined together, as the Apostles do here institute: And the Apostles do not choose so much as the Deacons without the consent of the Church.

<sup>3</sup> Banquets though by the name of tables, other offices are also meant, which are annexed to it, such as pertain to the care of the poor.

6:3 <sup>1</sup> In choosing of Deacons (and much more of Ministers) there must be examination both of their learning and manners of life.

6:6 <sup>1</sup> The ancient Church did with laying on of hands, as it were consecrate to the Lord, such as were lawfully elected.

<sup>2</sup> This ceremony of laying on of hands came from the Jews, who used this order both in public affairs, and offering of sacrifices, and also in private prayers and blessings, as appeareth Gen. 28, and the Church observed this ceremony, 1 Tim. 5:22; Acts 8:17, but here is no mention made either of cream, or shaving, or raising, or crossing, etc.

6:8 <sup>1</sup> God exerciseth his Church first with evil words and slanders, then with imprisonments, afterward with scourgings, and by these means prepareth it in such sort, that at length he causeth it to encounter with Satan and the world, even to bloodshed and death, and that with good success.

6:9 <sup>1</sup> Schools and Universities were of old time addicted to false pastors, and were the instruments of Satan to blow abroad and defend false doctrines.

6:10 <sup>1</sup> False teachers, because they will not be overcome, flee from disputations to manifest and open slandering and false accusations.

12 <sup>1</sup>Thus they moved the people and the Elders, and the Scribes: and running upon him, caught him, and brought him to the Council, 13 <sup>1</sup>And set forth false witnesses, which said, This man ceaseth not to speak blasphemous words against this holy place, and the Law.

14 For we have heard him say, that this Jesus of Nazareth shall destroy this place, and shall change the ordinances which Moses gave us.

15 And as all that sat in the Council looked steadfastly on him, they <sup>1</sup>saw his face as it had been the face of an Angel.

1 Then <sup>1</sup>said the chief Priest, Are these things so?

2 <sup>1</sup>And he said, Ye men, brethren, and Fathers, hearken, <sup>4</sup>That God of <sup>2</sup>glory appeared unto our father Abraham, while he was in <sup>3</sup>Mesopotamia, before he dwelt in Haran,

3 And said unto him, Come out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and come into the land which I shall show thee.

4 Then came he out of the land of the Chaldeans, and dwelt in Haran. And after that his father was dead, God brought him from thence into this land, wherein ye now dwell,

5 And he gave him none inheritance in it, <sup>1</sup>no not the breadth of a foot: yet he <sup>2</sup>promised that he would give it to him for a possession, and to his seed after him, when as yet he had no child.

6 But God spake thus, that his <sup>b</sup>seed should be a sojourner in a strange land: and that they should keep it in bondage, and entreat it evil <sup>1</sup>four hundred years.

7 But the nation to whom they shall be in bondage, will I judge, saith God: and after that, they shall come forth and serve me in this place.

9 <sup>1</sup>And the Patriarchs moved with envy, sold <sup>g</sup>Joseph into Egypt: but God was <sup>2</sup>with him,

10 And delivered him out of all his afflictions, and <sup>b</sup>gave him <sup>1</sup>favor and wisdom in the sight of Pharaoh king of Egypt, who made him governor over Egypt, and over his whole house.

11 ¶ Then came there a famine over all the land of Egypt and Canaan, and great affliction, that our fathers found no sustenance.

12 But when <sup>j</sup>Jacob heard that there was corn in Egypt, he sent our fathers first:

13 <sup>j</sup>And at the second time Joseph was known of his brethren, and Joseph's kindred was made known unto Pharaoh.

14 Then sent Joseph and caused his father to be brought, and all his kindred, even threescore and fifteen souls.

15 So <sup>k</sup>Jacob went down into Egypt, and he <sup>l</sup>died, and our fathers, 16 And were <sup>1</sup>removed into Shechem, and were put in the sepulcher, that Abraham had bought <sup>m</sup>for money of the sons of Hamor, son of Shechem.

17 But when the time of the promise drew near, which God had sworn to Abraham, the people <sup>n</sup>grew and multiplied in Egypt, 18 Till another King arose, which knew not Joseph.

6:12 <sup>1</sup> The first bloody persecution of the Church of Christ began and sprang from a Council of Priests by the suggestion of the University doctors.

6:13 <sup>1</sup> An example of cavillers or false accusers, which gather false conclusions of things that are well uttered and spoken.

6:15 <sup>1</sup> Hereby it appeareth that Stephen had an excellent and goodly countenance, having a quiet and settled mind, a good conscience, and sure persuasion that his cause was just: for seeing he was to speak before the people, God beautified his countenance, to the end that with the very beholding of him, the Jews' minds might be pierced and amazed.

7:1 <sup>1</sup> Stephen is admitted to plead his cause, but to this end and purpose, that under a cloak, and color of Law, he might be condemned.

7:2 <sup>1</sup> Stephen witnesseth unto the Jews, that he acknowledgeth the true fathers, and the only true God: and showeth moreover, that they are more ancient than the Temple, with all that service appointed by the Law, and therefore they ought to lay another foundation of true religion, that is to say, the free covenant that God made with the fathers.

<sup>3</sup> When he saith afterward, verse 4, that Abraham came out of Chaldea, it is evident that Mesopotamia contained Chaldea which was near unto it, and bordering upon it, and so writeth Plinius, book 6, chap. 27.

7:5 <sup>1</sup> Not so much ground as to set his foot upon.

7:6 <sup>1</sup> There are reckoned four hundred years, from the beginning of Abraham's progeny, which was at the birth of Isaac: and four hundred and thirty years which are spoken of by Paul, Gal. 3:17, from the time that Abraham and his father departed together out of Ur of the Chaldeans.

7:9 <sup>1</sup> Stephen reckoneth up diligently the horrible mischiefs of some of the Fathers, to teach the Jews that they ought not rashly to rest in the authority or examples of the Fathers.

<sup>2</sup> By this kind of speech, is meant the peculiar favor that God showeth men: for he seemeth to be away from them, whom he helpeth not, and on the other side, he is with them whom he delivereth out of whatsoever great troubles.

7:10 <sup>1</sup> Gave him favor in Pharaoh's sight for his wisdom.

7:16 <sup>1</sup> The Patriarchs the sons of Jacob, though there be mention made of no more than Joseph, Josh. 24:32.

19 The same <sup>1</sup>dealt subtly with our kindred, and evil entreated our fathers, and made them to cast out their young children, that they should not remain alive.

20 <sup>e</sup>The same time was Moses born and was <sup>1</sup>acceptable unto God: which was nourished up in his father's house three months.

21 And when he was cast out, Pharaoh's daughter took him up, and nourished him for her own son.

22 And Moses was learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, and was mighty in words and in deeds.

23 Now when he was full forty years old, it came into his heart to visit his brethren, the children of Israel.

24 <sup>f</sup>And when he saw one of them suffer wrong, he defended him, and avenged his quarrel that had the harm done to him, and smote the Egyptian.

25 For he supposed his brethren would have understood, that God by his hand should give them deliverance: but they understood it not.

26 <sup>g</sup>And the next day, he showed himself unto them as they strove, and would have set them at one again, saying, Sirs, ye are brethren: why do ye wrong one to another?

27 But he that did his neighbor wrong, thrust him away, saying, Who made thee a prince, and a judge over us?

28 Wilt thou kill me, as thou didst the Egyptian yesterday?

29 Then fled Moses at that saying, and was a stranger in the land of Midian, where he begat two sons.

30 And when forty years were expired, there appeared to him in the <sup>h</sup>wilderness of mount Sinai, an <sup>1</sup>Angel of the Lord in a flame of fire, in a bush.

31 And when Moses saw it, he wondered at the sight: and as he drew near to consider it, the voice of the Lord came unto him, saying, 32 I am the God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. Then Moses trembled, and durst not behold it.

33 Then the Lord said to him, Put off thy shoes from thy feet: for the place where thou standest, is holy ground.

34 I have seen, I have seen the affliction of my people, which is in Egypt, and I have heard their groaning, and am come down to deliver them: and now come, and I will send thee into Egypt.

35 This Moses whom they forsook, saying, Who made thee a prince and a judge? the same God sent for a prince, and a deliverer by the <sup>1</sup>hand of the Angel which appeared to him in the bush.

36 He <sup>1</sup>brought them out, doing wonders, and miracles in the land of Egypt, and in the Red Sea, and in the wilderness <sup>40</sup>years.

37 <sup>1</sup>This is that Moses, which said unto the children of Israel, <sup>g</sup>A Prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you, even of your brethren, like unto me: him shall ye hear.

38 <sup>h</sup>This is he that was in the Congregation, in the wilderness with the Angel, which spake to him in mount Sinai, and with our fathers, who received the lively oracles to give unto us.

39 To whom our fathers would not obey, but refused, and in their hearts turned back again into Egypt, 40 Saying unto Aaron, <sup>g</sup>Make us gods that may go before us: for we know not what is become of this Moses that brought us out of the land of Egypt.

41 And they made a <sup>1</sup>calf in those days, and offered sacrifice unto the idol, and rejoiced in the works of their own hands.

42 Then God turned himself away, and <sup>1</sup>gave them up to serve the <sup>2</sup>host of heaven, as it is written in the book of the Prophets, <sup>g</sup>O house of Israel, have ye offered to me slain beasts and sacrifices by the space of forty years in the wilderness?

43 And ye <sup>1</sup>took up the Tabernacle of Moloch, and the star of your god Remphan, figures, which ye made to worship them: therefore I will carry you away beyond Babylon.

45 <sup>g</sup>Which tabernacle also our fathers <sup>1</sup>received, and brought in with Jesus into the <sup>2</sup>possession of the Gentiles, which God drove out <sup>3</sup>before our fathers,

7:19 <sup>1</sup> He devised a subtle invention against our stock, in that he commanded all the males to be cast out.

7:20 <sup>1</sup> That child was born through God's merciful goodness and favor, to be of a goodly and fair countenance.

7:30 <sup>1</sup> Now he calleth the Son of God an Angel, for he is the Angel of great counsel, and therefore, straightway after he showeth him, saying to Moses, I am that God of thy Fathers, etc.

7:37 <sup>1</sup> He acknowledgeth Moses for the lawgiver, but so that he proveth by his own witness, that the Law had respect to a more perfect thing, that is to say, to the prophetic office which tended to Christ, the head of all Prophets.

7:41 <sup>1</sup> This was the superstition of the Egyptians' idolatry: for they worshipped Apis a strange and marvelous calf, and made goodly images of Kine, Herodias, lib. 2.

7:42 <sup>1</sup> Being destitute and void of his Spirit, he gave them up to Satan, and wicked lusts to worship stars.

<sup>2</sup> By the host of heaven, here he meaneth not the Angels, but the moon and sun and other stars.

7:43 <sup>1</sup> You took it upon your shoulders and carried it.

7:44 <sup>1</sup> Moses indeed erected a Tabernacle, but that was to call them back to that form which he had seen in the mountain.

unto the days of David:

46 <sup>a</sup>Who found favor before God, and desired that he might find a tabernacle for the God of Jacob.

47 <sup>b,1</sup>But Solomon built him an house.

48 Howbeit the most High <sup>c</sup>dwelleth not in temples made with hands, as saith the Prophet, 50 Hath not mine hand made all these things?

51 <sup>e,1</sup>Ye stiff-necked and of <sup>2</sup>uncircumcised hearts and ears, ye have always resisted the holy Ghost: as your fathers did, so do you.

52 Which of the Prophets have not your fathers persecuted? and they have slain them, which showed before of the coming of that Just, of whom ye are now the betrayers and murderers, 53 <sup>f</sup>Which have received the law by the <sup>1</sup>ordinance of Angels, and have not kept it.

54 <sup>1</sup>But when they heard these things, their hearts brast for anger, and they gnashed at him with their teeth.

55 <sup>1</sup>But he being full of the holy Ghost, looked steadfastly into heaven, and saw the glory of God, and Jesus <sup>2</sup>standing at the right hand of God, 56 And said, Behold, I see the heavens open, and the Son of man standing at the right hand of God.

57 <sup>1</sup>Then they gave a shout with a loud voice, and stopped their ears, and <sup>2</sup>ran upon him violently all at once,

58 And cast him out of the city, and stoned him: and the <sup>1</sup>witnesses laid down their clothes at a young 59 And they stoned Stephen, who called on God, and said, Lord Jesus receive my spirit.

60 <sup>1</sup>And he kneeled down, and cried with a loud voice, Lord, <sup>2</sup>lay not this sin to their charge. And when he had thus spoken, he <sup>3</sup>slept.

1 And <sup>1</sup>Saul consented to his death. And at that time, there was a great persecution against the Church which was at Jerusalem, and they were all scattered abroad throughout the regions of Judea and of Samaria, except the Apostles.

2 <sup>1</sup>Then certain men fearing God, <sup>2</sup>carried Stephen among them, to be buried, and made great lamentation for him.

3 <sup>1</sup>But Saul made havoc of the Church, and entered into every house, and drew out both men and women, and put them into prison.

4 Therefore they that were scattered abroad, went to and fro preaching the word.

5 ¶ <sup>1</sup>Then came Philip into the city of Samaria, and preached Christ unto them.

6 And the people gave heed unto those things which Philip spake, with one accord, hearing and seeing the miracles which he did.

7 For unclean spirits crying with a loud voice, came out of many that were possessed of them: and many taken with palsies, and that halted, were healed.

<sup>3</sup> God drove them out, that they should yield up the possession of those countries to our fathers, when they entered into the land.

7:47 <sup>1</sup> Solomon built a Temple, according to God's commandment, but not with any such condition, that the Majesty of God should be enclosed therein.

7:51 <sup>1</sup> Stephen moved with the zeal of God, at length judgeth his own judges.

<sup>2</sup> They are of uncircumcised hearts, which lie drowned still in the sins of nature, and stick fast in them: for otherwise all the Jews were circumcised as touching the flesh, and therefore there were two kinds of circumcision, Rom. 2:28.

7:53 <sup>1</sup> By the ministry of Angels.

7:54 <sup>1</sup> The more Satan is pressed, the more he brasteth out into an open rage.

7:55 <sup>1</sup> The nearer that the Martyrs approach to death, the nearer they beholding Christ, do rise up even into heaven.

<sup>2</sup> Ready to confirm him in the confession of the truth, and to receive him to him.

7:57 <sup>1</sup> The zeal of hypocrites and superstitious people, breaketh out at length into most open madness.

put no man to death by law, as they confess before Pilate, saying that it was not lawful for them to put any man to death, and therefore it is reported by Josephus, lib. 20, that Ananus a Sadducee slew James the brother of the Lord, and for so doing, was accused before Albinus the President of the country.

7:58 <sup>1</sup> It was appointed by the Law, that the witnesses should cast the first stones, Deut. 17:7.

7:60 <sup>1</sup> Faith and charity never forsake the true servants of God, even to the last breath.

8:1 <sup>1</sup> Christ useth the rage of his enemies to the spreading forth and enlarging of his kingdom.

<sup>2</sup> Amongst all the duties of charity which the godly use, there is no mention made of shrining up of relics.

8:3 <sup>1</sup> The dispersion or scattering abroad of the faithful, is the joining together of Churches.

8:5 <sup>1</sup> Philip, who was before a Deacon in Jerusalem, is made of God extraordinarily an Evangelist.

8 And there was great joy in that city.

9 <sup>1</sup>And there was before in the city, a certain man called Simon, which used <sup>2</sup>witchcraft, and <sup>3</sup>bewitched the people of Samaria, saying that he himself was some great man,

10 To whom they gave heed from the least to the greatest, saying, This man is that great power of God.

11 And they gave heed unto him, because that of long time he had bewitched them with sorceries.

12 But as soon as they believed Philip, which preached the things that concerned the kingdom of God, and the Name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized both men and women.

13 <sup>1</sup>Then Simon himself believed also, and was baptized, and continued with Philip, and wondered, when he saw the signs and great miracles which were done.

14 ¶ <sup>1</sup>Now when the Apostles, which were at Jerusalem, heard say, that Samaria had received the word of God, they sent unto them Peter and John.

15 Which when they were come down, prayed for them, that they might receive the <sup>1</sup>holy Ghost.

16 (For as yet he was fallen down on none of them, but they were baptized only in the Name of the Lord Jesus.)

17 Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the holy Ghost.

18 <sup>1</sup>And when Simon saw that through laying on of the Apostles' hands the holy Ghost was given, he offered them money, 19 Saying, Give me also this power, that on whomsoever I lay the hands, he may receive the holy Ghost.

20 <sup>1</sup>Then said Peter unto him, Thy money perish with thee, because thou thinkest that the gift of God may be obtained with money.

22 <sup>1</sup>Repent therefore of this thy wickedness, and pray God, that if it be possible, the thought of thine heart may be forgiven thee.

23 For I see that thou art in the <sup>1</sup>gall of bitterness, and in the <sup>2</sup>bond of iniquity.

24 Then answered Simon, and said, Pray ye to the Lord for me, that none of these things which ye have spoken, come upon me.

25 ¶ So they, when they had testified and preached the word of the Lord, returned to Jerusalem, and preached the Gospel in many towns of the Samaritans.

26 <sup>1</sup>Then the Angel of the Lord spake unto Philip, saying, Arise, and go toward the South unto the way that goeth down from Jerusalem unto Gaza, which is waste.

27 And he arose and went on: and behold, a certain Eunuch of Ethiopia, Candace the Queen of the Ethiopians' <sup>1</sup>chief Governor, who had the rule of all her treasure, and came to Jerusalem to worship.

28 And as he returned sitting in his chariot, he read Isaiah the Prophet.

29 Then the Spirit said unto Philip, Go near and join thyself to yonder chariot.

30 And Philip ran thither, and heard him read the Prophet Isaiah, and said, But understandest thou what thou readest?

31 And he said, How can I, except I had <sup>1</sup>a guide? And he desired Philip, that he would come up and sit with him.

32 <sup>1</sup>Now the place of the Scripture which he read, was this, <sup>a</sup>He was lead as a sheep to the slaughter: and like a lamb dumb before his shearers, so opened he not his mouth.

8:9 <sup>1</sup> Christ overcometh Satan so oft as he listeth, and carrieth him about as it were in a triumph in the sight of them, whom he deceived and bewitched.

<sup>3</sup> He had so allured the Samaritans with his witchcrafts, that as blind and mad harebrains they were wholly addicted to him.

8:13 <sup>1</sup> The wicked and the very reprobate are constrained oftentimes to taste of the good gift of God, but they cast it up again forthwith.

8:14 <sup>1</sup> Peter not chief, but as an ambassador sent from the whole company of the Apostles, and John his companion according to the authority which was committed unto them, confirm and build up the Churches of Samaria, whose foundation had been laid afore by Philip.

8:15 <sup>1</sup> Those excellent gifts, which are necessary, especially for them that were to be appointed rulers and governors of the Church.

8:18 <sup>1</sup> Ambition and covetousness do at length pluck the hypocrites out of their dens.

8:20 <sup>1</sup> They are the successors of Simon Magus, and not of Simon

Peter, which either buy or sell holy things.

8:21 <sup>1</sup> In this doctrine which I preach.

8:22 <sup>1</sup> We must hope well even of the vilest sinners, so long and so far forth as we may.

8:23 <sup>1</sup> He calleth the inward malice of the heart, and that venomous and devilish wickedness wherewith this Magician was wholly replenished, the gall of bitterness: and he is said to be in the gall as though he were wholly overwhelmed with gall, and buried in it.

8:26 <sup>1</sup> Christ who calleth freely whom he listeth, doth now use Philip who thought on no such matter, to instruct and baptize the Eunuch at unawares, and by this means extendeth the limits of his kingdom even into Ethiopia.

8:27 <sup>1</sup> A man of great wealth and authority with Candaces: Now this word Candaces is a common name to all the Queens of Ethiopia.

8:31 <sup>1</sup> To show me the way how to understand it.

8:32 <sup>1</sup> Those things which seem most to come by chance or fortune (as men term it) are governed by the secret providence of God.

33 In his <sup>1</sup>humility his judgment hath been exalted: but who shall declare his <sup>2</sup>generation? for his life is taken from the earth.

34 Then the Eunuch answered Philip, and said, I pray thee, of whom speaketh the Prophet this? of himself, or of some other man?

35 Then Philip opened his mouth, and began at the same Scripture, and preached unto him Jesus.

36 And as they went on their way, they came unto a certain water, and the Eunuch said, See, here is water: what doth let me to be baptized?

37 <sup>1</sup>And Philip said unto him, If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest. Then he answered, and said, <sup>2</sup>I believe that that Jesus Christ is that Son of God.

38 Then he commanded the chariot to stand still: and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the Eunuch, and he baptized him.

39 And as soon as they were come up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, that the Eunuch saw him no more: so he went on his way rejoicing.

40 But Philip was found at Azotus, and he walked to and fro preaching in all the cities, till he came to Caesarea.

1 And <sup>a,1</sup> Saul yet <sup>2</sup> breathing out threatenings and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord, went unto the high Priest,

2 And desired of him letters to Damascus to the Synagogues, that if he found any that were of that <sup>1</sup> way, (either men or women) he might bring them bound unto Jerusalem.

CHAPTER 9

<sup>a</sup> Rom. 9:3

1 Cor. 15:8

3 Now as he journeyed, it came to pass that as he was come near to Damascus, <sup>b</sup> suddenly there shined round about him a light from heaven.

4 And he fell to the earth, and heard a voice saying to him, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?

5 And he said, Who art thou, Lord? And the Lord said, I am Jesus whom thou persecutest: it is <sup>1</sup> hard for thee to kick against pricks.

6 He then both trembling and astonished, said, Lord, what wilt thou that I do? And the Lord said unto him, Arise, and go into the city, and it shall be told thee what thou shalt do.

7 The men also which journeyed with him, <sup>1</sup> stood amazed, hearing his <sup>2</sup> voice, but seeing no man.

8 And Saul arose from the ground, and opened his eyes, but saw no man. Then led they him by the hand, and brought him into Damascus, 9 Where he was three days without sight, and neither ate nor drank.

10 And there was a certain disciple at Damascus named Ananias, and to him said the Lord in a vision, Ananias. And he said, Behold, I am here Lord.

11 Then the Lord said unto him, Arise, and go into the street which is called Straight, and seek in the house of Judas after one called Saul of <sup>1</sup> Tarsus: for behold, he prayeth.

12 (And he saw in a vision a man named Ananias coming in to him, and putting his hands on him, that he might receive his sight.)

13 Then Ananias answered, Lord, I have heard by many of this man, how much evil he hath done to thy saints at Jerusalem.

14 Moreover here he hath authority of the high Priests, to bind all that call on thy Name.

15 Then the Lord said unto him, Go thy way: for he is a <sup>1</sup> chosen vessel unto me, to bear my Name before the Gentiles, and Kings, and the children of Israel.

16 For I will <sup>1</sup> show him, how many things he must 8:33 <sup>1</sup> The Hebrew text readeth it thus, Out of a narrow strait, and out of judgment was he taken: whereby the narrow strait, he meaneth the grave and the very bands of death, and by judgment, the punishment which was laid upon him, and the miserable state which Christ took upon him for our sakes, in bearing his Father's wrath.

8:37 <sup>1</sup> Profession of faith is requisite in baptizing of them which are of years, and therefore it is evident that we are not then first ingrafted into Christ, when we are baptized, but being already ingrafted are then confirmed.

9:1 <sup>1</sup> Saul (who is also Paul) persecuting Christ most cruelly, who did as it were flee before him, falleth into his hands, and is overcome: and with a singular example of the goodness of God, instead of punishment which he justly deserved for his cruelty, is not only received to favor, but is also even by the mouth of God appointed an Apostle, and is confirmed by the ministry and witness of Ananias.

9:2 <sup>1</sup> Any trade of life which a man taketh himself unto, the Jews call a way.

9:5 <sup>1</sup> This is a proverb which is spoken of them that through their own stubbornness hurt themselves.

9:7 <sup>1</sup> Stood still and could not go one step forward, but abode amazed as if they had been very stones.

<sup>2</sup> They heard Paul's voice: for afterwards it is said in flattering, that they heard not his voice that speak: as beneath, Acts 22:9. But others go about to set these places at one which seem to be at ajar, after this sort, to wit, that they heard a sound of a voice, but no perfect voice.

9:11 <sup>1</sup> Tarsus was a city of Cilicia near unto Anchiala, which two cities Sardanapalus is said to have built in one day.

9:15 <sup>1</sup> To bear my name in.

suffer for my Name's sake.

17 Then Ananias went his way, and entered into <sup>1</sup>that house, and put his hands on him, and saith, Brother Saul, the Lord hath sent me (even Jesus that appeared unto thee in the way as thou camest) that thou mightest receive thy sight, and be filled with the holy Ghost.

18 And immediately there fell from his eyes as it had been scales, and suddenly he received sight, and arose, and was baptized, 19 And received meat, and was strengthened. So was Saul certain days with the disciples which were at Damascus.

20 <sup>1</sup>And straightway he preached Christ in the Synagogues, that he was that Son of God.

21 So that all that heard him were amazed, and said, Is not this he, that made havoc of them which called on this Name in Jerusalem, and came hither for that intent, that he should bring them bound unto the high Priests?

22 <sup>1</sup>But Saul increased the more in strength, and confounded the Jews which dwelt at Damascus, <sup>2</sup>confirming that this was that Christ.

23 <sup>1</sup>And after that many days were fulfilled, the Jews took counsel to kill him, 24 But their laying await was known of Saul: now they <sup>1</sup>watched the gates day and night, that they might kill him.

25 <sup>1</sup>Then the disciples took him by night, and put him through the wall, and let him down by a rope in a basket.

26 <sup>1</sup>And when Saul was come to Jerusalem, he assayed to join himself with the disciples: but they were all afraid of him, and believed not that he was a disciple.

27 But Barnabas took him, and brought him to the Apostles, and declared to them, how he had seen the Lord in the way, and that he had spoken unto him, and how he had spoken boldly at Damascus

29 And spake boldly in the Name of the Lord Jesus, and spake and disputed against the <sup>1</sup>Grecians: but they went about to slay him.

30 <sup>1</sup>But when the brethren knew it, they brought him to Caesarea, and sent him forth to Tarsus.

31 <sup>1</sup>Then had the Churches rest through all Judea, and Galilee, and Samaria, and were <sup>2</sup>edified, and walked in the fear of the Lord, and were multiplied by the comfort of the holy Ghost.

32 <sup>1</sup>And it came to pass, as Peter walked throughout all quarters, he came also to the saints which dwelt at Lydda.

33 And there he found a certain man named Aeneas, which had kept his couch eight years, and was sick of the palsy.

34 Then said Peter unto him, Aeneas, Jesus Christ maketh thee whole: arise and truss thy couch together. And he arose immediately.

35 And all that dwelt at <sup>1</sup>Lydda and Sharon, saw him, and turned to the Lord.

36 <sup>1</sup>There was also at Joppa a certain woman, a disciple named Tabitha (which by interpretation is called Dorcas) she was full of good works and alms which she did.

37 And it came to pass in those days, that she was sick and died: and when they had washed her, they laid her in an upper chamber.

38 Now forasmuch as Lydda was near to Joppa, and the disciples had heard that Peter was there, they sent unto him two men, desiring that he would not delay to come unto them.

39 Then Peter arose and came with them: and when he was come, they brought him into the upper chamber, where all the widows stood by him weeping, and showing the coats and garments, which Dorcas made, while she was with them.

9:17 <sup>1</sup> Into Judas's house.

9:20 <sup>1</sup> Paul beginneth straightways to execute the office which was enjoined him, never consulting with flesh and blood.

9:22 <sup>1</sup> Paul striveth not with his own authority alone, but with the testimonies of the Prophets.

9:23 <sup>1</sup> Paul, who was before a persecutor, hath now persecution laid before himself, but yet afar off.

9:25 <sup>1</sup> We are not forbidden to avoid and eschew the dangers and conspiracies that the enemies of God lay for us, so that we swerve not from our vocation.

9:26 <sup>1</sup> In ancient times no man was rashly or lightly received into the number of and amongst the sheep of Christ, much less to be a pastor.

9:28 <sup>1</sup> The constant servants of God must look for danger after danger: yet God watcheth for them.

9:29 <sup>1</sup> See Acts 6:1.

9:31 <sup>1</sup> The end of persecution is the building of the Church, so that we will patiently wait for the Lord.

9:32 <sup>1</sup> Peter's Apostleship is confirmed by healing of the man that was sick of the palsy.

9:35 <sup>1</sup> Lydda was a city of Palestine, and Sharon a Champion country and a place of good pasturage between Caesarea of Palestine and the mountain Tabor, and the lake of Gennesaret, which extendeth itself in great length beyond Joppa.

9:36 <sup>1</sup> Peter declareth evidently by raising up a dead body through the Name of Christ, that he preacheth the glad tidings of life.

40 But Peter put them all forth, and kneeled down, and prayed, and turned him to the body, and said, Tabitha, arise. And she opened her eyes, and when she saw Peter, sat up.

41 Then he gave her the hand and lifted her up, and called the Saints and widows, and restored her alive.

42 And it was known throughout all Joppa, and many believed in the Lord.

43 And it came to pass, that he tarried many days in Joppa with one Simon a Tanner.

1 Furthermore <sup>1</sup> there was a certain man in Caesarea called Cornelius, a captain of the band called the Italian band,

2 A <sup>1</sup> devout man, and one that feared God with <sup>2</sup> all his household, which gave much alms to the people, and prayed God continually.

3 He saw in a vision evidently (about the ninth hour of the day) an Angel of God coming in to him, and saying unto him, Cornelius.

4 But when he looked on him, he was afraid, and said, <sup>1</sup> What is it, Lord? and he said unto him, Thy prayers and thine alms are <sup>2</sup> come up into <sup>3</sup> remembrance before God.

5 Now therefore send men to Joppa, and call for Simon, whose surname is Peter.

6 He lodgeth with one Simon a Tanner, whose house is by the sea side: he shall tell thee what thou oughtest to do.

7 And when the Angel which spake unto Cornelius, was departed, he called two of his servants, and a soldier that feared God, one of them that waited on him,

8 And told them all things, and sent them to Joppa.

9 On the morrow as they went on their journey, and drew near unto the city, Peter went up upon the house to pray, about the sixth hour.

10 Then waxed he an hungered, and would have eaten: but while they made something ready, he fell into a <sup>1</sup> trance.

11 And he saw heaven opened, and a certain vessel come down unto him, as it had been a great sheet, knit at the <sup>1</sup> four corners, and was let down to the earth.

12 Wherein were <sup>1</sup> all manner of <sup>2</sup> four footed beasts of the earth, and wild beasts and <sup>3</sup> creeping things, and fowls of the heaven.

13 And there came a voice to him, Arise, Peter: kill, and eat.

14 <sup>1</sup> But Peter said, Not so, Lord: for I have never eaten anything that is polluted, or unclean.

15 And the voice spake unto him again the second time, The things that God hath purified, <sup>1</sup> pollute thou not.

16 This was so done thrice: and the vessel was drawn up again into heaven.

17 ¶ Now while Peter doubted in himself what this vision which he had seen, meant, behold, the men which were sent from Cornelius, had inquired for Simon's house, and stood at the gate, 18 And called, and asked, whether Simon, which was surnamed Peter, were lodged there.

19 And while Peter thought on the vision, the Spirit said unto him, Behold, three men seek thee.

20 Arise therefore, and get thee down, and go with them, and doubt nothing: For I have sent them.

21 ¶ Then Peter went down to the men, which were sent unto him from Cornelius, and said, Behold, I am he whom ye seek: what is the cause wherefore ye are come?

22 And they said, Cornelius the captain, a just man, and one that feareth God, and of good report among all the nation of the Jews, was warned from heaven by an holy Angel to send for thee into his house, and to hear thy words.

10:1 <sup>1</sup> Peter consecrateth the firstfruits of the Gentiles to God by the means of two miracles.

10:2 <sup>1</sup> So that he worshipped one God, and was no idolater, and neither could be void of faith in Christ, because he was a devout man but as yet he knew not that he was come.

10:4 <sup>1</sup> What wilt thou with me, Lord? for he setteth himself to hear.

<sup>2</sup> This is a borrowed kind of speech, which the Hebrews use very much, taken from sacrifices, and applied to prayers: for it is said of whole burnt sacrifices, that the smoke and savor of them goeth up unto God's nostrils: so do our prayers as a sweet-smelling sacrifice which the Lord taketh great pleasure in.

<sup>3</sup> That is, insomuch that they will not suffer God as it were, to forget thee: for so doth the Scripture use oftentimes to prattle with us as nurses do with little children, when they frame their tongues to speak.

10:10 <sup>1</sup> For though Peter stand not amazed as one that is tongue tied, but talketh with God, and is instructed in his mysteries, yet his mind was far otherwise than it was wont to be, but shortly returned to the old bent.

10:11 <sup>1</sup> So that it seemed to be a foursquare sheet.

10:12 <sup>1</sup> Here is this word (All) which is general, plainly put for an indefinite and uncertain, that is to say, for some of all sorts, not for all of every sort.

10:14 <sup>1</sup> Peter profiteth daily in the knowledge of the benefit of Christ, yea, after that he had received the holy Ghost.

10:15 <sup>1</sup> Do not thou hold them as unprofitable.

23 Then called he them in, and lodged them: and the next day, Peter went forth with them, and certain brethren from Joppa accompanied him.

24 ¶ And the day after, they entered into Caesarea. Now Cornelius waited for them, and had called together his kinsmen, and special friends.

25 <sup>1</sup>And it came to pass as Peter came in, that Cornelius met him, and fell down at his feet, and worshipped him.

26 But Peter took him up, saying, Stand up: for even I myself am a man.

27 And as he talked with him, he came in, and found many that were come together.

28 And he said unto them, Ye know that it is an unlawful thing for a man that is a Jew, to company, or come unto one of another nation: but God hath showed me, that I should not call any man polluted, or unclean.

29 Therefore came I unto you without saying nay, when I was sent for. I ask therefore, for what intent have ye sent for me?

30 Then Cornelius said, Four days ago, about <sup>1</sup>this hour, I fasted, and at the ninth hour I prayed in mine house, and behold, a man stood before me in bright clothing, 31 <sup>1</sup>And said, Cornelius, thy prayer is heard, and thine alms are had in remembrance in the sight of God.

32 <sup>1</sup>Send therefore to Joppa, and call for Simon, whose surname is Peter (he is lodged in the house of Simon a Tanner by the Seaside) who when he cometh, shall speak unto thee.

33 Then sent I for thee immediately, and thou hast well done to come. Now therefore are we all here present before God to hear all things that are commanded thee of God.

34 <sup>1</sup>Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth

I perceive, that <sup>a,2</sup>God is no [respector] of persons.

35 But in every nation he that <sup>1</sup>feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him.

36 Ye <sup>1</sup>know the word which God hath sent to the children of Israel, preaching peace by Jesus Christ, which is Lord of all:

37 <sup>1</sup>Even the word which came through all Judea, <sup>b</sup>beginning in Galilee, after the Baptism which John preached:

38 To wit, how God <sup>1</sup>anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the holy Ghost, and with power: who went about doing good, and healing all that were oppressed of the devil: for God was with him.

39 And we are witnesses of all things which he did both in the land of the Jews, and in Jerusalem, whom they slew, hanging him on a tree.

40 Him God raised up the third day, and caused that he was showed openly:

41 Not to all the people, but unto the witnesses <sup>1</sup>chosen before of God, even to us which did eat and drink with him, after he arose from the dead.

42 And he commanded us to preach unto the people, and to testify, that it is he that is ordained of God a judge of quick and dead.

43 To him also give all the <sup>1</sup>Prophets witness, that through his Name all that believe in him, shall receive remission of sins.

44 <sup>1</sup>While Peter yet spake these words, the holy Ghost fell on all them which heard the word.

45 So they of the circumcision, which believed, were astonished, as many as came with Peter, because that on the Gentiles also was poured out the gift of the holy Ghost.

46 For they heard them speak with tongues, and magnify God. Then answered Peter,

47 <sup>1</sup>Can any man forbid water, that these should

10:25 <sup>1</sup> Religious adoration or worship agreeth only to God: but civil worship is given to the Ministers of the word, although not without danger.

10:30 <sup>1</sup> He meaneth not the selfsame hour, but the like, that is, about nine of the clock the other day, as it was then nine when he spake to Peter.

10:31 <sup>1</sup> Cornelius's faith showeth forth itself by prayer and charity.

10:32 <sup>1</sup> As faith cometh by hearing, so is it nourished and groweth up by the same.

10:34 <sup>1</sup> Distinction of nations is taken away by the coming of Christ: And it is evidently seen by faith and righteousness, who is agreeable to him, or whom he accepteth.

10:35 <sup>1</sup> By the fear of God, the Hebrews understand the whole service of God: whereby we perceive that Cornelius was not void of faith, no more than they were which lived before Christ's time: and therefore they deal foolishly, which build preparative works and free will upon this place.

10:36 <sup>1</sup> God gave the Israelites to understand, that whosoever liveth godly, is acceptable to God, of what nation soever he be, for he preached peace to men through Jesus Christ, who is Lord not of one nation only, that is, of the Jews, but of all.

10:37 <sup>1</sup> The sum of the Gospel (which shall be made manifest at the latter day when Christ himself shall sit as judge both of the quick and the dead) is this, that Christ promised to the Fathers, and exhibited in his time with the mighty power of God, (which was by all means showed) and at length crucified to reconcile us to God, did rise again the third day, that whosoever believeth in him should be saved through the remission of sins.

10:38 <sup>1</sup> This style is taken from an old custom of the Jews, who used to anoint their Kings and Priests, whereupon it grew, to call them anointed, upon whom God bestowed gifts and virtues.

10:41 <sup>1</sup> This choosing of the Apostles is properly given to God: for though God be president in the lawful election of ministers, yet there is in this place a secret opposition and setting of God's choosing, and men voice the one against the other, for the Apostles are immediately appointed of God, and the Church Ministers by means.

10:44 <sup>1</sup> The Spirit of God sealeth that in the heart of the hearers, which the minister of the word speaketh by the commandment of God, as it appeareth by the effects.

10:47 <sup>1</sup> Baptism doth not sanctify or make them holy which receive it, but sealeth up and confirmeth their sanctification.

not be baptized, which have received the holy Ghost, as well as we?

48 So he commanded them to be baptized in the Name of the Lord. Then prayed they him to tarry certain days.

11 <sup>2</sup> Peter being accused for going to the Gentiles, <sup>5</sup> defendeth himself. <sup>22</sup> Barnabas is sent to Antioch, <sup>26</sup> where the disciples are called Christians: <sup>28</sup> and there Agabas foretelleth a famine to come.

1 Now <sup>1</sup>the Apostles and the brethren that were in Judea, heard, that the Gentiles had also received the word of God.

2 And when Peter was come up to Jerusalem, they of the circumcision contended against him,

3 Saying, Thou wentest into men uncircumcised, and hast eaten with them.

4 Then Peter began, and expounded the thing in order to them, saying,

5 I was in the city of Joppa, praying, and in a trance I saw this vision, A certain vessel coming down as it had been a great sheet, let down from heaven by the four corners, and it came to me,

6 Toward the which when I had fastened mine eyes, I considered, and saw four footed beasts of the earth, and wild beasts, and creeping things, and fowls of the heaven.

7 Also I heard a voice, saying unto me, Arise, Peter: slay and eat.

8 And I said, God forbid, Lord: for nothing polluted or unclean hath at anytime entered into my mouth.

9 But the voice answered me the second time from heaven, The things that God hath purified, pollute thou not.

10 And this was done three times, and all were taken up again into heaven.

11 Then behold, immediately there were three men already come unto the house where I was, sent from Caesarea unto me.

12 And the Spirit said unto me, that I should go with them, without doubting: moreover these six brethren came with me, and we entered into the man's house.

13 And he showed us, how he had seen an Angel in his house, which stood and said to him, Send men to Joppa, and call for Simon, whose surname is Peter.

14 He shall speak words unto thee, whereby both thou and all thine house shall be saved.

15 And as I began to speak, the holy Ghost fell on them, <sup>a</sup>even as upon us at the beginning.

16 Then I remembered the word of the Lord, how he said, <sup>b</sup>John baptized with water, but ye shall be baptized with the holy Ghost.

17 For as much then as God gave them a like gift, as he did unto us, when we believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, who was I, that I could let God?

18 <sup>1</sup>When they heard these things, they held their peace, and glorified God, saying, Then hath God also to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life.

19 ¶ <sup>1</sup>And they which were <sup>c</sup>scattered abroad because of the affliction that arose about Stephen, went throughout till they came unto Phonicia and Cyprus, and <sup>2</sup>Antioch, preaching the word to no man, but unto the Jews only.

20 <sup>1</sup>Now some of them were men of Cyprus and of Cyrene, which when they were come into Antioch, spake unto the Grecians, and preached the Lord Jesus.

21 And the hand of the Lord was with them, so that a great number believed and turned unto the Lord.

22 <sup>1</sup>Then tidings of those things came unto the ears of the Church, which was in Jerusalem, and they sent forth Barnabas, that he should go unto Antioch.

23 Who when he was come and had seen the grace of God, was glad, and exhorted all, that with purpose of heart they would continue in the Lord.

24 For he was a good man, and full of the holy Ghost, and faith and much people joined themselves unto the Lord.

25 ¶ <sup>1</sup>Then departed Barnabas to Tarsus to seek Paul:

26 And when he had found him, he brought him unto Antioch: and it came to pass that a whole year they were conversant with the Church, and taught much people, insomuch that the disciples were first called Christians in Antioch.

27 <sup>1</sup>In those days also came Prophets from Jerusalem unto Antioch.

28 And there stood up one of them named Agabus, and signified by the Spirit, that there should be great famine throughout all the world, which also came to pass under Claudius Caesar.

29 <sup>1</sup>Then the disciples every man according to his 11:1 <sup>1</sup> Peter being without cause reprehended of the unskillful and ignorant, doth not object that he ought not to be judged of any, but openly giveth an account of his doing.

11:18 <sup>1</sup> Such as ask a question of the truth which they know not, ought to be quietly heard, and must also quietly yield to the declaration thereof.

11:19 <sup>1</sup> The scattering abroad of the Church of Jerusalem is the cause of the gathering together of many other Churches.

11:20 <sup>1</sup> The Church of Antioch, the new Jerusalem of the Gentiles was extraordinarily called.

11:22 <sup>1</sup> The Apostles do not rashly condemn an extraordinary vocation, but yet they judge it by the effects.

11:25 <sup>1</sup> There was no contention amongst the Apostles either of usurping, or of holding places and degrees.

11:27 <sup>1</sup> God doth so wrap up his Church with the wicked, in his scourges and plagues which he sendeth upon the earth, that notwithstanding he provideth for it conveniently.

ability, purposed to send <sup>2</sup>succor unto the brethren which dwelt in Judea.

30 Which thing they also did, and sent it to the Elders by the hand of Barnabas and Saul.

12 Herod killeth James with the sword, 4 And imprisoneth Peter, 8 whom the Angel delivereth. 20 Herod being offended with them of Tyrus, 21 is pacified: 22 And taking the honor due to God, to himself, 23 he is eaten with worms, and so dieth.

1 Now <sup>1</sup>about that time, <sup>2</sup>Herod the king stretched forth his hand to vex certain of the Church,

2 And he <sup>1</sup>killed James the brother of John with the sword.

3 <sup>1</sup>And when he saw that it pleased the Jews, he proceeded further, to take Peter also (then were the days of unleavened bread.)

4 <sup>1</sup>And when he had caught him, he put him in prison, and delivered him to four quaternions of soldiers to be kept, intending after the Passover to bring him forth to the people.

5 <sup>1</sup>So Peter was kept in prison, but earnest prayer was made of the Church unto God for him.

6 And when Herod would have brought him out unto the people, the same night slept Peter between two soldiers, bound with two chains, and the keepers before the door, kept the prison.

7 <sup>a</sup>And behold the Angel of the Lord came upon them, and a light shined in the <sup>1</sup>house, and he smote Peter on the side, and raised him up, saying, Arise quickly. And his chains fell off from his hands.

8 And the Angel said unto him, Gird thyself, and bind on thy sandals. And so he did. Then he said unto him, Cast thy garment about thee, and follow me.

9 So Peter came out and followed him, and knew not that it was true, which was done by the Angel, but thought he had seen a vision.

10 Now when they were past the first and the second watch, they came unto the iron gate that leadeth unto the city, which opened to them by its own accord, and they went out, and passed through one street, and by and by the Angel departed from him.

11 ¶ And when Peter was come to himself, he said, Now I know for a truth, that the Lord hath sent his Angel, and hath delivered me out of the hand of Herod, and from all the waiting for of the people of the Jews.

12 <sup>1</sup>And as he considered the thing, he came to the house of Mary, the mother of John, whose surname was Mark, where many were gathered together, and prayed.

13 <sup>1</sup>And when Peter knocked at the entry door, a maid <sup>2</sup>came forth to hearken, named Rhoda, 14 But when she knew Peter's voice, she opened not the entry door for gladness, but ran in, and told how Peter stood before the entry.

15 But they said unto her, Thou art mad. Yet she affirmed it constantly, that it was so. Then said they, It is his Angel.

16 But Peter continued knocking, and when they had opened it, and saw him, they were astonished.

17 <sup>1</sup>And he beckoned unto them with the hand, to hold their peace, and told them how the Lord had brought him out of the prison. And he said, Go show these things unto James and to the brethren: and he departed and went into another place.

18 ¶ <sup>1</sup>Now as soon as it was day, there was no small trouble among the soldiers, what was become of Peter.

19 And when Herod had sought for him, and found him not, he examined the keepers, and commanded them to be led to be punished. And he went down from Judea to Caesarea, and there abode.

20 <sup>1</sup>Then Herod was angry with them of Tyre and Sidon, but they came all with one accord unto him, and persuaded Blastus the King's Chamberlain, and they desired peace, because their country was nourished by the King's land.

21 And upon a day appointed, Herod arrayed

11:29 <sup>2</sup> That is, that thereof the Deacons might succor the poor: for it behooved to have all these things done orderly, and decently, and therefore it is said, that they sent these things to the Elders, that is, to the governors of the Church.

12:1 <sup>1</sup> God giveth his Church a truce, but for a little time.

<sup>2</sup> This name Herod was common to all them that came of the stock of Herod Ascalonites, whose surname was Magnus: but he that is spoken of here, was nephew to Herod the great son to Aristobulus, and father to that Agrippa who is spoken of afterward.

12:2 <sup>1</sup> Violently, his cause being not once heard.

12:3 <sup>1</sup> It is an old fashion of tyrants to procure the favor of the wicked, with the blood of the godly.

12:4 <sup>1</sup> The tyrants and wicked make a gallows for themselves, even then when they do most according to their own will and fantasy.

12:5 <sup>1</sup> The prayers of the godly overturn the counsel of tyrants, obtain Angels of God, break the prison, unloose chains, put Satan to flight and preserve the Church.

12:7 <sup>1</sup> In the prison.

12:12 <sup>1</sup> Holy meeting in the night as well of men as women (when they cannot be suffered in the day time) are allowable by the example of the Apostles.

12:13 <sup>1</sup> We obtain more of God, than we dare well hope for.

<sup>2</sup> Out of the place where they were assembled, but not out of the house.

12:17 <sup>1</sup> We may sometimes give place to the rage of the wicked, but yet so that our diligence which ought to be used in God's business, be not a whit slackened.

12:18 <sup>1</sup> Evil counsel falleth out in the end to the hurt of the devisers of it.

himself in royal apparel, and sat on the judgment seat, and made an oration unto them.

22 <sup>1</sup>And the people gave a shout, saying, The voice of God, and not of man.

23 <sup>1</sup>But immediately the Angel of the Lord smote him, because he <sup>2</sup>gave not glory unto God, so that he was eaten of worms, and gave up the ghost.

24 <sup>1</sup>And the <sup>2</sup>word of God grew, and multiplied.

25 So Barnabas and Saul returned from Jerusalem, when they had fulfilled their office, and took with them John, whose surname was Mark.

1 There <sup>1</sup>were also in the Church that was at Antioch, certain Prophets and teachers, as Barnabas, and Simeon called Niger, and Lucius of Cyrene, and Manaen (which had been brought up with <sup>2</sup>Herod the Tetrarch) and Saul.

2 Now as they <sup>1</sup>ministered to the Lord, and fasted, the holy Ghost said, Separate me Barnabas and Saul, for the work whereunto I have <sup>2</sup>called them.

3 <sup>1</sup>Then fasted they and prayed, and laid their hands on them, and let them go.

4 <sup>1</sup>And they after they were sent forth of the holy Ghost, came down unto <sup>2</sup>Seleucia, and from thence they sailed to Cyprus.

5 And when they were at Salamis, they preached the word of God in the Synagogues of the Jews: and they had also John to their minister.

6 So when they had gone throughout the isle unto Paphos, they found a certain sorcerer, a false prophet, being a Jew, named Bar-Jesus,

7 Which was with the Deputy Sergius Paulus, a prudent man. He called unto him Barnabas and Saul, and desired to hear the word of God.

8 <sup>1</sup>But Elymas the sorcerer, (for so is his name by interpretation) withstood them, and sought to turn away the Deputy from the faith.

9 Then Saul (which also is called Paul) being full of the holy Ghost, set his eyes on him,

10 <sup>1</sup>And said, O full of all subtlety and all <sup>2</sup>mischief, the child of the devil, and enemy of all righteousness, wilt thou not cease to pervert the straight ways of the Lord?

11 Now therefore behold, the <sup>1</sup>hand of the Lord is upon thee, and thou shalt be blind, and not see the sun for a season. And immediately there fell on him a mist and a darkness, and he went about, seeking some to lead him by the hand.

12 Then the Deputy when he saw what was done, believed, and was astonished at the doctrine of the Lord.

13 <sup>1</sup>Now when Paul and they that were with him were departed by ship from Paphos, they came to Perga a city of Pamphylia: then John departed from them, and returned to Jerusalem.

14 But when they departed from Perga, they came to Antioch a city of <sup>1</sup>Pisidia, and went into the Synagogue on the Sabbath day, and sat down.

12:23 <sup>1</sup> God resisteth the proud.

13:2 <sup>1</sup> While they were busy doing their office, that is, as Chrysostom expoundeth it, while they were preaching.

<sup>2</sup> The Lord is said to call (whereof this word (calling) cometh, which is usual in the Church) when he causeth that to be, which was not, whether you refer it to the matter itself or to any quality or thing about the matter: and it groweth of this, because when things begin to be, then they have some name: as God's mighty power is also declared thereby, who spake the word, and things were made.

13:3 <sup>1</sup> Fast, and solemn prayers were used before the laying on of hands.

13:4 <sup>1</sup> Paul and his companions do at the first bring Cyprus to the subjection and obedience of Christ.

13:8 <sup>1</sup> The devil maketh the conquest of Christ more glorious, in that that he setteth himself against him.

13:11 <sup>1</sup> His power which he showeth in striking and beating down his enemies.

13:13 <sup>1</sup> An example in one and the selfsame company both of singular constancy, and also of great weakness.

13:14 <sup>1</sup> This putteth a difference betwixt it, and Antioch which was in Syria.

13:15 <sup>1</sup> In the Synagogue of the Jews (according to the pattern whereof Christian Congregations were instituted) first the Scriptures were read, then such as were learned were licensed by the rulers of the Synagogue to speak and expound.

<sup>2</sup> Word for word, If there be any word in you: and this is a kind of speech taken from the Hebrews, whereby is meant, that the gifts of God's grace are in us, as it were in treasure houses, and that they are not ours, but God's: In like sort saith David, Thou hast put a new song in my mouth, Ps. 40:1.

exhortation for the people, say on.

16 <sup>1</sup>Then Paul stood up and beckoned with the hand, and said, Men of Israel, and ye that fear God, hearken.

17 The God of this people of Israel chose our fathers, and <sup>1</sup>exalted the people when they dwelt in the land of <sup>a</sup>Egypt, and with an <sup>b,2</sup>high arm brought them out thereof.

18 And about the time <sup>c</sup>of forty years, suffered he their manners in the wilderness.

19 And he destroyed seven nations in the land of Canaan, and <sup>d</sup>divided their land to them by lot.

20 Then afterward he gave unto them <sup>e</sup>Judges about <sup>1</sup>four hundred and fifty years, unto the time of Samuel the Prophet.

21 So after that, they desired a <sup>f</sup>King, and God gave unto them <sup>g</sup>Saul, the son of Cis, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, by the space of <sup>1</sup>forty years.

22 And after he had taken him away, he raised up <sup>h</sup>David to be their King, of whom he witnessed, saying, I have found David the son of Jesse, a man after mine own heart, which will do all things that I will.

23 <sup>1</sup>Of this man's seed hath God <sup>i</sup>according to his promise raised up to Israel, the Savior Jesus:

24 When <sup>j</sup>John had first preached <sup>1</sup>before his coming the baptism of repentance to all the people of Israel.

25 And when John had fulfilled his course, he said, <sup>k</sup>Whom ye think that I am, I am not he: but behold, there cometh one after me, whose shoe of his feet I am not worthy to loose.

26 <sup>1</sup>Ye men and brethren, children of the generation of Abraham, and whosoever among you feareth God, to you is the word of this salvation sent.

27 <sup>1</sup>For the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and their rulers, because they knew him not, nor yet the words of the Prophets, which are read every Sabbath day, they have fulfilled them in condemning him.

28 And though they found no cause of death in him, yet desired they Pilate to kill him.

29 And when they had fulfilled all things that were written of him, they took him down from the tree, and put him in a sepulcher.

30 <sup>1</sup>But God <sup>m</sup>raised him up from the dead.

31 And he was seen many days of them, which came up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem, which are his witnesses unto the people.

32 And we declare unto you, that touching the promise made unto the fathers, 33 God hath fulfilled it unto us their children, in that he <sup>1</sup>raised up Jesus, <sup>2</sup>even as it is written in the second Psalm, "Thou art my Son: this day have I begotten thee.

34 Now as concerning that he raised him up from the dead, no more to return to corruption, he hath said thus, "I will give you the holy things of David, <sup>1</sup>which are faithful.

37 But he whom God raised up, saw no corruption.

38 <sup>1</sup>Be it known unto you therefore, men and brethren, that through this man is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins.

39 And from <sup>1</sup>all things, from which ye could not be justified by the Law of Moses, by him everyone

13:16 <sup>1</sup> God bestowed many peculiar benefits upon his chosen Israel, but this especially, that he promised them the everlasting redeemer.

13:17 <sup>1</sup> Advanced and brought to honor.

13:20 <sup>1</sup> There were from the birth of Isaac unto the destruction of the Canaanites under the governance of Joshua four hundred and seven and forty years, and therefore he addeth in this place, this word, About, for there want three years, but the Apostle useth the whole greater number.

13:21 <sup>1</sup> In this space of forty years must the time of Samuel be reckoned with the days of Saul: for the kingdom did as it were swallow up his government.

13:23 <sup>1</sup> He proveth by the witness of John, that Jesus is that Savior which should come of David.

13:24 <sup>1</sup> John as an Herald, did not show Christ's coming afar off as the other Prophets did, but hard at hand, and entered on his journey.

13:26 <sup>1</sup> Christ was promised and sent properly to the Jews.

13:27 <sup>1</sup> All things came to pass to Christ, which the Prophets foretold of Messiah: so that hereby also it appeareth that he is the true and only Savior: and yet notwithstanding they are not to be excused which did not only not receive him, but also persecute him most cruelly although he was innocent.

13:30 <sup>1</sup> We must set the glory of the resurrection against the shame of the cross, and grave. And the resurrection is proved as well by witnesses which saw it, as by the testimonies of the Prophets.

13:33 <sup>1</sup> For then he appeared plainly and manifestly as that only Son of God, when as he left off his weakness, and came out of the grave, having conquered death.

<sup>2</sup> If Christ had tarried in death, he had not been the true Son of God, neither had the covenant, which was made with David, been sure.

13:34 <sup>1</sup> The Greeks call those holy things, which the Hebrews call gracious bounties: and they are called David's bounties in the passive signification, because God bestowed them upon David: Moreover, they are termed faithful, after the manner of speech which the Hebrews use, who terms those things faithful, which are steady and sure such as never alter nor change.

13:35 <sup>1</sup> The Lord was so in grave, that he felt no corruption.

13:38 <sup>1</sup> Christ was sent to give them free remission of sins, which were condemned by the Law.

13:39 <sup>1</sup> Whereas the ceremonies of the Law could not absolve you from your sins, this man doth absolve you, if you lay hold on him by faith.

40 <sup>1</sup>Beware therefore lest that come upon you, which is spoken of in the Prophets, 41 <sup>1</sup>Behold, ye despisers, and wonder, and vanish away: for I work a work in your days, a work which ye shall not believe, if a man would declare it you.

42 ¶ <sup>1</sup>And when they were come out of the Synagogue of the Jews, the Gentiles besought, that they would preach these words to them the next Sabbath day.

43 Now when the congregation was dissolved, many of the Jews and <sup>1</sup>Proselytes that feared God, followed Paul and Barnabas, which spake unto them, and exhorted them to continue in the grace of God.

44 And the next Sabbath day came almost the whole city together, to hear the word of God.

45 <sup>1</sup>But when the Jews saw the people, they were full of envy, and spake against those things, which were spoken of Paul, contrarying them, and railing on them.

46 <sup>1</sup>Then Paul and Barnabas spake boldly, and said, It was necessary that the word of God should first have been spoken unto you: but seeing ye put it from you, and <sup>2</sup>judge yourselves unworthy of everlasting life, lo, we turn to the Gentiles.

47 For so hath the Lord commanded us, saying, <sup>1</sup>I have made thee a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldst be the salvation unto the end of the world.

48 And when the Gentiles heard it, they were glad, and glorified the word of the Lord: and as many as were <sup>1</sup>ordained unto eternal life, believed.

49 Thus the word of the Lord was published throughout the whole country.

50 <sup>1</sup>But the Jews stirred certain <sup>2</sup>devout and honorable women, and the chief men of the city, and raised persecution against Paul and Barnabas, and expelled them out of their coasts.

51 <sup>1</sup>But they 'shook off the dust of their feet against them, and came unto Iconium.

52 And the disciples were filled with joy, and with the holy Ghost.

1 And <sup>1</sup>it came to pass in <sup>2</sup>Iconium, that they went both together into the Synagogue of the Jews, and so spake, that a great multitude both of the Jews and of the Grecians believed.

2 And the <sup>1</sup>unbelieving Jews stirred up, and corrupted the minds of the Gentiles against the brethren.

3 <sup>1</sup>So therefore they abode there a long time, and spake boldly in the Lord, which gave testimony unto the word of his grace, and caused signs and wonders to be done by their hands.

4 But the multitude of the city was divided: and some were with the Jews, and some with the Apostles.

5 And when there was an assault made both of the Gentiles, and of the Jews with their rulers, to do them violence, and to stone them,

6 They were ware of it, and <sup>1</sup>fled unto Lystra, and Derbe, cities of Lycaonia, and unto the region round about,

7 And there preached the Gospel.

8 ¶ <sup>1</sup>Now there sat a certain man at Lystra, impotent in his feet, which was a cripple from his mother's womb, who had never walked.

9 He heard Paul speak: who beholding him and perceiving that he had faith to be healed,

10 Said with a loud voice, Stand upright on thy 13:40 <sup>1</sup> The benefits of God turn to the utter undoing of them that contemn them.

13:43 <sup>1</sup> Which had forsaken their heathenish religion, and embraced the religion set forth by Moses.

13:45 <sup>1</sup> The favor of one selfsame Gospel is unto the reprobate and unbelievers, death, and to the elect and such as believe, life.

13:46 <sup>1</sup> The Gospel is published to the Gentiles by the express commandment of God.

13:48 <sup>1</sup> Therefore either all were not appointed to everlasting life, or else all should have believed: but because that is not so, it followeth, that some certain were ordained, and therefore God did not only foreknow, but also foreordain, that neither faith nor the effects of faith should be the cause of his ordaining or appointment, but his ordaining the cause of faith.

13:50 <sup>1</sup> Such is the craft and subtlety of the enemies of the Gospel, that they abuse the simplicity of some which are not altogether evil men, to execute their cruelty.

14:1 <sup>1</sup> We ought to be no less constant in preaching of the Gospel, than the perverseness of the wicked is obstinate in persecuting of it.

14:2 <sup>1</sup> Which obeyed not the doctrine.

14:3 <sup>1</sup> We ought not to leave our places and give place to threatenings, neither to open rage, but when there is no other remedy, and that not for our own quietness' sake, but that the Gospel of Christ may be spread further abroad.

14:6 <sup>1</sup> It is lawful sometimes to flee dangers, in time convenient.

14:8 <sup>1</sup> It is an old subtlety of the devil, either to cause the faithful servants of God to be banished at once, or to be worshipped for idols: and that chiefly taking occasion by miracles wrought by them.

feet. And he leaped up, and walked.

11 Then when the people saw what Paul had done, they lifted up their voices, saying in the speech of Lycaonia, Gods are come down to us in the likeness of men.

12 And they called Barnabas, Jupiter: and Paul Mercurius, because he was the chief speaker.

13 Then Jupiter's Priest, which was before their city, brought bulls with garlands unto the <sup>1</sup>gates, and would have sacrificed with the people.

14 But when the Apostles, Barnabas and Paul heard it, they rent their clothes, and ran in among the people, crying,

15 <sup>1</sup>And saying, O men, why do ye these things? We are even men subject to the <sup>2</sup>like passions that ye be, and preach unto you, that ye should turn from these <sup>3</sup>vain things unto the living God, <sup>4</sup>which made heaven and earth, and the sea, and all things that in them are:

17 Nevertheless, he left not himself without witness, in that he did good and gave us rain from heaven, and fruitful seasons, filling our hearts with food, and gladness.

18 And speaking these things, scarce appeased they the multitude, that they had not sacrificed unto them.

19 <sup>1</sup>Then there came certain Jews from Antioch and Iconium, which when they had persuaded the people, <sup>1</sup>stoned Paul, and drew him out of the city, supposing he had been dead.

20 Howbeit, as the disciples stood round about him, he arose up, and came into the city, and the next day he departed with Barnabas to Derbe.

21 <sup>1</sup>And after they had preached the glad tidings of the Gospel to that city, and had taught many, they returned to Lystra, and to Iconium, and to 22 <sup>1</sup>Confirming the disciples hearts, and exhorting them to continue in the faith, affirming that we must through many afflictions enter into the kingdom of God.

23 <sup>1</sup>And when they had ordained them Elders by election in every Church, and prayed, and fasted, they commended them to the Lord in whom they believed.

24 <sup>1</sup>Thus they went throughout Pisidia, and came to Pamphylia.

25 And when they had preached the word in Perga, they came down to <sup>1</sup>Attalia, 26 And thence sailed to <sup>1</sup>Antioch, <sup>4</sup>from whence they had been commended unto the grace of God, to the work, which they had fulfilled.

27 And when they were come and had gathered the Church together, they rehearsed all the things that God had done by them, and how he had opened the door of faith unto the Gentiles.

14:19 <sup>1</sup> The devil when he is brought to the last cast, at length rageth openly, but in vain, even then when he seemeth to have the upper hand.

14:21 <sup>1</sup> We must go forward in our vocation through a thousand deaths.

14:22 <sup>1</sup> It is the office of the ministers, not only to teach, but also to confirm them that are taught, and prepare them to the cross.

14:23 <sup>1</sup> The Apostles committed the Churches which they had planted, to proper and peculiar Pastors, which they made not rashly, but with prayers and fastings going before: neither did they thrust them upon Churches through bribery or lordly superiority, but chose and placed them by the voice of the congregation.

14:24 <sup>1</sup> Paul and Barnabas having made an end of their peregrination, and being returned to Antioch, do render an account to the Congregation or Church.

15:1 <sup>1</sup> The Church is at length troubled with dissension within itself, and the trouble riseth of the proud and stubborn wits of certain evil men: The first strife was concerning the office of Christ, whether we be saved by his only righteousness apprehended by faith, or we have need also to observe the Law.

15:2 <sup>1</sup> Meetings of Congregations were instituted to suppress heresies, whereunto certain were sent by common consent in the name of all.

conversion of the Gentiles, and they brought great joy unto all the brethren.

4 And when they were come to Jerusalem, they were received of the Church, and of the Apostles and Elders, and they declared what things God had done by them.

5 But said they, certain of the sect of the Pharisees, which did believe, rose up, saying that it was needful to circumcise them, and to command them to keep the Law of Moses.

6 <sup>1</sup>Then the Apostles and Elders came together to look to this matter.

7 And when there had been great disputation, Peter rose up, and said unto them, <sup>a,1</sup>Ye men and brethren, ye know that a <sup>2</sup>good while ago, among us God chose out me, that the Gentiles by my mouth should hear the word of the Gospel, and believe.

8 And God which knoweth the hearts, bare them witness, in giving unto them the holy Ghost even as he did unto us.

9 And he put no <sup>1</sup>difference between us and them, after that <sup>b,2</sup>by faith he had purified their hearts.

10 <sup>1</sup>Now therefore, why <sup>2</sup>tempt ye God, to 'lay a yoke on the disciples' necks, which neither our fathers, nor we were able to bear?

11 But we believe, through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ to be saved, even as they do.

12 <sup>1</sup>Then all the multitude kept silence, and heard Barnabas and Paul, which told what signs and wonders God had done among the Gentiles by them.

13 And when they held their peace, <sup>1</sup>James answered, saying, Men and brethren, hearken unto me.

14 <sup>1</sup>Simeon hath declared, how God first did visit the Gentiles, to take of them a people unto his Name.

15 And to this agree the words of the Prophets, as it is written,

16 <sup>d</sup>After this I will return, and will build again the Tabernacle of David, which is fallen down, and the ruins thereof will I build again, and I will set it up.

17 That the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles upon whom my Name is called, saith the Lord which doeth all these things.

18 From the beginning of the world, God <sup>1</sup>knoweth all his works.

19 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore my sentence is, that we trouble not them of the Gentiles that are turned to God, 20 But that we send unto them, that they abstain themselves from <sup>1</sup>filthiness of idols, and fornication, and that is strangled, and from blood.

21 For Moses of old time hath in every city them that preach him, seeing he is read in the Synagogues every Sabbath day.

22 <sup>1</sup>Then it seemed good to the Apostles and Elders with the whole Church to send chosen men of their own company to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas: to wit, Judas whose surname was Barsabas, and Silas, which were chief men among the brethren, 23 And wrote letters by them after this manner, THE APOSTLES, and the Elders, and the brethren, Unto the brethren which are of the Gentiles in Antioch, and in Syria, and in Cilicia, send greeting.

24 <sup>1</sup>Forasmuch as we have heard, that certain which <sup>2</sup>went out from us, have troubled you with words, and <sup>3</sup>cumbered your minds, saying, Ye must be circumcised and keep the Law: to whom we gave no such commandment,

25 It seemed therefore good to us, when we were come together with one accord, to [send] chosen men

15:6 <sup>1</sup> The matter is first handled, both parts being heard in the assembly of the Apostles and ancients, and after is communicated with the people.

15:7 <sup>1</sup> God himself in calling of the Gentiles which are uncircumcised, did teach that our salvation doth consist in faith without the worship appointed by the Law.

<sup>2</sup> Word for word, of old time, that is, even from the first time that we were commanded to preach the Gospel, and straightways after that the holy Ghost came down upon us.

15:9 <sup>1</sup> He put no difference between us and them, as touching the benefit of his free favor.

<sup>2</sup> Christ pronounceth them Blessed, which are pure of heart: and here we are plainly taught that men are made such by faith.

15:10 <sup>1</sup> Peter passing from the Ceremonies to the Law itself in general, showeth that none could be saved, if salvation were to be sought for by the Law, and not by grace only in Jesus Christ; because that no man could ever fulfil the Law, neither Patriarch, nor Apostle.

15:12 <sup>1</sup> A true pattern of a lawful Council, where God's truth only reigneth.

15:14 <sup>1</sup> James confirmeth the calling of the Gentiles, out of the word of God, therein agreeing to Peter.

15:18 <sup>1</sup> And therefore nothing cometh to pass by fortune, but by God's appointment.

15:19 <sup>1</sup> In matters indifferent we may so far bear with the weakness of our brethren, as they may have time to be instructed.

15:20 <sup>1</sup> From sacrifices or from feasts which were kept in idols' Temples.

15:22 <sup>1</sup> In a lawful Synod, neither they which are appointed and chosen Judges, appoint and determine anything tyrannously or upon a lordliness, neither doth the common multitude set themselves tumultuously against them, which sit as Judges by the word of God: as the like order also is held in publishing and ratifying those things which have been so determined and agreed upon.

15:24 <sup>1</sup> The Council of Jerusalem concludeth, that they trouble men's consciences, which teach us to seek salvation in any other means than in Christ only, apprehended by faith, from whence soever they come, and whomsoever they pretend to be author of their vocation.

<sup>3</sup> A borrowed kind of speech taken of them which pull down that that was built up: and it is a very usual metaphor in the Scriptures: to say the Church is built, for, the Church is planted and established.

unto you, with our beloved Barnabas and Paul.

26 Men that have <sup>1</sup>given up their lives for the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ.

27 We have therefore sent Judas and Silas, which shall also tell you the same things by mouth.

28 <sup>1</sup>For it seemed good to the <sup>2</sup>holy Ghost, and <sup>3</sup>to us, to lay no more burden upon you, than these <sup>4</sup>necessary things.

29 <sup>1</sup>That is, that ye abstain from things offered to idols, and blood, and that that is strangled, and from fornication: from which if ye keep yourselves, ye shall do well. Fare ye well.

30 <sup>1</sup>Now when they were departed, they came to Antioch, and after that they had assembled the multitude, they delivered the Epistle, 31 And when they had read it, they rejoiced for the consolation.

32 And Judas and Silas being Prophets, exhorted the brethren with many words, and strengthened them.

33 And after they had tarried there a space, they were let go in <sup>1</sup>peace of the brethren unto the Apostles.

34 Notwithstanding Silas thought good to abide there still.

35 Paul also and Barnabas continued in Antioch, teaching and preaching with many others the word of the Lord.

36 ¶ <sup>1</sup>But after certain days, Paul said unto Barnabas, Let us return and visit our brethren in every city, where we have preached the word of the Lord, and see how they do.

37 <sup>1</sup>And Barnabas counseled to take with them John, called Mark.

38 But Paul thought it not meet to take him unto their company, which departed from them from Pamphylia, and went not with them to the work.

39 <sup>1</sup>Then were they so <sup>2</sup>stirred, that they departed asunder one from the other, so that Barnabas took Mark, and sailed unto Cyprus.

40 And Paul chose Silas and departed, being commended of the brethren unto the grace of God.

41 And he went through Syria and Cilicia, establishing the Churches.

1 Then <sup>1</sup>came he to Derbe and to Lystra: and behold, a certain disciple was there, named <sup>a</sup>Timothy, a woman's son, which was a <sup>2</sup>Jewess and believed, but his father was a Grecian,

2 Of whom the brethren which were at Lystra and Iconium, <sup>1</sup>reported well.

3 <sup>1</sup>Therefore Paul would that he should go forth with him, and took and circumcised him, because of the Jews, which were in those quarters: for they knew all that his father was a Grecian.

4 <sup>1</sup>And as they went through the cities, they delivered them <sup>2</sup>the decrees to keep, ordained of the Apostles and Elders which were at Jerusalem.

5 And so were the Churches established in the faith, [and] increased in number daily.

6 ¶ <sup>1</sup>Now when they had gone throughout Phrygia, and the region of Galatia, they were <sup>2</sup>forbidden of the holy Ghost, to preach the word in Asia.

7 Then came they to Mysia, and sought to go

15:26 <sup>1</sup> Have greatly hazarded their lives.

15:28 <sup>1</sup> That is, a lawful Council, which the holy Ghost ruleth.

<sup>4</sup> This was no precise necessity, but in respect of the state of that time, that the Gentiles and the Jews might more peaceably live together with less occasion of quarrel.

15:29 <sup>1</sup> Charity is required even in things indifferent.

15:30 <sup>1</sup> It is requisite for all people to know certainly what to hold in matters of faith and religion, and not that the Church by ignorance and knowing nothing, should depend upon the pleasure of a few.

15:33 <sup>1</sup> This is an Hebrew kind of speech, which is as much to say, as the brethren wished them all prosperous success, and the Church dismissed them with good leave.

15:36 <sup>1</sup> Congregations or Churches do easily degenerate, unless they be diligently seen unto, and therefore went these Apostles to oversee such as they had planted, and for this cause also Synods were instituted and appointed.

15:37 <sup>1</sup> A lamentable example of discord between excellent men and very great friends, yet not for profane or their private affairs, neither yet for doctrine.

15:39 <sup>1</sup> God useth the faults of his servants to the profit and building of his Church, yet we have to take heed, even in the best matters that we pass not measure in our heat.

<sup>2</sup> They were in great heat: but herein we have to consider the force of God's counsel: for by this means it came to pass, that the doctrine of the Gospel was exercised in many places.

16:1 <sup>1</sup> Paul himself doth not receive Timothy into the ministry without sufficient testimony, and allowance of the brethren.

16:2 <sup>1</sup> Both for his godliness and honesty.

16:3 <sup>1</sup> Timothy is circumcised, not simply for any necessity, but in respect of the time only to win the Jews.

16:4 <sup>1</sup> Charity is to be observed in things indifferent so that regard be had both of the weak, and the quietness of the Church.

16:6 <sup>1</sup> God appointeth certain and determinate times to open and set forth his truth, that both the election and the calling may proceed of grace.

<sup>2</sup> He showeth not why they were forbidden, but only that they were forbidden, teaching us to obey and not to inquire.

into Bithynia: but the Spirit suffered them not.

8 Therefore they passed through Mysia, and came down to Troas,

9 <sup>1</sup>Where a vision appeared to Paul in the night. There stood a man of Macedonia, and prayed him, saying, Come into Macedonia, and help us.

10 <sup>1</sup>And after he had seen the vision, immediately we prepared to go into Macedonia, being assured that the Lord had called us to preach the Gospel unto them.

11 Then went we forth from Troas, and with a straight course came to Samothrace, and the next day to Neapolis.

12 ¶ And from thence to Philippi, which is the chief city in the parts of Macedonia, and whose inhabitants came from Rome to dwell there: and we were in that city abiding certain days.

13 <sup>1</sup>And on the Sabbath day we went out of the city, besides a river, where they were wont to <sup>2</sup>pray: and we sat down, and spake unto the women, which were come together.

14 <sup>1</sup>And a certain woman named Lydia, a seller of purple, of the city of the Thyatirians, which worshipped God, heard us: whose heart the Lord opened, that she attended unto the things, which Paul spake.

15 <sup>1</sup>And when she was baptized, and her household, she besought us, saying, If ye have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into mine house, and abide there: and she constrained us.

16 <sup>1</sup>And it came to pass that as we went to prayer, a certain maid having a spirit <sup>2</sup>of divination, met us, which gat her masters much vantage with divining.

17 She followed Paul and us, and cried, saying, These men are the servants of the most high God, which show unto you the way of salvation.

18 And this did she <sup>1</sup>many days: but Paul being grieved, turned about, and said to the spirit, I command thee in the Name of Jesus Christ, that thou come out of her. And he came out the same hour.

19 <sup>1</sup>Now when her masters saw that the hope of their gain was gone, they caught Paul and Silas, and drew them into the marketplace unto the Magistrates.

20 <sup>1</sup>And brought them to the governors, saying, These men which are Jews trouble our city, 21 <sup>1</sup>And preach ordinances, which are not lawful for us to receive, neither to observe, seeing we are Romans.

22 <sup>1</sup>The people also rose up together against them, and the governors rent their clothes, and commanded them to be beaten with rods.

23 And when they had beaten them sore, they cast them into prison, commanding the Gaoler to keep them surely,

24 Who having received such commandment, cast them into the inner prison, and made their feet <sup>1</sup>fast in the stocks.

25 <sup>1</sup>Now at midnight Paul and Silas prayed, and sung Psalms unto God: and the prisoners heard them.

26 And suddenly there was a great earthquake, so that the foundation of the prison was shaken: and by and by all the doors opened, and every man's bands were loosed.

27 <sup>1</sup>Then the keeper of the prison waked out of his sleep, and when he saw the prison doors open, he drew out his sword and would have killed himself, supposing the prisoners had been fled.

28 <sup>1</sup>But Paul cried with a loud voice, saying, Do thyself no harm: for we all are here.

29 Then he called for a light, and leaped in, and came trembling, and fell down before Paul and Silas.

30 And brought them out, and said, Sirs, what must I do to be saved?

31 And they said, Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thine household.

32 And they preached unto him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in the house.

16:9 <sup>1</sup> They are the ministers of the Gospel, by whom he helpeth such as were like to perish.

16:10 <sup>1</sup> The Saints did not easily believe every vision.

16:13 <sup>1</sup> God beginneth his kingdom in Macedonia by the conversion of a woman, and so showeth that there is no [exception] of persons in the Gospel.

<sup>2</sup> This is a proper note of Apollo, which was wont to give answers to them that asked him.

16:18 <sup>1</sup> Paul made no haste to this miracle, for he did all things as he was led by the Spirit.

16:19 <sup>1</sup> Covetousness of lucre and gain is an occasion of persecuting the truth. In the mean season, God sparing Timothy, calleth Paul and Silas as the stronger, to battle.

16:20 <sup>1</sup> Covetousness pretendeth a desire of common peace and godliness.

16:21 <sup>1</sup> It is an argument of the devil, to urge the authority of ancestors without any distinction.

16:22 <sup>1</sup> An Example of evil Magistrates to obey the fury and rage of the people.

16:24 <sup>1</sup> Because he would be more sure of them, he set them fast in the stocks.

16:25 <sup>1</sup> The prayers of the godly do shake both heaven and earth.

16:27 <sup>1</sup> The merciful Lord, so oft as he listeth, draweth men to life, even through the midst of death, and whereas justly they deserved great punishment, he showeth them great mercy.

16:28 <sup>1</sup> In means which are especially extraordinary, we ought not to move our foot forward, unless that God goes before us.

33 <sup>1</sup>Afterward he took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes, and was baptized with all that belonged unto him straightway.

34 And when he had brought them into his house, he set meat before them, and rejoiced that he with all his household believed in God.

35 <sup>1</sup>And when it was day, the governors sent the sergeants, saying, Let those men go.

36 Then the keeper of the prison told these words unto Paul, saying, The governors have sent to loose you: now therefore get you hence, and go in peace.

37 <sup>1</sup>Then said Paul unto them, After that they have beaten us openly uncondemned, which are Romans, they have cast us into prison, and now would they put us out privily? nay verily: but let them come and bring us out.

38 <sup>1</sup>And the sergeants told these words unto the governors, who feared when they heard that they were Romans.

39 Then came they and prayed them, and brought them out, and desired them to depart out of the city.

40 <sup>1</sup>And they went out of the prison, and entered into the house of Lydia: and when they had seen the brethren, they comforted them, and departed.

17 <sup>1</sup>Paul at Thessalonica 3 preaching Christ, 6, 7 is entertained of Jason: 10 He is sent to Berea: 15 from thence coming to Athens, 19 in Mars' street 23 he preacheth the living God to them unknown, 34 and so many are converted unto Christ.

1 Now <sup>1</sup>as they passed through Amphipolis, and Apollonia, they came to Thessalonica, where was a Synagogue of the Jews.

2 And Paul, as his manner was, went in unto them, and three Sabbath days disputed with them by the Scriptures,

3 <sup>1</sup>Opening, and alleging that Christ must have suffered, and risen again from the dead, and this is Jesus Christ, whom said he, I preach to you.

4 And some of them believed, and joined in company with Paul and Silas: also of the Grecians that feared God a great multitude, and of the chief women not a few.

5 <sup>1</sup>But the Jews which believed not, moved with envy, took unto them certain <sup>2</sup>vagabonds and wicked fellows, and when they had assembled the multitude, they made a tumult in the city, and made assault against the house of Jason, and sought to bring them out to the people.

6 But when they found them not, they drew Jason and certain brethren unto the heads of the city, crying, These are they which have subverted the state of the <sup>1</sup>world, and here they are,

7 Whom Jason hath received, and these all do against the decrees of Caesar, saying, that there is another King one Jesus.

8 Then they troubled the people, and the heads of the city, when they heard these things.

9 Notwithstanding when they had received sufficient <sup>1</sup>assurance of Jason and of the others, they let them go.

10 <sup>1</sup>And the brethren immediately sent away Paul and Silas by night unto Berea, which when they were come thither, entered into the Synagogue of the Jews.

11 <sup>1</sup>These were also more <sup>2</sup>noble men than they which were at Thessalonica, which received the word with all readiness, and searched the Scriptures daily, whether those things were so.

12 Therefore many of them believed, and of honest women, which were Grecians, and men not a few.

13 ¶ <sup>1</sup>But when the Jews of Thessalonica knew, that the word of God was also preached of Paul at Berea, they came thither also, and moved the people.

14 <sup>1</sup>But by and by the brethren sent away Paul to 16:33 <sup>1</sup> God with one selfsame hand woundeth and healeth, when it pleaseth him.

16:35 <sup>1</sup> Shame and confusion is in process of time, the reward of wicked and unjust Magistrates.

16:37 <sup>1</sup> We must not render injury for injury, and yet notwithstanding it is lawful for us to use such helps as God giveth us, to bridle the outrageousness of the wicked, that they hurt not others in like sort.

16:38 <sup>1</sup> The wicked are not moved with the fear of God, but with the fear of men: and by that means also God provideth for his, when it is needful.

16:40 <sup>1</sup> We may eschew dangers, so that we never neglect our duty.

17:1 <sup>1</sup> The casting out of Silas and Paul, was the saving of many others.

17:3 <sup>1</sup> Christ is therefore the Mediator, because he was crucified and rose again: much less is he to be rejected, because the cross is ignominious.

17:5 <sup>1</sup> Although the zeal of the unfaithful seems never so goodly, yet at length it is found to have neither truth nor equity: But yet the wicked cannot do what they list, for even among themselves God stirreth up some, whose help he useth to the deliverance of his.

17:6 <sup>1</sup> Into what country and place soever they come, they cause sedition and tumult.

17:9 <sup>1</sup> When Jason had put them in good assurance that they should appear.

17:10 <sup>1</sup> That is indeed the wisdom of the Spirit, which always setteth the glory of God before itself as a mark whereunto it directeth itself, and never swerveth from it.

17:11 <sup>1</sup> The Lord setteth out in one moment, and in one people, divers examples of his unsearchable wisdom, to cause them to fear him.

17:13 <sup>1</sup> Satan hath his, who are zealous for him, and that even such, as least of all ought.

17:14 <sup>1</sup> There is neither counsel, nor fury, nor madness, against the Lord.

go as it were to the sea: but Silas and Timothy abode there still.

15 <sup>1</sup>And they that did conduct Paul, <sup>2</sup>brought him unto Athens: and when they had received a commandment unto Silas and Timothy that they should come to him at once, they departed.

16 ¶ <sup>1</sup>Now while Paul waited for them at Athens, his spirit was <sup>2</sup>stirred in him, when he saw the city subject to <sup>3</sup>idolatry.

17 Therefore he disputeth in the Synagogue with the Jews, and with them that were religious, and in the market daily with <sup>1</sup>whomsoever he met.

18 <sup>1</sup>Then certain Philosophers of the Epicureans, and of the Stoics, disputed with him, and some said, What will this <sup>2</sup>babbler say? Others said, He seemeth to be a setter forth of strange gods (because he preached unto them Jesus, and the resurrection.)

19 And they took him, and brought him into <sup>1</sup>Mars' street, saying, May we not know, what this new doctrine, whereof thou speakest, is?

20 For thou bringest certain strange things unto our ears: we would know therefore what these things mean.

21 <sup>1</sup>For all the Athenians and strangers which dwelt there, gave themselves to nothing else, but either to tell, or to hear some news.

22 <sup>1</sup>Then Paul stood in the midst of Mars' street, and said, Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are too <sup>2</sup>superstitious.

23 For as I passed by, and beheld your <sup>1</sup>devotions, I found an altar wherein was written, UNTO THE

CHAPTER 17

<sup>2</sup>UNKNOWN GOD. Whom ye then ignorantly worship, him show I unto you.

24 <sup>1</sup>God that made the world, and all things that are therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, <sup>d</sup>dwelleth not in temples made with hands.

25 <sup>b</sup>Neither is worshipped with men's hands, as though he needed anything, seeing he giveth to all life and breath and all things,

26 <sup>1</sup>And hath made of <sup>2</sup>one blood all mankind, to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath assigned the seasons which were ordained before, and the bounds of their habitation,

27 That they should seek the Lord, if so be they might have <sup>1</sup>groped after him, and found him, though doubtless he be not far from every one of us.

28 For in him we live, and move, and have our being, as also certain of your own Poets have said: For we are also his generation.

29 <sup>1</sup>Forasmuch then, as we are the generation of God, we ought not to think that the Godhead is like unto gold, or silver, or stone <sup>1</sup>graven by art and the invention of man.

30 <sup>1</sup>And the time of this ignorance God regarded not: but now he admonisheth all men everywhere to repent.

31 Because he hath appointed a day in the which he will judge the world in righteousness, by that man whom he hath appointed, whereof he hath given an <sup>1</sup>assurance to all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead.

17:15 <sup>1</sup> The sheep of Christ do also watch for their pastor's health and safety, but yet in the Lord.

<sup>2</sup> It is not for nought that the Jews of Berea were so commended, for they brought Paul safe from Macedonia to Athens, and there is in distance betwixt those two, all Thessalia, and Boeotia, and Attica.

17:16 <sup>1</sup> In comparing the wisdom of God with man's wisdom, men scoff and mock at that which they understand not: And God useth the curiosity of fools to gather together his elect.

<sup>3</sup> Slavishly given to Idolatry: Pausanias writeth that there were more Idols in Athens, than in all Greece, yea they had altars dedicated to Shame, and Fame, and Lust, whom they made goddesses.

17:17 <sup>1</sup> Whomsoever Paul met with, that would suffer him to talk with him, he reasoned with him, so thoroughly did he burn with the zeal of God's glory.

17:18 <sup>1</sup> Two sects especially of the Philosophers do set themselves against Christ: the Epicureans, which make a mock and scoff at all religions, and the Stoics, which determine upon matters of religion according to their own brains.

<sup>2</sup> Word for word, seed gatherer: a borrowed kind of speech taken of birds which spoil corn, and is applied to them which without all art bluster out such knowledge as they have gotten by hearing this man and that man.

17:19 <sup>1</sup> This was a place called as you would say, Mars hill, where the judges sat which were called Areopagus, upon weighty affairs, which in old time arraigned Socrates, and afterward condemned him of impiety.

17:24 <sup>1</sup> It is a most foolish and vain thing to compare the Creator with the creature, to limit him within a place, which can be comprehended in no place, and to think to allure him with gifts, of whom all men have received all things whatsoever they have: And these are the fountains of all idolatry.

17:26 <sup>1</sup> God is wonderful in all his works, but especially in the work of man: not that we should stand amazed at his works, but that we should lift up our eyes to the workman.

17:27 <sup>1</sup> For as blind men we could not seek out God, but only by groping wise, before the true light came and lightened the world.

17:29 <sup>1</sup> Which stuff, as gold, silver, stones, are customably graven as a man's wit can devise, for men will not worship that gross stuff as it is, unless by some art it have gotten some shape upon it.

17:30 <sup>1</sup> The oldness of the error doth not excuse them that err, but it commendeth and setteth forth the patience of God: who notwithstanding will be a just judge to such as contemn him.

17:31 <sup>1</sup> By declaring Christ to be the judge of the world through the resurrection from the dead.

32 <sup>1</sup>Now when they had heard of the resurrection from the dead, some mocked, and others said, We will hear thee again of this thing.

33 And so Paul departed from among them.

34 Howbeit certain men clave unto Paul, and believed: among whom was also Dionysius Areopagite, and a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

18 As Paul at Corinth 6 taught the Gentiles, 9 the Lord comforteth him. 12 He is accused before Gallio, 16 but in vain: 18 From thence he saileth to Syria, 19 and so to Ephesus. 23 At Galatia and Phrygia he strengtheneth the disciples. 24 Apollos being more perfectly instructed by Aquila, 28 preacheth Christ with great efficacy.

1 After <sup>1</sup>these things, Paul departed from Athens, and came to Corinth,

2 And found a certain Jew named <sup>a</sup>Aquila, born in Pontus, lately come from Italy, and his wife Priscilla (because that <sup>1</sup>Claudius had commanded all Jews to depart from Rome) and he came unto them.

3 And because he was of the same craft, he abode with them and wrought (for their craft was to make tents.)

4 <sup>1</sup>And he disputed in the Synagogue every Sabbath day, and <sup>2</sup>exhorted the Jews, and the Grecians.

5 Now when Silas and Timothy were come from Macedonia, Paul, <sup>1</sup>forced in spirit, testified to the Jews that Jesus was the Christ.

6 <sup>1</sup>And when they resisted and blasphemed, he <sup>b</sup>shook his raiment, and said unto them, Your <sup>2</sup>blood be upon your own head: I am clean: from henceforth will I go unto the Gentiles.

7 So he departed thence, and entered into a certain man's house, named Justus, a worshipper of God, whose house joined hard to the Synagogue.

Acts 21:24

8 And <sup>c</sup>Crispus the chief ruler of the Synagogue, believed in the Lord with all his household: and many of the Corinthians hearing it, believed and were baptized.

9 <sup>1</sup>Then said the Lord to Paul in the night by a vision, Fear not, but speak, and hold not thy peace.

10 For I am with thee, and no man shall lay hands on thee to hurt thee: for I have much people in this city.

11 So he <sup>1</sup>continued there a year and six months, and taught the word of God among them.

12 ¶ <sup>1</sup>Now when Gallio was deputy of <sup>2</sup>Achaia, the Jews arose with one accord against Paul, and brought him to the judgment seat, 13 Saying, This fellow persuadeth men to worship God otherwise than the Law appointeth.

14 And as Paul was about to open his mouth, Gallio said unto the Jews, If it were a matter of wrong, or an evil deed, O ye Jews, I would according to <sup>1</sup>reason maintain you.

15 But if it be a question of <sup>1</sup>words and <sup>2</sup>names, and of your Law, look ye to it yourselves: for I will be no judge of those things.

16 And he drove them from the judgment seat.

17 Then took all the Grecians Sosthenes the chief ruler of the Synagogue, and beat him before the judgment seat: but Gallio cared nothing for those things.

18 <sup>1</sup>But when Paul had tarried there yet a good while, he took leave of the brethren, and sailed into Syria, (and with him Priscilla and Aquila) after that <sup>2</sup>he had shorn his head in <sup>3</sup>Cenchrea: for he had made a <sup>4</sup>vow.

19 Then he came to Ephesus, and left them there: but he entered into the Synagogue and disputed with the Jews.

17:32 <sup>1</sup> Men, to show forth their vanity, are diversely affected and moved with one selfsame Gospel, which notwithstanding ceaseth not to be effectual in the elect.

18:1 <sup>1</sup> The true ministers are so far from seeking their own profit, that they do willingly depart from their right, rather than the course of the Gospel should be hindered in the least wise that might be.

18:2 <sup>1</sup> Suetonius recordeth that Rome banished the Jews, because they were always at disquiet, and that by Christ's means.

18:4 <sup>1</sup> The truth ought always to be freely uttered, yet notwithstanding the doctrine may be so moderated, as occasion of the profit that the people take thereby, shall require.

<sup>2</sup> Exhorted so that he persuaded, and so the word signifieth.

18:5 <sup>1</sup> Was very much grieved in mind: whereby is signified the great earnestness of his mind, which was greatly moved: for Paul was so zealous, that he clean forgot himself, and with a wonderful courage gave himself to preach Christ.

18:6 <sup>1</sup> Although we have assayed all means possible, and yet in vain, we must not leave off from our work, but forsake the rebellious, and go to them that be more obedient.

<sup>2</sup> This is a kind of speech taken from the Hebrews, whereby he meaneth, that the Jews are cause of their own destruction: and as for him, that he is without fault in forsaking them and going to other nations.

18:9 <sup>1</sup> God doth avouch and maintain the constancy of his servants.

18:11 <sup>1</sup> Word for word, sat, whereupon they in former time, took the name of their Bishop's seat: but Paul sat, that is, continued teaching the word of God: and this kind of seat belongeth nothing to them which never saw their seats with a mind to teach in them.

18:12 <sup>1</sup> The wicked are never weary of evil doing, but the Lord mocketh their endeavors marvelously.

<sup>2</sup> That is, of Greece, yet the Romans did not call him Deputy of Greece, but of Achaia, because the Romans brought the Greeks into subjection by the Achaians, which in those days were Princes of Greece, as Pausanias recordeth.

18:14 <sup>1</sup> As much as in right I could.

18:15 <sup>1</sup> As if a man have not spoken well, as the case of your religion standeth.

<sup>2</sup> For this profane man thinketh that the controversy of religion, is but a brawl about words, and for no matter of substance.

18:18 <sup>1</sup> Paul is made all to all, to win all to Christ.

20 <sup>1</sup>Who desired him to tarry a longer time with them: but he would not consent,

21 But bade them farewell, saying, I must needs keep this feast that cometh, in Jerusalem: but I will return again unto you, <sup>61</sup>if God will. So he sailed from Ephesus.

22 ¶ And when he came down to Caesarea, he went up to Jerusalem: and when he had saluted the Church, he went down unto Antioch.

23 Now when he had tarried there a while, he departed, and went through the country of Galatia and Phrygia by order, strengthening all the disciples.

24 <sup>1</sup>And a certain Jew named <sup>J</sup>Apollos, born at Alexandria, came to Ephesus, an eloquent man, and <sup>2</sup>mighty in the Scriptures.

25 The same was instructed in the way of the Lord, and he spake fervently in the Spirit, and taught diligently the things of the Lord, and knew but the baptism of John only.

26 And he began to speak boldly in the Synagogue. Whom when <sup>s</sup>Aquila and Priscilla had heard, they took him unto them, and expounded unto him the <sup>1</sup>way of God more perfectly.

27 And when he was minded to go into Achaia, the brethren exhorting him, wrote to the disciples to receive him: and after he was come thither, he helped them much which had believed through <sup>1</sup>grace.

28 For mightily he confuted publicly the Jews, with great vehemency, showing by the Scriptures, that Jesus was that Christ.

19 Certain disciples at Ephesus, 3 having only received John's baptism, 2 and know not the visible gifts of the holy Ghost, wherewith God had beautified his Son's kingdom, 5 are baptized in the Name of Jesus. 13 The Jewish exorcists 16 are beaten of the devil. 19 Conjuring books are burnt. 24 Demetrius 29 raiseth sedition against Paul.

disciples,

2 And said unto them, Have ye received the <sup>1</sup>holy Ghost since ye believed? And they said unto him, We have not so much as heard whether there be an holy Ghost.

3 <sup>1</sup>And he said unto them, Unto <sup>2</sup>what were ye then baptized? And they said, Unto <sup>3</sup>John's baptism.

4 Then said Paul, <sup>4</sup>John verily baptized with the baptism of repentance, saying unto the people, that they should believe in him, which should come after him, that is, in Christ Jesus.

5 And when they heard it, they were baptized in the Name of the Lord Jesus.

6 So Paul laid his hands upon them, and the holy Ghost came on them, and they spake the tongues, and prophesied.

7 And all the men were about twelve.

8 ¶ Moreover he went into the Synagogue, and spake boldly for the space of three months, disputing and exhorting to the things that appertain to the kingdom of God.

9 <sup>1</sup>But when certain were hardened, and disobeyed, speaking evil of the <sup>2</sup>way of God before the multitude, he departed from them, and separated the disciples, and disputed daily in the school of one <sup>3</sup>Tyrannus.

10 And this was done by the space of two years, so that all they which dwelt in Asia, heard the word of the Lord Jesus, both Jews and Grecians.

11 And God wrought no small miracles by the hands of Paul,

12 So that from his body were brought unto the sick, kerchiefs, or handkerchiefs, and the diseases departed from them, and the evil spirits went out of them.

13 <sup>1</sup>Then certain of the vagabond Jews, <sup>2</sup>exorcists took in hand to name over them which had evil spirits, the name of the Lord Jesus, saying, We adjure you by Jesus, whom Paul preacheth.

14 (And there were certain sons of Sceva a Jew,

18:20 <sup>1</sup> The Apostles were carried about not by the will of man, but by the leading of the holy Ghost.

18:21 <sup>1</sup> So we should promise nothing without this clause, for we know not what the day following will bring forth.

18:24 <sup>1</sup> Apollos, a godly and learned man, refuseth not to profit in the school of a base and abject handicraftsman, and also of a woman: and so becometh an excellent minister of the Church.

18:26 <sup>1</sup> The way that leadeth to God.

18:27 <sup>1</sup> Through God's gracious favor, or by those excellent gifts which God hath bestowed upon him.

19:1 <sup>1</sup> Paul being nothing offended at the rudeness of the Ephesians, planted a Church among them.

19:2 <sup>1</sup> Those excellent gifts of the holy Ghost, which were in those days in the Church.

19:3 <sup>1</sup> John did only begin to instruct the disciples whom Christ should make perfect.

19:9 <sup>1</sup> For a man to separate himself and others from infidels which are utterly desperate, it is not to divide the Church, but rather to unite it and make it one.

<sup>2</sup> So were they called which cast out devils by conjuring them in the Name of God: and in the beginning of the Church, they which had the gift of working miracles, and laid their hands on them that were possessed with devils, were also so called.

the Priest, about seven which did this.)

15 And the evil spirit answered, and said, Jesus I acknowledge, and Paul I know: but who are ye?

16 And the man in whom the evil spirit was, ran on them, and overcame them, and <sup>1</sup>prevailed against them, so that they fled out of that house, naked and wounded.

17 And this was known to all the Jews and Grecians also which dwelt at Ephesus, and fear came on them all, and the Name of the Lord Jesus was magnified, 18 <sup>1</sup>And many that believed, came and <sup>2</sup>confessed, and showed their works.

19 Many also of them which used curious arts, brought their books, and burned them before all men: and they counted the price of them, and found it <sup>1</sup>fifty thousand pieces of silver.

20 So the word of God grew mightily, and prevailed.

21 ¶ <sup>1</sup>Now when these things were accomplished, Paul purposed by the <sup>2</sup>Spirit to pass through Macedonia and Achaia, and to go to Jerusalem, saying, After I have been there, I must also see Rome.

22 So sent he into Macedonia two of them that ministered unto him, Timothy, and Erastus, but he remained in Asia for a season.

23 <sup>1</sup>And the same time there arose no small trouble about that way.

24 For a certain man named Demetrius a silversmith, which made silver <sup>1</sup>temples of Diana, brought great gains unto the craftsmen,

25 Whom he called together, with the workmen of like things, and said, Sirs, ye know that by this craft we have our goods:

26 Moreover ye see and hear, that not alone at Ephesus, but almost throughout all Asia this Paul hath persuaded, and turned away much people, saying, That they be not Gods which are made with hands.

27 So that not only this thing is dangerous unto us, that this our <sup>1</sup>portion shall be reprov'd, but also that the temple of the great goddess Diana should be nothing esteemed, and that it would come to pass that her magnificence, which all Asia and the world worshippeth, should be destroyed.

28 Now when they heard it, they were full of wrath, and cried out, saying, Great is Diana of the Ephesians.

29 And the whole city was full of confusion, and they rushed into the common place with one assent, and caught <sup>b</sup>Gaius, and Aristarchus, men of Macedonia, and Paul's companions of his journey.

30 And when Paul would have entered in unto the people, the disciples suffered him not.

31 <sup>1</sup>Certain also of the chief of Asia, which were his friends, sent unto him, desiring him that he would not present himself in the Common place.

32 Some therefore cried one thing, and some another: for the assembly was out of order, and the more part knew not wherefore they were come together.

33 And some of the company drew forth Alexander, the Jews thrusting him forwards. Alexander then beckoned with the hand, and would have excused the matter to the people.

34 <sup>1</sup>But when they knew that he was a Jew, there arose a shout almost for the space of two hours, of all men, crying, Great is Diana of the Ephesians.

35 <sup>1</sup>Then the town clerk when he had stayed the people, said, Ye men of Ephesus, what man is it that knoweth not how that the city of the Ephesians is a worshipper of the great goddess Diana, and of the image, which <sup>2</sup>came down from Jupiter?

36 Seeing then that no man can speak against these things, ye ought to be appeased, and to do nothing rashly.

37 For ye have brought hither these men, which have neither committed sacrilege, neither do blaspheme your goddess.

19:16 <sup>1</sup> He prevailed against them, though they strove never so much.

19:18 <sup>1</sup> Conjuring and sorcery is condemned by open testimony, and by the authority of the Apostle.

<sup>2</sup> Confessed their errors, and detested them openly, being terrified with the fear of the judgment of God: and what is this to ear shrift?

19:19 <sup>1</sup> They that make the least value of it, reckon it to be about eight hundred pounds English.

19:21 <sup>1</sup> Paul is never weary.

<sup>2</sup> By the motion of God's Spirit: therefore we may not say that Paul ran hand over head to death, but as the Spirit of God led him.

19:23 <sup>1</sup> Gain cloaked with a show of religion is the very cause wherefore idolatry is stoutly and stubbornly defended.

19:24 <sup>1</sup> These were certain counterfeit temples with Diana's picture in them which they bought that worshipped her.

19:27 <sup>1</sup> As if he said, If Paul go on thus as he hath begun to confute the opinion which men have of Diana's image, all this our gain will come to nought.

19:31 <sup>1</sup> There ought to be in all Christians and especially in the Ministers, an invincible constancy, which may not by any storms or assaults be overcome, which notwithstanding must suffer itself modestly to be governed by wisdom.

19:34 <sup>1</sup> Instead of reason, the idolaters are sufficiently contented with their own madness and outcries, and those are the greatest defenses that they have.

19:35 <sup>1</sup> An example of a political man who redeemeth peace and quietness with lies, which Paul would never have done.

19:38 <sup>1</sup> Have ought to accuse any man of.

39 But if ye inquire anything concerning other matters, it may be determined in a <sup>1</sup>lawful assembly.

40 For we are even in jeopardy to be accused of this day's sedition, forasmuch as there is no cause, whereby we may give a reason of this concourse of people.

41 And when he had thus spoken, he let the assembly depart.

1 Now <sup>1</sup>after the tumult was appeased, Paul called the disciples unto him, and embraced them, and departed to go into Macedonia.

2 And when he had gone through those parts, and had exhorted them with <sup>1</sup>many words, he came into Greece.

3 <sup>1</sup>And having tarried there three months, because the Jews laid wait for him, as he was about to sail into Syria, he purposed to return through Macedonia.

4 And there accompanied him into Asia, Sopater of Berea, and of them of Thessalonica, Aristarchus, and Secundus, and Gaius of Derbe, and Timothy, and of them of Asia, Tychicus, and Trophimus.

5 These went before, and tarried us at Troas.

6 And we sailed forth from Philippi, after the days of unleavened bread, and came unto them to Troas in five days, where we abode seven days.

7 <sup>1</sup>And the <sup>2</sup>first day of the week, the disciples being come together to break bread, Paul preached unto them, ready to depart on the morrow, and continued the preaching unto midnight.

8 <sup>1</sup>And there were many lights in an upper chamber, where they were gathered together.

9 And there sat in a window a certain young man, named Eutyclus, fallen into a dead sleep:

and as Paul was long preaching, he overcome with sleep, fell down from the third loft, and was taken up dead.

10 But Paul went down, and laid himself upon him, and embraced him, saying, Trouble not yourselves: for his life is in him.

11 Then when Paul was come up again, and had broken bread, and eaten, having spoken a long while till the dawning of the day, he so departed.

12 And they brought the boy alive, and they were not a little comforted.

13 ¶ Then we went before to ship, and sailed unto the city Assos, that we might receive Paul there: for so had he appointed, and would himself go afoot.

14 Now when he was come unto us to Assos, and we had received him, we came to Mitylene.

15 And we sailed thence, and came the next day over against Chios, and the next day we arrived at Samos, and tarried at Trogyllium: the next day we came to Miletus.

16 <sup>1</sup>For Paul had determined to sail by Ephesus, because he would not spend the time in Asia: for he hasted to be, if he could possible, at Jerusalem, at the day of Pentecost.

17 ¶ Wherefore from <sup>1</sup>Miletus, he sent to Ephesus, and called the Elders of the Church.

18 <sup>1</sup>Who when they were come to him, he said unto them, Ye know from the first day that I came into Asia, after what manner I have been with you at all seasons,

19 Serving the Lord with all modesty, and with many tears, and temptations, which came unto me by the layings await of the Jews,

20 And how I kept <sup>1</sup>back nothing that was profitable, but have showed you, and taught you openly and throughout every house.

21 Witnessing both to the Jews, and to the Grecians the repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ.

19:39 <sup>1</sup> He speaketh of a lawful assembly, not only to except against the disordered hurly-burly of the people, but also against all meeting and coming together which was not by order: for there were certain days appointed to call the people together in.

20:1 <sup>1</sup> Paul departed from Ephesus by the consent of the Church, not to be idle or at rest, but to take pains in another place.

20:2 <sup>1</sup> For after so great trouble there was need of a long exhortation.

20:3 <sup>1</sup> A froward zeal is the guider and instructor to murders: and we are not debarred by the wisdom of God to prevent the endeavors of wicked men.

20:7 <sup>1</sup> Assemblies in the nighttime cannot be justly condemned, neither ought, when the cause is good.

<sup>2</sup> Word for word, the first day of the Sabbath, that is upon the Lord's day: so that by this place, and by 1 Cor. 16:2, it is not amiss gathered, that in those days the Christians were wont to assemble themselves solemnly together upon that day.

20:8 <sup>1</sup> The devil minding to trouble the Church with a great offense, giveth Paul a singular occasion to confirm the Gospel.

20:16 <sup>1</sup> Paul an earnest and diligent follower of Christ, making haste to his bonds without any ceasing or stopping in his race, doth first of all as it were make his testament, wherein he giveth an account of his former life, defendeth the doctrine which he taught, and exhorteth the Pastors of the Church to persevere and go forward with continuance in their office.

20:17 <sup>1</sup> According as the situation of these places is set forth, that distance between Ephesus and Miletus was about 400 furlongs, which maketh almost fifty Dutch miles.

20:20 <sup>1</sup> I refrained not to speak, neither dissembled in any respect whatsoever, either for fear or lucre's sake.

20:22 <sup>1</sup> He testifieth that he goeth to his bonds by the commandment of God.

<sup>2</sup> He calleth that motion of the holy Ghost, which forced him to take his journey to Jerusalem, the bond of the Spirit, whom he followed with all his heart.

unto Jerusalem, and know not what things shall come unto me there, 23 Save that the holy Ghost witnesseth in every city, saying, that bonds and afflictions abide me.

24 But I pass not at all, neither is my life dear unto myself, so that I may fulfill my course with joy, and the ministration which I have received of the Lord Jesus, to testify the Gospel of the grace of God.

25 And now behold, I know that henceforth ye all, through whom I have gone preaching the kingdom of God, shall see my face no more.

26 Wherefore I take you to record this day, that I am <sup>1</sup>pure from the blood of all men.

27 <sup>1</sup>For I have kept nothing back, but have showed you all the counsel of God.

28 Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, whereof the holy Ghost hath made you Overseers to <sup>1</sup>feed the Church of God which <sup>2</sup>he hath purchased with <sup>3</sup>that his own blood.

29 <sup>1</sup>For I know this, that after my departing shall grievous wolves enter in among you, not sparing the flock.

30 Moreover of your own selves shall men arise speaking perverse things, to <sup>1</sup>draw disciples after them.

31 Therefore watch, and remember, that by the space of three years I ceased not to warn everyone, both night and day with tears.

32 <sup>1</sup>And now brethren, I commend you to God, and to the word of his grace, which is able to build further, and to give you an <sup>2</sup>inheritance, among all them, which are sanctified.

34 Yea, ye know, that these hands have ministered unto my <sup>4</sup>necessities, and to them that were with me.

35 I have showed you all things, how that so laboring, ye ought to <sup>1</sup>support the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how that he said, It is a blessed thing to give, rather than to receive.

36 And when he had thus spoken, he kneeled down, and prayed with them all.

37 <sup>1</sup>Then they wept all abundantly, and fell on Paul's neck, and kissed him, 38 Being chiefly sorry for the words which he spake, That they should see his face no more. And they accompanied him unto the ship.

1 And <sup>1</sup>as we launched forth, and were departed from them, we came with a straight course unto Cos, and the day following unto the Rhodes, and from thence unto Patara.

2 And we found a ship that went over unto Phoenicia, and went aboard, and set forth.

3 And when we had discovered Cyprus, we left it on the left hand, and sailed toward Syria, and arrived at Tyre: for there the ship unladed the burden.

4 And when we had found disciples, we tarried there seven days. And they told Paul through the <sup>1</sup>Spirit, that he should not go up to Jerusalem.

5 But when the days were ended, we departed and went our way, and they all accompanied us with their wives and children, even out of the city: and we kneeled down on the shore, prayed.

6 Then when we had embraced one another, we took ship, and they returned home.

7 And when we had ended the course from Tyre, we arrived at Ptolemais, and saluted the brethren, and abode with them one day.

8 And the next day, Paul and we that were with him, departed, and came unto Caesarea: and we entered into the house of <sup>a</sup>Philip the Evangelist, which was one of the <sup>1</sup>seven Deacons, and abode with him.

20:26 <sup>1</sup> If you do perish, yet there shall be no fault in me, see Acts 18:6.

20:27 <sup>1</sup> The doctrine of the Apostles is most perfect and absolute.

20:28 <sup>1</sup> To keep it, to feed it, and govern it.

<sup>2</sup> A notable sentence for Christ's Godhead: which showeth plainly in his person, how that by reason of the joining together of the two natures in his own person, that which is proper to one is spoken of the other being taken in the derivative, and not in the primitive: which in old time the godly fathers termed a communicating or fellowship of proprieties, that is to say, a making common of that to two, which belongeth but to one.

20:29 <sup>1</sup> A prophecy of pastors that should straightway degenerate into wolves against such as boast and brag only of a succession of persons.

20:30 <sup>1</sup> This is a great misery, to want the presence of such a shepherd, but greater to have wolves enter in.

20:32 <sup>1</sup> The power of God, and his free promises revealed in his word, are the props and upholders of the ministry of the Gospel.

20:33 <sup>1</sup> Pastors must before all things beware of covetousness.

20:35 <sup>1</sup> As it were by reaching out the hand to them, which otherwise are about to slip and fall away, and so to stay them.

20:37 <sup>1</sup> The Gospel doth not take away natural affections, but ruleth and bridleth them in good order.

21:1 <sup>1</sup> Not only men simply, but even our friends, and such as are endued with the Spirit of God, do sometimes go about to hinder the course of our vocation: but it is our part to go forward without all stopping or staggering, after that we are sure of our calling from God.

21:4 <sup>1</sup> They foretold through the Spirit what danger hanged over Paul's head, and this they did as Prophets: but of a fleshly affection they frayed him from going to Jerusalem.

21:8 <sup>1</sup> He speaketh of the seven Deacons which he mentioned before, Acts 6.

9 Now he had four daughters, virgins, which did <sup>1</sup>prophesy.

10 And as we tarried there many days, there came a certain Prophet from Judea, named Agabus.

11 And when he was come unto us, he took Paul's girdle, and bound his own hands and feet, and said, Thus saith the holy Ghost, So shall the Jews at Jerusalem bind the man that owneth this girdle, and shall deliver him into the hands of the Gentiles.

12 And when we had heard these things, both we and others of the same place besought him that he would not go up to Jerusalem.

13 Then Paul answered, and said, What do ye weeping and breaking mine heart? For I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerusalem for the Name of the Lord Jesus.

14 <sup>1</sup>So when he would not be persuaded, we ceased, saying, The will of the Lord be done.

15 And after those days we trussed up our fardels, and went up to Jerusalem.

16 There went with us also certain of the disciples of Caesarea, and brought with them one Mnason of Cyprus, an old disciple, with whom we should lodge.

17 And when we were come to Jerusalem, the brethren received us gladly.

18 And the next day Paul went in with us unto James: and all the Elders were there assembled.

19 <sup>1</sup>And when he had embraced them, he told by order all things, that God had wrought among the Gentiles by his ministration.

20 <sup>1</sup>So when they heard it, they glorified God, and said unto him, Thou seest, brother, how many thousand Jews there are which believe, and they are all zealous of the Law:

21 Now they are informed of thee, that thou teachest all the Jews, which are among the Gentiles, to forsake Moses, and sayest that they ought not to circumcise their sons, neither to live after the customs.

22 What is then to be done? the multitude must needs come together: for they shall hear that thou art come.

23 Do therefore this that we say to thee. We have four men, which have made a vow,

Num. 6:18

24 They take, and <sup>1</sup>purify thyself with them, and <sup>2</sup>contribute with them, that they may <sup>b</sup>shave their heads: and all shall know, that those things, whereof they have been informed concerning thee, are nothing, but that thou thyself also walkest and keepest the Law.

25 For as touching the Gentiles, which believe, we have written, and determined that they observe no such thing, but that they keep themselves from things offered to idols, and from blood, and from that that is strangled, and from fornication.

26 Then Paul took the men, and the next day was purified with them, and entered into the Temple, <sup>1</sup>declaring the accomplishment of the days of the purification, until that an offering should be offered for everyone of them.

27 <sup>1</sup>And when the seven days were almost ended, the Jews which were of Asia (when they saw him in the Temple) moved all the people, and laid hands on him,

28 Crying, Men of Israel, help: this is the man that teachest all men everywhere against the people, and the Law, and this place: moreover, he hath brought Grecians into the Temple, and hath polluted this holy place.

29 For they had seen before Trophimus an Ephesian with him in the city, whom they supposed that Paul had brought into the Temple.

30 Then all the city was moved, and the people ran together: and they took Paul, and drew him out of the Temple, and forthwith the doors were shut.

31 <sup>1</sup>But as they went about to kill him, tidings came unto the chief captain of the band, that all Jerusalem was on an uproar.

32 Who immediately took soldiers and Centurions, and ran down unto them: and when they saw the chief captain and the soldiers, they left beating of Paul.

33 Then the chief Captain came near and took him, and commanded him to be bound with two chains, and demanded who he was, and what he had done.

34 And one cried this, another that, among the people. So when he could not know the certainty for the tumult, he commanded him to be led into the castle.

35 And when he came unto the greeces, it was so

21:9 <sup>1</sup> They had a peculiar gift of foretelling things to come.

21:14 <sup>1</sup> The will of God bridleth all affections in them which earnestly seek the glory of God.

21:19 <sup>1</sup> God is to be praised, who is the Author of all good sayings and deeds.

21:20 <sup>1</sup> In things indifferent (of which sort were not the traditions of the Pharisees, but the ceremonies of the Law, until such time as Christian liberty was more fully revealed to the Jews) charity willeth us to conform or apply ourselves willingly so far as we may, to our brethren which do not stubbornly, and maliciously, resist the truth, but are not thoroughly instructed especially if the question be of a whole multitude.

21:24 <sup>1</sup> That is, consecrate thyself: for he speaketh not here of the unclean, but of such as were subject to the vow of the Nazarites.

<sup>2</sup> That it may be known, that thou wast not only present at the vow, but also a chief man in it: and therefore it is said afterwards, that Paul declared the days of purification: for although the charges for the Nazarites' offerings were appointed, yet they might add somewhat unto them, Num. 6:21.

21:26 <sup>1</sup> The Priests were to be advertised of the accomplishment of the days of the purification, because there were sacrifices to be offered the same day that their vow was ended.

21:27 <sup>1</sup> A preposterous zeal is the cause of great confusion, and great mischiefs.

21:31 <sup>1</sup> God findeth some even amongst the wicked and profane themselves, to hinder the endeavors of the rest.

that he was borne of the soldiers, for the violence of the people.

36 For the multitude of the people followed after, crying, Away with him.

37 And as Paul should have been led into the castle, he said unto the chief captain, May I speak unto thee? Who said, Canst thou speake Greek?

38 Art not thou the <sup>1</sup>Egyptian who before these days raised a sedition, and led out into the wilderness four thousand men that were murderers?

39 Then Paul said, Doubtless, I am a man which am a Jew, and citizen of Tarsus, a famous city of Cilicia, and I beseech thee, suffer me to speak unto the people.

40 And when he had given him license, Paul stood on the grieces, and beckoned with the hand unto the people, and when there was made great silence, he spake unto them in the Hebrew tongue, saying,

22 1 Paul yieldeth a reason of his faith, 22 and the Jews heard him awhile: 23 But so soon as they cried out, 24 He is commanded to be scourged and examined, 27 and so declareth that he is citizen of Rome.

1 Ye men, brethren and fathers, hear my defense now towards you.

2 (And when they heard that he spake in the Hebrew tongue to them, they kept the more silence, and he said,)

3 <sup>1</sup>I am verily a man, which am a Jew, born in Tarsus in Cilicia, but brought up in this city at the <sup>2</sup>feet of Gamaliel, and instructed according to the perfect manner of the Law of the fathers, and was zealous toward God, as ye all are this day.

4 And I persecuted this way unto the death, binding and delivering into prison both men and women.

5 As also the chief Priest doth bear me witness, and all the company of the Elders: of whom also I received letters unto the brethren, and went to Damascus to bring them which were there, bound unto Jerusalem, that they might be punished.

6 ¶ And so it was, as I journeyed, and was come near unto Damascus about noon, that suddenly there shone from heaven a great light round about me.

7 So I fell unto the earth, and heard a voice, saying unto me, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?

8 Then I answered, Who art thou, Lord? And he said to me, I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom thou persecutest.

9 Moreover they that were with me, saw indeed a light and were afraid: but they heard not the voice of him that spake unto me.

10 Then I said, What shall I do, Lord? And the Lord said unto me, Arise, and go into Damascus: and there it shall be told thee of all things, which are appointed for thee to do.

11 So when I could not see for the glory of that light, I was led by the hand of them that were with me, and came into Damascus.

12 And one Ananias a godly man, as pertaining to the Law, having good report of all the Jews which dwelt there, 13 Came unto me, and stood, and said unto me, Brother Saul, receive thy sight: and that same hour I looked upon him.

14 And he said, The God of our fathers hath appointed thee, that thou shouldst know his will, and shouldst see that just one, and shouldst hear the voice of his mouth.

15 For thou shalt be his witness unto all men, of the things which thou hast seen and heard.

16 Now therefore why tarriest thou? Arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, in calling on the Name of the Lord.

17 ¶ And it came to pass, that when I was come again to Jerusalem, and prayed in the Temple, I was in a trance, 18 And saw him, saying unto me, Make haste, and get thee quickly out of Jerusalem: for they will not receive thy witness concerning me.

19 Then I said, Lord, they know that I prisoned, and beat in every Synagogue them that believed in thee.

20 And when the blood of thy martyr Stephen was shed, I also stood by, and consented unto his death, and kept the clothes of them that <sup>1</sup>slew him.

21 Then he said unto me, Depart: for I will send thee far hence unto the Gentiles.

22 ¶ <sup>1</sup>And they heard him unto this word, but then they lifted up their voices, and said, Away with such a fellow from the earth: for it is not meet that he should live.

23 And as they <sup>1</sup>cried and cast off their clothes, and threw dust into the air,

24 <sup>1</sup>The chief captain commanded him to be led 21:38 <sup>1</sup> Touching this Egyptian which assembled thirty thousand men, read Josephus, book 2, chap. 12.

22:3 <sup>1</sup> Paul making a short declaration of his former life, proveth both his vocation and doctrine to be of God.

<sup>2</sup> That is, his daily hearer: the reason of this speech is this: for that they which teach, sit commonly in the higher place speaking to their scholars which sit upon forms beneath: and therefore he saith, at the feet of Gamaliel.

22:20 <sup>1</sup> This is properly spoken: for Stephen was murdered of a sort of cutthroats, not by order of justice, but by open force: for at that time the Jews could not put any man to death by Law.

22:22 <sup>1</sup> Stout and stubborn pride will neither itself embrace the truth, neither suffer others to receive it.

into the castle, and bade that he should be scourged, and examined, that he might know wherefore they cried so on him.

25 <sup>1</sup>And as they bound him with thongs, Paul said unto the Centurion that stood by, Is it lawful for you to scourge one that is a Roman, and not condemned?

26 Now when the Centurion heard it, he went, and told the chief captain, saying, Take heed what thou doest: for this man is a Roman.

27 Then the chief captain came, and said to him, Tell me, art thou a Roman? And he said, Yea.

28 And the chief captain answered, With a great sum obtained I this freedom. Then Paul said, But I was so born.

29 Then straightway they departed from him, which should have examined him: and the chief captain also was afraid, after he knew that he was a <sup>1</sup>Roman, and that he had bound him.

30 On the next day, because he would have known the certainty wherefore he was accused of the Jews, he loosed him from his bonds, and commanded the high Priests and all their Council to come together: and he brought Paul, and set him before them.

1 And <sup>1</sup>Paul beheld earnestly the Council, and said, Men and brethren, I have in all good conscience served God until this day.

2 <sup>1</sup>Then the high Priest Ananias commanded them that stood by, to smite him on the mouth.

3 <sup>1</sup>Then said Paul to him, God <sup>2</sup>will smite thee, thou <sup>3</sup>whited wall: for thou sittest to judge me according to the Law, and <sup>4</sup>transgressing the Law, commandest thou me to be smitten?

4 And they that stood by, said, Revilest thou God's high Priest?

5 <sup>1</sup>Then said Paul, I knew not brethren, that he was the high Priest: for it is written, <sup>a</sup>Thou shalt not speak evil of the ruler of thy people.

6 <sup>1</sup>But when Paul perceived that the one part were of the Sadducees, and the other of the Pharisees, he cried in the Council, Men and brethren, <sup>b</sup>I am a Pharisee, the son of a Pharisee: I am accused of the hope and resurrection of the dead.

7 <sup>1</sup>And when he had said this, there was a dissension between the Pharisees and the Sadducees, so that the multitude was divided.

8 <sup>c</sup>For the Sadducees say that there is no resurrection, neither <sup>2</sup>Angel, nor spirit: but the Pharisees confess both.

9 <sup>1</sup>Then there was a great cry: and the <sup>2</sup>Scribes of the Pharisees' part rose up, and strove, saying, We find none evil in this man: but if a spirit or an Angel hath spoken to him, let us not fight against God.

10 <sup>1</sup>And when there was a great dissension, the chief captain, fearing lest Paul should have been pulled in pieces of them, commanded the soldiers to go down, and take him from among them, and to bring him into the castle.

11 Now the night following, the Lord stood by him, and said, Be of good courage, Paul, for as thou hast testified of me in Jerusalem, so must thou bear witness also at Rome.

12 <sup>1</sup>And when the day was come, certain of the Jews made an assembly, and bound themselves <sup>2</sup>with a curse, saying, that they would neither eat nor drink till they had killed Paul.

13 And they were more than forty, which had made this conspiracy.

14 And they came to the chief Priests and Elders, and said, We have bound ourselves with a solemn curse, that we will eat nothing, until we have slain

22:25 <sup>1</sup> There is no cause why we may not use those lawful means which God giveth us, to repel, or put away an injury.

22:29 <sup>1</sup> Not by Nation, but by the law of his city.

23:3 <sup>1</sup> It is lawful for us to complain of injuries, and to summon the wicked to the judgment seat of God, so that we do it without hatred, and with a quiet and peaceable mind.

<sup>2</sup> It appeareth plainly by the Greek plural, that Paul did not curse the high Priest, but only pronounce the punishment of God against him.

<sup>3</sup> This is a vehement and sharp speech, but yet not reproachful: For the godly may speak roundly, and yet be void of the bitter affection of a sharp and angry mind.

23:5 <sup>1</sup> We must willingly and from the heart give honor to Magistrates, although they be tyrants.

23:6 <sup>1</sup> We may lawfully sometimes set the wicked together by the ears, that they may leave off to assault us, so that it be with no hindrance of the truth.

23:7 <sup>1</sup> The concord of the wicked is weak although they conspire together to oppress the truth.

Paul.

15 Now therefore, <sup>1</sup>ye and the Council, signify to the chief captain, that he bring him forth unto you tomorrow, as though you would know something more perfectly of him, and we, or ever he come near will be ready to kill him.

16 But when Paul's sister's son heard of their laying await, he went, and entered into the castle, and told Paul.

17 <sup>1</sup>And Paul called one of the Centurions unto him, and said, Take this young man hence unto the chief captain: for he hath a certain thing to show him.

18 So he took him, and brought him to the chief captain, and said, Paul the prisoner called me unto him, and prayed me to bring this young man unto thee, which hath something to say unto thee.

19 Then the chief captain took him by the hand, and went apart with him alone, and asked him, What hast thou to show me?

20 And he said, The Jews have conspired to desire thee, that thou wouldest bring forth Paul tomorrow into the Council, as though they would inquire somewhat of him more perfectly:

21 But let them not persuade thee: for there lie in wait for him of them, more than forty men, which have bound themselves with a curse, that they will neither eat nor drink, till they have killed him: and now are they ready, and wait for thy promise.

22 <sup>1</sup>The chief captain then let the young man depart, after he had charged him to utter it to no man, that he had <sup>2</sup>showed him these things.

23 And he called unto him two certain Centurions, saying, Make ready two hundred soldiers, that they may go to Caesarea, and horsemen threescore and ten, and two hundred with darts, at the third hour of the night:

24 And let them make ready an horse, that Paul being set on, may be brought safe unto Felix the governor.

25 And he wrote an Epistle in this manner:

26 <sup>1</sup>Claudius Lysias unto the most noble governor Felix sendeth greeting.

27 As this man was taken of the Jews, and should have been killed of them, I came upon them with a garrison, and rescued him, perceiving that he was a Roman.

28 And when I would have known the cause wherefore they accused him, I brought him forth into their Council.

29 There I perceived that he was accused of questions of their Law, but had no crime worthy of death, or of bonds.

30 And when it was showed me, how that the Jews laid wait for the man, I sent him straightway to thee, and commanded his accusers to speak before thee the things that they had against him. Farewell.

31 Then the soldiers as it was commanded them, took Paul, and brought him by night to Antipatris, 32 And the next day, they left the horsemen to go with him, and returned into the Castle.

33 Now when they came to Caesarea, they delivered the Epistle to the governor, and presented Paul also unto him.

34 So when the Governor had read it, he asked of what province he was: and when he understood that he was of Cilicia, 35 I will hear thee, said he, when thine accusers also are come, and commanded him to be kept in Herod's judgment hall.

1 Now <sup>1</sup>after five days, Ananias the high Priest came down with the Elders, and with Tertullus a certain orator, which appeared before the governor against Paul.

2 And when he was called forth, Tertullus began to accuse him, saying, Seeing that we have obtained great quietness <sup>1</sup>through thee, and that many <sup>2</sup>worthy things are done unto this nation through thy providence,

3 We acknowledge it wholly, and in all places, most noble Felix, with all thanks.

4 But that I be not tedious unto thee, I pray thee, that thou wouldest hear us of thy courtesy a few words.

5 Certainly we have found this man a <sup>1</sup>pestilent fellow, and a mover of sedition among all the Jews throughout the world, and a <sup>2</sup>chief maintainer of the sect of the <sup>3</sup>Nazarenes:

23:15 <sup>1</sup> Ye and the Senate requiring the same to be done, lest that the Tribune should think that it was demanded of him at some private man's suit.

23:17 <sup>1</sup> The wisdom of the Spirit must be joined with simplicity.

23:26 <sup>1</sup> Lysias is suddenly made by the Lord Paul's patron.

24:2 <sup>1</sup> Felix ruled that province with great cruelty and covetousness, and yet Josephus recordeth that he did many worthy things, as that he took Eleazar the captain of certain cutthroats, and put that deceiving wretch the Egyptian to flight, which caused great troubles in Judea.

<sup>3</sup> So they called the Christians scoffingly of the town's name where they thought that Christ was born, whereupon it came that Julian the Apostate called him Galilean.

6 And hath gone about to pollute the Temple: therefore we took him, and would have judged him according to our Law:

7 But the chief captain Lysias came upon us, and with great violence took him out of our hands,

8 Commanding his accusers to come to thee: of whom thou mayest (if thou wilt inquire) know all these things whereof we accuse him.

9 And the Jews likewise <sup>1</sup>affirmed, saying that it was so.

10 <sup>1</sup>Then Paul, after that the governor had beckoned unto him that he should speak, answered, I do the more gladly answer for myself, forasmuch as I know that <sup>2</sup>thou hast been oft many years a judge unto this nation,

11 Seeing that thou mayest know, that there are but twelve days since I came up to worship in Jerusalem.

12 And they neither found me in the Temple, disputing with any man, neither making uproar among the people, neither in the Synagogues, nor in the city.

13 Neither can they <sup>1</sup>prove the things, whereof they now accuse me.

14 <sup>1</sup>But this I confess unto thee, that after the way (which they call <sup>2</sup>heresy) so worship I the God of my fathers, believing all things which are written in the Law and the Prophets,

15 And have hope towards God, that the resurrection of the dead, which they themselves look for also, shall be both of just and unjust.

16 And herein I endeavor myself to have always a clear conscience toward God and toward men.

17 <sup>1</sup>Now after many years, I came and brought alms to my nation and offerings, purified in the Temple, neither with multitude, nor with tumult.

19 Who ought to have been present before thee, and accuse me, if they had ought against me.

20 Or let these themselves say, if they have found any unjust thing in me, while I stood in the <sup>1</sup>Council, 21 Except it be for this one voice, that I cried standing among them, Of the resurrection of the dead am I accused of you this day.

22 <sup>1</sup>Now when Felix heard these things, he deferred them, and said, When I shall more <sup>2</sup>perfectly know the things which concern this way, by the coming of Lysias the chief Captain, I will decide your matter.

23 <sup>1</sup>Then he commanded a Centurion to keep Paul, and that he should have ease, and that he should forbid none of his acquaintance to minister unto him, or to come unto him.

24 ¶ And after certain days, came Felix with his wife <sup>1</sup>Drusilla, which was a Jewess, and he called forth Paul, and heard him of the faith in Christ.

25 And as he disputed of righteousness and temperance, and of the judgment to come, Felix trembled, and answered, Go thy way for this time, and when I have convenient time, I will call for thee.

26 He hoped also that money should have been given him of Paul, that he might loose him: wherefore he sent for him the oftener, and communed with him.

24:10 <sup>1</sup> Tertullus by the devil's rhetoric beginneth with flattery, maketh an end with lies: but Paul using heavenly eloquence, and but a simple beginning casteth off from himself the crime of sedition, wherewith he was burdened, with a simple denial.

<sup>2</sup> Paul pleaded his cause two years before Felix departed out of the province, Acts 27, but he had governed Trachonite, and Batanea, and Galavnite, before that Claudius made him governor of Judea: Josephus in the History of the Jewish War, lib. 2, chap. 11.

24:13 <sup>1</sup> They cannot lay forth before thee and prove by good reasons.

24:14 <sup>1</sup> Paul goeth in the cause of Religion from a state conjectural to a state of quality not only not denying that objected against him, but also proving it to be true, to be heavenly and from God, and to be the oldest of all religions.

24:17 <sup>1</sup> Paul in conclusion telleth the thing which was done, truly, which Tertullus had before divers ways corrupted.

24:18 <sup>1</sup> And while I was busy about those things.

24:20 <sup>1</sup> Whither the Tribune brought me.

24:22 <sup>1</sup> The Judge suspendeth his sentence, because the matter is doubtful.

<sup>2</sup> Felix could not judge whether he had done wickedly in the matters of his religion or no, until he had better understanding of that way which Paul professed: and as for other matters touching the sedition, he thinketh good to defer it till he hears Lysias, and therefore he gave Paul somewhat more liberty.

24:23 <sup>1</sup> God is a most faithful keeper of his servants, and the force of the truth is wonderful, even amongst men which are otherwise profane.

24:24 <sup>1</sup> This Drusilla was Agrippa's sister, of whom Luke speaketh afterward, a very harlot and licentious woman, and being the wife of Azizus king of the Emesens, who was circumcised, departed from him, and went to Felix, the brother of one Pallas, who was sometime Nero's bondman.

24:27 <sup>1</sup> In a naughty mind that is guilty to itself, although, sometimes there be some show of equity, yet by and by, it will be extinguished: but in the mean season we have need to patience, and that continual.

<sup>2</sup> For whereas he had behaved himself very wickedly in the province, had it not been for favor of his brother Pallas, he should have died for it: so that we may gather hereby why he would have pleased the Jews.

bringeth him before him, 27 that he may understand his cause.

1 When <sup>1</sup>Festus was then come into the province, after three days he went up from Caesarea unto Jerusalem.

2 Then the high Priest, and the chief of the Jews appeared before him against Paul: and they besought him,

3 And desired favor against him, that he would send for him to Jerusalem: and they laid wait to kill him by the way.

4 But Festus answered, that Paul should be kept at Caesarea, and that he himself would shortly depart thither.

5 Let them therefore, said he, which among you are able, come down with us: and if there be any wickedness in the man, let them accuse him.

6 ¶ <sup>1</sup>Now when he had tarried among them no more than ten days, he went down to Caesarea, and the next day sat in the judgment seat, and commanded Paul to be brought.

7 And when he was come, the Jews which were come from Jerusalem, stood about him and laid many and grievous complaints against Paul, whereof <sup>1</sup>they could make no plain proof,

8 Forasmuch as he answered, that he had neither offended anything against the law of the Jews, neither against the temple, nor against Caesar.

9 <sup>1</sup>Yet Festus willing to get favor of the Jews, answered Paul and said, Wilt thou go up to Jerusalem, and there be judged of these things before me?

10 Then said Paul, I stand at Caesar's judgment seat, where I ought to be judged: to the Jews I have done no wrong, as thou very well knowest.

11 For if I have done wrong, or committed anything worthy of death, I refuse not to die: but if there be none of these things, whereof they accuse me, no man, to pleasure them, can deliver me to them: I appeal unto Caesar.

12 Then when Festus had spoken with the Council, he answered, Hast thou appealed unto Caesar? unto Caesar shalt thou go.

Bernice came down to Caesarea to salute Festus.

14 And when they had remained there many days, Festus declared Paul's cause unto the king, saying, There is a certain man left in prison by Felix, 15 Of whom when I came to Jerusalem, the high Priests and Elders of the Jews informed me, and desired to have judgment against him.

16 To whom I answered, that it is not the manner of the Romans for favor to <sup>1</sup>deliver any man to the death, before that he which is accused, have the accusers before him, and have place to defend himself, concerning the crime.

17 Therefore when they were come hither, without delay the day following I sat on the judgment seat, and commanded the man to be brought forth.

18 Against whom when the accusers stood up, they brought no crime of such things as I supposed:

19 <sup>1</sup>But had certain questions against him of their own <sup>2</sup>superstitions, and of one Jesus which was dead, whom Paul affirmed to be alive.

20 And because I doubted of such manner of question, I asked him whether he would go to Jerusalem, and there be judged of these things.

21 But because he appealed to be reserved to the examination of Augustus, I commanded him to be kept, till I might send him to Caesar.

22 <sup>1</sup>Then Agrippa said unto Festus, I would also hear the man myself. Tomorrow, said he, thou shalt hear him.

23 And on the morrow when Agrippa was come, and Bernice with great <sup>1</sup>pomp, and were entered into the Common hall with the chief captains and chief men of the city, at Festus's commandment Paul was brought forth.

24 And Festus said, King Agrippa, and all men which are present with us, ye see this man, about whom all the multitude of the Jews have called upon me, both at Jerusalem, and here, crying, that he ought not to live any longer.

25 Yet have I found nothing worthy of death, that he hath committed: nevertheless, seeing that he hath appealed to Augustus, I have determined to send him.

25:1 <sup>1</sup> Satan's Ministers are subtle and diligent in seeking all occasions: but God who watcheth for his, hindereth all their counsels easily.

25:6 <sup>1</sup> We may repel an injury justly, but not with injury.

25:7 <sup>1</sup> They could not prove them certainly and with undoubted reasons.

25:9 <sup>1</sup> God doth not only turn away the counsel of the wicked, but also turneth it upon their own heads.

25:13 <sup>1</sup> Festus thinking no such thing, even before kings, bringing to light the wickedness of the Jews, and Paul's innocence, doth marvelously confirm the Church of God.

25:16 <sup>1</sup> The Romans used not to deliver any man to be punished before, etc.

25:19 <sup>1</sup> The profane and wicked take an occasion to condemn the true doctrine by reason of private controversies and contentions of men betwixt themselves: but the truth nevertheless abideth in the mean season safe and sure.

26 Of whom I have no certain thing to write unto my <sup>1</sup>lord: wherefore I have brought him forth unto you, and especially unto thee, King Agrippa, that after examination had, I might have somewhat to write.

27 For me thinketh it unreasonable to send a prisoner, and not to show the causes which are laid against him.

1 Then Agrippa said unto Paul, Thou art permitted to speak for thyself. So Paul stretched forth the hand, and answered for himself.

2 <sup>1</sup>I think myself happy, King Agrippa, because I shall answer this day before thee of all the things whereof I am accused of the Jews:

3 Chiefly, because thou hast knowledge of all customs, and questions which are among the Jews: wherefore I beseech thee to hear me patiently.

4 <sup>1</sup>As touching my life from my childhood, and what it was from the beginning among mine own nation at Jerusalem, know all the Jews,

5 Which <sup>1</sup>knew me heretofore, even from my <sup>2</sup>Elders (if they would testify) that after the <sup>3</sup>most straight sect of our religion, I lived a Pharisee.

6 <sup>1</sup>And now I stand and am accused for the hope of the promise made of God unto our fathers.

7 Whereunto our twelve tribes instantly serving God day and night, hope to come: for the which hope's sake, O King Agrippa, I am accused of the Jews.

8 <sup>1</sup>Why should it be thought a thing incredible unto you, that God should raise again the dead?

9 I also verily thought in myself, that I ought to do many contrary things against the Name of Jesus of Nazareth.

10 <sup>a</sup>Which thing I also did in Jerusalem: for many of the Saints I shut up in prison, having received authority of the High Priests, and when they were put to death, I gave my <sup>1</sup>sentence.

11 And I punished them throughout all the Synagogues, and <sup>1</sup>compelled them to blaspheme and being more mad against them, I persecuted them, even unto strange cities.

12 At which time, even as I went to <sup>b</sup>Damascus with authority, and commission from the high Priests, 13 At midday, O king, I saw in the way a light from heaven passing the brightness of the sun, shine round about me, and them which went with me.

14 So when we were all fallen to the earth, I heard a voice speaking unto me, and saying in the Hebrew tongue, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? It is hard for thee to kick against pricks.

15 Then I said, Who art thou, Lord? And he said, I am Jesus whom thou persecutest.

16 But rise and stand up on thy feet: for I have appeared unto thee for this purpose to appoint thee a minister and a witness, both of the things which thou hast seen, and of the things in the which I will appear unto thee,

17 Delivering thee from this people, and from the Gentiles, unto whom now I send thee, 18 <sup>1</sup>To open their eyes, that they may turn from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, that they may receive forgiveness of sins, and inheritance among them, which are sanctified by faith in me.

19 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore, King Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision, 20 <sup>c</sup>But showed first unto them of Damascus, and at Jerusalem, and throughout all the coasts of Judea, and then to the Gentiles, that they should repent and turn to God, and do works worthy amendment of life.

21 For this cause the Jews caught me in the <sup>d</sup>Temple, and went about to kill me.

22 <sup>1</sup>Nevertheless, I obtained help of God, and continue unto this day, witnessing both to <sup>2</sup>small and to great, saying none other things, than those which the Prophets and Moses did say should come,

23 To wit, that Christ should <sup>1</sup>suffer, and that he

25:26 <sup>1</sup> To Augustus. Good Princes refused this name at the first, to wit, to be called Lords, but afterwards they admitted it, as we read of Traianus.

26:2 <sup>1</sup> To have a skillful judge, is a great and singular gift of God.

26:4 <sup>1</sup> Paul divideth the history of his life into two times: for the first [he] calleth his adversaries witnesses: for the latter, the fathers and prophets.

26:5 <sup>1</sup> What I was, and where, and how I lived.

26:6 <sup>1</sup> There are three chief and principal witnesses of true doctrine, God, the true Fathers, and the consent of the Church.

26:8 <sup>1</sup> He proveth the resurrection of the dead, first by the power of God, then by the resurrection of Christ: whereof he is a sufficient witness.

26:10 <sup>1</sup> I consented to, and allowed of their doing: for he was not a judge.

26:11 <sup>1</sup> By extreme punishment.

26:18 <sup>1</sup> The end of the Gospel is to save them which are brought to the knowledge of Christ, and are justified and sanctified in him being laid hold on by faith.

26:19 <sup>1</sup> Paul allegeth God to be author of the office of his Apostleship, and his grace as a witness.

26:22 <sup>1</sup> Christ is the end of the Law and the Prophets.

26:23 <sup>1</sup> That Christ should not be such a king as the Jews dreamed of, but one appointed to bear our miseries, and the punishment of our sins.

should be the <sup>2</sup>first that should rise from the dead, and should show <sup>3</sup>light unto this people, and to the Gentiles.

24 <sup>1</sup>And as he thus answered for himself, Festus said with a loud voice, Paul, thou art beside thyself, much learning doth make thee mad.

25 But he said, I am not mad, O noble Festus, but I speak the words of truth, and soberness.

26 For the king knoweth of these things, before whom also I speak boldly: for I am persuaded that none of these things are hidden from him: for this thing was [not] done in a <sup>1</sup>corner.

27 <sup>1</sup>O King Agrippa, believest thou the Prophets? I know that thou believest.

28 Then Agrippa said unto Paul, Almost thou persuadest me to become a Christian.

29 Then Paul said, <sup>1</sup>I would to God that [not] only thou, but also all that hear me today, were both almost, and altogether such as I am, except these bonds.

30 <sup>1</sup>And when he had thus spoken, the king rose up, and the governor, and Bernice, and they that sat with them.

31 And when they were gone apart, they talked between themselves, saying, This man doeth nothing worthy of death, nor of bonds.

32 Then said Agrippa unto Festus, This man might have been loosed, if he had not appealed unto Caesar.

1 Now <sup>1</sup>when it was concluded, that we should sail into Italy, they delivered both Paul, and certain other prisoners unto a Centurion, named Julius, of the band of Augustus.

2 And <sup>4</sup>we entered into a ship of Adramyttium, purposing to sail by the coasts of Asia, and launched forth, and had Aristarchus of Macedonia, a Thes-salonian, with us.

3 And the next day we arrived at Sidon: and Julius courteously entreated Paul, and gave him liberty to go unto his friends, that they might refresh him.

4 And from thence we launched, and sailed hard by Cyprus, because the winds were contrary.

5 Then sailed we over the sea by Cilicia, and Pamphilia, and came to Myra, a city in Lycia.

6 And there the Centurion found a ship of Alexandria, sailing into Italy, and put us therein.

7 And when we had sailed slowly many days, and scarce were come against Cnidus, because the wind suffered us not, we sailed hard by Candia, near to <sup>1</sup>Salmone,

8 And with much ado sailed beyond it, and came unto a certain place called the Fair Havens, near unto the which was the city Lasea.

9 <sup>1</sup>So when much time was spent, and sailing was now jeopardous, because also the <sup>2</sup>Fast was now passed, Paul exhorted them,

10 And said unto them, Sirs, I see that this voyage will be with hurt, and much damage, not of the lading and ship only, but also of our lives.

11 <sup>1</sup>Nevertheless the Centurion believed rather the governor and the master of the ship, than those things which were spoken of Paul.

12 And because the haven was not commodious to winter in, many took counsel to depart thence, if by any means they might attain to Phoenix, there to winter, which is an haven of Crete, and lieth toward the Southwest and by West, and Northwest and by West.

13 And when the Southern wind blew softly, they supposing to attain their purpose, loosed nearer, and sailed by Crete.

14 But anon after, there arose by <sup>1</sup>it a stormy wind called <sup>2</sup>Euroclydon.

15 And when the ship was caught, and could not resist the wind, we let her go, and were carried away.

16 And we ran under a little Isle named Clauda,

26:23 <sup>2</sup> The first of them which are raised from the dead.

<sup>3</sup> Life, yea, and that a most blessed life which shall be endless: and this is set against darkness, which almost in all tongues signifieth sometimes death, and sometimes misery and calamity.

26:24 <sup>1</sup> The wisdom of God is madness to fools, yet notwithstanding we must boldly avouch the truth.

26:26 <sup>1</sup> Secretly, and privately.

26:27 <sup>1</sup> Paul as it were forgetting himself that he stood a prisoner to defend his cause, he forgetteth not the office of his Apostleship.

26:29 <sup>1</sup> I would to God that not only almost, but thoroughly and altogether both thou and all that hear me this day, might be made as I am, my bonds only except.

26:30 <sup>1</sup> Paul is solemnly quit, and yet not dismissed.

27:1 <sup>1</sup> Paul with many other prisoners, and through the midst of many deaths, is brought to Rome, but yet by God's own hand as it were, and set forth and commended unto the world with many singular testimonies.

27:7 <sup>1</sup> Which was an high hill of Candia.

27:9 <sup>1</sup> God's providence taketh not away the causes which God useth as means, but rather ordereth and disposeth their right use even then when he openeth an extraordinary issue.

<sup>2</sup> This is meant of the Jews' fast, which they keep in the feast of expiation, as we read Lev. 23:27, which fell in the seventh month which we call October, and is not good for navigation, or sailing.

27:11 <sup>1</sup> Men cast themselves willingly into an infinite sort of dangers, when they choose to follow their own wisdom, rather than God speaking by the mouth of his servants.

27:14 <sup>1</sup> By Candia, from whose shore our ship was driven by that means.

and had much ado to get the boat.

17 Which they took up and used all help, undergirding the ship, fearing lest they should have fallen into Syrtis, and they strake sail, and so were carried.

18 <sup>1</sup>The next day when we were tossed with an exceeding tempest, they lightened the ship.

19 And the third day we cast out with our own hands the tackling of the ship.

20 And when neither sun nor stars in many days appeared, and no small tempest lay upon us, all hope that we should be saved, was then taken away.

21 <sup>1</sup>But after long abstinence, Paul stood forth in the midst of them, and said, Sirs, ye should have hearkened to me, and not have loosed from Candia: so should ye have gained this hurt and loss.

22 But now I exhort you to be of good courage: for there shall be no loss of any man's life among you, save of the ship only.

23 For there stood by me this night the Angel of God, whose I am, and whom I serve.

24 Saying, Fear not, Paul: for thou must be brought before Caesar: and lo, God hath given unto thee freely, all that sail with thee.

25 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore, Sirs, be of good courage: for I believe God, that it shall be so as it hath been told me.

26 Howbeit, we must be cast into a certain Island.

27 <sup>1</sup>And when the fourteenth night was come, as we were carried to and fro in the <sup>2</sup>Adriatic sea about midnight, the shipmen deemed that some country <sup>3</sup>approached unto them.

28 And sounded, and found it twenty fathoms: and when they had gone a little further, they sounded again, and found fifteen fathoms.

29 Then fearing lest they should have fallen into some rough places, they cast four anchors out of the stern, and wished that the day were come.

30 <sup>1</sup>Now as the mariners were about to flee out of the ship, and had let down the boat into the sea under a color as though they would have cast anchors out of the foreship.

31 <sup>1</sup>Paul said unto the Centurion and the soldiers, Except these abide in the ship, ye cannot be safe.

32 Then the soldiers cut off the ropes of the boat, and let it fall away.

33 <sup>1</sup>And when it began to be day, Paul exhorted them all to take meat, saying, This is the fourteenth day that ye have tarried, and continued fasting, receiving nothing:

34 Wherefore I exhort you to take meat: for this is for your safeguard: for there shall not an <sup>1</sup>hair fall from the head of any of you.

35 And when he had thus spoken, he took bread, and gave thanks to God in presence of them all, and brake it, and began to eat.

36 Then were they all of good courage, and they also took meat.

37 Now we were in the ship in all two hundred threescore and sixteen souls.

38 And when they had eaten enough, they lightened the ship, and cast out the wheat into the sea.

39 <sup>1</sup>And when it was day, they knew not the country, but they spied a certain <sup>2</sup>creek with a bank, into the which they were minded (if it were possible) to trust in the ship.

40 So when they had taken up the anchors, they committed the ship unto the sea, and loosed the rudder bonds, and hoisted up the main sail to the wind, and drew to the shore.

41 And when they fell into a place, where <sup>1</sup>two seas met, they thrust in the ship: and the forepart stuck fast, and could not be moved, but the hinder part was broken with the violence of the waves.

42 <sup>1</sup>Then the soldiers' counsel was to kill the prisoners, lest any of them, when he had swam out, should flee away.

43 <sup>1</sup>But the Centurion willing to save Paul, stayed them from this counsel, and commanded that they that could swim, should cast themselves first into the sea, and go out to land:

27:18 <sup>1</sup>The end proveth that none provide worse for themselves, than they which commit themselves to be governed only by their own wisdom.

27:21 <sup>1</sup>God spareth the wicked for a time, for his elect and chosen's sake.

27:25 <sup>1</sup>The promise is made effectual through faith.

27:27 <sup>1</sup>We attain and come to the promised and sure salvation through the midst of tempests and death itself.

27:30 <sup>1</sup>There is none so foul an act, whereupon distrust and an evil conscience do not enforce men.

27:31 <sup>1</sup>Although the performing of God's promises doth not simply depend upon second causes, yet they make themselves unworthy of God's bountiffulness, which do not embrace those means which God offereth them, either upon rashness or distrust.

27:33 <sup>1</sup>When the world trembleth, the faithful alone be not only quiet, but confirm others by their example.

27:34 <sup>1</sup>This is a proverb which the Hebrews use, whereby is meant, that they shall be safe, and not one of them perish.

27:39 <sup>1</sup>Then are tempests most of all to be feared and looked for, when the port or haven is nearest.

27:41 <sup>1</sup>So is Isthmus called, because the sea toucheth it on both sides.

27:42 <sup>1</sup>There is nowhere more unfaithfulness and unthankfulness than in unbelievers.

27:43 <sup>1</sup>God findeth even amongst his enemies them whose help he useth to preserve his.

44 <sup>1</sup>And the others, some on boards, and some on certain pieces of the ship: and so it came to pass, that they came all safe to land.

28 <sup>2</sup> The Barbarians' courtesy towards Paul and his company. <sup>3</sup> A viper on Paul's hand: 6 He shaketh it off without harm: 8 Publius 9 and others are by him healed. 11 They depart from Malta, 16 and come to Rome. 17 Paul openeth to the Jews, 20 the cause of his coming: 22 He preacheth Jesus 30 two years.

1 And when they were called safe, then they knew that the Isle was called <sup>1</sup>Malta.

2 And the Barbarians showed us no little kindness, for they kindled a fire, and received us everyone, because of the present shower, and because of the cold.

3 <sup>1</sup>And when Paul had gathered a number of sticks, and laid them on the fire, there came a viper out of the heat, and leaped on his hand.

4 <sup>1</sup>Now when the Barbarians saw the worm hang on his hand, they said among themselves, This man surely is a murderer, whom, though he hath escaped the sea, yet <sup>2</sup>Vengeance hath not suffered to live.

5 But he shook off the worm into the fire, and felt no harm.

6 Howbeit they waited when he should have <sup>1</sup>swollen, or fallen down dead suddenly: <sup>2</sup>but after they had looked a great while, and saw no inconvenience come to him, they changed their minds, and said, That he was a God.

7 <sup>1</sup>In the same quarters, the chief man of the Isle (whose name was Publius) had possessions: the same received us, and lodged us three days courteously.

8 And so it was, that the father of Publius lay sick of the fever, and of a bloody flux: to whom Paul entered in, and when he prayed, he laid his hands on him, and healed him.

9 <sup>1</sup>When this then was done, others also in the Isle, which had diseases, came to him, and were healed,

10 <sup>1</sup>Which also did us great honor: and when we departed, they laded us with things necessary.

11 ¶ <sup>1</sup>Now after three months we departed in a ship of Alexandria, which had wintered in the Isle, whose <sup>2</sup>badge was Castor and Pollux.

12 And when we arrived at Syracuse, we tarried there three days.

13 And from thence we set a compass, and came to Rhegium: and after one day, the South wind blew, and we came the second day to Puteoli:

14 <sup>1</sup>Where we found brethren, and were desired to tarry with them seven days, and so we went toward Rome.

15 ¶ <sup>1</sup>And from thence when the brethren heard of us, they came to meet us at the <sup>2</sup>Market of Appius, and at the three taverns, whom when Paul saw, he thanked God, and waxed bold.

16 So when we came to Rome, the Centurion delivered the prisoners to the general Captain: but Paul was suffered to dwell by <sup>1</sup>himself with a soldier that kept him.

17 <sup>1</sup>And the third day after, Paul calleth the chief of the Jews together, and when they were come, he said unto them, Men and brethren, though I have committed nothing against the people, or Laws of the fathers, yet was I delivered prisoner from Jerusalem into the hands of the Romans.

18 Who when they had examined me, would have let me go, because there was no cause of death in me.

19 <sup>1</sup>But when the Jews spake contrary, I was constrained to appeal unto Caesar, not because I had ought to accuse my nation of.

20 For this cause therefore have I called for you to see you, and to speak with you: for that hope of Israel's sake, I am bound with this chain.

21 Then they said unto him, We neither received letters out of Judea concerning thee, neither came any of the brethren that showed or spake any evil

27:44 <sup>1</sup> The goodness of God overcometh man's malice.

28:1 <sup>1</sup> That is it which at this day we call Malta.

28:3 <sup>1</sup> The godly are sure to have danger upon danger, but they have always a glorious issue.

28:4 <sup>1</sup> Although adversity be the punishment of sin, yet seeing that God in punishing of men doth not always respect sin, they judge rashly, which either do not wait for the end, or do judge and esteem of men according to prosperity or adversity.

28:6 <sup>1</sup> The Greek word signifieth, to be inflamed, or to swell: more-over Dioscorides in book 6, chap. 38, witnesseth, that the biting of a viper causeth a swelling of the body, and so saith Nicander, in his remedies against poisons.

28:7 <sup>1</sup> It never yet repented any man, that received the servant of God, were he never so miserable and poor.

28:9 <sup>1</sup> Although Paul were a captive, yet the virtue of God was not captive.

28:10 <sup>1</sup> God doeth well to strangers for his children's sake.

28:11 <sup>1</sup> Idols do not defile the Saints, which do in no wise consent unto them.

28:14 <sup>1</sup> God boweth and bendeth the hearts even of profane men, as it pleaseth him to favor his.

28:15 <sup>1</sup> God never suffereth his to be afflicted above their strength.

<sup>2</sup> Appius way, was a pavement made by Appius the blind with the help of his soldiers, long and broad, and running out toward the sea, and there were three taverns in it.

28:16 <sup>1</sup> Not in a common prison, but in a house which he hired for himself.

28:17 <sup>1</sup> Paul in every place remembereth himself to be an Apostle.

28:19 <sup>1</sup> We may use the means which God giveth us, but so that we seek the glory of God, and not ourselves.

22 But we will hear of thee what thou thinkest: for as concerning this sect, we know that everywhere it is spoken against.

23 <sup>1</sup>And when they had appointed him a day, there came many unto him into his lodging, to whom he expounded, <sup>2</sup>testifying the kingdom of God, and persuading them those things that concern Jesus, both out of the Law of Moses, and out of the Prophets, from morning to night.

24 <sup>1</sup>And some were [persuaded] with the things which were spoken, and some believed not.

25 Therefore when they agreed not among themselves, they departed, after that Paul had spoken one word, to wit, Well spake the holy Ghost by Isaiah the Prophet unto our fathers,

26 <sup>1</sup>Saying, "Go unto this people, and say, By hearing ye shall hear, and shall not understand, and seeing ye shall see, and not perceive.

27 For the heart of this people is waxed fat, and their ears are dull of hearing, and with their eyes have they <sup>1</sup>winked, lest they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their hearts, and should return that I might heal them.

28 <sup>1</sup>Be it known therefore unto you, that this salvation of God is sent to the Gentiles, and they shall hear it.

29 <sup>1</sup>And when he had said these things, the Jews departed, and had great reasoning among themselves.

30 <sup>1</sup>And Paul remained two years full in an house hired for himself, and received all that came in unto him, 31 Preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Christ, with all boldness of speech, without let.

28:23 <sup>1</sup> The law and the Gospel agree well together.

28:24 <sup>1</sup> The Gospel is a savor of life to them that believe, and a savor of death to them that be disobedient.

28:26 <sup>1</sup> The unbelievers do willingly resist the truth, and yet not by chance.

28:27 <sup>1</sup> They made as though they saw not that which they saw against their wills: yea they did see, but they would not see.

28:28 <sup>1</sup> The unbelief of the reprobate and castaways cannot cause the truth of God to be of none effect.

28:29 <sup>1</sup> Not the Gospel, but the contempt of the Gospel is the cause of strife and debate.

28:30 <sup>1</sup> The word of God cannot be bound.

THE EPISTLE OF THE APOSTLE PAUL TO THE ROMANS

1 1 He first showeth on what authority his Apostleship standeth. 15 Then he commendeth the Gospel, 16 by which God setteth out his power to those that are saved, 17 by faith, 21 but were guilty of wicked unthankfulness to God: 26 For which his wrath was worthily powered on them, 29 so that they ran headlong to all kinds of sin.

1 PAUL <sup>1a</sup> <sup>2,3</sup>servant of JESUS Christ called to be an <sup>4</sup>Apostle, <sup>4,5</sup>put apart to preach the Gospel of God,

2 (Which he had promised afore by his Prophets in the holy Scriptures)

3 <sup>1</sup>Concerning his <sup>2</sup>Son Jesus Christ our Lord (which was <sup>3</sup>made of the seed of David <sup>4</sup>according to the flesh,

4 And <sup>1</sup>declared <sup>2</sup>mightily to be the Son of God, touching the Spirit of sanctification by the resurrection from the dead)

5 <sup>1</sup>By whom we have received <sup>2</sup>grace and Apostleship (that <sup>3</sup>obedience might be given unto the faith) for his name <sup>4</sup>among all the Gentiles,

6 Among whom ye be also the <sup>1</sup>called of Jesus Christ:

7 To all you that be at Rome beloved of God,

called to be Saints: <sup>1</sup>Grace be with you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

8 <sup>1</sup>First I thank my God through Jesus Christ for you all, because your faith is <sup>2</sup>published throughout the <sup>3</sup>whole world.

9 For God is my witness (whom I serve in my <sup>1</sup>spirit in the <sup>2</sup>Gospel of his Son) that without ceasing I make mention of you.

10 Always in my prayers, beseeching that by some means, one time or other I might have a prosperous journey by the will of God, to come unto you.

11 For I long to see you, that I might bestow among you some spiritual gift, that you might be strengthened:

12 That is, that <sup>1</sup>I might be comforted together with you, through our mutual faith, both yours and mine.

13 Now my brethren, I would that ye should not be ignorant, how that I have oftentimes purposed to come unto you (but have been let hitherto) that I might have some fruit also among you, as I have among the other Gentiles.

14 I am debtor both to the Grecians, and to the Barbarians, both to the wise men and to the unwise.

1:1 <sup>1</sup> The first part of the Epistle containing a most profitable preface unto verse 16.

<sup>2</sup> He moving the Romans to give diligent ear unto him in that he showeth that he cometh not in his own name, but as God's messenger unto the Gentiles, entreateth with them of the weightiest matter, that is promised long since by God, by many fit witnesses, and now at length performed indeed.

<sup>3</sup> A Minister, for this word servant, is not taken in this place, as set against this word, Freeman, but declareth his ministry and office.

<sup>4</sup> Whereas he said before in a general term, that he was a minister, now he cometh to a more special name, and saith that he is an Apostle, and that he took not upon him this office of his own lead, but being called of God, and therefore in this his writing to the Romans, doeth nothing but his duty.

1:3 <sup>1</sup> By declaring the sum of the doctrine of the Gospel, he stirreth up the Romans to good consideration of the matter whereof he entreateth: So then he showeth that Christ (who is the very substance and sum of the Gospel) is the only son of God the Father, who as touching his humanity, is made of the seed of David, but touching his divine and spiritual nature, whereby he sanctified himself, is begotten of the Father from everlasting, as by his mighty resurrection manifestly appeareth.

and of his two natures, and their properties.

1:4 <sup>1</sup> Showed and made manifest.

1:5 <sup>1</sup> Of whom.

1:7 <sup>1</sup> God's free good will: by peace, the Hebrews mean a prosperous success in all things.

1:8 <sup>1</sup> He procureth their favorable patience, in that he reckoneth up their true commendation, and his true Apostolic good will toward them, confirmed by taking God himself to witness.

1:12 <sup>1</sup> Though Paul were never so excellent, yet by teaching the Church, he might be instructed by it.

15 Therefore, as much as in me is, I am ready to preach the Gospel to you also that are at <sup>1</sup>Rome.

16 For I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ: <sup>1</sup>for it is the <sup>2</sup>power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth, to the Jew first, and also to the <sup>3</sup>Grecian.

17 <sup>1</sup>For by it the righteousness of God is revealed from <sup>2</sup>faith to faith: <sup>3</sup>as it is written, <sup>4</sup>The just shall live by faith.

18 <sup>1</sup>For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against <sup>2</sup>all ungodliness, and unrighteousness of men, which withhold the <sup>3</sup>truth in unrighteousness.

19 <sup>1</sup>Forasmuch as that, which may be known of God, is manifest in <sup>2</sup>them, for God hath showed it unto them.

20 For the invisible things of him, that is, his eternal power and Godhead, are seen by the creation of the world, being <sup>1</sup>considered in his works, to the intent that they should be without excuse:

21 Because that when they knew God, they <sup>1</sup>glorified him not as God, neither were thankful, but became <sup>2</sup>vain in their thoughts, and their foolish heart was full of darkness.

22 When they <sup>1</sup>professed themselves to be wise, they became fools.

23 For they turned the glory of the <sup>1</sup>incorruptible God to the similitude of the image of a corruptible man, and of birds, and four footed beasts, and of creeping things.

hearts lusts, unto uncleanness, to defile their own bodies between themselves:

25 Which turned the truth of God unto a lie, and worshipped and served the creature, forsaking the Creator which is blessed forever, Amen.

26 For this cause God gave them up to vile affections: for even their women did change the natural use into that which is against nature.

27 And likewise also the men left the natural use of the woman, and burned in their lust one toward another, and man with man wrought filthiness, and received in themselves such <sup>1</sup>recompense of their error, as was meet.

28 <sup>1</sup>For as they regarded not to acknowledge God, even so God delivered them up unto a <sup>2</sup>reprobate mind, to do those things which are not convenient,

29 Being full of all unrighteousness, fornication, wickedness, covetousness, maliciousness, full of envy, of murder, of debate, of deceit, taking all things in the evil part, whisperers,

30 Backbiters, haters of God, doers of wrong, proud, boasters, inventors of evil things, disobedient to parents, without understanding, <sup>1</sup>covenant breakers, without natural affection, such as can never be appeased, merciless.

31 Which men, though they knew the <sup>1</sup>Law of God, how that they which commit such things are worthy of death, yet not only do the same, but also <sup>2</sup>favor them that do them.

1:15 <sup>1</sup> He meaneth all them that dwelt in Rome, though some of them were not Romans, see the end of the epistle.

1:16 <sup>1</sup> The second part of the Epistle unto the beginning of Chap. 9. Now the whole end and purpose of the disputation is this: that is to say: to show that there is but one way to attain unto salvation (which is set forth unto us of God in the Gospel, without any difference of nations) and that is Jesus Christ apprehended by faith.

1:17 <sup>1</sup> The confirmation of the former proposition: we are taught in the Gospel that we are justified before God by faith which increaseth daily: and therefore also saved.

<sup>3</sup> The proof as well of the first as the second proposition, out of Habakkuk, who attributeth and giveth unto faith both justice and life before God.

1:18 <sup>1</sup> Another confirmation of that principal question: All men being considered in themselves or without Christ, are guilty both of (ungodliness), and also unrighteousness, and therefore are subject to condemnation: Therefore must they needs seek righteousness in some other.

<sup>3</sup> By truth, Paul meaneth all the light that is left in man since his fall, not as though they being led thereby were able to come into favor with God, but that their own reason might condemn them of wickedness both against God and man.

1:19 <sup>1</sup> Their ungodliness he proveth hereby, that although all men have a most clear and evident glass wherein to behold the everlasting and almighty nature of God, even in his creatures, yet have they fallen away from those principles to most foolish and sound devices of their own brains, in constituting and appointing the service of God.

1:20 <sup>1</sup> Thou seest not God, and yet thou acknowledgest him as God by his works, Cicero.

1:21 <sup>1</sup> They did not honor him with that honor, and service, which was meet for his everlasting power and Godhead.

1:22 <sup>1</sup> Or thought themselves.

1:23 <sup>1</sup> For the true God they took another.

1:27 <sup>1</sup> A meet reward for their deserts.

1:28 <sup>1</sup> He proveth the unrighteousness of man by a large rehearsal of many kinds of wickedness, from which (if not from all, yet at the least from many of them) no man is altogether free.

<sup>2</sup> Into a mad and froward mind, whereby it cometh to pass, that the conscience being once put out, and having almost no more remorse of sin, men run headlong into all kinds of mischief.

1:30 <sup>1</sup> Unmindful of their covenants and bargains.

1:31 <sup>1</sup> By the Law of God he meaneth that which the Philosophers called the Law of nature, and the Lawyers themselves termed the Law of nations.

2 1 He bringeth all before the judgment seat of God. 12 The excuse the Gentiles might pretend, 14 of ignorance, he taketh quite away. 17 He urgeth the Jews with the written Law, 23 in which they boasted. 27 And so maketh both Jew and Gentile alike.

1 Therefore <sup>1</sup>thou art inexcusable, O man, who-soever thou art that condemnest: for in that thou condemnest another, thou condemnest thyself: for thou that condemnest, doest the same things.

2 But we <sup>1</sup>know that the judgment of God is according to <sup>2</sup>truth, against them which commit such things.

3 And thinkest thou this, O thou man, that condemnest them which do such things, and doest the same, that thou shalt escape the judgment of God?

4 <sup>1</sup>Or despisest thou the riches of his bountifulness, and patience, and long sufferance, not knowing that the bountifulness of God leadeth thee to repentance?

5 But thou, after thine hardness, and heart that cannot repent, <sup>a,1</sup>heapest up as a treasure unto thyself wrath against the day of wrath, and of the declaration of the just judgment of God,

6 <sup>b,1</sup>Who will reward every man according to his works:

7 That is, to them which through patience in well doing, seek <sup>1</sup>glory, and honor, and immortality, everlasting life:

CHAPTER 2

<sup>a</sup> James 5:3<sup>b</sup> Ps. 62:12

Rev. 22:12

8 But unto them that are contentious, and disobey the <sup>1</sup>truth, and obey unrighteousness, shall be <sup>2</sup>indignation and wrath.

9 Tribulation and anguish shall be upon the soul of every man that doeth evil: of the Jew first, and also of the Grecian.

10 But to every man that doeth good, shall be glory, and honor, and peace: to the Jew first, and also to the Grecian.

11 For there is <sup>1</sup>no respect of persons with God.

12 <sup>1</sup>For as many as have sinned without the Law, shall perish also without the Law: and as many as have sinned in the Law, shall be judged by the Law, 13 <sup>1</sup>(For the hearers of the Law are not righteous before God: but the doers of the Law shall be <sup>2</sup>justified.

15 Which show the effect of the Law <sup>1</sup>written in their hearts, their conscience also bearing witness and their thoughts accusing one another, or excusing.)

16 <sup>1</sup>At the day when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ, according to <sup>2</sup>my Gospel.

17 ¶ <sup>1</sup>Behold, thou art called a Jew, and restest in the Law, and gloriest in God,

18 And knowest his will, and <sup>1,2</sup>triest the things that dissent from it, in that thou art instructed by

2:1 <sup>1</sup> He convinceth them which would seem to be exempt out of the number of other men, because they reprove other men's faults, and saith that they are least of all to be excused, for if they were well and narrowly searched (as God surely doth) they themselves would be found guilty in those things which they reprove, and punish in others: so that in condemning others they pronounce sentence against themselves.

2:2 <sup>1</sup> Paul allegeth no places of Scripture, for he reasoneth generally against all men: but he bringeth such reasons as every man is persuaded of in his mind, so that the devil himself is not able to pluck them clean out.

2:4 <sup>1</sup> A vehement and grievous crying out against them that please themselves, because they see more than others do, and yet are no whit better than others are.

2:5 <sup>1</sup> Whilst thou givest thyself to pleasures, thinking to increase thy goods, thou shalt find God's wrath.

2:6 <sup>1</sup> The ground of the former disputation, That both the Jews and Gentiles have together need of righteousness.

2:7 <sup>1</sup> Glory which followeth good works, which he layeth not out before us, as though there were any that could attain to salvation by his own strength, but, by laying this condition of salvation before us, which no man can perform, to bring men to Christ, who alone justified the believers, as he himself concludeth, Rom. 2:21-22, following.

2:8 <sup>1</sup> By truth, he meaneth that knowledge which we have of nature.

2:11 <sup>1</sup> God doth not measure men either by their blood, or by their country, either to receive them, or to cast them away.

2:12 <sup>1</sup> He applieth that general accusation of mankind particularly both to the Gentiles, and to the Jews.

2:13 <sup>1</sup> He preventeth an objection which might be made by the Jews, whom the Law doth not excuse, but condemns, because that not the hearing of the Law, but the keeping of the Law doth justify.

<sup>2</sup> Shall be pronounced just before God's judgment seat: which is true indeed, if any such could be found that had fulfilled the law: but seeing Abraham was not justified by the Law, but by faith, it followeth that no man can be justified by works.

2:14 <sup>1</sup> He preventeth an objection which might be made by the Gentiles, who although they have not the Law of Moses, yet they have no reason whereby they may excuse their wickedness in that they have somewhat written in their hearts instead of a Law, as men that forbid, and punish some things as wicked, and command and commend other some as good.

2:16 <sup>1</sup> God deferreth many judgments, which notwithstanding he will execute at their convenient time by Jesus Christ, with a most straight examination, not only of words and deeds, but of thoughts also, be they never so hidden or secret.

2:17 <sup>1</sup> He proveth by the testimony of David, and the other Prophets, that God bestowed greatest benefits upon the Jews, in giving them also the Law, but that they are the most unthankful and unkindest of all men.

2:18 <sup>1</sup> Canst try and discern what things swerve from God's will.

the Law:

19 And persuadest thyself that thou art a guide of the blind, a light of them which are in darkness,

20 An instructor of them which lack discretion, a teacher of the unlearned, which hast the <sup>1</sup>form of knowledge, and of the truth in the <sup>2</sup>law.

21 Thou therefore, which teachest another, teachest thou not thyself? thou that preachest, A man should not steal, dost thou steal?

22 Thou that sayest, A man should not commit adultery, dost thou commit adultery? thou that abhorrest idols, committest thou sacrilege?

23 Thou that gloriest in the Law, through breaking the Law, dishonorest thou God?

24 For the Name of God is blasphemed among the Gentiles through you, <sup>6</sup>as it is written.

25 <sup>1</sup>For circumcision verily is profitable, if thou do the Law: but if thou be a transgressor of the Law, thy circumcision is made uncircumcision.

26 Therefore <sup>1</sup>if the uncircumcision keep the ordinances of the Law, shall not his <sup>2</sup>uncircumcision be counted for circumcision?

27 And shall not <sup>1</sup>uncircumcision which is by nature (if it keep the Law) condemn thee which by the <sup>2</sup>letter and circumcision art a transgressor of the Law?

28 For he is not a Jew, which is one <sup>1</sup>outward: neither is that circumcision, which is outward in the flesh:

29 But he is a Jew which is one within, and the circumcision is of the heart, in the <sup>1</sup>spirit, not in the letter, whose praise is not of men, but of God.

1 What <sup>1</sup>is then the preferment of the Jew? or what is the profit of circumcision?

2 Much every manner of way: for <sup>1</sup>chiefly, because unto them were of credit committed the <sup>2</sup>oracles of God.

3 For what, though some did not <sup>1</sup>believe? shall their unbelief make the <sup>2</sup>faith of God without effect?

4 God forbid: yea, let God be true, and every man a liar, as it is written, That thou mightest be <sup>1</sup>justified in thy words, and overcome, <sup>2</sup>when thou art judged.

5 <sup>1</sup>Now if our <sup>2</sup>unrighteousness commend the righteousness of God, what shall we say? is God unrighteous which punisheth? (I speak as <sup>3</sup>a man.)

6 God forbid: (else how shall God judge the world?)

7 <sup>1</sup>For if the <sup>2</sup>verity of God hath more abounded through my lie unto his glory, why am I yet condemned as a sinner?

8 And (as we are blamed, and as some affirm, that we say) why do we not evil, that good may come thereof? whose damnation is just.

2:20 <sup>1</sup> The way to teach and frame others in the knowledge of the truth.

<sup>2</sup> As though he said, that the Jews under a color of an outward serving of God, challenged all to themselves, when as indeed, they did nothing less than observe the Law.

2:25 <sup>1</sup> He precisely preventeth their objection, which set an holiness in circumcision, and the outward observation of the Law: So that he showeth that the outward circumcision, if it be separated from the inward, doth not only not justify, but also condemns them that are indeed circumcised, of whom requireth that, which is signifieth, that is to say, cleanness of the heart and the whole life, according to the commandment of the Law, so that if there be a man uncircumcised according to the flesh, who is circumcised in heart, he is far better and more to be more accounted of, than any Jew that is circumcised according to the flesh only.

2:27 <sup>1</sup> He which is uncircumcised by nature and blood.

<sup>2</sup> Paul useth oftentimes to set the letter against the Spirit: but in this place, the circumcision which is according to the letter, is the cutting off of the foreskin, but the circumcision of the Spirit, is the circumcision of the heart, that is to say, the spiritual end of the ceremony, is true holiness and righteousness whereby the people of God is known from profane and heathenish men.

2:28 <sup>1</sup> By the outward ceremony only.

2:29 <sup>1</sup> Whose force is inward, and in the heart.

3:1 <sup>1</sup> The first meeting with, or preventing an objection of the Jews: what then, have the Jews no more preferment than the Gentiles? yes, that have they, saith the Apostle, on God's behalf: for he committed the tables of the covenant to them, so that the unbelief of a few, cannot cause the whole nation without exception to be cast away of God, who is true, and who also useth their unworthiness to commend and set forth his goodness.

3:5 <sup>1</sup> Another prevention, issuing out of the former answer: that the justice of God is in such sort commended and set forth by our unrighteousness, that therefore God forgetteth not that he is the judge of the world, and therefore a most severe revenger of unrighteousness.

<sup>3</sup> Therefore I speak not these words in mine own person, as though I thought so, but this is the talk of man's wisdom, which is not subject to the will of God.

3:7 <sup>1</sup> A third objection which addeth somewhat to the former, If sins do turn to the glory of God, they are not only not to be punished, but we ought rather to give ourselves to them: which blasphemy Paul contending himself to curse and detest, pronounceth just punishment against such blasphemers.

9 <sup>1</sup>What then? are we more excellent? No, in no wise: for we have already proved, that all, both Jews and Gentiles are <sup>2</sup>under sin, 10 As it is written, <sup>4</sup>There is none righteous no not one.

11 There is none that understandeth: there is none that seeketh God.

12 They have all gone out of the way: they have been made altogether unprofitable: there is none that doeth good, no not one.

13 <sup>6</sup>Their throat is an open sepulcher: they have used their tongues to deceit: the poison of asps is under their lips.

14 <sup>4</sup>Whose mouth is full of cursing and bitterness.

15 <sup>4</sup>Their feet are swift to shed blood.

16 Destruction and calamity are in their ways:

17 And the <sup>1</sup>way of peace they have not known.

18 <sup>7</sup>The fear of God is not before their eyes.

19 <sup>1</sup>Now we know that whatsoever the <sup>2</sup>law saith, it saith it to them which are under the law, that <sup>3</sup>every mouth may be stopped, and all the world be <sup>4</sup>subject to the judgment of God.

21 <sup>1</sup>But now is the righteousness of God made manifest without the Law, having witness of the Law, and of the Prophets, 22 <sup>1</sup>To wit, the righteousness of God by the faith of <sup>2</sup>Jesus Christ, unto all, and upon all that believe.

23 For there is no difference: for all have sinned, and are deprived of the <sup>1</sup>glory of God,

24 <sup>1</sup>And are justified <sup>2</sup>freely by his grace, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus,

25 <sup>1</sup>Whom God hath set forth to be a reconciliation through faith in his <sup>2</sup>blood to declare his righteousness, by the forgiveness of the sins that <sup>3</sup>are passed,

27 <sup>1</sup>Where is then the rejoicing? It is excluded. By what <sup>2</sup>Law? of works? Nay: but by the Law of faith.

28 Therefore we conclude, that a man is justified by faith, without the works of the Law.

3:9 <sup>1</sup> Another answer to the first objection: that the Jews, if they be considered in themselves, are no better than other men are: as it has been long since pronounced by the mouth of the Prophets.

3:17 <sup>1</sup> An innocent and peaceable life.

<sup>3</sup> A conclusion of all the former disputation, from verse 8 of the first Chapter. Therefore saith the Apostle, No man can hope to be justified by any Law, whether it be that general Law, or the particular Law of Moses, and therefore to be saved: seeing it appeareth (as we have already proved) by comparing the Law and man's life together, that all men are sinners, and therefore worthy of condemnation in the sight of God.

3:20 <sup>1</sup> By that that the Law can by us be performed.

<sup>2</sup> Flesh is here taken for man, as in many other places, and furthermore hath here a greater force: for it is put to show the contrariety betwixt God and man: as if you would say, Man who is nothing else but a piece of flesh defiled with sin, and God who is most pure and most perfect in himself.

3:21 <sup>1</sup> Therefore saith the Apostle, Lest that men should perish, God doth now exhibit that, which he promised of old, that is to say, a way whereby we may be justified and saved before him without the Law.

3:22 <sup>1</sup> The matter, as it were of this righteousness, is Christ Jesus apprehended by faith, and for this end offered to all people, as without him all people are shut out from the kingdom of God.

<sup>2</sup> Which we give to Jesus Christ, or which resteth upon him.

3:23 <sup>1</sup> By the Glory of God, is meant that mark which we all shoot at, that is, everlasting life, which standeth in that we are made partakers of the glory of God.

3:24 <sup>1</sup> Therefore this righteousness touching us, is altogether freely given, for it standeth upon those things which we have not done ourselves, but such as Christ hath suffered for our sakes, to deliver us from sin.

3:25 <sup>1</sup> God then is the author of that free justification, because it pleaseth him: and Christ is he, which suffered punishment for our sins, and in whom we have remission of them: and the means whereby we apprehend Christ, is faith. To be short, the end is the setting forth of the goodness of God, that by this means it may appear, that he is merciful indeed, and constant in his promises, as he that freely, and of mere grace justifieth the believers.

3:26 <sup>1</sup> Through his patience, and suffering nature.

3:27 <sup>1</sup> An argument to prove this conclusion, that we are justified by faith without works, taken from the end of Justification. The end of Justification is the glory of God alone: therefore we are justified by faith without works: for if we were justified either by our own works only, or partly by faith, and partly by works, the glory of this justification should not be wholly given to God.

29 <sup>1</sup>God, is he the God of the <sup>2</sup>Jews only, and not of the Gentiles also? Yes, even of the Gentiles also.

30 For it is one God, who shall justify <sup>1</sup>circumcision of faith, and uncircumcision through faith.

31 <sup>1</sup>Do we then make the Law of <sup>2</sup>none effect through faith? God forbid: yea, we <sup>3</sup>establish the Law.

4 <sup>1</sup>He proveth that which he said before of faith, by the example of Abraham, 3, 6 and the testimony of the Scripture: and ten times in the Chapter he beateth upon this word, Imputation.

1 What <sup>1</sup>shall we say then, that Abraham our father hath found concerning the <sup>2</sup>flesh?

2 <sup>1</sup>For if Abraham were justified by works, he hath wherein to rejoice, but not with God.

3 <sup>1</sup>For what saith the Scripture? Abraham believed God, and it was counted to him for righteousness.

4 <sup>1</sup>Now to him that <sup>2</sup>worketh, the wages is not <sup>3</sup>counted by favor, but by debt:

5 But to him that worketh not, but believeth in him that <sup>1</sup>justifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteousness.

6 <sup>1</sup>Even as David declareth the blessedness of the man, unto whom God imputeth righteousness without works, saying,

7 Blessed are they whose iniquities are forgiven, and whose sins are covered.

8 Blessed is the man to whom the Lord imputeth not sin.

9 <sup>1</sup>Came this <sup>2</sup>blessedness then upon the circumcision only, or upon the uncircumcision also? For we say, that faith was imputed unto Abraham for righteousness.

10 <sup>1</sup>How was it then imputed? when he was circumcised, or uncircumcised? not when he was circumcised, but when he was uncircumcised.

11 <sup>1</sup>After, he received the <sup>2</sup>sign of circumcision, as the <sup>3</sup>seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had, when he was uncircumcised, <sup>4</sup>that he should be the father of all them that believe, not being circumcised, that righteousness might be imputed to them also.

12 <sup>1</sup>And the father of circumcision, not unto them only which are of the circumcision, but unto them also that walk in the steps of the faith of our father Abraham which he had when he was uncircumcised.

3:29 <sup>1</sup> Another argument of an absurdity: if justification depended upon the Law of Moses, then should God be a Savior to the Jews only. Again: if he should save the Jews after one sort, and the Gentiles after another, he should not be one and like himself. Therefore he will justify both of them after one selfsame manner, that is to say, by faith. Moreover, this argument must be joined to that which followeth next, that this conclusion may be firm and evident.

3:30 <sup>1</sup> The circumcised.

3:31 <sup>1</sup> The taking away of an objection: yet it is not the Law taken away therefore, but is rather established, as it shall be declared in [its] proper place.

4:1 <sup>1</sup> A new argument of great weight, taken from the example of Abraham the father of all believers: And this is the proposition: if Abraham be considered in himself by his works, he hath deserved nothing wherein to rejoice with God.

4:2 <sup>1</sup> A preventing of an objection: Abraham may well rejoice and extol himself amongst men, but not with God.

4:3 <sup>1</sup> A confirmation of the proposition: Abraham was justified by imputation of faith, therefore freely without any respect of his works.

4:4 <sup>1</sup> The first proof of the confirmation, taken of contraries: to him that deserveth anything by his labor, the wages is not counted by favor, but by debt: but to him that hath done nothing, but believeth in him which promiseth freely, faith is imputed.

4:5 <sup>1</sup> That maketh him which is wicked in himself, just in Christ.

4:6 <sup>1</sup> Another proof of the same confirmation: David putteth blessedness in free pardon of sins, therefore justification also.

4:9 <sup>1</sup> A new proposition: that this manner of justification belongeth both to uncircumcised, and also to the circumcised, as is declared in the person of Abraham.

4:10 <sup>1</sup> He proveth that it belongeth to the uncircumcised (for there was no doubt of the circumcised) in this sort: Abraham was justified in uncircumcision, therefore this justification belongeth also to the uncircumcised. Nay, it does not appertain to the circumcised in respect of the circumcision, much less are the uncircumcised shut out for their uncircumcision.

4:11 <sup>1</sup> A preventing of an objection: why then was Abraham circumcised, if he were already justified? That the gift of righteousness (saith he) might be confirmed in him.

<sup>3</sup> Circumcision was called before a sign, in respect of the outward ceremony: now Paul showeth the force and substance of that sign, that is, to what end it is used, to wit, not only to signify, but also to seal up the righteousness of faith, whereby we come to possess Christ himself: for the holy Ghost worketh that inwardly indeed, which the Sacraments being joined with the word, do represent.

4:12 <sup>1</sup> An applying of the same example, to the circumcised believers, whose father Abraham is, but yet by faith.

4:13 <sup>1</sup> A reason why the seed of Abraham is to be esteemed by faith, because that Abraham himself through faith was made partaker of that promise, whereby he was made the father of all nations.

<sup>2</sup> That all the nations of the world should be his children: or by the world may be understood the land of Canaan.

<sup>3</sup> For works that he had done, or upon this condition that he should fulfill the Law.

15 <sup>1</sup>For the Law causeth wrath: for where no Law is, there is no transgression.

16 <sup>1</sup>Therefore it is by faith, that it might come by grace, and the promise might be sure to all the <sup>2</sup>seed, <sup>3</sup>not to that only which is of the Law: but also to that which is of the faith of Abraham who is the father of us all,

17 (As it is written, I have made thee a <sup>1</sup>father of many nations) even before <sup>2</sup>God whom he believed, who <sup>3</sup>quickeneth the dead, and <sup>4</sup>calleth those things which be not, as though they were.

18 <sup>1</sup>Which Abraham above hope, believed under hope, that he should be the father of many nations: according to that which was spoken to him, So shall thy seed be.

19 And he <sup>1</sup>not weak in the faith, considered not his own body, which was now <sup>2</sup>dead, being almost an hundred years old, neither the deadness of Sarah's womb.

20 Neither did he doubt of the promise of God through unbelief, but was strengthened in the faith, and gave <sup>1</sup>glory to God,

21 Being <sup>1</sup>fully assured that he which had promised, was also able to do it.

22 And therefore it was imputed to him for righteousness.

23 <sup>1</sup>Now is it not written for him only, that it was imputed to him for righteousness,

24 But also for us, to whom it shall be imputed for righteousness, which believe in him that raised up Jesus our Lord from the dead,

25 Who was delivered to death for our <sup>1</sup>sins, and is risen again for our justification.

1 Then being <sup>1</sup>justified by faith, we have peace toward God through our Lord Jesus Christ.

2 <sup>a1</sup>By whom also through faith we have <sup>2</sup>had this access into this grace <sup>3</sup>wherein we <sup>4</sup>stand, <sup>5</sup>and <sup>6</sup>rejoice under the hope of the glory of God.

3 <sup>1</sup>Neither that only, but also we <sup>b</sup>rejoice in tribulations, <sup>2</sup>knowing that tribulation bringeth forth patience.

4 And patience experience, and experience hope.

5 <sup>1</sup>And hope maketh not ashamed, because the 4:14 <sup>1</sup>A double confirmation of that reason: the one is, that the promise cannot be apprehended by the Law, and therefore it should be frustrated: the other, that the condition of faith should be joined in vain to that promise which should be apprehended by works.

4:15 <sup>1</sup>A reason of the first confirmation, why the promise cannot be apprehended by the Law: because that the Law doth not reconcile God and us, but rather denounceth his anger against us, forso much as no man can observe it.

4:16 <sup>1</sup>The conclusion of this argument. The salvation and justification of all the posterity of Abraham (that is, of the Church which is gathered together of all people) proceedeth of faith, which layeth hold on the promise made unto Abraham, and which promise Abraham himself first of all laid hold on.

<sup>3</sup>That is to say, not only of them which believe and are also circumcised according to the Law, but of them also which without circumcision, and in respect of faith only, are counted amongst the children of Abraham.

4:17 <sup>1</sup>This fatherhood is spiritual, depending only upon the virtue of God, who made the promise.

<sup>4</sup>With whom these things are already, which as yet are not in deed, as he that can with a word make what he will of nothing.

4:18 <sup>1</sup>A description of true faith, wholly resting in the power of God, and his good will, set forth in the example of Abraham.

4:20 <sup>1</sup>Acknowledged and praised God, as most gracious and true.

4:21 <sup>1</sup>A description of true faith.

4:23 <sup>1</sup>The rule of justification is always one, both in Abraham and in all the faithful: that is to say, faith in God, who after that there was made a full satisfaction for our sins in Christ our mediator, raised him from the dead, that we also being justified, might be saved in him.

4:25 <sup>1</sup>To pay the ransom for our sins.

5:1 <sup>1</sup>Another argument taken of the effects: we are justified with that, which truly appeaseth our conscience before God but faith in Christ doth appease our conscience, and not the Law, as it was before said, therefore by faith we are justified, and not by the Law.

5:2 <sup>1</sup>Whereas quietness of conscience is attributed to faith, it is to be referred to Christ, who is the giver of faith itself, and in whom faith itself is effectual.

<sup>2</sup>We must here know, that we have yet still this same effect of faith.

<sup>5</sup>A preventing of an objection against them which beholding the daily miseries and calamities of the Church, think that the Christians dream, when they brag of their felicity: to whom the Apostle answereth, that their felicity is laid up under hope of another place: which hope is so certain and sure, that they do not less rejoice for that happiness, than if they did presently enjoy it.

<sup>6</sup>Our minds are not only quiet and settled, but also we are marvelously glad and conceive great joy for that heavenly inheritance which waiteth for us.

5:3 <sup>1</sup>Tribulation itself giveth us divers and sundry ways occasion to rejoice, much less doth it make us miserable.

<sup>2</sup>Afflictions accustom us to patience, and patience assureth us of the goodness of God, and this experience confirmeth, and fostereth our hope, which never deceiveth us.

5:5 <sup>1</sup>The ground of hope is an assured testimony of the conscience, by the gift of the holy Ghost, that we are beloved of God, and this is nothing else but that which we call faith: whereof it followeth, that through faith our consciences are quieted.

<sup>2</sup>love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the holy Ghost, which is given unto us.

6 <sup>1</sup>For Christ, when we were yet of no strength, at his <sup>2</sup>time died for the ‘ungodly.

7 <sup>1</sup>Doubtless one will scarce die <sup>2</sup>for a righteous man: but yet for a good man it may be that one dare die.

8 But God <sup>1</sup>setteth out his love towards us, seeing that while we were yet <sup>2</sup>sinners, Christ died for us.

9 Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from <sup>1</sup>wrath through him.

10 For if when we were enemies, we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more being reconciled, we shall be saved by his life, 11 <sup>1</sup>And not only so, but we also rejoice in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the atonement.

12 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore, as by <sup>2</sup>one man <sup>3</sup>sin entered into the world, and death by sin, and so death went over all men: <sup>4</sup>in whom all men have sinned.

world, but sin is not <sup>3</sup>imputed, while there is no law.

14 <sup>1</sup>But death reigned from Adam to Moses, even over <sup>2</sup>them also that sinned not after the like <sup>3</sup>manner of the transgression of Adam, <sup>4</sup>which was the figure of him that was to come.

15 <sup>1</sup>But yet the gift is not so as is the offense: for if through the offense of <sup>2</sup>that one, many be dead, much more the grace of God, and the gift by grace, which is by one man Jesus Christ, hath abounded unto many.

16 <sup>1</sup>Neither is the gift so, as that which entered in by one that sinned: for the fault came of one offense unto condemnation: but the gift is of many offenses to <sup>2</sup>justification.

17 <sup>1</sup>For if by the offense of one, death reigned through one, much more shall they which receive that abundance of grace, and of that gift of that righteousness, <sup>2</sup>reign in life through one, that is, Jesus Christ.

18 <sup>1</sup>Likewise then, as by the offense of one, the fault came on all men to condemnation, so by the

5:6 <sup>1</sup> A sure comfort in adversity, that our peace and quietness of conscience be not troubled: for he that so loved them that were of no strength, and while they were yet sinners, that he died for them, how can he neglect them being now sanctified and living in him?

5:7 <sup>1</sup> An amplifying of the love of God towards us, so that we cannot doubt of it, who delivereth Christ to death for the unjust, and for them of whom he could receive no commodity, and (that more is) for his very enemies. How can it be then that Christ being now alive, should not save them from destruction, whom by his death he justifieth and reconcileth?

5:8 <sup>1</sup> He setteth out his love unto us, that in the midst of our afflictions we may know assuredly, he will be present with us.

5:9 <sup>1</sup> From affliction and destruction.

5:11 <sup>1</sup> He now passeth over to the other part of justification, which consisteth in the free imputation of the obedience of Christ: so that to the remission of sins there is added moreover and besides, the gift of Christ's righteousness imputed or put upon us by faith, which swalloweth up that unrighteousness which flowed from Adam into us, and all the fruits thereof: so that in Christ we do not only cease to be unjust, but we begin also to be just.

5:12 <sup>1</sup> From Adam, in whom all have sinned, both guiltiness and death (which is the punishment of the guiltiness) came upon all.

<sup>2</sup> By Adam, who is compared with Christ, like to him in this, that both of them make those who are theirs, partakers of that they have into: but they are unlike in this, that Adam deriveth sin into them that are his, even of nature, and that to death: but Christ maketh them that are his, partakers of his righteousness by grace, and that unto life.

<sup>3</sup> By sin is meant that disease which is ours by inheritance, and men commonly call it original sin: for so he useth to call that sin in the singular number, whereas, if he speaks of the fruits of it, he useth the plural number, calling them sins.

5:13 <sup>1</sup> That this is so, that both guiltiness and death began not after the giving and transgressing of Moses' Law, it appeareth manifestly by that, that men died before that Law was given: for in that they died, sin, which is the cause of death, was then: and in such sort, that it was also imputed: whereupon it followeth that there was then some Law, the breach whereof was the cause of death.

5:14 <sup>1</sup> But that this Law was not that universal Law, and that death did not proceed from any actual sin of everyone particularly, it appeareth hereby, that the very infants which neither could ever know nor transgress that natural Law, are notwithstanding dead as well as Adam.

<sup>3</sup> Not after that sort as they sin that are of more years, following their lusts: but yet the whole posterity was corrupt in Adam, when as he wittingly and willingly sinned.

<sup>4</sup> Now the first Adam answereth the latter, who is Christ, as it is afterward declared.

5:15 <sup>1</sup> Adam and Christ are compared together in this respect, that both of them do give and yield to theirs, that which is their own: but herein first they differ, that Adam by nature hath spread his fault to the destruction of many, but Christ's obedience hath by grace overflowed many.

5:16 <sup>1</sup> Another inequality consisteth in this, that by Adam's one offense men are made guilty, but the righteousness of Christ imputed unto us freely, doth not only absolve us from that one fault, but from all others.

<sup>2</sup> To the sentence of absolution, whereby we are quit, and pronounced righteous.

5:17 <sup>1</sup> The third difference is, that the righteousness of Christ being imputed unto us by grace, is of greater power to bring life, than the offense of Adam is to addict his posterity to death.

5:18 <sup>1</sup> Therefore to be short, as by one man's offense, the guiltiness came on all men, to make them subject to death: so on the contrary side, the righteousness of Christ, which by God's mercy is imputed to all believers, justifieth them, that they may become partakers of everlasting life.

justifying of one, the benefit abounded toward all men to the <sup>2</sup>justification of life.

20 <sup>1</sup>Moreover, the Law <sup>2</sup>entered thereupon, that the offense should abound: nevertheless, where sin abounded, there grace <sup>3</sup>abounded much more:

21 That as sin had reigned unto death, so might grace also reign by righteousness unto eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

1 What <sup>1</sup>shall we say then? Shall we continue still in <sup>2</sup>sin, that grace may abound? God forbid.

2 <sup>1</sup>How shall we, that are <sup>2</sup>dead to sin, live yet therein?

3 <sup>1</sup>Know ye not, that <sup>4</sup>all we which have been baptized into <sup>2</sup>Jesus Christ, have been baptized into his death?

4 <sup>6</sup>We are buried then with him by baptism into his death, that like as Christ was raised up from the dead <sup>1</sup>to the glory of the Father, so <sup>2</sup>we also should 'walk in newness of life.

6 Knowing this, that our <sup>1</sup>old man is crucified with <sup>2</sup>him, that the body of <sup>3</sup>sin might be destroyed, that henceforth we should not <sup>4</sup>serve sin,

7 <sup>1</sup>For he that is dead, is freed from sin.

8 Wherefore, if we be dead with Christ, we believe that we shall live also with him,

9 Knowing that Christ being raised from the dead, dieth no more: death hath no more dominion over him.

10 For in that he died, he died <sup>1</sup>once to sin: but in that he liveth, he liveth to <sup>2</sup>God.

11 Likewise think ye also, that ye are dead to sin, but are alive to God in Jesus Christ our Lord.

12 <sup>1</sup>Let not sin <sup>2</sup>reign therefore in your mortal body, that ye should obey it in the lusts thereof:

5:18 <sup>2</sup> Not only because our sins are forgiven us, but also because the righteousness of Christ is imputed unto us.

5:19 <sup>1</sup> The ground of this whole comparison is this, that these two men are set as two stocks or roots, so that out of the one, sin by nature, out of the other, righteousness by grace doth spring forth upon others.

<sup>2</sup> So then, sin entered not into us only by following the steps of our forefather, but we take corruption of him by inheritance.

5:20 <sup>1</sup> A preventing of an objection: why then did the Law of Moses enter thereupon? that men might be so much the more guilty, and the benefit of God in Christ Jesus be so much the more glorious.

<sup>2</sup> Beside that disease which all men were infected withall by being defiled with one man's sin, the Law entered.

<sup>3</sup> Grace was poured so plentifully from heaven, that it did not only countervail sin, but above measure passed it.

6:1 <sup>1</sup> He passeth now to another benefit of Christ, which is called sanctification or regeneration.

<sup>2</sup> In that corruption: for though the guiltiness of sin be not imputed to us, yet the corruption remaineth still in us: the which Sanctification that followeth Justification killeth by little and little.

6:2 <sup>1</sup> The benefits of Justification and Sanctification, are always joined together inseparably, and both of them proceed from Christ, by the grace of God: Now sanctification is the abolishing of sin, that is, of our natural corruption, into whose place succeedeth the cleanness and pureness of nature reformed.

<sup>2</sup> They are said of Paul to be dead to sin, which are in such sort made partakers of the virtue of Christ, that that natural corruption is dead in them, that is, the force of it is put out, and it bringeth not forth his bitter fruits: and on the other side, they are said to live to sin, which are in the flesh, that is, whom the spirit of God hath not delivered from the slavery of the corruption of nature.

6:3 <sup>1</sup> There are three parts of this Sanctification, to wit, the dead of the old man or sin, his burial, and the resurrection of the new man, descending into us from the virtue of the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ, of which benefit our baptism is the sign and pledge.

<sup>2</sup> To the end that growing up in one with him, we should receive his strength to quench sin in us, and to make us new men.

6:4 <sup>1</sup> That Christ himself being discharged of his infirmity and weakness, might live in glory with God forever.

<sup>2</sup> And we which are his members rise for this end, that being made partakers of the selfsame virtue, we should begin to lead a new life, as though we were already in heaven.

6:5 <sup>1</sup> The death of sin and the life of righteousness, or our ingrafting into Christ, and growing up into one with him, cannot be separated by any means, neither in death nor life, whereby it followeth, that no man is sanctified, which lived still to sin, and therefore is no man made partaker of Christ by faith, which repenteth not, and turneth not from his wickedness: for as he said before, the Law is not subverted, but established by faith.

<sup>2</sup> Insomuch as by the means of the strength which cometh from him to us, we so die to sin as he is dead.

<sup>3</sup> For we become every day more perfect than others: for we shall never be perfectly sanctified, as long as we live here.

6:6 <sup>1</sup> All our whole nature, as we are conceived and born into this world with sin, which is called old, partly by comparing that old Adam with Christ, and partly also in respect of the deformation of our corrupt nature, which we change with a new.

6:7 <sup>1</sup> He proveth it by the effects of death, using a comparison of Christ the head with his members.

6:10 <sup>1</sup> Once for all.

6:12 <sup>1</sup> An exhortation to contend and strive with corruption and all the effects thereof.

13 Neither <sup>1</sup>give ye your <sup>2</sup>members, as <sup>3</sup>weapons of unrighteousness unto sin: but give yourselves unto God, as they that are alive from the dead, and give your members as weapons of righteousness unto God.

14 <sup>1</sup>For sin shall not have dominion over you: for ye are not under the Law, but under grace.

15 <sup>1</sup>What then? shall we sin, because we are not under the Law, but under grace? God forbid.

16 <sup>1</sup>Know ye not, that to whomsoever ye give yourselves as servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey, whether it be of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness?

17 <sup>1</sup>But God be thanked, that ye have been the servants of sin, but ye have obeyed from the heart unto the <sup>2</sup>form of the doctrine, whereunto ye were delivered.

18 Being then made free from sin, ye are made the servants of righteousness.

19 I speak after the manner of man, because of the infirmity of your flesh: for as ye have given your members servants to uncleanness and to iniquity, to commit iniquity, so now give your members servants unto righteousness in holiness.

20 For when ye were the servants of sin, ye were <sup>1</sup>freed from righteousness.

21 <sup>1</sup>What fruit had ye then in those things, whereof ye are now ashamed? For the <sup>2</sup>end of those things is death.

22 But now being freed from sin, and made servants unto God, ye have your fruit in holiness, and

23 <sup>1</sup>For the wages of sin is death: but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

7 <sup>1</sup> He declareth what it is, to be no more under the Law. <sup>2</sup> by an example taken of the Law of marriage. <sup>7, 12</sup> And lest the Law should seem faulty, <sup>14</sup> he proveth, that our sin is the cause, <sup>2, 5</sup> that the same is an occasion of death, <sup>17</sup> which was given us unto life. <sup>21</sup> He setteth out the battle between the flesh and the spirit.

1 Know <sup>1</sup>ye not, brethren, (for I speak to them that know the Law) that the Law hath dominion over a man as long as he liveth?

2 <sup>1</sup>For the woman which is in subjection to a man, is bound by the Law to the man, while he liveth: but if the man be dead, she is delivered from the Law of the man.

3 So then, if while the man liveth, she taketh another man, she shall be <sup>1</sup>called an <sup>2</sup>adulteress: but if the man be dead, she is free from the Law, so that she is not an adulteress, though she take another man.

4 <sup>1</sup>So ye, my brethren, are dead also to the Law by the <sup>2</sup>body of Christ, that ye should be unto another, even unto him that is raised up from the dead, that we should bring forth <sup>3</sup>fruit unto <sup>4</sup>God.

5 <sup>1</sup>For when we <sup>2</sup>were in the flesh, the <sup>3</sup>affections of sins, which were by the <sup>4</sup>law, had <sup>5</sup>force in our members, to bring forth fruit unto death,

6 But now we are delivered from the Law, he

6:13 <sup>1</sup> To sin, as to a Lord or tyrant.

6:14 <sup>1</sup> He granteth that sin is not yet so dead in us that it is utterly extinct: but he promised victory to them that contend manfully, because we have the grace of God given us which worketh so, that the Law is not now in us the power and instrument of sin.

6:15 <sup>1</sup> To be under the law and under sin, signify all one, in respect of them which are not sanctified, as on the contrary side, to be under grace and righteousness, agree to them that are regenerate. Now these are contraries, so that one cannot agree with the other: Therefore let righteousness expel sin.

6:17 <sup>1</sup> By nature we are slaves to sin, and free from righteousness, but by the grace of God we are made servants to righteousness, and therefore free from sin.

<sup>2</sup> This kind of speech hath a force in it: for he meaneth thereby that the doctrine of the Gospel is like a certain mold which we are cast into to be framed and fashioned like unto it.

6:20 <sup>1</sup> Righteousness had no rule over you.

6:21 <sup>1</sup> An exhortation to the study of righteousness and hatred of sin, the contrary ends of both, being set down before us.

6:23 <sup>1</sup> Death is the punishment due to sin, but we are sanctified freely, unto life everlasting.

7:1 <sup>1</sup> By propounding the similitude of a marriage, he compareth the state of man both before and after regeneration together. The law of matrimony, saith he, is this, that so long as the husband liveth, the marriage abideth in force, but if he be dead, the woman may marry again.

7:3 <sup>1</sup> That is, she shall be an adulteress, by the consent and judgment of all men.

7:4 <sup>1</sup> An application of the similitude thus. So, saith he, doth it fare with us: for now we are joined to the spirit as it were to the second husband, by whom we must bring forth new children: we are dead in respect of the first husband, but in respect of the latter we are as it were raised from the dead.

7:5 <sup>1</sup> A declaration of the former saying: for the concupiscences (saith he) which the law stirred up in us, were in us as it were an husband, of whom we brought forth very deadly and cursed children. But now since that husband is dead, and so consequently being delivered from the force of that killing law, we have passed into the governance of the spirit, so that we bring forth now, not those rotten and dead, but lively children.

<sup>4</sup> He saith not, of the law, but by the law, because they spring of sin which dwelleth within us, and take occasion to work thus in us, by reason of the restraint that the law maketh, not that the fault is in the law, but in ourselves.

7 <sup>1</sup>What shall we say then? Is the Law sin? God forbid. Nay, I knew not sin, but by the Law: for I had not known <sup>2</sup>lust, except the Law had said, <sup>3</sup>Thou shalt not lust.

8 But sin took an occasion by the commandment, and wrought in me all manner of concupiscence: for without the Law sin is <sup>1</sup>dead.

9 <sup>1</sup>For I once was alive, without the <sup>2</sup>law: but when the commandment <sup>3</sup>came, sin revived, 10 But I <sup>1</sup>died: and the same commandment which was ordained unto life, was found to be unto me unto death.

11 For sin took occasion by the commandment, and deceived me, and thereby slew me.

13 <sup>1</sup>Was that then which is good, <sup>2</sup>made death unto me? God forbid: but sin, that it might <sup>3</sup>appear sin, wrought death in me by that which is good, that sin might be <sup>4</sup>out of measure sinful by the commandment.

14 <sup>1</sup>For we know that the Law is spiritual, but I am carnal, sold under sin.

15 <sup>1</sup>For I <sup>2</sup>allow not that which I do: for what I <sup>3</sup>would, that do I not: but what I hate, that do I.

16 If I do then that which I would not, I consent to the Law, that it is good.

17 Now then, it is no more I, that do it, but <sup>1</sup>sin that dwelleth in me.

18 <sup>1</sup>For I know, that in me, that is, in my flesh, dwelleth no good thing: for to will is present with me: but I find <sup>2</sup>no means to perform that which is

7:6 <sup>1</sup> As if he said, The bond which bound us, is dead, and vanished away, insomuch, that sin which held us, hath not now wherewith to hold us.

<sup>3</sup> Satan is an unjust possessor, for he brought us in bondage of sin and himself deceitfully: and yet notwithstanding so long as we are sinners, we sin willingly.

<sup>4</sup> As becometh them, which after the death of their old husband are joined to the spirit: as whom the spirit of God hath made new men.

<sup>5</sup> By the letter he meaneth the law, in respect of that old condition: for before that our will be framed by the holy Ghost, the law speaketh but to deaf men, and therefore it is dumb and dead to us, as touching the fulfilling of it.

7:7 <sup>1</sup> An objection: what then? are the law and sin all one, and do they agree together? nay, saith he: Sin is reproved and condemned by the law. But because sin cannot abide to be reproved, and was not in a manner felt until it was provoked and stirred up by the law, it taketh occasion thereby to be more outrageous, and yet by no fault of the law.

<sup>2</sup> By the word, Lust, in this place he meaneth not evil lusts themselves, but the fountain from whence they spring: for the very heathen philosophers themselves condemned wicked lusts, though somewhat darkly, but as for the fountain of them, they could not so much as suspect it, and yet it is the very seat of the natural and unclean spot and filth.

7:8 <sup>1</sup> Though sin be in us, yet it is not known for sin, neither doth it so rage, as if it rageth after that the law is known.

7:9 <sup>1</sup> He setteth himself before us for an example, in whom all men may behold, first what they are of nature before they earnestly think upon the law of God: to wit, blockish, and ready to sin and wickedness, without all true sense and feeling of sin, then what manner of persons they become, when their conscience is reproved by the testimony of the law, to wit, stubborn, and more inflamed with the desire of sin, than ever they were before.

<sup>2</sup> When I knew not the law, then me thought I lived in deed: for my conscience never troubled me, because it knew not my disease.

7:10 <sup>1</sup> In sin, or by sin.

7:12 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion: That the law of itself is holy, but all the fault is in us which abuse the law.

7:13 <sup>1</sup> The proposition: That the Law is not the cause of death, but our corrupt nature, being therewith not only discovered, but also stirred up, and took occasion thereby to rebel, as which, the more that things are forbidden it, the more it desireth them, and from hence cometh guiltiness, and occasion of death.

<sup>3</sup> That sin might show itself to be sin, and bewray itself to be that, which is in deed.

7:14 <sup>1</sup> The cause of this matter, is this: Because that the Law requireth a heavenly pureness, but men, such as they be born, are bondslaves of corruption, which they willingly serve.

7:15 <sup>1</sup> He setteth himself, being regenerate, before us, for an example, in whom may easily appear the strife of the Spirit and the flesh, and therefore of the Law of God, and our wickedness. For since that the Law in a man not regenerate bringeth forth death only, therefore in him it may easily be accused: but seeing that in a man which is regenerate, it bringeth forth good fruit, it doth better appear that evil actions proceed not from the Law, but from sin, that is, from our corrupt nature: And therefore the Apostle teacheth also, what the true use of the Law is, in reproving sin in the regenerate, unto the end of the chapter, as a little before (to wit, from the seventh verse unto this fifteenth) he declared the use of it in them which are not regenerate.

<sup>2</sup> The deeds of my life, saith he, answer not, nay they are contrary to my will: Therefore by the consent of my will with the Law, and repugnancy with the deeds of my life, it appeareth evidently, that the Law and a right ruled do persuade one thing, but corruption which hath her seat also in the regenerate, another thing.

<sup>3</sup> It is to be noted, that one selfsame man is said to will and not to will, in divers respects: to wit, he is said to will, in that, that he is regenerate by grace: and not to will, in that, that he is not regenerate, or in that, that he is such an one as he was born. But because the part which is regenerate, at length becometh conqueror, therefore Paul sustaining the part of the regenerate, speaketh in such sort as if the corruption which sinneth willingly, were something without a man: although afterward he granteth that this evil is in his flesh, or in his members.

7:17 <sup>1</sup> That natural corruption, which cleaveth fast even to them that are regenerate, and not clean conquered.

7:18 <sup>1</sup> This vice, or sin, or law of sin, doth wholly possess those men which are not regenerate, and hindereth them or holdeth them back that are regenerate.

<sup>2</sup> This doth indeed agree to that man, whom the grace of God hath made a new man: for where the Spirit is not, how can there be any strife there.

good,

19 For I do not the good thing, which I would, but the evil, which I would not, that do I.

20 Now if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but the sin that dwelleth in me.

21 I find then that when I would do good, I am thus yoked, that evil is present with me.

22 For I delight in the Law of God, concerning the inner man.

23 But I see another Law in my members, rebelling against the law of my mind, and leading me captive unto the law of sin, which is in my members.

24 O wretched man that I am, who shall deliver me from the body of this death!

25 I thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord. Then I myself in my mind serve the Law of God, but in my flesh the law of sin.

7:21 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion: As the Law of God exhorteth to goodness, so doth the Law of sin (that is, the corruption wherein we are born) force us to wickedness: but the Spirit, that is, our mind, in that that it is regenerate, consenteth with the Law of God: but the flesh, that is, the whole natural man, is bondslave to the Law of sin. Therefore to be short, wickedness and death are not of the Law, but of sin, which reigneth in them that are not regenerate: for they neither will, nor do good, but will, and do evil: But in them that are regenerate, it striveth against the Spirit or law of the mind, so that they cannot either live so well as they would, or be so void of sin as they would.

7:22 <sup>1</sup> The inner man, and the new man are all one, and are answerable and set as contrary to the old man: neither doth this word, Inner man, signify man's mind and reason, and the old man, the powers that are under them, as the Philosophers imagine, but by the outward man is meant whatsoever is either without or within a man, from top to toe, so long as that man is not born anew by the grace of God.

7:23 <sup>1</sup> The law of the mind in this place, is not to be understood of the mind as it is naturally, and as our mind is from our birth, but of the mind which is renewed by the Spirit of God.

7:24 <sup>1</sup> It is a miserable thing to be yet in part subject to sin, which of its own nature maketh us guilty of death: but we must cry to the Lord, who will by death itself at length make us conquerors as we are already conquerors in Christ.

7:25 <sup>1</sup> He recovereth himself, and showeth us that he resteth only in Christ.

<sup>2</sup> This is the true perfection of them that are born anew, to confess that they are imperfect.

8:1 <sup>1</sup> A conclusion of all the former disputation from Rom 1:16 even to this place: Seeing that we being justified by faith in Christ, do obtain remission of sins and imputation of righteousness, and are also sanctified, it followeth hereof, that they that are grafted into Christ by faith, are out of all fear of condemnation.

<sup>2</sup> The fruits of the Spirit, or effects of sanctification, which is begun in us, do not ingraft us into Christ, but do declare that we are grafted into him.

<sup>3</sup> Follow not the flesh for their guide: for he is not said to live after the flesh, that hath the holy Ghost for his guide, though sometimes he step away.

8:2 <sup>1</sup> A preventing of an objection: seeing that the virtue of the spirit which is in us, is so weak, how may we gather thereby, that there is no condemnation to them that have that virtue? because saith he, that

3 <sup>1</sup> For (that that was <sup>2</sup> impossible to the Law, inasmuch as it was weak, because of the <sup>3</sup> flesh) God sending his own Son, in the similitude of <sup>4</sup> sinful flesh, and for <sup>5</sup> sin, <sup>6</sup> condemned sin in the flesh,

4 That that <sup>1</sup> righteousness of the Law might be fulfilled <sup>2</sup> in us, which walk not after the flesh, but virtue of the quickening spirit which is so weak in us, is most perfect and most mighty in Christ, and being imputed unto us which believe, causeth us to be so accounted of, as though there were no relics of corruption, and death in us. Therefore hitherto Paul disputed of remission of sins, and imputation of fulfilling the Law, and also of sanctification which is begun in us: but now he speaketh of the perfect imputation of Christ's manhood, which part was necessarily required to the full appeasing of our consciences: for our sins are defaced by the blood of Christ, and the guiltiness of our corruption is covered with the imputation of Christ's obedience: and the corruption itself (which the Apostle calleth sinful sin) is healed in us by little and little, by the gift of sanctification, but yet it lacketh besides that another remedy, to wit, the perfect sanctification of Christ's own flesh, which also is to us imputed.

8:3 <sup>1</sup> He useth no argument here, but expoundeth the mystery of sanctification, which is imputed unto us: for because, that the virtue of the law was not such (and that by reason of the corruption of our nature) that it could make man pure and perfect: and for that it rather kindled the disease of sin, than did put it out and extinguish it, therefore God clothed his Son with flesh like unto our sinful flesh, wherein he utterly abolished our corruption, that being accounted thoroughly pure and without fault in him apprehended and laid hold on by faith, we might be found to have fully that singular perfection which the Law requireth, and therefore that there might be no condemnation in us.

8:4 <sup>1</sup> The very substance of the law of God might be fulfilled, or that same which the law requireth, that we may be found just before God: for if with our justification there be joined that sanctification which is imputed to us, we are just, according to the perfect form which the Lord requireth.

<sup>2</sup> He returneth to that which he said, that the sanctification which is begun in us, is a sure testimony of our ingrafting into Christ, which is a most plentiful fruit of a godly and honest life.

after the Spirit.

5 <sup>1</sup>For they that are after the <sup>2</sup>flesh, savor the things of the flesh: but they that are after the Spirit, the things of the Spirit.

6 <sup>1</sup>For the wisdom of the flesh is death: but the wisdom of the Spirit is life and peace,

7 <sup>1</sup>Because the wisdom of the flesh is enmity against God: <sup>2</sup>for it is not subject to the Law of God, neither indeed can be.

8 <sup>1</sup>So then they that are in the flesh, cannot please God.

9 <sup>1</sup>Now ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, because the spirit of God dwelleth in you: but if any man hath not the Spirit of Christ, the same is not his.

10 <sup>1</sup>And if Christ be in you, the <sup>2</sup>body is dead, because of sin: but the Spirit is life for righteousness sake.

11 <sup>1</sup>But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead, dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead, shall also quicken your mortal bodies, by his Spirit that <sup>2</sup>dwelleth in you.

12 <sup>1</sup>Therefore brethren, we are debtors not to the flesh, to live after the flesh:

13 <sup>1</sup>For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die: but if ye mortify the deeds of the body by the Spirit, ye shall live.

14 <sup>1</sup>For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God.

15 <sup>1</sup>For ye have not received the <sup>2</sup>Spirit of bondage, to <sup>3</sup>fear again: but ye have received the Spirit of <sup>4</sup>adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father.

16 The same Spirit beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God.

17 <sup>1</sup>If we be children, we are also <sup>2</sup>heirs, even the heirs of God, and heirs annexed with Christ: <sup>3</sup>if so be that we suffer with him, that we may also be glorified with him.

18 <sup>1</sup>For I <sup>2</sup>count that the afflictions of this present time are not worthy of the glory, which shall be showed unto us.

8:5 <sup>1</sup> A reason why to walk after the flesh, agreeth not to them which are grafted in Christ, but to walk after the spirit agreeth and is meet for them: because, saith he, that they which are after the flesh, savor the things of the flesh, but they that are after the spirit, the things of the spirit.

8:6 <sup>1</sup> He proveth the consequent: because that whatsoever the flesh savoreth, that engendereth death: and whatsoever the spirit savoreth, that tendeth to joy and life everlasting.

8:7 <sup>1</sup> A reason and proof, why the wisdom of the flesh is death: because, saith he, it is the enemy of God.

<sup>2</sup> A reason why the wisdom of the flesh is enemy to God: because it neither will neither can be subject to him. And by flesh he meaneth a man not regenerate.

8:8 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion: therefore they that walk after the flesh, cannot please God: whereby it followeth, that they are not ingrafted into Christ.

8:9 <sup>1</sup> He cometh to the others, to wit, to them which walk after the spirit, of whom we have to understand contrary things to the former: and first of all he defineth what it is to be in the spirit, or to be sanctified: to wit, to have the spirit of God dwelling in us; then he declareth, that sanctification is so joined and knit to our grafting in Christ, that it can by no means be separated.

8:10 <sup>1</sup> He confirmeth the faithful against the relics of flesh and sin, granting that they are yet (as appeareth by the corruption which is in them) touching one of their parts (which he calleth the body, that is to say, a lump) which is not yet purged from the earthly filthiness in death: but therewithall willing them to doubt nothing of the happy success of their combat, because that even the little spark of the Spirit, (that is, of the grace of regeneration) which appeareth to be in them by the fruits of righteousness, is the seed of life.

8:11 <sup>1</sup> A confirmation of the former sentence. You have the selfsame Spirit, which Christ hath: Therefore at length it shall die the same in you, that it did in Christ, to wit, when all infirmities being utterly laid aside, and death overcome, it shall clothe you with heavenly glory.

<sup>2</sup> By the virtue and power of it, which showed the same might first in our head, and daily worketh in his members.

8:12 <sup>1</sup> An exhortation to oppress the flesh daily more and more by the virtue of the Spirit of regeneration, because (saith he) you are debtors unto God, forso much as you have received so many benefits of him.

8:13 <sup>1</sup> Another reason of the profit that ensueth: for such as strive and fight valiantly, shall have everlasting life.

8:14 <sup>1</sup> A confirmation of this reason: they be the children of God, which are governed by his Spirit, therefore shall they have life everlasting.

8:15 <sup>1</sup> He declareth and expoundeth by the way, in these two verses, by what right this name, to be called the children of God, is given to the believers: because saith he, they have received the grace of the Gospel, wherein God showeth himself, not (as before in the publishing of the Law) terrible and fearful, but a most benign and loving father in Christ, so that with great boldness we call him Father, that holy Ghost sealing this adoption in our hearts by faith.

<sup>2</sup> By the Spirit is meant the holy Ghost, whom we are said to receive, when he worketh in our minds.

<sup>3</sup> Which fear is stirred up in our minds, by the preaching of the Law.

8:17 <sup>1</sup> A proof of the consequent of the confirmation: because that he which is the Son of God, doth enjoy God with Christ.

<sup>2</sup> Partakers of our father's goods, and that freely, because we are children by adoption.

<sup>3</sup> Now Paul teacheth by what way the sons of God do come to that felicity, to wit, by the cross, as Christ himself did: and therewithall openeth unto them fountains of comfort: as first, that we have Christ a companion and fellow of our afflictions: secondly, that we shall be also his followers in that everlasting glory.

8:19 <sup>1</sup> Fourthly, he plainly teacheth us that we shall certainly be renewed from that confusion and horrible deformation of the whole world, which cannot be continual, as it was not at the beginning: But as it had a beginning by the sin of man, for whom it was made by the ordinance of God, so shall it at length be restored with the elect.

when the sons of God shall be revealed,

20 Because the creature is subject to <sup>1</sup>vanity, not of its <sup>2</sup>own will, but by reason <sup>3</sup>of him, which hath subdued it under <sup>4</sup>hope,

21 Because the creature also shall be delivered from the <sup>1</sup>bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the sons of God.

22 For we know that every creature groaneth with us also, and <sup>1</sup>travaileth in pain together unto this present.

23 <sup>1</sup>And not only the creature, but we also which have the firstfruits of the Spirit, even we do sigh in <sup>2</sup>ourselves, waiting for the adoption, even <sup>3</sup>at the redemption of our body.

24 <sup>1</sup>For we are saved by hope: but <sup>2</sup>hope that is seen, is not hope: for how can a man hope for that which he seeth?

25 But if we hope for that we see not, we do with patience abide for it.

26 <sup>1</sup>Likewise the Spirit also <sup>2</sup>helpeth our infirmities: for we know not what to pray as we ought: but the Spirit itself maketh <sup>3</sup>request for us with sighs, which cannot be expressed.

27 But he that searcheth the hearts, knoweth what is the <sup>1</sup>meaning of the Spirit: for he maketh request for the Saints, <sup>2</sup>according to the will of God.

CHAPTER 8

28 <sup>1</sup>Also we know that <sup>2</sup>all things work together for the best unto them that love God, even to them that are called of his <sup>3</sup>purpose.

29 For those which he knew before, he also predestinated to be made like to the image of his Son, that he might be the firstborn among many brethren.

30 Moreover, whom he <sup>1</sup>predestinated, them also he called, and whom he called, them also he justified, and whom he justified, them he also glorified.

31 <sup>1</sup>What shall we then say to these things? If God be on our side, who can be against us?

32 Who spared not his own Son, but gave him for us all to death, how shall he not with him <sup>1</sup>give us all things also?

33 <sup>1</sup>Who shall lay anything to the charge of God's chosen? it is <sup>2</sup>God that justifieth.

34 Who shall condemn? it is Christ which is dead: yea, or rather, which is risen again, who is also at the right hand of God, and maketh request also for us.

35 Who shall separate us from the love of <sup>1</sup>Christ? shall tribulation or anguish, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword?

36 As it is written, <sup>b</sup>For thy sake are we killed all day long: we are counted as sheep for the slaughter:

37 <sup>1</sup>Nevertheless, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us.

8:20 <sup>1</sup> Is subject to a vanishing and flitting state.

<sup>3</sup> That they should obey the Creator's commandment, whom it pleased to show by their fickle estate, how greatly he was displeased with man.

<sup>4</sup> God would not make the world subject to everlasting curse, for the sin of man, but gave it hope that it should be restored.

8:21 <sup>1</sup> From the corruption which they are now subject to, they shall be delivered and changed into that blessed state of incorruption, which shall be revealed when the sons of God shall be advanced to glory.

8:22 <sup>1</sup> By this word is meant, not only exceeding sorrow, but also the fruit that followeth of it.

8:23 <sup>1</sup> Fifthly, if the rest of the world looks for a restoring, groaning as it were for it, and that not in vain, let it not grieve us also to sigh, yea, let us be more certainly persuaded of our redemption to come, forasmuch as we have the firstfruits of the Spirit.

8:24 <sup>1</sup> Sixthly, hope is necessarily joined with faith: seeing then that we believe those things, which we are not yet in possession of, and hope respected not the thing that is present, we must therefore hope and patiently wait for that which we believe shall come to pass.

8:26 <sup>1</sup> Seventhly, There is no cause why we should faint under the burden of afflictions, seeing that prayers minister unto us a most sure help, which cannot be frustrated, seeing they proceed from the spirit of God which dwelleth in us.

<sup>2</sup> Beareth our burden, as it were that we faint not under it.

<sup>3</sup> Provoketh us to prayers, and telleth us as it were within, what we shall say, and how we shall groan.

8:27 <sup>1</sup> What sobs and sighs proceed from the instinct of his Spirit.

8:28 <sup>1</sup> Eighthly, we are not afflicted, either by chance or to our harm, but by God's providence for our great profit, who as he chose us from the beginning, so hath he predestined us to be made like to the image of his Son: and therefore will bring us in his time, being called and justified, to glory, by the cross.

<sup>3</sup> He calleth that, Purpose, which God hath from everlasting appointed with himself according to his good will and pleasure.

8:30 <sup>1</sup> He useth the time past, for the time present, as the Hebrews use, who sometimes set down the thing that is to come, by the time that is past, to signify the certainty of it: and he hath also regard to God's continual working.

8:31 <sup>1</sup> Ninethly, we have no cause to fear that the Lord will not give us whatsoever is profitable for us, seeing that he hath not spared his own Son to save us.

8:32 <sup>1</sup> Give us freely.

8:33 <sup>1</sup> A most glorious and comfortable conclusion of the whole second part of this Epistle, that is, of the treatise of justification. There are no accusers that we have need to be afraid of before God, seeing that God himself absolveth us as just: and therefore much less need we to fear damnation, seeing that we rest upon the death and resurrection, the almighty power and defense of Jesus Christ. Therefore what can there be so weighty in this life, or of so great force and power, that might seize us, as though we might fall from the love of God, wherewith he loveth us in Christ: Surely nothing. Seeing that it is in itself most constant and sure, and also in us being confirmed by steadfast faith.

8:35 <sup>1</sup> Wherewith Christ loveth us.

8:37 <sup>1</sup> We are not only not overcome with so great and many miseries and calamities, but also more than conquerors in all of them.

38 For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor Angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come,

39 Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

9 <sup>1</sup> He answereth an objection, that might be brought on the Jews' behalf, 7 and telleth of two sorts of Abraham's children, 15 and that God worketh all things in this matter according to his will, 20 even as the potter doth. 24, 30 He proveth as well the calling of the Gentiles, 31 as also the rejecting of the Jews, 25, 27 by the testimony of the Prophets.

1 I say <sup>1</sup>the truth in Christ, I lie not, my conscience bearing me witness in the holy Ghost,

2 That I have great heaviness, and continual sorrow in mine heart.

3 For I would wish myself to be <sup>1</sup>separate from Christ, for my brethren that are my kinsmen according to the <sup>2</sup>flesh,

4 Which are the Israelites, to whom pertaineth the adoption, and the <sup>1</sup>glory, and the <sup>a,2</sup>Covenants, and the giving of the <sup>3</sup>Law, and the <sup>4</sup>service of God, and the <sup>5</sup>promises.

5 Of whom are the fathers, and of whom concerning the flesh, Christ came, who is <sup>1</sup>God over all, blessed forever, Amen.

6 <sup>b,1</sup>Notwithstanding it cannot be that the word of God should take none effect: for all they are not <sup>2</sup>Israel, which are of Israel:

8 <sup>1</sup>That is, they which are the children of the <sup>2</sup>flesh, are not the children of God: but the <sup>d</sup>children of the <sup>3</sup>promise, are counted for the seed.

9 <sup>1</sup>For this is a word of promise, <sup>e</sup>In this same time will I come, and Sarah shall have a son.

10 <sup>1</sup>Neither he only felt this, but also <sup>f</sup>Rebecca, when she had conceived by one, even by our father Isaac.

11 For ere the children were born, and when they had neither done good nor evil (that the <sup>1</sup>purpose of God might <sup>2</sup>remain according to election, not by works, but by him that calleth.)

12 <sup>1</sup>It was said unto her, <sup>g</sup>The Elder shall serve the younger.

13 As it is written, <sup>h</sup>I have loved Jacob, and have hated Esau.

9:1 <sup>1</sup> The third part of this Epistle, even to the twelfth Chapter, wherein Paul ascendeth to the higher causes of faith: and first of all because he purposed to speak much of the casting off of the Jews, he useth an insinuation, declaring by a double or triple oath, and by witnessing of his great desire towards their salvation, his singular love towards them, and therewithall granting unto them all their prerogatives.

9:3 <sup>1</sup> The Apostle loved his brethren so entirely, that if it have been possible he would have been ready to have redeemed the casting away of the Israelites, with the loss of his own soul forever: for this word separate, betokeneth as much in this place.

9:4 <sup>1</sup> The ark of the covenant, which was a token of God's presence.

9:5 <sup>1</sup> A most manifest testimony of the Godhead and divinity of Christ.

9:6 <sup>1</sup> He entereth into the handling of predestination by a kind of preventing an objection: How may it be, that Israel is cast off, but that therewithall we must also make the covenant which God made with Abraham and his seed, frustrate and void? He answereth therefore, that God's word is true, although that Israel be cast off: for the election of the people of Israel is so general and common, that notwithstanding the same, God chooseth by his secret counsel, such as it pleaseth him. So then this is the proposition and state of this Treatise: The grace of salvation is offered generally in such sort, that notwithstanding it, the efficacy thereof pertaineth only to the elect.

9:7 <sup>1</sup> The first proof is taken from the example of Abraham's own house, wherein Isaac only was counted the son, and that by God's ordinance: although that Ishmael also was born of Abraham, and circumcised before Isaac.

<sup>2</sup> Isaac shall be thy true and natural son, and therefore heir of thy blessing.

9:8 <sup>1</sup> A general application of the former proof or example.

9:9 <sup>1</sup> A reason of that application: Because that Isaac was born by the virtue of the promise, and therefore he was not chosen, nay he was not at all, but by the free will of God: whereby it followeth that the promise is the fountain of predestination, and not the flesh from which promise the particular election proceedeth: that is, that the elect be born elect: and not that they be first born and then afterward elected, in respect of God who doth predestinate.

9:10 <sup>1</sup> Another forcible proof, taken from the example of Esau and Jacob, which were both born of the same Isaac, which was the son of promise, of one mother, and at one birth, and not at divers as Ishmael and Isaac were: and yet notwithstanding, Esau being cast off, only Jacob was chosen: and that before their birth, that neither any goodness of Jacob's might be thought to be the cause of his election, neither any wickedness of Esau, of his casting away.

9:11 <sup>1</sup> God's decree, which proceedeth of his mere good will, whereby it pleased him to choose one, and refuse the other.

<sup>2</sup> Paul saith not, might be made, but being made, might remain. Therefore they are deceived which make foreseen faith the cause of election, and foreknown infidelity, the cause of reprobation.

9:12 <sup>1</sup> He proveth the casting away of Esau by that, that he was made servant to his brother: and proveth the choosing of Jacob by that that he was made Lord of his brother, although his brother were the first begotten. And lest that any man might take this saying of God, and refer it to external things, the Apostle showeth out of Malachi, who is a good interpreter of Moses, that the servitude of Esau was joined with the hatred of God, and the Lordship of Jacob with the love of God.

14 <sup>1</sup>What shall we say then? Is there <sup>2</sup>unrighteousness with God? God forbid.

15 <sup>1</sup>For he saith to Moses, <sup>1</sup>I will <sup>2</sup>have mercy on him, to whom I will show mercy: and will have <sup>3</sup>compassion on him, on who I will have compassion.

16 <sup>1</sup>So then it is not in him that <sup>2</sup>willeth, nor in him that runneth, but in God that showeth mercy.

be declared throughout all the earth.

18 <sup>1</sup>Therefore he hath mercy on whom he <sup>2</sup>will, and whom he will he hardeneth.

19 <sup>1</sup>Thou wilt say then unto me, Why doth he yet complain? for who hath resisted his will?

9:14 <sup>1</sup> The first objection: If God doth love or hate upon no consideration of worthiness or unworthiness, then [is] he unjust, because he may love them which are unworthy, and hate them that are worthy. The Apostle detesteth this blasphemy, and afterward answereth it severally, point by point.

9:15 <sup>1</sup> He answereth first touching them which are chosen to salvation in choosing of whom, he denieth that God may seem unjust, although he choose and predestinate to salvation, them that are not yet born, without any respect of worthiness: because he bringeth not the chosen to the appointed end, but by the means of his mercy, which is a cause next under predestination. Now mercy presupposeth misery, and again misery presupposeth sin or voluntary corruption of mankind, and corruption presupposeth a pure and perfect creation. Moreover mercy is showed by her degrees: to wit, by calling, by faith, by justification and sanctification, so that at length we come to glorification, as the Apostle will show afterward. Now all these things, orderly following the purpose of God, do clearly prove that he can by no means seem unjust in loving and saving his.

<sup>3</sup> I will have compassion on whomsoever I list to have compassion.

9:16 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion of the answer: Therefore God is not unjust in choosing and saving of his free goodness, such as it pleaseth him: as he also answered Moses, when he prayed for all the people.

<sup>2</sup> By will, he meaneth the thought and endeavor of heart, and by running, good works: to neither of which he giveth the praise, but only to the mercy of God.

9:17 <sup>1</sup> Now he answereth concerning the reprobate or them whom God hateth being not yet born, and hath appointed to destruction, without any respect of unworthiness. And first of all he proveth this to be true, by alleging the testimony of God himself touching Pharaoh, whom he stirred up to this purpose, that he might be glorified in his hardening and just punishing.

<sup>4</sup> Secondly, he bringeth the end of God's counsel, to show that there is no unrighteousness in him. Now this chiefeft end, is not properly and simply the destruction of the wicked, but God's glory which appeareth in their rightful punishment.

9:18 <sup>1</sup> A conclusion of the full answer to the first objection: therefore seeing that God doth not save them whom he freely chose according to his good will and pleasure, but by justifying and sanctifying them by his grace, his counsel in saving them cannot seem unjust. And again, there is not injustice in the everlasting counsel of God touching the destruction of them whom he listeth to destroy, for that he hardeneth before he destroyeth: Therefore the third answer for the maintenance of God's justice is the everlasting counsel of reprobation, consisteth in this word

Hardening: which notwithstanding he concealed in the former verse, because the History of Pharaoh was well known. But the force of the word is great: for Hardening, which is set against Mercy, presupposeth the same things that mercy did, to wit, a voluntary corruption, wherein the reprobate are hardened: and again corruption presupposeth a perfect state of creation. Moreover, this hardening also is voluntary, for God so hardeneth being offended with corruption, that he useth their own will whom he hardeneth, to the executing of that judgment. Then follow the fruits of Hardening, to wit, unbelief and sin, which are the true and proper causes of the condemnation of the reprobate. Why doth he then appoint to destruction? because he will: why doth he harden? because they are corrupt: why doth he condemn? because they are sinners. Where is then unrighteousness? Nay, if he should destroy all after this same sort, to whom should he do injury?

9:19 <sup>1</sup> Another objection but only for the reprobate, rising upon the former answer. If God do appoint to everlasting destruction, such as he listeth, and if that cannot be hindered notwithstanding that he hath once decreed, how doth he justly condemn them, which perish by his will?

9:20 <sup>1</sup> The Apostle doth not answer that it is not God's will, or that God doth not either reject or elect according to his pleasure, which thing the wicked call blasphemy, but he rather granteth, his adversary both the antecedents, to wit, that it is God's will, and that it must of necessity so fall out, yet he denieth that God is therefore to be thought an unjust revenger of the wicked: for seeing it appeareth by manifest proof that this is the will of God and his doing, what impudency is it for man, which is but dust and ashes to dispute with God, and as it were to call him into judgment? Now if any man say that the doubt is not so dissolved and answered, I answer, that there is no surer demonstration in any matter, because it is grounded upon this principle, That the will of God is the rule of righteousness.

<sup>2</sup> An amplification of the former answer, taken from a comparison, whereby also it appeareth that God's determined counsel is set of Paul the highest of all causes, so that it dependeth not upon any respect of second causes, but doth rather frame and direct them.

9:21 <sup>1</sup> Alluding to the creation of Adam, he compareth mankind not yet made (but in the Creator's mind) to a lump of clay: whereof afterward God made and doth daily make, according as he purposed from everlasting both such as should be elect, and such as should be reprobate, as also this word, making, declareth.

<sup>2</sup> Whereas in the objection propounded, mention was only made of vessels to dishonor: yet he speaketh of the other also in this answer, for that he proveth the Creator to be just in either of them, as the rule of contraries doth require.

<sup>4</sup> Seeing then, that in the name of dishonor, the ignomy of everlasting death is signified, they speak with Paul, which say, that some are made of God to most just destruction: and they [that] are offered with this kind of speech bewray their own folly.

22 <sup>1</sup>What and if God would, to show his wrath, and to make his power known, suffer with long patience the <sup>2</sup>vessels of wrath, prepared to <sup>3</sup>destruction?

23 And that he might declare the <sup>1</sup>riches of his glory upon the vessels of mercy, which he hath prepared unto glory?

24 <sup>1</sup>Even us whom he hath called, not of the <sup>2</sup>Jews only, but also of the Gentiles.

25 <sup>1</sup>As he saith also in Hosea, <sup>2</sup>"I will call them, My people, which were not my people: and her, Beloved, which was not beloved.

26 And it shall be in the place where it was said unto them, <sup>2</sup>"Ye are not my people, that there they shall be called, The children of the living God.

27 <sup>1</sup>Also Isaiah crieth concerning Israel, <sup>2</sup>"Though the number of the children of Israel were as the sand of the sea, yet shall but a remnant be saved.

28 For he will make his account, and gather it into a <sup>1</sup>short sum with righteousness: for the Lord will make a short count in the earth.

29 <sup>1</sup>And as Isaiah said before, Except the Lord of <sup>2</sup>hosts had left us a <sup>3</sup>seed, we had been made as Sodom, and had been like to Gomorrah.

30 <sup>1</sup>What shall we say then? That the Gentiles which followed <sup>2</sup>not righteousness, have attained unto righteousness, even the righteousness which is of faith.

31 <sup>1</sup>But Israel which followed the Law of righteousness, could not attain unto the Law of righteousness.

32 Wherefore? Because they sought it not by faith, but as it were by the <sup>1</sup>works of the Law: for they have stumbled at the stumbling stone, 33 As it is written, <sup>2</sup>"Behold, I lay in Zion a stumbling stone, and a rock to make men fall: and everyone that believeth in him, shall not be ashamed.

1 Brethren, <sup>1</sup>mine hearts desire and prayer to God for Israel is, that they might be saved.

2 For I bear them record that they have the zeal of God, but not according to knowledge.

3 <sup>1</sup>For they, <sup>2</sup>being ignorant of the righteousness of God, and going about to <sup>3</sup>establish their own righteousness, have not submitted themselves to the righteousness of God.

4 <sup>a1</sup>For Christ is the <sup>2</sup>end of the Law for righteousness unto <sup>3</sup>everyone that believeth.

9:22 <sup>1</sup>The second answer is this, that God, moreover and besides that he doth justly decree whatsoever he doth decree, useth that moderation in executing of his decrees, as declareth his singular lenity even in the reprobate in that, that he suffereth them a long time, and permitteth them to enjoy many and singular benefits, until at length he justly condemns them: and that to good end and purpose, to wit, to show himself to be an enemy and revenger of wickedness, that it may appear what power he is of by these severe judgments, and finally by comparison of contraries to set forth indeed, how great his mercy is towards the elect.

9:24 <sup>1</sup>Having established the doctrine of the eternal predestination of God on both parts: that is, as well of the reprobate, as of the elect, he cometh now to show the use of it, teaching us that we ought not to seek the testimony of it in the secret counsel of God, but by the vocation which is made manifest and set forth in the Church, propounding unto us the example of the Jews and Gentiles, that the doctrine may be better perceived.

<sup>2</sup>He saith not that all and every one of the Jews are called, but some of the Jews, and some of the Gentiles.

9:25 <sup>1</sup>Our vocation or calling is free and of grace, even as our predestination is: and therefore there is no cause why either our own unworthiness, or the unworthiness of our ancestors should cause us to think that we are not the elect and chosen of God, if we be called of him, and so embrace through faith the salvation that is offered us.

9:27 <sup>1</sup>Contrariwise, Neither any outward general calling, neither any worthiness of our ancestors is a sufficient witness of election, unless by faith and belief we answer God's calling: which thing came to pass in the Jews, as the Lord had forewarned.

9:28 <sup>1</sup>God purposeth to bring the unkind and unthankful people to an extreme fewness.

9:29 <sup>1</sup>Armies, by which word the chiefest power that is, is given to God.

9:30 <sup>1</sup>The declaration and manifestation of our election, is our calling apprehended by faith, as it came to pass in the Gentiles.

<sup>2</sup>So then, the Gentiles had no works to prepare and procure God's mercy beforehand: and as for that, that the Gentiles attained to that which they sought not for, the mercy of God is to be thanked for it: and in that the Jews attained not that which they sought after, they can thank none for it but themselves, because they sought it not aright.

9:31 <sup>1</sup>The pride of men is the cause that they condemn vocation, so that the cause of their damnation need not to be sought for any other where but in themselves.

9:32 <sup>1</sup>Seeking to come by righteousness, they followed the Law of righteousness.

10:1 <sup>1</sup>Purposing to set forth in the Jews an example of marvelous obstinacy, he useth an insinuation.

10:3 <sup>1</sup>The first entrance into the vocation unto salvation, is to renounce our own righteousness: the next is, to embrace that righteousness by faith, which God freely offereth us the Gospel.

10:4 <sup>1</sup>The proof: The Law itself hath respect unto Christ, that such as believe in him should be saved. Therefore the calling to salvation by the works of the law is vain and foolish, but Christ is offered for salvation to every believer.

<sup>2</sup>The end of the Law is to justify them that keep the Law: but seeing we do not observe the Law through the fault of our flesh, we attain not unto this end: but Christ salveth this disease, for he fulfilled the Law for us.

<sup>3</sup>Not only to the Jews, but also to the Gentiles.

5 <sup>1</sup>For Moses thus describeth the righteousness which is of the Law, <sup>b</sup>That the man which doeth these things, shall live thereby.

6 But the righteousness which is of faith, speaketh on this wise, <sup>c,1</sup>Say not in thine heart, Who shall ascend into heaven? (that is to bring Christ from above.)

7 Or, Who shall descend into the deep? (that is to bring Christ again from the dead.)

8 <sup>1</sup>But what saith it? <sup>d</sup>The <sup>2</sup>word is near thee, even in thy mouth, and in thine heart. This is the word of faith which we preach.

10 For with the heart man <sup>1</sup>believeth unto righteousness, and with the mouth man confesseth to salvation.

12 For there is no difference between the Jew and the Grecian: for he that is Lord over all, is rich unto all that call on him.

13 <sup>1,1</sup>For whosoever shall call upon the Name of the Lord, shall be saved.

14 But how shall they call on him, in whom they have not believed? <sup>1</sup>and how shall they believe in him, of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher?

15 And how shall they preach, except they be sent? as it is written, <sup>g</sup>How beautiful are the feet of them which bring glad tidings of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things!

16 <sup>1</sup>But they have not <sup>2</sup>all obeyed the Gospel: for Isaiah saith, <sup>b</sup>Lord, who hath believed our report?

17 <sup>1</sup>Then faith is by hearing, and hearing by the <sup>2</sup>word of God.

18 <sup>1</sup>But I demand, Have they not heard? <sup>2</sup>No doubt their sound went out through all the earth, and their words into the ends of the world.

19 <sup>1</sup>But I demand, Did not Israel know God? First Moses saith, <sup>1</sup>I will provoke you to envy by a <sup>2</sup>nation that is not my nation, and by a foolish nation I will anger you.

20 <sup>k</sup>And Isaiah is <sup>1</sup>bold, and saith, I was found of them that sought me not, and have been made manifest to them that asked not after me.

21 And unto Israel he saith, All the day long have I stretched forth mine hand unto a disobedient, and gainsaying people.

10:5 <sup>1</sup> That the Law regardeth and tendeth to Christ, that is a manifest proof, for that is propounded such a condition, as can be and is fulfilled of none but Christ only: which being imputed unto us by faith, our conscience is quieted, so that now no man can ask, Who can ascend up into heaven, or bring us from hell, seeing the Gospel teacheth that both of these is done by Christ, and that for their sakes, which with true faith embrace him which calleth them.

10:6 <sup>1</sup> Think not with thyself, as men that are staggering use to do.

10:8 <sup>1</sup> Vocation cometh by the word preached.

10:9 <sup>1</sup> That is indeed true faith which is settled not only in the head, but also in the heart of man, whereof also we give testimony, by our outward life, and which tendeth to Christ as to our alone and only Savior, even as he setteth forth himself in his word.

<sup>2</sup> If thou profess plainly, sincerely, and openly, that thou takest Jesus only to be thy Lord and Savior.

<sup>3</sup> The Father, who is said to have raised the Son from the dead: and this is not spoken to shut out the divinity of the Son, but to set forth the Father's counsel touching our redemption in the resurrection of the Son.

10:10 <sup>1</sup> Faith is said to justify, and furthermore seeing the confession of the mouth is an effect of faith, and confession is the way to come to salvation, it followeth that faith is also said to save.

10:11 <sup>1</sup> Now he proveth the other part which he propounded afore in the fourth verse, to wit, that Christ calleth whomsoever he listeth without any difference, and this he confirmeth by a double testimony.

<sup>2</sup> To believe in God is to yield and consent to God's promise of our salvation by Christ, and that not only in general, but when we know that the promises pertain to us whereupon riseth a sure trust.

10:13 <sup>1</sup> True calling upon the Name of God is the testimony of true faith, and true faith of true vocation or calling, and true calling, of true election.

10:14 <sup>1</sup> That is, true faith which seeketh God in his word, and that preached according as God hath appointed in the Church.

10:16 <sup>1</sup> Wheresoever faith is, there is also the word, but not contrariwise, wheresoever the word is, there is faith also: for many refuse and reject the word.

10:17 <sup>1</sup> A conclusion of the former gradation: we must ascend from faith, to our vocation, as by our vocation we came to the testimony of our election.

10:18 <sup>1</sup> An objection: If calling be a testimony of election, were not the Jews called? why should I not ... that, saith the Apostle, seeing that there is no nation which hath not been called? much less can I say, that the Jews were not called.

10:19 <sup>1</sup> The defender and maintainer of the Jews' cause goeth on still to ask, whether the Jews also knew not God which called them. Isaiah (saith the Apostle) denieth it: and witnesseth that the Gospel was translated from them to the Gentiles, because the Jews neglected it. And therewithall the Apostle teacheth, that that outward and universal calling, which is set forth by the creation of the world, sufficeth not to the knowledge of God: yea, and that the particular also which is by the word of God, is of itself of small or no efficacy, unless it be apprehended or laid hold on by faith, by the gift of God: otherwise by unbelief it is made unprofitable, and that by the only fault of man, who can pretend no ignorance.

<sup>2</sup> He calleth all profane people, a nation that is no nation, that they are not said to live but to die, which are appointed for everlasting condemnation.

that Elijah was in times past deceived: 16 and that, seeing they have an holy root, 23 many of them likewise shall be holy. 18, 24 He exhorteth the Gentiles to be humble, 33 and crieth out, that God's judgments are unsearchable.

1 I Demand then, <sup>1</sup>Hath God cast away his people? God forbid: for <sup>2</sup>I also am an Israelite, of the seed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin.

2 <sup>1</sup>God hath not cast away his people which he <sup>2</sup>knew before. <sup>3</sup>Know ye not what the Scripture saith of Elijah, how he communeth with God against Israel, saying,

3 <sup>a</sup>Lord, they have killed thy Prophets, and dug down thine Altars: and I am left alone, and they seek my life?

4 But what saith the answer of God to him? <sup>b</sup>I have <sup>1</sup>reserved unto myself seven thousand men, which have not bowed the knee to <sup>2</sup>Baal.

5 Even so then, at this present time is there a remnant according to the <sup>1</sup>election of grace.

6 <sup>1</sup>And if it be of grace, it is <sup>2</sup>no more of works: or else were grace no more grace: but if it be of works, it is no more grace: or else were work no more work.

CHAPTER 11

<sup>a</sup> 1 Kings 19:10<sup>b</sup> 1 Kings 19:18<sup>c</sup> Isa. 6:9

Isa. 29:10

Matt. 13:14

John 12:40

7 What then? Israel hath not obtained that he sought: but the election hath obtained it, and the rest have been <sup>1</sup>hardened,

8 <sup>1</sup>According as it is written, 'God hath given them the spirit of <sup>2</sup>slumber: eyes that they <sup>3</sup>should not see, and ears that they should not hear unto this day.

9 And David saith, <sup>d,1</sup>Let their table be made a snare, and a net, and a stumbling block, even for a recompense unto them.

10 Let their eyes be darkened that they see not, and bow down their back always.

11 <sup>1</sup>I demand then, Have they stumbled, that they should fall? God forbid: but through their fall, salvation cometh unto the Gentiles, to provoke them to follow them.

12 Wherefore if the fall of them be the <sup>1</sup>riches of the world, and the diminishing of them the riches of the Gentiles, how much more shall their <sup>2</sup>abundance be?

13 <sup>1</sup>For in that I speak to you Gentiles, inasmuch as I am the Apostle of the Gentiles, I <sup>2</sup>magnify mine

11:1 <sup>1</sup> Now the Apostle showeth how this doctrine is to be applied to others, abiding still in his propounded cause. Therefore he teacheth us that all the Jews in particular are not cast away, and therefore we ought not to pronounce rashly of private persons, whether they be of the number of the elect or not.

<sup>2</sup> The first proof, I am a Jew, and yet elected, therefore we may and ought fully to resolve upon our election, as hath been before said: but of another man's we cannot be so certainly resolved, and yet ours may cause us to hope well of others.

11:2 <sup>1</sup> The second proof: Because that God is faithful in his league or Covenant, although men be unfaithful: So then seeing that God hath said, that he will be the God of his unto a thousand generations, we must take heed, that we think not that the whole race and offspring is cast off, by reason of the unbelief of a few, but rather, that we hope well of every member of the Church, because of God's league and Covenant.

<sup>3</sup> The third proof, taken from the answer that was made to Elijah: even then also, when there appeared openly to the face of the world no elect, yet God knew his elect and chosen, and of them also good store and number. Whereupon this also is concluded, that we ought not rashly to pronounce of any man as of a reprobate, seeing that the Church is oftentimes brought to that state, that even the most watchful and sharp-sighted pastors think it to be clean extinct and put out.

11:4 <sup>1</sup> He speaketh of remnants and reserved people which were chosen from everlasting, and not of remnants that should be chosen afterward: for they are not chosen, because they were not idolaters, but therefore they were not idolaters, because they were chosen and elect.

11:5 <sup>1</sup> The election of grace, is not whereby men chose grace, but whereby God chose us of his grace and goodness.

11:6 <sup>1</sup> Although that all be not elect and chosen, yet let them that are elected, remember that they are freely chosen, and let them that stubbornly refuse the grace and free mercy of God, impute it unto themselves.

11:7 <sup>1</sup> See Mark 3:5.

11:8 <sup>1</sup> And yet this hardness of heart cometh not but by God's just decree and judgment, and yet without fault, whom as he so punisheth the unthankful by taking from them all sense and perseverance and by doubling their darkness, that the benefits of God which are offered unto them, do redound to their just destruction.

11:9 <sup>1</sup> As unhappy Jews are enticed to death by that which is their sustenance, so did that only thing turn to the Jews' destruction, out of which they sought life, to wit, the Law of God, for the preposterous zeal whereof they refused the Gospel.

11:11 <sup>1</sup> God appointed this casting out of the Jews, that it might be an occasion to call the Gentiles: and again might turn this calling of the Gentiles, to be an occasion to restore the Jews, to wit, that they being inflamed and provoked by emulation of the Gentiles, might themselves at length embrace the Gospel. And hereby we may learn, that the severity of God serveth as well for the setting forth of his glory as his mercy doth, and also that God prepares himself a way to mercy, by his severity, so that we ought not rashly to despair of any man, nor proudly triumph over other men, but rather provoke them to an holy emulation, that God may be glorified in them also.

11:12 <sup>1</sup> By riches he meaneth the knowledge of the Gospel to everlasting life: and by the world, all nations dispersed throughout the whole world.

11:13 <sup>1</sup> He witnesseth by his own example, that he goeth before all others in this behalf.

14 To try if by any means I might provoke them of my flesh to follow them, and might save some of them.

15 For if the casting away of them be the reconciling of the world, what shall the receiving be, <sup>1</sup>but life from the dead?

16 <sup>1</sup>For if the <sup>2</sup>firstfruits be holy, so is the whole lump: and if the <sup>3</sup>root be holy, so are the branches.

17 <sup>61</sup>And though some of the branches be broken off, and thou being a wild Olive tree, wast grafted in <sup>2</sup>for them, and made <sup>3</sup>partaker of the root and fatness of the Olive tree:

18 <sup>1</sup>Boast not thyself against the branches: and if thou boast thyself, thou bearest not the root, but the root thee.

19 Thou wilt say then, The branches are broken off, that I might be grafted in.

20 Well: through unbelief they are broken off, and thou standest by faith: be not high-minded, but <sup>1</sup>fear.

21 For if God spared not the <sup>1</sup>natural branches, take heed, lest he also spare not thee.

22 <sup>1</sup>Behold therefore the <sup>2</sup>bountifulness, and severity of God: toward them which have fallen, severity: but toward thee, bountifulness, if thou continue in his <sup>3</sup>bountifulness: or else thou shalt also be cut off.

23 <sup>1</sup>And they also, if they abide not still in unbelief, shall be grafted in: for God is able to graft them in again.

24 For if thou wast cut out of the Olive tree, which was wild by <sup>1</sup>nature, and was grafted contrary to nature in a <sup>2</sup>right Olive tree, how much more shall they that are by nature, be grafted in their own Olive tree?

25 <sup>1</sup>For I would not, brethren, that ye should be ignorant of this secret (lest ye should be arrogant in <sup>2</sup>yourselves) that partly obstinacy is come to Israel, until the fullness of the Gentiles be <sup>3</sup>come in.

26 And so all Israel shall be saved, as it is written, <sup>f</sup>The deliverer shall come out of Zion, and shall turn away the ungodliness from Jacob.

27 And this is my covenant to them, <sup>g</sup>When I shall take away their sins.

28 <sup>1</sup>As concerning the <sup>2</sup>Gospel, they are enemies for your sakes: but as touching the <sup>3</sup>election, they 11:15 <sup>1</sup> It shall come to pass that when the Jews come to the Gospel, the world shall as it were come quicken again, and rise up from death to life.

11:16 <sup>1</sup> The nation of the Jews being considered in their stock and root, that is, in Abraham, is holy, although that many of the branches be cut off. Therefore in judging of our brethren, we must not stick in their unworthiness, to think that they are at once all cast off, but we ought to consider the root of the Covenant, and rather go back to their ancestors which were faithful, that we may know that the blessing of the Covenant resteth in some of their posterity, as we also find proof hereof in ourselves.

11:17 <sup>1</sup> There is no cause why the Gentiles which have obtained mercy, should triumph over the Jews which condemn the grace of God, seeing they are grafted into the Jews' ancestors. But let them rather take heed that that also be not found in them which is worthily condemned in the Jews. And hereof also this general doctrine may be gathered and taken, that we ought to be studious of God's glory, even in respect of our neighbors: so far ought we to be from bragging and glorying, for that, that we are preferred before others by a singular grace.

<sup>3</sup> It is against the common course of husbandry, that the barren juice of the imp is changed with the juice of the good tree.

11:18 <sup>1</sup> We may rejoice in the Lord, but so that we despise not the Jews, whom we ought rather to provoke to that good striving with us.

11:20 <sup>1</sup> See that thou stand in awe of God modestly and carefully.

11:21 <sup>1</sup> He calleth them natural, not because they had any holiness of nature, but because they were born of them, whom the Lord set apart for himself from, other nations, by his league and covenant which he freely made with them.

11:22 <sup>1</sup> Seeing the matter itself declareth that election cometh not by inheritance (although the fault be in men, and not in God, why the blessing of God is not perpetual) we must take good heed, that that be not found in ourselves, which we think blameworthy in others, for the election is sure, but they that are truly elect and ingrafted, are not proud in themselves with contempt of others, but with due reverence to God, and love towards their neighbor, run to the mark which is set before them.

<sup>3</sup> In that state which God's bountifulness hath advanced thee unto: and we must mark here, that he speaketh not of the election of every private man, which remaineth steadfast forever, but of the election of the whole nation.

11:23 <sup>1</sup> Many are now for a season cut off, that is, are without the root, which in their time shall be grafted in: and again there are a great sort, which after a sort, and touching the outward show, seem to be ingrafted, which notwithstanding through their own fault afterward are cut off and clean cast away: which thing is especially to be considered in nations and peoples, as in the Gentiles and Jews.

11:24 <sup>1</sup> Understand nature, not as it was first made, but as it was corrupted in Adam, and so derived from him to his posterity.

<sup>2</sup> Into the people of the Jews which God had sanctified of his mere grace: and he speaketh of the whole nation, not of every one part.

11:25 <sup>1</sup> The blindness of the Jews is neither so universal that the Lord hath no elect in that nation, neither shall it be continual: for there shall be a time wherein they also (as the Prophets have forewarned) shall effectually embrace that which they do now so stubbornly for the most part reject and refuse.

11:28 <sup>1</sup> Again, that he may join the Jews and Gentiles together as it were in one body, and especially may teach what duty the Gentiles owe to the Jews, he beateth this into their heads, that the nation of the Jews is not utterly cast off without hope of recovery.

are beloved for the fathers' sakes.

29 <sup>1</sup>For the gifts and calling of God are without repentance.

30 <sup>1</sup>For even as ye in times past have not believed God, yet have now obtained mercy through their unbelief:

31 Even so now have they not believed by the mercy showed unto you, that they also may obtain mercy.

32 For God hath shut up <sup>1</sup>all in unbelief, that he might have mercy on all.

33 <sup>1</sup>O the deepness of the riches, both of the wisdom, and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his <sup>2</sup>judgments, and his <sup>3</sup>ways past finding out!

34 <sup>b1</sup>For who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who was his counselor?

35 Or who hath given unto him <sup>1</sup>first, and he shall be recompensed?

36 For of him, and through him, and for <sup>1</sup>him are all things: to him be glory forever. Amen.

<sup>b</sup> Job 41:2

<sup>a</sup> Eph. 5:17
1 Thess. 4:3

Eph. 4:7

2 <sup>1</sup>And fashion not yourselves like unto this world, but be ye changed by the renewing of your <sup>2</sup>mind, that ye may <sup>4</sup>prove what that good, and acceptable and perfect will of God is.

3 <sup>1</sup>For I <sup>2</sup>say through the grace that is given unto me, to everyone that is among you, that no man <sup>3</sup>presume to understand above that which is meet to understand, but that he understand according to <sup>4</sup>sobriety, as God hath dealt to every man the <sup>b</sup>measure of <sup>5</sup>faith.

4 <sup>1</sup>For as we have many members in one body, and all members have not one office,

5 So we being many, are one body in Christ, and every one, one anothers members.

11:29 <sup>1</sup> The reason or proof: because the covenant made with that nation of life everlasting, cannot be frustrate and vain.

11:30 <sup>1</sup> Another reason, because that although that they which are hardened, are worthily punished, yet hath not this stubbornness of the Jews so come to pass properly for an hatred to that nation, but that an entry might as it were be opened to bring in the Gentiles, and afterward the Jews being inflamed with emulation of this mercy which is showed to the Gentiles, might themselves also be partakers of the same benefit, and so it might appear that both Jews and Gentiles are saved, only by the free mercy and grace of God, which could not have been so manifest, if at the beginning, God had brought all together into the Church, or if he had saved the nation of the Jews without this interruption.

11:32 <sup>1</sup> Both Jews and Gentiles.

11:33 <sup>1</sup> The Apostle crieth not as astonished with this wonderful wisdom of God, which he teacheth us, ought to be religiously revered, and not curiously and profanely to be searched beyond the compass of that that God hath revealed unto us.

11:34 <sup>1</sup> He bridleth three manner of ways, the wicked boldness of man: First, because that God is above all, most wise, and therefore it is very absurd, and plainly godless to measure him by our folly. Moreover, because he is debtor to no man, and therefore no man can complain of injury done unto him. Thirdly, because all things are made for his glory, and therefore we must refer all things to his glory, much less may we contend and debate the matter with him.

11:35 <sup>1</sup> This saying overthroweth the doctrine of foreseen works and merits.

11:36 <sup>1</sup> To wit, for God, to whose glory all things are referred, not only things that were made, but especially his new works which he worketh in his elect.

12:1 <sup>1</sup> The fourth part of this Epistle, which after the finishing of the chief points of Christian doctrine, consisteth in declaring of precepts of Christian life. And first of all he giveth general precepts and grounds: the chiefest whereof is this that every man consecrate himself wholly to the spiritual service of God, and do as it were sacrifice himself, trusting to the grace of God.

<sup>2</sup> By this preface he showeth that God's glory is the utmost end of all our doings.

<sup>3</sup> In times past the sacrifices were presented before the altar, but now the altar is everywhere.

<sup>4</sup> Yourselves: in times past, other bodies than our own, now our own must be offered.

<sup>5</sup> In times past, dead sacrifices were offered, but now we must offer such as have the spirit of life in them.

12:2 <sup>1</sup> The second precept is this, That we take not other men's opinions or manners for a rule of life, but that we wholly renouncing this world, set before us as our mark, the will of God, as it is manifested and opened unto us in his word.

<sup>2</sup> Why then there is no place left for reason, which the heathen Philosophers place as a Queen in a Castle, nor for man's free will, which the Popish Schoolmen dream on, if the mind must be renewed. See Eph. 1:18 and 2:5 and 4:17 and Col. 1:21.

12:3 <sup>1</sup> Thirdly he admonisheth us very earnestly, that every man keep himself within the bounds of his vocation, and that every man be wise according to the measure of grace that God hath given him.

<sup>3</sup> That he please not himself too much, as they do, which persuade themselves they know more than indeed they do.

<sup>4</sup> We will be sober if we take not that upon us, which we have not, and if we brag not of that we have.

<sup>5</sup> By faith he meaneth the knowledge of God in Christ, and the gifts which the holy Ghost poureth upon the faithful.

12:4 <sup>1</sup> There is a double reason of the precept going afore: the one is because God hath not committed everything to be done of every man: and therefore, he doeth backwardly, and not only unprofitably, but also to the great disprofit of others, wearieith himself and others, which passeth the bounds of his vocation: the other is, for that this diversity and inequality of vocations and gifts, redoundeth to our commodity seeing that the same is therefore instituted and appointed, that we should be bound one to another. Whereupon it followeth that no man ought to be grieved thereat, seeing that the use of every private gift is common.

6 <sup>c</sup>Seeing then that we have gifts that are divers, according to the grace that is given unto us, whether we have prophecy, let us prophesy according to the <sup>2</sup>portion of faith.

7 Or an office, let us wait on the office: or he that <sup>1</sup>teacheth, on teaching:

8 Or he that <sup>1</sup>exhorteth, on exhortation: he that <sup>2</sup>distributeth, let him do it <sup>d</sup>with simplicity: he that <sup>3</sup>ruleth, with diligence: he that <sup>4</sup>showeth mercy, with cheerfulness.

9 <sup>1</sup>Let love be without dissimulation. <sup>e</sup>Abhor that which is evil, and cleave unto that which is good.

10 <sup>f</sup>Be affectioned to love one another with brotherly love. In giving honor, go one before another.

11 Not slothful to do service, fervent in spirit <sup>1</sup>servng the Lord,

14 <sup>i</sup>Bless them which persecute you: bless, I say, and curse not.

15 Rejoice with them that rejoice, and weep with them that weep.

16 Be like affectioned one towards another: <sup>k</sup>be not high-minded: but make yourselves equal to them of the <sup>1</sup>lower sort: be not <sup>2</sup>wise in yourselves.

17 <sup>1</sup>Recompense to no man evil for evil: procure things honest in the sight of all men.

18 <sup>m</sup>If it be possible, as much as in you is, have peace with all men.

19 Dearly beloved, <sup>n</sup>avenge not yourselves, but give place unto wrath: for it is written, <sup>o</sup>Vengeance is mine: I will repay, saith the Lord.

20 <sup>p</sup>Therefore if thine enemy hunger, feed him: if he thirst, give him drink: for in so doing thou shalt heap <sup>1</sup>coals of fire on his head.

21 Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with goodness.

13 <sup>1</sup> He willeth that we submit ourselves to Magistrates: <sup>8</sup> To love our neighbor: <sup>13</sup> To love uprightly, <sup>14</sup> and to put on Christ.

1 Let <sup>a</sup>every <sup>2</sup>soul be subject unto the higher <sup>3</sup>powers: <sup>4</sup>for there is no power but of God: and the powers that be, are <sup>5</sup>ordained of God.

2 Whosoever therefore resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God: and they that resist, shall receive to themselves condemnation.

3 <sup>1</sup>For Magistrates are not to be feared for good works, but for evil. <sup>2</sup>Wilt thou then be without fear

12:6 <sup>1</sup> That which he spake before in general, he applieth particularly to the holy functions, wherein men offend with greater danger. And he divideth them into two sorts, to wit, into Prophets, and Deacons, and again he divideth the Prophets into doctors, and Pastors. And of Deacons he maketh three sorts: to wit, the one to be such as are (as it were) treasurers of the Church coffers, whom he calleth properly Deacons: the other to be the governors of discipline, who are called Seniors or Elders: the third to be such as properly served in the help of the poor, of which sort the company of widows were.

12:7 <sup>1</sup> Whose office only is to expound the Scriptures.

12:8 <sup>1</sup> Who in other places is called the Pastor.

12:9 <sup>1</sup> Now he cometh to the duties of the second Table, which he deriveth from charity, which is as it were the fountain of them all. And he defineth Christian charity by sincerity, hatred of evil, earnest study of good things, good affection to help our neighbor, and whose final end is, the glory of God.

12:11 <sup>1</sup> This piece is well put in, for it maketh difference between Christian duties, and Philosophical duties.

12:12 <sup>1</sup> He reckoneth up divers other virtues together with their effects, to wit, hope, patience in tribulation, equanimity, continuance in prayer, liberality towards the saints, hospitality, moderation of mind, even in helping our enemies, a selfsame feeling with others as well in adversity as prosperity, modesty, endeavor to maintain honest concord so nigh as we may with all men, which cannot be extinguished by any man's injuries.

12:13 <sup>1</sup> A true rule of charity, when we are no less touched with other men's wants, than with our own, and having that feeling, help them as much as we can.

12:16 <sup>1</sup> There is nothing that doth so much break concord as ambition, when as every man loatheth a base estate, and seeketh ambitiously to be aloft.

12:20 <sup>1</sup> After this sort doth Solomon point out the wrath of God which hangeth over a man.

13:1 <sup>1</sup> Now he showeth severally, what subjects owe to their Magistrates, to wit, obedience: From which he showeth that no man is free: and in such sort that it is not only due to the highest Magistrate himself, but also even to the basest, which hath any office under him.

<sup>2</sup> Yea, though an Apostle, though an Evangelist, though a Prophet: Chrysostom. Therefore the tyranny of the Pope over all kingdoms must down to the ground.

<sup>3</sup> A reason taken of the nature of the thing itself: For to what purpose are they placed in higher degree, but that the inferior should be subject unto them?

<sup>4</sup> Another argument of great force: Because God is author of this order: so that such as are rebels ought to know, that they make war with God himself: wherefore they cannot but purchase to themselves great misery and calamity.

13:3 <sup>1</sup> The third argument taken from the end wherefore they were made, which is most profitable: for that God by this means preserveth the good and bridleth the wicked: by which words the Magistrates themselves are put in mind of that duty which they owe to their subjects.

<sup>2</sup> An excellent way to bear this yoke, not only without grief, but also with great profit.

of the power? do well: so shalt thou have praise of the same.

4 For he is the minister of God for thy wealth: <sup>1</sup>but if thou do evil, fear: for he beareth not the sword for nought: for he is the minister of God to <sup>2</sup>take vengeance on him that doeth evil.

5 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore ye must be subject, not because of wrath only, but <sup>2</sup>also for conscience sake.

6 <sup>1</sup>For, for this cause ye pay also tribute: for they are God's ministers, applying themselves for the same thing.

7 <sup>1</sup>Give to all men therefore their duty: tribute, to whom ye owe tribute: custom, to whom custom: fear, to whom <sup>1</sup>fear: honor, to whom ye owe <sup>2</sup>honor.

8 <sup>1</sup>Owe nothing to any man, but to love one another: <sup>2</sup>for he that loveth another, hath fulfilled the <sup>3</sup>Law.

10 Love doeth not evil to his neighbor: therefore is love the <sup>1</sup>fulfilling of the Law.

11 <sup>1</sup>And that, considering the season, that it is now time that we should arise from sleep: for now is our salvation nearer, than when we believed it.

12 The night is past, and the day is <sup>1</sup>at hand, let us therefore cast away the works <sup>2</sup>of darkness, and let us put on the armor of light,

13 So that we walk honestly, as in the day: not in <sup>1</sup>gluttony, and drunkenness, neither in chambering and wantonness, nor in strife and envying.

14 <sup>1</sup>But <sup>1</sup>put ye on the Lord JESUS CHRIST, and take no thought for the flesh, to <sup>2</sup>fulfill the lust of it.

1 Him <sup>1</sup>that is weak in the faith, <sup>2</sup>receive unto you, but not for <sup>3</sup>controversies of disputations.

2 <sup>1</sup>One <sup>2</sup>believeth that he may eat of all things: and another, which is weak, eateth herbs.

3 <sup>1</sup>Let not him that eateth, despise him that eateth not: and let not him which eateth not, condemn him that eateth: for <sup>2</sup>God hath received him.

4 <sup>a</sup>1 Who art thou that condemnest another man's servant? he standeth or falleth to his own master:

13:4 <sup>1</sup> God hath armed the Magistrate even with a revenging sword.

13:5 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion: We must obey the magistrate, not only for fear of punishment, but much more because that (although the Magistrate have no power over the conscience of man, yet seeing he is God's minister) he cannot be resisteth by any good conscience.

<sup>2</sup> So far as lawfully we may: for if unlawful things be commanded us, we must answer as Peter teacheth us, It is better to obey God than men.

13:6 <sup>1</sup> He reckoneth up the chiefest things wherein consisteth the obedience of subjects.

13:7 <sup>1</sup> Obedience, and that from the heart.

13:8 <sup>1</sup> He showeth how very few judgments need to be executed, to wit, if we so order our life, as no man may justly require anything of us, besides that only that we owe one to another, by the perpetual law of charity.

13:9 <sup>1</sup> For the whole Law commandeth nothing else, but that we love God and our neighbor. But seeing Paul speaketh here of the duties we owe one to another, we must restrain this word, Law to the second Table.

13:11 <sup>1</sup> An application taken of the circumstance of the time: which also itself putteth us in mind of our duty, seeing that this remaineth after that the darkness of ignorance and wicked affections by the knowledge of God's truth be driven out of us, that we order our life according to that certain and sure rule of all righteousness and honesty, being fully grounded upon the virtue of the Spirit of Christ.

13:12 <sup>1</sup> In other places we are said to be in the light, but yet so, that it appeareth not as yet what we are, for as yet we see but as it were in the twilight.

13:14 <sup>1</sup> To put on Christ, is to possess Christ, to have him in us, and us in him.

14:1 <sup>1</sup> Now he showeth how we ought to behave ourselves toward our brethren in matters and things indifferent, offending in the use of them, not of malices or damnable superstition, but for lack of knowledge of the benefit of Christ. And thus he teacheth that they are to be instructed gently and patiently, and so that we apply ourselves to their ignorance in such matters according to the rule of charity.

<sup>2</sup> Do not for a matter or thing that is indifferent, and such as you may do or not do, shun his company, but take him to you.

<sup>3</sup> To make him by your doubtful and uncertain disputations go away more in doubt than he came, or start back with a troubled conscience.

14:2 <sup>1</sup> He propoundeth for an example, the difference of meats, which some thought was necessarily to be observed as a thing prescribed by the Law (not knowing that it was taken away) whereas on the contrary side, such as had profited in the knowledge of the Gospel, knew well that this schoolmastership of the Law was abolished.

14:3 <sup>1</sup> In such a matter, saith the Apostle, Let neither them which know their liberty, proudly despise their weaker brother, neither let the unlearned crabbedly or frowardly condemn that, that they understand not.

<sup>2</sup> The first reason: Because that seeing both he that eateth and he that eateth not, is notwithstanding the member of Christ, neither he which eateth not, can justly be condemned, neither he which eateth be justly condemned: Now the first proposition is declared in the sixth verse following.

14:4 <sup>1</sup> Another reason which hangeth upon the former: why the ruder and more unlearned ought not to be contemned of the more skillful, as men without hope of salvation: Because, saith the Apostle, he that is ignorant today, may be ended tomorrow with further knowledge, so that he also may stand sure: Therefore it belongeth to God, and not unto man, to pronounce the sentence of condemnation.

yea, he shall be established: for God is able to make him stand.

7 <sup>1</sup>For none of us liveth to <sup>2</sup>himself, neither doth any die to himself.

8 For whether we live, we live unto the Lord: or whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live therefore, or die, we are the Lords.

9 For Christ therefore died and rose again, and revived, that he might be Lord both of the dead and the quick.

10 <sup>1</sup>But why dost thou condemn thy brother? or

why dost thou despise thy brother? <sup>b</sup>for we shall all appear before the judgment seat of Christ.

11 For it is written, <sup>1</sup>I <sup>1</sup>live, saith the Lord, and every knee shall bow to me, and all tongues shall <sup>2</sup>confess unto God.

12 So then everyone of us shall give accounts of himself to God.

13 <sup>1</sup>Let us not therefore judge one another anymore: but use your judgment rather in <sup>2</sup>this that no man put an occasion to fall, or a stumbling block before his brother.

14 <sup>1</sup>I know, and am persuaded through the <sup>2</sup>Lord Jesus, that there is nothing unclean of <sup>3</sup>itself: but unto him that judgeth anything to be unclean, to him it is unclean.

15 But if thy brother be grieved for the meat, now walkest thou not charitably: <sup>d,1</sup>destroy not him with thy meat, for whom <sup>2</sup>Christ died.

14:5 <sup>1</sup> Another example of the difference of days according to the law.

<sup>2</sup> He setteth against this contempt, and hasty or rash judgments, a continual desire to profit, that the strong may be certainly persuaded of their liberty, of what manner and sort it is, and how they ought to use it: and again the weak may daily profit, lest either they abuse the gift of God, or these please themselves in their infirmity.

<sup>3</sup> That he may say in his conscience, that he knoweth and is persuaded by Jesus Christ, that nothing is unclean of itself, and this persuasion must be grounded upon the word of God.

14:6 <sup>1</sup> A reason taken from the nature of indifferent things, which a man may with good conscience do and omit: for seeing that the difference of days and meats was appointed by God, how could they, which as yet understood not the abrogating of the Law, and yet otherwise acknowledged Christ as their Savior, with good conscience neglect that which they knew was commanded of God? And on the contrary side, they that knew the benefit of Christ in this behalf, did with good conscience neither observe days nor meats. Therefore saith the Apostle, verse 10, Let not the strong condemn the weak for these things, seeing that the weak brethren are brethren notwithstanding. Now if any man would draw this doctrine to these our times and ages, let them know that the Apostle speaketh of such things indifferent, as they which thought them not to be indifferent, had a ground in the Law, and were deceived by simple ignorance: and not of malice (for to such the Apostles yielded not, no not for a moment) nor superstition, but of a religious fear of God.

<sup>3</sup> God shall judge whether he do well or no: And therefore you should rather strive about this, how every one of you will be allowed of God, than to think upon other men's doings.

<sup>5</sup> So the Apostle showeth that he speaketh of the faithful, both strong and weak. But what if we have to do with infidels? Then must we here take heed of two things, as also is declared in the Epistle to the Corinthians. The one is, that we count not their superstitions among things indifferent, as they did which sat down to meat in Idols' Temples: the other is, that then also when the matter is indifferent (as to buy a thing offered to idols, in the butcher's shambles, and to eat it at home in a private banquet) we wound not the conscience of our weak brother.

14:7 <sup>1</sup> We must not stick, saith he, in the meat itself, but in the use of the meat, so that he is justly to be reprehended that liveth so, that he casteth not his eyes upon God. For both our life and our death is dedicated to him, and for this cause Christ hath properly died, and not simply, that we might eat this meat or that.

<sup>2</sup> Hath respect to himself only, which the Hebrews utter after this sort, Doeth well to his own soul.

14:10 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion: we must leave to God his right: and therefore in matters, which according as the conscience if affected, are either good or evil, the strong must not despise their weak brethren, much less condemn them. But this consequent cannot be taken of equal force in the contrary, to wit, that the weak should not judge the strong, because the weak do not know, that they which do not observe a day, and eat, observe it not to the Lord, and eat to the Lord, as the strong men know, that the weak which observe a day and eat not, observe the day to the Lord, and eat not to the Lord.

14:11 <sup>1</sup> This is a form of an oath, proper to God only, for he and none but he liveth, and hath his being of himself.

14:13 <sup>1</sup> After that he hath concluded what is to be done, he showeth what is to be done: to wit, we must take heed that we do not utterly cast down with abusing our liberty, our brother who is not yet strong.

14:14 <sup>1</sup> The preventing of an objection: It is true that the schoolmastership of the Law is taken away by the benefit of Christ, to such as know it, but yet notwithstanding we have to consider in the use of this liberty what is expedient, that we may have regard of our weak brother, seeing that our liberty is not lost thereby.

14:15 <sup>1</sup> It is the part of a cruel mind to make more account of meat, than of our brother's salvation. Which thing they do, that presume to eat with offense of any brother, and so give him occasion to go back from the Gospel.

16 <sup>1</sup>Cause not your commodity to be evil spoken of.

17 <sup>1</sup>For the kingdom of God, is not meat nor drink, but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the holy Ghost.

18 For whosoever in <sup>1</sup>these things serveth Christ, is acceptable unto God, and is approved of men.

19 <sup>1</sup>Let us then follow those things which concern peace, and wherewith one may edify another.

20 Destroy not the work of God for meat's sake: <sup>1</sup>all things indeed are pure: but it is evil for the man which eateth with offense.

21 <sup>1</sup>It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or made weak.

22 <sup>1</sup>Hast thou <sup>2</sup>faith? have it with thyself before God: blessed is he that condemneth not himself in that thing which he <sup>3</sup>alloweth.

23 For he that <sup>1</sup>doubteth, is condemned if he eat, because he eateth not of faith: and whatsoever is not of faith, is sin.

1 We <sup>1</sup>which are strong, ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to <sup>2</sup>please ourselves.

2 Therefore let every man please his neighbor in that that is <sup>1</sup>good to edification.

3 <sup>1</sup>For Christ also would not please himself, but as it is written, <sup>4</sup>The rebukes of them which rebuke thee, fell on me.

4 <sup>1</sup>For whatsoever things are written <sup>2</sup>aforettime, are written for our learning, that we through patience, and comfort of the <sup>3</sup>Scriptures might have hope.

5 <sup>1</sup>Now the God of patience and consolation give you that ye be <sup>6</sup>like-minded one towards another, according to Christ Jesus,

6 That ye with one mind, and with one mouth may praise God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

7 Wherefore receive ye one another, as Christ also <sup>1</sup>received us to the glory of God.

9 <sup>1</sup>And let the Gentiles praise God, for his mercy, as it is written, <sup>4</sup>For this cause I will <sup>2</sup>confess thee among the Gentiles, and sing unto thy Name.

11 And again, <sup>4</sup>Praise the Lord, all ye Gentiles, and laud ye him all people together.

12 And again Isaiah saith, <sup>7</sup>There shall be a root of Jesse, and he that shall rise to reign over the Gentiles, in him shall the Gentiles trust.

13 <sup>1</sup>Now the God of <sup>2</sup>hope fill you with <sup>3</sup>all joy, 14:16 <sup>1</sup> Another argument: for that by this means the liberty of the Gospel is evil spoken of, as though it openeth the way to attempt any thing whatsoever, and boldeneth us to all things.

14:17 <sup>1</sup> A general reason, and the ground of all the other arguments: The kingdom of heaven consisteth not in these outward things, but in the study of righteousness, and peace, and comfort of the holy Ghost.

14:18 <sup>1</sup> He that liveth peaceably, and doeth righteously, through the holy Ghost.

14:19 <sup>1</sup> A general conclusion: The use of this liberty, yea and our whole life, ought to be referred to the edifying of one another, inso-much that we esteem that thing unlawful by reason of the offense of our brother, which is of itself pure and lawful.

14:22 <sup>1</sup> He giveth a double warning in these matters, one, which pertaineth to the strong, that he which hath obtained a sure knowledge of this liberty, keep that treasure to the end he may use it wisely and profitably as hath been said: the other which respecteth the weak, that they do nothing rashly by other men's example with a wavering conscience, for that cannot be done without sin, whereof we are not persuaded by the word of God, that he liketh, and approveth it.

15:1 <sup>1</sup> Now the Apostle reasoneth generally of tolerating or bearing with the weak by all means, so far forth as may be for their profit.

15:3 <sup>1</sup> A confirmation taken of the example of Christ, who suffered all things to bring not only the weak, but also his most cruel enemies, overcoming them with patience, to his Father.

15:4 <sup>1</sup> The preventing of an objection: Such things as are cited out of the examples of the ancients, are propounded unto us to this end and purpose, that according to the example of our Fathers, we should in patience and hope bear one with another.

15:5 <sup>1</sup> We must take an example of patience, of God that both the weak and the strong serving God with a mutual consent, may bring one another to God, as Christ also received us unto himself, although we were never so unworthy.

15:7 <sup>1</sup> He did not disdain us, but received us of his own accord, to make us partakers of God's glory.

15:8 <sup>1</sup> An applying of the example of Christ to the Jews, whom he vouchsafed this honor for the promises which he made unto their fathers, although they were never so unworthy, that he executed the office of a minister amongst them with marvellous patience. Therefore much less ought the Gentiles despise them for certain faults, whom the Son of God so much esteemed.

and peace in believing, that ye may abound in hope, through the power of the holy Ghost.

14 <sup>1</sup>And I myself also am persuaded of you, my brethren, that <sup>2</sup>ye also are full of goodness, and filled with all knowledge, and are able to admonish one another.

15 Nevertheless, brethren, I have somewhat boldly after a sort written unto you, as one that putteth you in remembrance, through the grace that is given me of God,

16 That I should be the minister of Jesus Christ toward the Gentiles, ministering the Gospel of God, that the <sup>1</sup>offering up of the Gentiles might be acceptable, being sanctified by the holy Ghost.

17 <sup>1</sup>I have therefore whereof I may rejoice in Christ Jesus in those things which pertain to God.

18 For I dare not speak of anything, which <sup>1</sup>Christ hath not wrought by me, to make the Gentiles obedient in word and deed, 19 With the <sup>1</sup>power of signs and wonders, by the power of the spirit of God: so that from Jerusalem, and round about unto Illyricum, I have caused to abound the Gospel of Christ.

20 Yea, so I enforced myself to preach the Gospel, not where Christ was named, lest I should have built on another man's foundation.

21 But as it is written,<sup>g</sup>To whom he was not spoken of, they shall see him, and they that heard not, shall understand him.

22 <sup>h,1</sup>Therefore also I have been oft let to come unto you:

23 But now seeing I have no more place in these quarters, and also have <sup>1</sup>been desirous many years ago to come unto you,

24 When I shall take my journey into Spain, I will come to you: for I trust to see you in my journey, and to be brought on my way thitherward by you, after that I have been somewhat filled with your company.

25 But now go I to Jerusalem, to <sup>1</sup>minister unto the Saints.

26 For it hath pleased them of Macedonia and Achaia, to make a certain distribution unto the poor Saints which are at Jerusalem.

27 <sup>1</sup>For it hath pleased them, and their debtors are they: <sup>4</sup>for if the Gentiles be made partakers of their spiritual things, their duty is also to <sup>2</sup>minister unto them in carnal things.

28 When I have therefore performed this, and have <sup>1</sup>sealed them this <sup>2</sup>fruit, I will pass by you into Spain.

29 <sup>1</sup>And I know when I come, that I shall come to you with abundance of the blessing of the Gospel of Christ.

30 Also brethren, I beseech you for our Lord Jesus Christ's sake, and for the <sup>1</sup>love of the spirit, that ye would strive with me by prayers to God for me,

31 That I may be delivered from them which are disobedient in Judea, and that my service which I have to do at Jerusalem, may be accepted of the Saints, 32 That I may come unto you with joy by the will of God, and may with you be refreshed.

33 Thus the God of peace be with you all. Amen.

16 <sup>1</sup>He commendeth Phoebe. <sup>3</sup>He sendeth greeting to many. <sup>17</sup>And warneth to beware of them which are the causes of division.

15:14 <sup>1</sup>The conclusion of the Epistle, wherein he first excuseth himself, that he hath written somewhat at large unto them, rather to warn them, than to teach them, and that of necessity, by reason of his vocation, which bindeth him peculiarly to the Gentiles.

15:16 <sup>1</sup>By the offering up of the Gentiles, he meaneth the Gentiles themselves, whom he offered to God as a sacrifice.

15:17 <sup>1</sup>He commendeth his Apostleship highly by the effects, but yet so that moreover and besides that he speaketh all things truly, he giveth all the glory to God as the only author: and doth not properly respect himself, but this rather: that men might less doubt of the truth of the doctrine which he propoundeth unto them.

15:18 <sup>1</sup>Christ was so with me in all things, and by all means, that if I would never so fain, yet I cannot say, what he hath done by me to bring the Gentiles to obey the Gospel.

15:19 <sup>1</sup>In the first place this word, Power, signifieth the force, and working of the wonders in piercing men's minds: and in the latter, it signifieth God's mighty power which was the worker of those wonders.

15:22 <sup>1</sup>He writeth at large to the Romans, and that familiarly, his singular good will towards them, and the state of his affairs, but so, that he swerveth not an iota from the end of Apostolical doctrine: for he declareth nothing but that which appertaineth to his office, and is godly: and commending by a little digression as it were, the liberality of the Churches of Macedonia, he provoketh them modestly to follow their godly deed.

15:25 <sup>1</sup>Doing, his duty for the Saints, to carry them that money which was gathered for their use.

15:27 <sup>1</sup>Alms are voluntary, but yet such as we owe by the law of charity. <sup>2</sup>To serve the turns.

15:28 <sup>1</sup>Performed it faithfully, and sealed it as it were with my ring.

<sup>2</sup>This money which was gathered for the use of the poor: which alms is very fitly called fruit.

15:29 <sup>1</sup>He promiseth them through the blessing of God, not to come empty unto them: and requiring of them the duty of prayers, he sheweth what thing we ought chiefly to rest upon in all difficulties and adversities.

15:30 <sup>1</sup>For that mutual communion, wherewith the holy Ghost hath tied our hearts and minds together.

16:1 <sup>1</sup>Having made an end of the whole disputation, he cometh now to familiar commendations and salutations, and that to good consideration and purpose, to wit, that the Romans might know, who are most to be honored and made account of amongst them, and also whom they ought to set before them to follow: and therefore he attributeth unto every of them peculiar and singular testimonies.

6 Greet Mary which bestowed much labor on us.

7 Salute Andronicus and Junia my cousins and fellow prisoners, which are notable among the Apostles, and were in <sup>1</sup>Christ before me.

8 Greet Amplias my beloved in the Lord.

9 Salute Urbanus our fellow helper in Christ, and Stachys my beloved.

10 Salute Apelles approved in Christ. Salute them which are of Aristobulus' friends.

11 Salute Herodion my kinsman. Greet them which are of the friends of Narcissus which are in the Lord.

12 Salute Tryphena and Tryphosa, which women labor in the Lord. Salute the beloved Persis, which woman hath labored much in the Lord.

13 Salute Rufus chosen in the Lord, and his mother and mine.

14 Greet Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermas, Patrobas, Mercurius, and the brethren which are with them.

15 Salute Philologus and Julia, Nereus, and his sister, and Olympas and all the Saints which are with them.

7 So that ye are not destitute of any gift: <sup>d,1</sup>waiting for the <sup>2</sup>appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ.

10 <sup>1</sup>Now I beseech you, brethren, by the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that <sup>2</sup>ye all speak one thing, and that there be no dissensions among you: but be ye <sup>3</sup>knit together in one mind, and in one judgment.

11 <sup>1</sup>For it hath been declared unto me, my brethren, of you by them that are of the house of Chloe, that

1:1 <sup>1</sup> The inscription of the Epistle, wherein he chiefly goeth about to procure the good will of the Corinthians towards him, yet notwithstanding so, that always he letteth them to wit, that he is the servant of God, and not of men.

<sup>2</sup> If he be an Apostle, then he must be heard, although he sometimes reprehend them sharply, seeing he hath not his own cause in hand, but is a messenger that bringeth the commandments of Christ.

<sup>3</sup> He joineth Sosthenes with himself, that this doctrine might be confirmed by two witnesses.

1:2 <sup>1</sup> It is a Church of God, although it hath great faults in it, so that it obey them which admonish it.

<sup>3</sup> The father sanctifieth us, that is to say, separateth us from the wicked, in giving us to his Son, that he may be in us, and we in him.

<sup>4</sup> Whom God of his gracious goodness and mere love hath separated for himself: or whom God hath called to holiness: the first of these two expositions showeth from whence our sanctification cometh, and the second showeth to what end it tendeth.

<sup>5</sup> He is said properly to call on God, who crieth unto the Lord when he is in danger, and craveth help at his hands: and by the figure Synecdoche it is taken for all the service of God: and therefore to call upon Christ's Name, is to acknowledge and take him for very God.

1:3 <sup>1</sup> The foundation and the life of the Church, is Christ Jesus given of the Father.

1:4 <sup>1</sup> Going about to condemn many vices, he beginneth with a true commendation of their virtues, lest he might seem after to descend to chiding being moved with malice or envy: yet so, that he referreth all to God as the author of them, and that in Christ. That the Corinthians might be more ashamed to profane and abuse the holy gifts of God.

1:5 <sup>1</sup> He toucheth that by name, which they most abused.

<sup>2</sup> Seeing that while we live here, we know but in part and prophesy in part, this word (All) must be refrained to the present state of the faithful: and by speech he meaneth not a vain kind of babbling, but the gift of holy eloquence, which the Corinthians abused.

1:6 <sup>1</sup> He showeth that the true use of these gifts consisteth herein that the mighty power of Christ might thereby be set forth in them, that hereafter it might evidently appear how wickedly they abused them to glory and ambition.

1:7 <sup>1</sup> He saith by the way, that there is no cause why they should please themselves so much in those gifts which they had received, seeing that those were nothing in comparison of them which are to be looked for.

1:8 <sup>1</sup> He testifieth that he hopeth well of them hereafter, that they may more patiently abide his reprehension afterward. And yet together therewithall showeth, that as well the beginning as the accomplishing of our salvation is only the work of God.

<sup>2</sup> He calleth them blameless, not whom man never found fault with, but with whom no man can justly find fault, that is to say, them which are in Christ Jesus, in whom there is no condemnation. See Luke 1:6.

1:9 <sup>1</sup> True and constant, who doth not only call us, but giveth us the gift of perseverance also.

1:10 <sup>1</sup> Having made an end of the preface, he cometh to the matter itself, beginning with the most grave obtestation, as though they should hear Christ himself speaking and not Paul.

<sup>2</sup> The first part of this Epistle, wherein his purpose is to call back the Corinthians to brotherly concord, and to take away all occasion of discord. So then this first part concerneth the taking away of schisms. Now a schism is when men which otherwise agree and consent together in doctrine, do yet separate themselves one from another.

<sup>3</sup> Knit together, as a body that consisteth of all his parts fitly knit together.

1:11 <sup>1</sup> He beginneth his reprehension and chiding by taking away of there are contentions among you.

12 Now <sup>1</sup>this I say, that every one of you saith, I am Paul's, and I am <sup>2</sup>Apollos's, and I am Cephas's and I am Christ's.

13 <sup>1</sup>Is Christ divided? was <sup>2</sup>Paul crucified for you? either were ye <sup>3</sup>baptized into the name of Paul?

14 <sup>1</sup>I thank God, that I baptized none of you, but <sup>b</sup>Crispus, and Gaius, 15 Lest any should say, that I had baptized into mine own name.

16 I baptized also the household of Stephanas: furthermore know I not, whether I baptized any other.

17 <sup>1</sup>For CHRIST sent me not to baptize, but to preach the Gospel, <sup>2</sup>not with <sup>3</sup>wisdom of words, lest the <sup>4</sup>cross of Christ should be made of none effect.

18 For that <sup>1</sup>preaching of the cross is to them that perish, foolishness: but unto us, which are saved, it is the <sup>2</sup>power of God.

19 <sup>1</sup>For it is written, <sup>k</sup>I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and will cast away the understanding of the prudent.

20 Where is the wise? where is the <sup>1</sup>Scribe? where is the <sup>2</sup>disputer of this world? hath not God made the wisdom of this world foolishness?

21 <sup>1</sup>For seeing the <sup>2</sup>world by wisdom knew not God in the <sup>3</sup>wisdom of GOD, <sup>4</sup>it pleased God by the an objection: for that be understood by good witnesses, that there were many factions among them. And therewithall he openeth the cause of dissensions, because that some did hang on one doctor, some on another, and some were so addicted to themselves, that they neglected all doctors and teachers, calling themselves the disciples of Christ only, shutting forth their teachers.

1:12 <sup>1</sup>The matter I would say to you, is this.

1:13 <sup>1</sup>The first reason why schisms ought to be eschewed: because Christ formeth by that means, to be divided and torn in pieces, who cannot be the head of two divers and disagreeing bodies, being himself one.

<sup>2</sup>Another reason: Because they cannot without great injury to God so hang of men as of Christ: which thing no doubt they do, which allow whatsoever some man speaketh, even for his person's sake: as these men allowed one selfsame Gospel being uttered of one man, and did loathe it being uttered of another man. So that these factions were called by the names of their teachers. Now Paul setteth down his own name not only to grieve no man, but also to showeth it he pleadeth not his own cause.

<sup>3</sup>The third reason taken of the form and end of Baptism, wherein we make a promise to Christ, calling on also the Name of the Father and the holy Ghost. Therefore although a man does not fall from the doctrine of Christ, yet if he hang upon some certain teachers, and despise others, he forsaketh Christ: for if he hold Christ his only master, he would hear him, teaching by whomsoever.

1:14 <sup>1</sup>He protesteth that he speaketh so much the more boldly of these things, because that through God's providence he is void of all suspicion of challenging disciples unto himself, and taking them from others. Whereby we may understand that not the scholars only, but the teachers also are here reprehended, which gathered themselves flocks apart.

1:17 <sup>1</sup>The taking away of an objection: that he gave not himself to baptize many amongst them: not for the contempt of Baptism, but because he was chiefly occupied in delivering the doctrine, and committed them that received his doctrine to others to be baptized, whereof he had store. And so he declared sufficiently how far he was from all ambition: whereas on the other side they whom he reprehendeth, as though they gathered disciples unto themselves and not to Christ, bragged most ambitiously of numbers, which they had baptized.

<sup>2</sup>Now he turneth himself to the doctors themselves, which pleased themselves in brave and ambitious eloquence, to the end that they might draw more disciples after them. He confesseth plainly that he was unlike unto them, opposing gravely as it became an Apostle, his example against their perverse judgments: So that this is another place of this Epistle, touching the observing of a godly simplicity, both in words and sentences in teaching of the Gospel.

necessary, but also as flat contrary to the office of his Apostleship: and yet had Paul his kind of eloquence, but it was heavenly, not of man, and void of painted words.

<sup>4</sup>The reason why he used not the pomp of words and painted speech: because it was God's will to bring the world to his obedience by that way, whereby the most idiots amongst men might understand, that this work was done of God himself without the art of man. Therefore as salvation is set forth unto us in the Gospel by the cross of Christ, then which nothing is more contemptible, and more far from life, so God would have the manner of the preaching of the cross most different from those means, with which men do use to draw and entice others, either to hear or believe: therefore it pleased him by a certain kind of most wise folly, to triumph over the most foolish wisdom of the world, as he had said before by Isaiah: that he would. And hereby this we may gather, that both those doctors which were puffed up with ambitious eloquence, and also their hearers strayed far away from the end and mark of their vocation.

1:18 <sup>1</sup>The preaching of Christ crucified, or the kinds of speech which we use.

<sup>2</sup>It is that wherein he declareth his marvelous power in saving his elect, which would not so evidently appear, if it hanged upon any help of man: for so man might attribute that to himself, which is proper only to the cross of Christ.

1:19 <sup>1</sup>The Apostle proveth that this ought not only not to seem strange, seeing that it was foretold so long before, but declareth further, that God is wont to punish the pride of the world in such sort, which so pleaseth itself in its own wisdom: and therefore that that is vain, yea a thing of nothing, and such as God rejecteth as unprofitable, which they so carefully labored for, and made so great account of.

1:20 <sup>1</sup>Where art thou, O thou learned fellow, and thou that spendest thy days in turning thy books?

<sup>2</sup>Thou that spendest all thy time in seeking out the secret things of this world, and in expounding all hard questions: and thus triumphest he against all the men of this world, for there was not one of them that could so much as dream upon this secret and hidden mystery.

1:21 <sup>1</sup>He showeth that the pride of men was worthily punished of GOD, because they would not behold God, as meet was they should; in the most clear glass of the wisdom of the world, which is the workmanship of the world.

<sup>2</sup>By the world he meaneth all men which are not born anew, but remain as they were, when they were first born.

<sup>3</sup>In the workmanship of this world, which hath the marvelous wisdom of God engraved in it, so that every man may behold it.

<sup>4</sup>The goodness of God is wonderful, for while he goeth about to punish the pride of the world, he is very provident and careful, for the salvation of it, and teacheth men to become fools, that they may be wise to God.

22 <sup>1</sup>Seeing also that the Jews require a sign, and the Grecians seek after wisdom.

23 But we preach Christ crucified: unto the Jews, even a stumbling block, and unto the Grecians, foolishness:

24 But unto them which are called, both of the Jews and Grecians, we preach Christ, the power of God, and the wisdom of God.

25 For the foolishness of God is wiser than men, and the weakness of God is stronger than men.

26 <sup>1</sup>For brethren, you see your <sup>2</sup>calling, how that not many wise men <sup>3</sup>after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble are called.

27 But God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise, and God hath chosen the weak things of the world, to confound the mighty things, 28 And vile things of the world, and things which are despised, hath God chosen, and things which <sup>1</sup>are not, to bring to <sup>2</sup>nought things that are.

29 That no <sup>1</sup>flesh should rejoice in his presence.

30 But ye are <sup>1</sup>of him in Christ Jesus, <sup>2</sup>who of

2 <sup>1</sup>He setteth down a platform of his preaching, <sup>4</sup>which was base in respect of man's wisdom, <sup>7, 13</sup>but noble in respect of the spiritual power and efficacy. <sup>14</sup>And so concludeth that flesh and blood cannot rightly judge thereof.

<sup>5</sup> So calleth the preaching of the Gospel as the enemies supposed it: but in the mean season he taunteth them very sharply, who had rather charge God with folly, than acknowledge their own and crave pardon for it.

1:22 <sup>1</sup> A declaration of that which he said that the preaching of the Gospel, is foolish. It is foolish, saith he, to them whom God had not endued with new light, that is to say, to all men, being considered in themselves: for the Jews require miracles, and the Greeks arguments, which they may comprehend by their wit and wisdom: and therefore they do not only not believe the Gospel, but also they mock at it. Notwithstanding in this foolish preaching, there is the great virtue and wisdom of God, but such as those only which are called, do perceive. God showing most plainly, that even then when mad men think him most foolish, he is far wiser than they are: and that he surmounteth all their might and power, when he useth most vile and abject things, as it hath appeared in the fruit of the preaching of the Gospel.

1:26 <sup>1</sup> A confirmation taken of those things which came to pass at Corinth, where the Church especially consisted of the basest and common people, insomuch that the philosophers of Greece were driven to shame, when they saw that they could do nothing with their wisdom and eloquence, in comparison of the Apostles, whom notwithstanding they called idiots and unlearned. And herewithall doth he beat down their pride, for God did not prefer them before those noble and wise men because they should be proud, but that they might be constrained even whether they would or not, to rejoice in the Lord, by whose mercy, although they were, the most object of all, they had obtained in Christ, both this wisdom, and all things necessary to salvation.

<sup>3</sup> After that kind of wisdom which men make account of, as though there were none else: who because they are carnal, know not spiritual wisdom.

1:28 <sup>1</sup> Which in man's judgment are almost nothing.

1:29 <sup>1</sup> Flesh is oft as we see, taken for the whole man: and he ruleth this word flesh, very fitly, to set the weak and miserable condition of man with the majesty of God, one against the other.

1:30 <sup>1</sup> Whom he cast down before, now he lifteth up, yea, higher then all men: yet so, that he showeth them all their worthiness is without themselves, that is, standeth in Christ, and that of God.

<sup>2</sup> He teacheth that especially and above all things, the Gospel ought not to be contemned, seeing it containeth the chief things that are to be desired, to wit, true wisdom, the true way to obtain righteousness, the true way to live honestly and godly, the true deliverance from all miseries and calamities.

1:31 <sup>1</sup> Let him yield all to God and give him thanks: and so by this place is man's free will beaten down, which the Papist so dream of.

2:1 <sup>1</sup> He returneth to 1 Cor. 1:17, that is to say, to his own example: confessing that he used not amongst them either excellency of words, or enticing speech of man's wisdom, but with great simplicity of speech, both knew and preached Jesus Christ crucified, humble and abject, as touching the flesh.

2:2 <sup>1</sup> I purposed not to profess any other knowledge, but the knowledge of Christ and him crucified.

2:3 <sup>1</sup> He setteth weakness, against excellency of words, and therefore joineith with it fear and trembling, which are the companions of true modesty, not such fear and trembling as terrify the conscience, but such as are contrary to vanity and pride.

2:4 <sup>1</sup> He turneth that now to the commendation of his ministry, which he had granted to his adversaries: for his virtue and power which they knew well enough, was so much the more excellent, because it had no worldly help joined with it.

<sup>2</sup> By plain evidence he meaneth such a proof, as is made by certain and necessary reasons.

2:5 <sup>1</sup> And he telleth the Corinthians, that he did it for their great profit, because they might thereby know manifestly, that the Gospel was from heaven. Therefore he privately rebuketh them, because that in seeking vain ostentation, they willingly deprived themselves of the greatest help of their faith.

2:6 <sup>1</sup> Another argument taken of the nature of the thing, that is, of the Gospel, which is true wisdom, but known to them only which are desirous of perfection: and is unsavory to them which otherwise excel in the world, but yet vainly and frailly.

8 <sup>1</sup>Which none of the princes of this world hath known: for had they known it, they would not have crucified the <sup>2</sup>Lord of glory.

9 <sup>1</sup>But as it is written, <sup>d</sup>The things which eye hath not seen, neither ear hath heard, neither came into <sup>2</sup>man's heart, are, which God hath prepared for them that love him.

10 <sup>1</sup>But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: for the spirit <sup>2</sup>searcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God.

J Isa. 40:13

Rom. 11:34

the <sup>2</sup>spirit of a man, which is in him? even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God.

12 Now we have receiveth not the <sup>1</sup>spirit of the world, but the Spirit, which is of God, <sup>2</sup>that we might <sup>3</sup>know the things that are given to us of God.

16 <sup>f1</sup>For who hath known the mind of the Lord,

2:6 <sup>2</sup> Those are called perfect here, not which had gotten perfection already, but such as tend to it, as Phil. 3:15, so that perfect, is set against weak.

2:7 <sup>1</sup> He showeth the cause why this wisdom cannot be perceived of those excellent worldly wits: to wit, because indeed it is so deep that they cannot attain unto it.

<sup>3</sup> He taketh away an objection: if it be so hard, when and how is it known? God, saith he, determined with himself from the beginning, that which his purpose was to bring forth at this time out of his secrets for the salvation of men.

2:8 <sup>1</sup> He taketh away another objection: why then, how cometh it to pass, that this wisdom was so rejected of men of highest authority, that they crucified Christ himself? Paul answereth: because they knew not Christ such as he was.

<sup>2</sup> That mighty God, full of true majesty and glory: Now this place hath in it a most evident proof of the divinity of Christ, and of his joining of the two natures in one, which hath this in it, that that which is proper to the manhood alone, is vouched of the Godhead joined with the manhood: which kind of speech is called of the old fathers, a making common of things belonging to someone, with other to whom they do not belong.

2:9 <sup>1</sup> Another objection: But how could it be that those witty men could not perceive this wisdom? Paul answereth: Because we preach those things which pass all man's understanding.

2:10 <sup>1</sup> A question: if it surmount the capacity of men, how can it be understood of any man, or how can you declare and preach it? by a peculiar lightening by God's Spirit, wherewith whosoever is inspired, he can enter even to the very secrets of God.

<sup>2</sup> There is nothing so secret and hidden in God, but the Spirit of God peereth into it.

2:11 <sup>1</sup> He setteth that forth by a similitude, which he spake of the inspiration of the Spirit. As the force of man's wit searcheth out things pertaining to man, so doth our mind by that power of the holy Ghost, understand heavenly things.

2:12 <sup>1</sup> The Spirit which we have received, doth not teach us things of this world, but lifteth us up to God, and this place teacheth us against the Papists, what faith is, from whence it cometh, and what force it is of.

things which God hath opened unto us of our salvation in Christ: lest that any man should separate the Spirit from the preaching of the word and Christ: or should think that those fantastical men are governed by the Spirit of God, which wandering besides the word, thrust upon us their vain imaginations for the secrets of God.

<sup>3</sup> This word (know) is taken here in his proper sense, for true knowledge, which the Spirit of God worketh in us.

2:13 <sup>1</sup> Now he returneth to his purpose, and concludeth the argument which he began verse 6, and it is thus: the words must be applied to the matter, and the matter must be set forth with words which are meet and convenient for it: now this wisdom is spiritual and not of man, and therefore it must be delivered by a spiritual kind of teaching, and not by enticing words of man's eloquence, that the simple, and yet wonderful majesty of the holy Ghost may therein appear.

<sup>2</sup> Applying the words unto the matter, to wit, that as we teach spiritual things, so [must] our kind of teaching be spiritual.

2:14 <sup>1</sup> Again he preventeth an offence or stumbling block: how cometh it to pass that so few allow these things? This is not to be marvelled at, sayeth the Apostle, seeing that men in their natural powers (as they termed them) are not endued with that faculty, whereby spiritual things are discerned (which faculty cometh another way) and therefore they accopt spiritual wisdom as folly: and it is as if he should say, It is no marvel that blind men cannot judge of colors, seeing that they lack the light of their eyes, and therefore light is to them as darkness.

<sup>4</sup> Of no man: for when the Prophets are judged of the Prophets, it is the Spirit that judges, and not the man.

2:16 <sup>1</sup> A reason of the former saying: for he is called spiritual, which hath learned that by the virtue of the Spirit, which Christ hath taught us. Now if that which we have learned of that Master, could be reproved of any man, he must needs be wiser than God: whereupon it followeth, that they are not only foolish, but also wicked, which think that they can devise something that is either more perfect, or that they can teach the wisdom of God a better way than they knew or taught, which undoubtedly, were endued with God's Spirit.

that he might <sup>2</sup>instruct him? But we have the <sup>3</sup>mind of Christ.

1 And <sup>1</sup>I could not speak unto you, brethren, as unto spiritual men, but as unto <sup>2</sup>carnal, even as unto babes in Christ.

2 I gave you milk to drink, and not <sup>1</sup>meat: for ye were not yet <sup>2</sup>able to bear it, neither yet now are ye able.

3 For ye are yet carnal: for whereas there is among you envying, and strife, and divisions, are ye not carnal, and walk as <sup>1</sup>men?

4 For when one saith, I am Paul's, and another, I am Apollos's, are ye not carnal?

Gal. 6:5

5 <sup>1</sup>Who is Paul then? and who is Apollos, but the ministers by whom ye believed, and as the Lord gave to every man?

6 <sup>1</sup>I have planted, Apollos watered, but God gave the increase.

7 So then, neither is he that planteth anything, neither he that watereth, but God that giveth the increase.

8 And he that planteth, and he that watereth, are one, <sup>a</sup>and every man shall receive his wages, according to his labor.

9 For we together are God's <sup>1</sup>laborers: ye are God's husbandry, and God's building.

10 According to the grace of God given to me, as a skillful master builder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon: <sup>1</sup>but let every man take heed how he buildeth upon it.

11 <sup>1</sup>For other foundation can no man lay, than that which is laid, which is Jesus Christ.

12 <sup>1</sup>And if any man build on this foundation, gold, silver, precious stones, timber, hay, or stubble,

<sup>3</sup> We are endued with the Spirit of Christ, who openeth unto us those secrets, which by all other means are unsearchable, and also all truth whatsoever.

3:1 <sup>1</sup> Having declared the worthiness of heavenly wisdom, and of the Gospel, and having generally condemned the blindness of man's mind, now at length he applieth it particularly to the Corinthians, calling them carnal, that is, such in whom as yet the flesh prevaileth against the spirit. And he bringeth a double testimony of it: first, for that he had proved them to be such, insomuch that he dealt with them no otherwise than with ignorant men, and such as are almost babes in the doctrine of godliness; and secondly, because they showed indeed by these dissensions, which sprang up by reason of the ignorance of the virtue of the Spirit, and heavenly wisdom, that they had profited very little or nothing.

3:2 <sup>1</sup> Substantial meat, or strong meat.

<sup>2</sup> To be fed by me with substantial meat: therefore as the Corinthians grew up in age, so the Apostle nourished them by teaching first with milk, then with strong meat, which difference was only but in the manner of teaching.

3:3 <sup>1</sup> By the square and compass of man's wit and judgment.

3:5 <sup>1</sup> After that he hath sufficiently reprehended ambitious teachers, and their foolish esteemers, now he showeth how the true ministers are to be esteemed, that we attribute not unto them, more or less than we ought to do. Therefore he teacheth us, that they are they by whom we are brought to faith and salvation, but yet as the ministers of God, and such as do nothing of themselves, but God so working by them as it pleaseth him to furnish them with his gifts. Therefore we have not to mark or consider what minister it is that speaketh, but what is spoken: and we must depend only upon him which speaketh by his servants.

3:6 <sup>1</sup> He beautifieth the former sentence, with two similitudes: first comparing the company of the faithful, to a field which God maketh fruitful, when it is sowed and watered through the labor of his servants: next, by comparing it to a house, which indeed the Lord buildeth, but by the hands of his workmen, some of whom, he useth in laying the foundation, others in building of it up. Now, both these similitudes tend to this purpose, to show that all things are wholly accomplished by God's only authority and might, so that we must only have an eye to him. Moreover, although that God useth some in the better part of the work, we must not therefore contemn others, in respect of them, and much less may we divide, or set them apart, (as these factious men did) seeing that all of them labor in God's business, and in such sort, that they serve to finish one selfsame work, although by a divers manner of working, insomuch that they need one another's help.

3:9 <sup>1</sup> Serving under him: Now they which serve under another, do nothing by their own strength, but as it is given them by grace, which grace maketh them fit to that service. See 1 Cor. 15:10; 2 Cor. 3:6, and all the increase that cometh by their labor, doth so proceed from God, that no part of the praise of it may be given to the under servant.

3:10 <sup>1</sup> Now he speaketh to the teachers themselves, who succeeded him in the Church of Corinth, and in their person, to all that were after or shall be Pastors of Congregations, seeing that they succeed into the labor of the Apostles, which were planters and chief builders. Therefore he warneth them first, that they persuade not themselves that they may build after their own fantasy, that is, that they may propound and set forth anything in the Church, either in matter, or in kind of teaching, different from the Apostles which were the chief builders.

3:11 <sup>1</sup> Moreover, he showeth what this foundation is, to wit, Christ Jesus, from which they may not turn away one iota in the building up of this building.

3:12 <sup>1</sup> Thirdly, he showeth that they must take heed that the upper part of the building be answerable to the foundation, that is, that admonitions, exhortations, and whatsoever pertaineth to the edifying of the flock, be answerable to the doctrine of Christ, as well in matter as in form: which doctrine is compared to gold, silver, and precious stones: of which matter, Isaiah also and John in the Revelation build the heavenly city. And to these are opposite, wood, hay, stubble, that is to say, curious and vain questions or decrees: and besides to be short, all that kind of teaching which serveth to ostentation. For false doctrines, whereof he speaketh not here, are not said properly to be built upon this foundation, unless peradventure in show only.

13 <sup>1</sup>Every man's work shall be made manifest: for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by the fire: and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is.

14 If any man's work, that he hath built upon, abide, he shall receive wages.

15 If any man's work burn, he shall lose, but <sup>1</sup>he shall be saved himself: nevertheless yet as it were by the fire.

16 <sup>b1</sup>Know ye not that ye are the Temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?

17 If any man <sup>1</sup>destroy the Temple of God, him shall God destroy: for the Temple of God is holy, which ye are.

18 <sup>1</sup>Let no man deceive himself: If any man among you seem to be wise in this world, let him be a fool, that he may be wise.

19 For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God: for it is written, <sup>1</sup>He <sup>1</sup>catcheth the wise in their own craftiness.

20 <sup>d</sup>And again, The Lord knoweth that the thoughts

of the wise be vain.

21 <sup>1</sup>Therefore let no man <sup>2</sup>rejoice in men: for all things are <sup>3</sup>yours.

22 Whether it be Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the <sup>1</sup>world, or life, or death, whether they be things present, or things to come, even all are yours, 23 And ye Christ's, and Christ God's.

4 <sup>1</sup> Bringing in the definition of a true Apostle, 7 he showeth that humility ought rather to be an honor than a shame unto him. 9 He bringeth in proof, whereby it may evidently appear, 10 that he neither had care of glory, 11 nor of his belly. 17 He commendeth Timothy.

1 Let <sup>1</sup>a <sup>2</sup>man so think of us, as of the ministers of Christ, and disposers of the secrets of God:

2 <sup>1</sup>And as for the rest, it is required of the disposers, that every man be found faithful.

3 <sup>1</sup>As touching me, I pass very little to be judged of you, <sup>2</sup>or of man's <sup>3</sup>judgment: no, <sup>4</sup>I judge not mine own self.

4 For I know nothing by myself, yet am I not

3:13 <sup>1</sup> He testifieth, as indeed the truth is, that all are not good builders, no not some of them which stand upon this one and only foundation: but howsoever this work of evil builders, saith he, stand for a season, yet shall it not always deceive, because that the light of the truth appearing at length, as day shall dissolve this darkness, and show what it is. And as that stuff is tried by the fire, whether it be good or not, so will God in his time by the touch of his Spirit and word, try all buildings, and so shall it come to pass, that such as be found pure and sound, shall still continue so, to the praise of the workman; but they that are otherwise, shall be consumed, and vanish away, and so shall the workman be frustrated of the hope of his labor, which pleased himself in a thing of nought.

3:15 <sup>1</sup> He taketh not away hope of salvation from the unskillful and foolish builders, which hold fast the foundation, of which sort were those Rhetoricians rather than pastors of Corinth: but he addeth an exception, that they must notwithstanding suffer this trial of their work, and also abide the loss of their vain labors.

3:16 <sup>1</sup> Continuing still in the metaphor of a building, he teacheth us that this ambition is not only vain, but also sacrilegious: For he saith that the Church is as it were the Temple of God, which God hath as it were consecrated unto himself by his Spirit. Then turning himself to these ambitious men: he showeth that they profane the Temple of God, because those vain arts wherein they please themselves so much, are as he teacheth, so many pollutions of the holy doctrine of God, and the purity of the Church. Which wickedness shall not be suffered unpunished.

3:17 <sup>1</sup> Defleth it, and maketh it unclean, being holy: and surely they do defile it, by Paul's judgment, which by fleshly eloquence defile the purity of the Gospel.

3:18 <sup>1</sup> He concludeth by the contrary, that they profess pure wisdom in the Church of God, which refuse and cast away all those vanities of men, and if they be mocked of the world, it is sufficient for them that they be wise according to the wisdom of God, and as he will have them to be wise.

3:19 <sup>1</sup> Be they never so crafty, yet the Lord will take them when he shall discover their treachery.

3:21 <sup>1</sup> He returneth to the proposition of verse 2, first warning the hearers, that henceforward they esteem not as lords, those whom

God hath appointed to be ministers, and not lords of their salvation, which thing they do, that depend upon men, and not upon God, that speaketh by them.

3:22 <sup>1</sup> He passeth from the persons to the things themselves, that his argument may be more forcible, yea, he ascendeth from Christ to the Father, to show us that we rest ourselves no not in Christ himself, in that that he is man, but because he carrieth us up even to the Father, as Christ witnesseth of himself everywhere, that he was sent of his Father, that by this band we may be all knit with God himself.

4:1 <sup>1</sup> He concludeth the duty of the hearers towards their ministers: that they esteem them not as lords: and yet notwithstanding, that they give ear unto them, as to them that are sent from Christ, sent I say to this end and purpose, that they may receive as it were at their hands, the treasure of salvation which is drawn out of the secrets of God.

4:2 <sup>1</sup> Last of all, he warneth the ministers that they also behave themselves not as lords, but as faithful servants, because they must render an account of their stewardship unto God.

4:3 <sup>1</sup> Because in reprehending others, he set himself for an example, he useth a preoccupation or preventing of an objection, and using the gratuity of an Apostle, he showeth that he careth not for the contrary judgments that they have of him, in that they esteemed him as a vile person, because he did not set forth himself as they did. And he bringeth good reasons why he was nothing moved with the judgments which they had of him.

<sup>2</sup> First, because that that which men judge in these cases of their own brains, is no more to be accounted of, than when the unlearned do judge of wisdom.

<sup>4</sup> Secondly, saith he, how can you judge how much or how little I am to be accounted of, seeing that I myself which know myself better than you do, and which dare profess that I have walked in my vocation with a good conscience, dare not yet notwithstanding challenge anything to myself? for I know that I am not unblameable, all this notwithstanding: much less therefore should I please myself as you do.

thereby justified: but he that judgeth me, is the <sup>1</sup>Lord.

5 <sup>1</sup>Therefore "judge nothing before the time, until the Lord come, who will lighten things that are hid in darkness, and make the counsels of the hearts manifest: and then shall every man have <sup>2</sup>praise of God.

6 <sup>1</sup>Now these things, brethren, I have figuratively applied unto mine own self and Apollos, for your sakes, that ye might learn <sup>2</sup>by us, that no man presume above that which is written, that one swell not against another for any man's cause.

7 <sup>1</sup>For who separateth thee? and what hast thou, that thou hast not received? if thou hast received it, why rejoicest thou, as though <sup>2</sup>thou hadst not received it?

8 <sup>1</sup>Now ye are full: now ye are made rich: ye reign as kings without us, and would to God ye did reign, that we also might reign with you.

9 For I think that God hath set forth us the last Apostles, as men appointed to death, for we are made a <sup>1</sup>gassing stock unto the world, and to the Angels, and to men.

10 We are fools for Christ's sake, and ye are wise in Christ: we are weak, and ye are strong: ye are honorable, and we are despised.

11 Unto this hour we both hunger, and thirst, and are naked, and are buffeted, and have no certain dwelling place, 12 <sup>b</sup>And labor, working with our own hands: we are reviled, and yet we bless: we are persecuted, and suffer it.

13 "We are evil spoken of, and we pray: we are made as the <sup>1</sup>filth of the world, the offscouring of all things, unto this time.

14 <sup>1</sup>I write not these things to shame you, but as my beloved children I admonish you.

15 For though ye have ten thousand instructors in Christ, yet have ye not many fathers: for in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the Gospel.

16 Wherefore, I pray you, be followers of me.

17 For this cause have I sent unto you Timothy, which is my beloved son, and faithful in the Lord, which shall put you in remembrance of my <sup>1</sup>ways in Christ as I teach everywhere in every Church.

18 <sup>1</sup>Some are puffed up as though I would not come unto you.

19 But I will come to you shortly, <sup>d</sup>if the Lord will, and I will know, not the <sup>1</sup>words of them which are puffed up, but the power.

20 For the kingdom of God is not in word, but in power.

21 <sup>1</sup>What will ye? shall I come unto you with a rod, or in love, and in the <sup>2</sup>spirit of meekness?

5 <sup>1</sup> That they have winked at him who committed incest with his mother-in-law, <sup>2</sup>, 6 he showeth should cause them rather to be ashamed, than to rejoice: <sup>10</sup> Such kind of wickedness is to be punished with excommunication, <sup>12</sup> lest others be infected with it.

1 It is heard certainly that there is fornication among you: and such fornication as is not once named among the Gentiles, that one should have his father's wife.

4:4 <sup>1</sup> I permit myself to the Lord's judgment.

4:5 <sup>1</sup> A third reason proceeding of a conclusion as it were, out of the former reasons. It is God's office, to esteem every man according to his value, because he knoweth the secrets of the heart, which men for the most part are ignorant of. Therefore this judgment pertaineth not to you.

<sup>2</sup> One could not be praised above the rest, but the other should be blamed: and he mentioneth praise rather than dispraise, for that the beginning of this sore was this, that they gave more to some men than meet was.

4:6 <sup>1</sup> Having rejected their judgment, he setteth forth himself again as a singular example of modesty, as one which concealing in this Epistle those factious teacher's names, doubted not to put down his own name and Apollos' in their place, and took upon him, as it were, their shame: so far was he from preferring himself to any.

<sup>2</sup> By our example, which chose rather to take other men's faults upon us, than to carpe any by name.

4:7 <sup>1</sup> He showeth a good means to bridle pride: first, if thou consider how rightly thou exemptest thyself out of the number of others, seeing thou art a man thyself: again, if thou consider that although thou have something more than other men have, yet thou hast it not but by God's bountifulness. And what wise man is he that will brag of another's goodness, and that against God?

<sup>2</sup> There is nothing then in us of nature, that is worthy of commendation: but all that we have, we have it of grace, which the Pelagians and half Pelagians will not confess.

4:8 <sup>1</sup> He descendeth to a most grave mock, to cause these ambitious men to blush even against their wills.

4:9 <sup>1</sup> He that will take a right view how like Paul and the Pope are, who lyingly boasteth that he is his successor, let him compare the delicates of the Popish court with Saint Paul's state, as we see it here.

4:13 <sup>1</sup> Such as by sweeping is gathered together.

4:14 <sup>1</sup> Moderating the sharpness of his mock, he putteth them in mind to remember of whom they were begotten in Christ, and that they should not doubt to follow him for an example, although he seem vile according to the outward show, in respect of others, yet mighty by the efficacy of God's Spirit, as they had trial thereof in themselves.

4:17 <sup>1</sup> What way and rule I follow everywhere in teaching the Churches.

4:18 <sup>1</sup> Last of all he descendeth also to Apostolic threatenings, but yet chiding them as a father, lest by their disorder he be constrained to come to punish some among them.

4:19 <sup>1</sup> By words, he meaneth their painted and colored kind of eloquence, against which he setteth the virtue of the Spirit.

4:21 <sup>1</sup> A passing over to another part of this Epistle, wherein he reprehended more sharply a very heinous offence, showing the use of ecclesiastical correction.

5:1 <sup>1</sup> They are greatly to be reprehended which by suffering of wickedness, set forth the Church of God to be mocked and scorned as the infidels.

2 <sup>1</sup>And ye are puffed up, and have not rather sorrowed, that he which hath done this deed, might be put from among you.

3 <sup>1</sup>For I verily as absent in body, but present in <sup>2</sup>spirit, have determined already as though I were present, that he that hath thus done this thing,

4 When ye are gathered together, and my spirit, in the <sup>1</sup>Name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that such one, I say, <sup>2</sup>by the power of our Lord Jesus Christ,

5 <sup>1</sup>Be <sup>2</sup>delivered unto Satan, for the <sup>3</sup>destruction of the flesh, that the spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord Jesus.

6 <sup>1</sup>Your rejoicing <sup>2</sup>is not good: know ye not that a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump?

7 <sup>1</sup>Purge out therefore the old leaven, that ye may be a new <sup>2</sup>lump, as ye are unleavened: for Christ our <sup>3</sup>Passover is sacrificed for us.

8 Therefore let us keep the <sup>1</sup>feast, not with old leaven, neither in the leaven of maliciousness and wickedness: but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth.

9 <sup>1</sup>I wrote unto you in an Epistle, that ye should not company together with fornicators,

10 And not <sup>1</sup>altogether with the fornicators of this world, or with the covetous, or with extortioners, or with idolaters: for then ye must go out of the world.

11 But now I have written unto you, that ye company not together: if any that is called a brother, be a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner, with such one eat not.

12 <sup>1</sup>For what have I to do to judge them also which are without? do ye not judge them that are within?

13 But God judgeth them that are without. Put away therefore from among yourselves that wicked man.

6 <sup>1</sup> He inveigheth against their contention in law matters, 6 wherewith they vexed one another under judges that were infidels, to the reproach of the Gospel, 9 and then sharply threateneth fornicators.

1 Dare <sup>1,2</sup>any of you, having business against another, be judged <sup>3</sup>under the unjust, <sup>4</sup>and not under the Saints?

2 <sup>1</sup>Do ye not know that the Saints shall judge the 5:2 <sup>1</sup> There are none more proud, than they that least know themselves.

5:3 <sup>1</sup> Excommunication ought not to be committed to one man's power, but must be done by the authority of the whole Congregation, after that the matter is diligently examined.

5:4 <sup>1</sup> Calling upon Christ his Name.

<sup>2</sup> There is no doubt but that judgment is ratified in heaven, wherein Christ himself sitteth as Judge.

5:5 <sup>1</sup> The excommunicate is delivered to the power of Satan, in that, that he is cast out of the house of God.

<sup>2</sup> What it is to be delivered to Satan, the Lord himself declareth when he saith, Let him be unto thee as an Heathen and Publican, Matt 18:17, that is to say, to be disfranchised, and put out of the right and liberty of the city of Christ, which is the Church, without which Satan is lord and master.

<sup>3</sup> The end of excommunication is not to cast away the excommunicate, that he should utterly perish, but that he may be saved, to wit, that by this means his flesh may be tamed, that he may learn to live to the Spirit.

5:6 <sup>1</sup> Another end of excommunication is, that others be not infected, and therefore it must of necessity be retained in the Church, that the one be not infected by the other.

<sup>2</sup> Is naught, and not grounded upon good reason, as though you were excellent, and yet there is such wickedness found amongst you.

5:7 <sup>1</sup> By alluding to the ceremony of the Passover, he exhorteth them to cast out that unclean person from amongst them. In times past, saith he, it was not lawful for them which did celebrate the Passover, to eat leavened bread: insomuch that he was holden as unclean and unworthy to eat the Passover, whosoever had but tasted of leaven. Now our whole life must be as it were the feast of unleavened bread, wherein all they that are partakers of that immaculate Lamb which is slain, must cast out both of themselves, and also out of their houses and Congregations all impurity.

5:8 <sup>1</sup> Let us lead our whole life, as it were a continual feast, honestly and uprightly.

5:9 <sup>1</sup> Now he speaketh more generally; and that which he spake before of the incestuous person, he showeth that it pertaineth to others, which are known to be wicked, and such as through their naughty life are a slander to the Church, which ought also by lawful order be cast out of the community of the Church. And making mention of eating meat, either he meaneth those feasts of love whereat the Supper of the Lord was received, or else their common usage and manner of life which is rightly to be taken, lest any man should think that either matrimony were broken by excommunication, or such duties hindered and cut off thereby, as we owe one to another: children to their parents, subjects to their rulers, servants to their masters, and neighbor to neighbor, to win one another to God.

5:10 <sup>1</sup> If you should utterly abstain from such men's company, you should go out of the world: therefore I speak of them which are in the very bosom of the Church, which must be called home by discipline, and not of them which are without, with whom we must labor by all means possible, to bring them to Christ.

5:12 <sup>1</sup> Such as are false brethren, ought to be cast out of the Congregation: as for them which are without, they must be left to the judgment of God.

6:1 <sup>1</sup> The third question is of civil judgments: Whether it be lawful for one faithful to draw another faithful before the judgment seat of an infidel? He answereth that it is not lawful, for offense sake, for it is not evil of itself.

<sup>2</sup> As if he said, Are ye become so impudent, that you are not ashamed to make the Gospel a laughingstock to profane men?

<sup>4</sup> He addeth that he doth not forbid that one neighbor may go to law with another, if need so require, but yet under holy judges.

6:2 <sup>1</sup> He gathereth by a comparison that the faithful cannot seek to infidels to be judged, without great injury done to the Saints, seeing that God himself will make the Saints judges of the world, and of the devils, with his Son Christ: much more ought they to judge these light and small causes: which may be by equity, and good conscience, determineth.

world? If the world then shall be judged by you, are ye unworthy to judge the smallest matters?

3 Know ye not that we shall judge the Angels? how much more things that pertain to this life?

4 <sup>1</sup>If then ye have <sup>2</sup>judgments of things pertaining to this life, set them up which are <sup>3</sup>least esteemed in the Church.

5 <sup>1</sup>I speak it to your shame. Is it so that there is not a wise man among you? no, not one, that can judge between his brethren?

6 But a brother goeth to law with a brother, and that under the infidels.

7 <sup>1</sup>Now therefore there is altogether <sup>2</sup>infirmity in you, that ye go to law one with another: <sup>a,3</sup>why rather suffer ye not wrong? why rather sustain ye not harm?

8 <sup>b</sup>Nay, ye yourselves do wrong, and do harm, and that to your brethren.

9 Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? <sup>1</sup>Be not deceived: neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor wantons, nor buggerers,

10 Nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor railers, nor extortioners shall inherit the kingdom of God.

11 And such were 'some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified, in the <sup>1</sup>Name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God.

12 ¶ <sup>d,1,2</sup>All things are lawful unto me, but all things are not profitable. I may do all things, but I will not be brought under the <sup>3</sup>power of any thing.

13 <sup>1</sup>Meats are ordained for the belly, and the belly for the meats: but God shall destroy both it, and them. Now the body is not for fornication, but for the Lord, and the Lord for the body.

14 And God hath also raised up the Lord, and 'shall raise us up by his power.

15 <sup>1</sup>Know ye not, that your bodies are the members of Christ? shall I then take the members of Christ, and make them the members of an harlot? God forbid.

16 <sup>1</sup>Do ye not know, that he which coupleth himself

6:4 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion, wherein he prescribeth a remedy for this mischief: to wit, if they end their private affairs betwixt themselves by chosen arbiters out of the Church: for which matter and purpose, the least of you, saith he, is sufficient. Therefore he condemneth not judgment seats, but showeth what is expedient for the circumstance of the time, and that without any diminishing of the right of the magistrate: for he speaketh not of judgments which are practiced between the faithful and the infidels, neither of public judgments, but of controversies which may be ended by private arbiters.

6:5 <sup>1</sup> He applieth the general proposition to a particular, always calling them back to this, to take away from them that false opinion of their own excellency, from whence all these mischiefs sprang.

6:7 <sup>1</sup> Now he goeth further also, and although by granting them private arbiters out of the Congregation of the faithful, he doth not simply condemn, but rather establish private judgments, so that they be exercised without offense, yet he showeth that if they were such as they ought to be, and as it were to be wished, they should not need to use that remedy neither.

<sup>2</sup> A weakness of mind which is said to be in them that suffer themselves to be overcome of their lusts, and it is a fault that squareth greatly from temperance and moderation, so that he nippeth them which could not put up an injury done unto them.

<sup>3</sup> This pertaineth chiefly to the other part of the reprehension, to wit, that they went to law even under infidels, whereas they should rather have suffered any loss, than to have given that offense. But yet this is generally true, that we ought rather depart from our right, than try the uttermost of the Law hastily, and upon an affection to revenge an injury. But the Corinthians cared for neither, and therefore he saith that they must repent, unless they will be shut out of the inheritance of God.

6:9 <sup>1</sup> Now he prepareth himself to pass over to the fourth treatise of this Epistle, which concerneth matters indifferent: debating this matter first, how men may well use women or not: which question hath three branches, fornication, matrimony, and a single life. As for fornication, he utterly condemneth it. And marriage he commandeth to some, as a good and necessary remedy for them, to others he leaveth it free: And others some he dissuadeth from it, not as unlawful, but as discommodious, and that not without exception. As for singleness of life (under which also I comprehend virginity) he enjoineth it to no man: yet he persuadeth men unto it, but not for itself, but for another respect, neither all men nor without exception. And being about to speak against fornication, he beginneth with a general reprehension of those vices, wherewith that rich and riotous city most abound: warning and teaching them earnestly, that repentance is unseparably joined with forgiveness of sins, and sanctification with justification.

6:11 <sup>1</sup> In Jesus.

6:12 <sup>1</sup> Secondly, he showeth that the Corinthians do simply offend in matters indifferent. First, because they abused them: next, because they used indifferent things, without any discretion, seeing the use of them ought to be brought to the rule of charity: and that he doth not use them aright, which immoderately abuseth them, and so becometh a slave unto them.

<sup>3</sup> He is in subjection to things that are indifferent, whatsoever he be that thinketh he may not be without them, which is a flattering kind of slavery under a color of liberty, which sealeth upon such men.

6:13 <sup>1</sup> Secondly, because they counted many things for indifferent which were of themselves unlawful, as fornication, which they numbered amongst mere natural and lawful desires, as well as meat and drink: Therefore the Apostle showeth, that they are utterly unlike: for meats, saith he, were made for the necessary use of man's life, which is not perpetual. For both meats, and all this manner of nourishing are quickly abolished. But we must not so think of the uncleanness of fornication, for which the body is not made, but on the contrary side is ordained to pureness, as appeareth by this, that is consecrated to Christ, even as Christ also is given us of his Father, to quicken our bodies with that virtue wherewith he also rose again.

6:15 <sup>1</sup> A declaration of the former argument by contraries, and the applying of it.

6:16 <sup>1</sup> A proof of the same argument: a harlot and Christ are clean contrary, so are the flesh and the Spirit: therefore he that is one with an harlot (which is done by carnal copulation of their bodies) cannot be one with Christ, which unity is pure and spiritual.

with an harlot, is one body?<sup>f</sup>for <sup>2</sup>two, saith he, shall be one flesh.

17 But he that is joined unto the Lord, is one spirit.

18 <sup>1</sup>Flee fornication: every sin that a man doeth, is without the body: but he that commiteth fornication, sinneth against his own body.

19 <sup>1</sup>Know ye not, that <sup>8</sup>your body is the temple of the holy Ghost, which is in you, whom ye have of God? and <sup>2</sup>ye are not your own.

20 <sup>h</sup>For ye are bought for a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit: for they are God's.

7 Entreating here of marriage, 4 which is a remedy against fornication, 10 and may not be broken, 18, 20 he willeth every man to live contented with his lot. 25 He showeth what the end of virginity should be, 35 and who ought to marry.

1 Now <sup>1</sup>concerning the things <sup>2</sup>whereof ye wrote unto me, It were <sup>3</sup>good for a man not to touch a woman.

2 Nevertheless, to avoid fornication, let every man have his wife, and let every woman have her own husband.

3 <sup>a,1</sup>Let the husband give unto the wife <sup>2</sup>due benevolence, and likewise also the wife unto the husband.

but the husband: and likewise also the husband hath not the power of his own body, but the wife.

5 Defraud not one another, <sup>1</sup>except it be with consent for a time, that ye may <sup>2</sup>give yourselves to fasting and prayer, and again come together, that Satan tempt you not for your incontinency.

6 <sup>1</sup>But I speak this by permission, not by commandment.

7 For I <sup>1</sup>would that all men were even as I myself am: but every man hath his proper gift of God, one after this manner, and another after that.

8 <sup>1</sup>Therefore I say unto the <sup>2</sup>unmarried, and unto the widows, It is good for them if they abide even as I do.

9 But if they cannot abstain, let them marry: for it is better to marry than to <sup>1</sup>burn.

10 <sup>b,1</sup>And unto the married I command, not I, but the Lord, Let not the wife depart from her husband.

11 But and if she depart, let her remain unmarried, or be reconciled unto her husband, and let not the husband put away his wife.

12 <sup>1</sup>But to the remnant I speak, and not the Lord, If any brother have a wife that believeth not, if she be content to dwell with him, let him not forsake her.

13 And the woman which hath an husband that believeth not, if he be content to dwell with her, let her not forsake him.

6:16 <sup>2</sup> Moses doth not speak these words of fornication, but of marriage: but seeing that fornication is the corrupting of marriage, and both of them is a carnal and fleshly copulation, we cannot say that the Apostle abuseth his testimony. Again, Moses hath not this word (Two) but it is very well expresseth both here and in Matt. 29:5, because he speaketh only but of man and wife: whereupon the opinion of them that vouch it to be lawful to have many wives, is beaten down: for he that companieth with many, is sundered as it were into many parts.

6:18 <sup>1</sup> Another argument why fornication is to be eschewed, because it defileth the body with a peculiar kind of filthiness.

6:19 <sup>1</sup> The third argument: Because a fornicator is sacrilegious, for that our bodies are consecrate to God.

<sup>2</sup> The fourth argument: Because we are not our own men, to give ourselves to any other, much less to Satan and the flesh, seeing that God himself hath bought us, and that with a great price, to the end that both in body and soul, we should serve to his glory.

7:1 <sup>1</sup> He teacheth concerning marriage, that although a single life hath his commodities, which he will declare afterwards, yet that marriage is necessary for the avoiding of fornication: but so that neither one man may have many wives, or any wife many husbands.

<sup>3</sup> Commodious, and (as we say) expedient. For marriage bringeth many griefs with it, and that by reason of the corruption of our first estate.

7:3 <sup>1</sup> Secondly, he showeth that the parties married, must with singular affection entirely love one the other.

<sup>2</sup> This word (due) containeth all kind of benevolence, though he speak more of one sort than of the other, in that that followeth.

7:4 <sup>1</sup> Thirdly, he warneth them that they are each in other's power, as touching the body, so that they may not defraud one another.

7:5 <sup>1</sup> He addeth an exception: unless the one abstain from the other by mutual consent, that they may the better give themselves to prayer, wherein notwithstanding, he warneth them to consider what is expedient, lest by this long breaking off as it were from marriage, they bestirred up to incontinency.

7:6 <sup>1</sup> Fifthly, he teacheth that marriage is not simply necessary for all men, but for them which have not the gift of continency, and this gift is by a peculiar grace of God.

7:7 <sup>1</sup> I wish.

7:8 <sup>1</sup> Sixthly, he giveth the selfsame admonition touching the second marriage, to wit, that a single life is to be allowed, but for such as have the gift of continency: otherwise they ought to marry again, that their conscience may be at peace.

7:9 <sup>1</sup> So to burn with lust, that either the will yieldeth to the temptation, or else we cannot call upon God with a quiet conscience.

7:10 <sup>1</sup> Seventhly, he forbiddeth contentions and the publishing of divorces (for he speaketh not here of the fault of whoredom, which was then death even by the law of the Romans also) whereby he affirmeth that the hand of marriage is not dissolved, and that from Christ's mouth.

7:12 <sup>1</sup> Eighthly, he affirmeth that those marriages which are already contracted between a faithful and an unfaithful or infidel, are firm, so that the faithful may not forsake the unfaithful.

15 <sup>1</sup>But if the unbelieving depart, let him depart: a brother or a sister is not in subjection in <sup>2</sup>such things: <sup>3</sup>but God hath called us in peace.

16 For what knowest thou, O wife, whether thou shalt save thine husband? Or what knowest thou, O man, whether thou shalt save thy wife?

17 <sup>1</sup>But as God hath distributeth to every man, as the Lord <sup>2</sup>hath called every one, so let him walk: and so ordain I in all Churches.

18 <sup>1</sup>Is any man called being circumcised? let him not <sup>2</sup>gather his uncircumcision: is any called uncircumcised? let him not be circumcised.

19 Circumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing, but the keeping of the commandments of God.

20 <sup>1</sup>Let every man abide in the same vocation wherein he was called.

21 Art thou called being a servant? <sup>1</sup>care not for it: but if yet thou mayest be free, use it rather.

22 For he that is called in the <sup>1</sup>Lord, being a servant, is the Lord's freeman: likewise also he that is called being free, is Christ's servant.

23 <sup>d1</sup>Ye are bought with a price: be not the servants of men.

24 <sup>1</sup>Brethren, let every man, wherein he was called, therein abide with <sup>2</sup>God.

25 <sup>1</sup>Now concerning virgins, I have no commandment of the Lord: but I give mine <sup>2</sup>advise, as <sup>3</sup>one that hath obtained mercy of the Lord to be faithful.

26 I suppose then <sup>1</sup>this to be good for the <sup>2</sup>present necessity: I mean that it is good for a man so to be.

27 Art thou bound unto a wife? seek not to be loosed: art thou loosed from a wife? seek not a wife.

28 But if thou takest a wife, thou sinnest not: and if a virgin marry, she sinnest not: nevertheless, such shall have trouble in the <sup>1</sup>flesh: but I <sup>2</sup>spare you.

29 And this I say, brethren, because the time is 7:14 <sup>1</sup> He answereth an objection: But the faithful is defiled by the society of the unfaithful. The Apostle denieth that, and proveth that the faithful man with good conscience may use the vessel of his unfaithful wife, by this that their children which are born of them, are accounted holy (that is, contained within the promise) for it is said to all the faithful, I will be thy God, and the God of thy seed.

<sup>5</sup> This place destroyeth the opinion of them that would not have children to be baptized, and their opinion also, that make baptism the very cause of salvation. For the children of the faithful are holy, by virtue of the covenant, even before Baptism, and baptism is added as the seal of that holiness.

7:15 <sup>1</sup> He answereth to a question: what if the unfaithful forsake the faithful? then is the faithful free, saith he, because he is forsaken of the unfaithful.

<sup>3</sup> Lest any man upon pretence of this liberty should give occasion to the unfaithful to depart, he giveth to understand, that marriage contracted with an infidel, ought peaceably to be kept, that if it be possible the infidel may be won to the faith.

7:17 <sup>1</sup> Taking occasion by that which he said of the bondage and liberty of matrimony, he digresseth to a general doctrine concerning the outward state and condition of man's life, as Circumcision and uncircumcision, servitude and liberty: warning every man generally to live with a contented mind in the Lord, what state or condition forever he be in, because that those outward things, as to be circumcised or uncircumcised, to be bond or free, are not of the substance (as they term it) of the kingdom of heaven.

7:18 <sup>1</sup> Notwithstanding he giveth us to understand, that in these examples all are not like sort: because that circumcision is not simply of itself to be desired, but such as are bound may desire to be free. Therefore herein only they are equal, that the kingdom of God consisteth not in them, and therefore these are no hindrance to obey God.

7:21 <sup>1</sup> As though this calling were too unworthy a calling for Christ.

7:22 <sup>1</sup> He that is in state of a servant, and is called to be a Christian.

7:23 <sup>1</sup> He showeth the reason of the unlikeness, because that he that desireth to be circumcised, maketh himself subject to man's tradition, and not to God. And this may be much more understood of superstitions, which some do foolishly account for things indifferent.

7:24 <sup>1</sup> A repetition of the general doctrine.

<sup>2</sup> So purely and from the heart, that your doings may be approved before God.

7:25 <sup>1</sup> He enjoineth virginity to no man, yet he persuadeth and praiseth it for another respect, to wit, both for the necessity of the present time, because the faithful could scarce abide in any place, and use the commodities of this present life, and therefore such as were not troubled with families, might be the readier: and also for the cares of this life, which marriage draweth with it necessity, so that they cannot but have their minds distracteth: and this hath place in women especially.

<sup>3</sup> It is I that speak this which I am minded to speak: and the truth is, I am a man, but yet worthy credit, for I have obtained of the Lord to be such an one.

7:26 <sup>1</sup> To remain a virgin.

<sup>2</sup> For the necessity which the Saints are daily subject unto, who are continually tossed up and down, so that their estate may seem most unfit for marriage, were it not that the weakness of the flesh enforced them to it.

7:28 <sup>1</sup> By the (flesh) he understandeth what things forever belong to this present life, for marriage bringeth with it many discommodities: so that he bendeth more to a sole life, not because it is a service more agreeable to God than marriage is, but for those discommodities, which (if it were possible) he would wish all men to be void of, that they might give themselves to God only.

<sup>1</sup>short, hereafter that both they which have wives, be as though they had none:

30 And they that <sup>1</sup>weep, as though they wept not: and they that rejoice, as though they rejoiced not: and they that buy, as though they possessed not:

31 And they that use this <sup>1</sup>world, as though they used it not: for the <sup>2</sup>fashion of this world goeth away.

32 And I would have you without care. The unmarried careth for things of the Lord, how he may please the Lord.

33 But he that is married, <sup>1</sup>careth for the things of the world, how he may please his wife.

34 There is difference also between a virgin and a wife: the unmarried woman careth for the things of the Lord, that she may be holy, both in body and in <sup>1</sup>spirit: but she that is married, careth for the things of the world, how she may please her husband.

35 And this I speak for your own <sup>1</sup>commodity, not to tangle you in a snare, but that ye follow that which is honest, and that ye may cleave fast unto the Lord without separation.

36 <sup>1</sup>But if any man think that it is uncomely for his virgin, if she pass the flower of her age, and need so require, let him do what he will, he <sup>2</sup>sinneth not: let them be married.

37 Nevertheless, he that standeth firm in his <sup>1</sup>heart, that he hath no <sup>2</sup>need, but hath power over his own will, and hath so decreed in his heart, that he will keep his virgin, he doeth well.

38 So then he that giveth her to marriage, doeth well, but he that giveth her not to marriage, doeth <sup>1</sup>better.

40 But she is more blessed, if she so abide in my judgment:<sup>f</sup>and I think that I have also the Spirit of God.

1 And as <sup>1</sup>touching things sacrificed unto idols, we know that we <sup>2</sup>all have knowledge: knowledge <sup>3</sup>puffeth up, but love <sup>4</sup>edifieth.

2 Now, if any man think that he knoweth anything, he knoweth nothing, yet as he ought to know.

3 But if any man love God, the same is known of him.

4 <sup>1</sup>Concerning therefore the eating of things sacrificed unto <sup>2</sup>idols, we know that an idol is <sup>3</sup>nothing in the world, and that there is none other God but one.

7:29 <sup>1</sup> For we are now in the latter end of the world.

7:30 <sup>1</sup> By weeping, the Hebrews understand all adversity, and be joy, all prosperity.

7:31 <sup>1</sup> Those things which God giveth us here.

<sup>2</sup> The guise, the shape, and fashion: whereby he showeth us, that there is nothing in this world that continueth.

7:33 <sup>1</sup> They that are married, have their wits drawn hither and thither, and therefore if any man have the gift of continency, it is more commodious for him to live alone: but they that are married may care for the things of the Lord also, Clement, Strom. 3.

7:34 <sup>1</sup> Mind.

7:35 <sup>1</sup> He meaneth that he will enforce no man either to marry or not to marry, but to show them barely what kind of life is most commodious.

7:36 <sup>1</sup> Now he turneth himself to the Parents, in whose power and authority their children are, warning them that according to the former doctrine they consider what is meet and convenient for their children, that they neither deprive them of the necessary remedy against incontinency, nor constrain them to marriage, whereas neither their will doth lead them, nor any necessity urgeth them. And again he praiseth virginity, but of itself, and not in all.

7:37 <sup>1</sup> Resolved with himself.

7:38 <sup>1</sup> Provideth more commodiously for his children, and that not simply, but by reason of such conditions as are before mentioned.

7:39 <sup>1</sup> That which he spake of a widower, he speaketh now of a widow, to wit, that she may marry again, so that she do it in the fear of God: and yet he dissembleth not, but saith, that if she remain still a widow, she shall be void of many cares.

8:1 <sup>1</sup> He entereth to entreat of another kind of things indifferent, to wit, of things offered to idols, or the use or flesh so offered and sacrificed. And first of all he removeth all those things which the Corinthians pretended in using things offered to idols without any respect. First of all they affirmed that this difference of meats was for unskillful men, but as for them, they knew well enough the benefit of Christ, which causeth all these things to be clean to them that are clean. Be it so saith Paul: be it that we are all sufficiently instructed in the knowledge of Christ. I say notwithstanding that we must not simply rest in this knowledge. The reason is that unless our knowledge be tempered with charity, it doth not only not avail, but also doeth much hurt, because it is the mystery of pride: nay, it doth not so much as discern the name of godly knowledge, if it be separate from the love of God and therefore from the love of our neighbor.

<sup>2</sup> This general word is to be abridged as appeareth verse 7, for there is a kind of taunt in it, as we may perceive by the next verse.

8:4 <sup>1</sup> The application of that answer to things offered to idols: I grant, saith he that an idol is indeed a vain imagination, and that there is but one God and Lord, herefore that meat cannot be made holy or profane by the idol: but it followeth not therefore that a man may without respect use those meats as any other.

5 For though there be that are called gods, whether in heaven, or in earth (as there be many gods, and many lords.)

6 Yet unto us there is but one God, which is that Father, <sup>1</sup>of whom are all things, and we <sup>2</sup>in him, and <sup>3</sup>one Lord Jesus Christ, <sup>4</sup>by whom are all things, and we by him.

7 <sup>1</sup>But every man hath not that knowledge: for <sup>2</sup>many having <sup>3</sup>conscience of the idol, until this hour, eat as a thing sacrificed unto the idol, and so their conscience being weak, is defiled.

8 <sup>1</sup>But meat maketh us not acceptable to God, for neither if we eat, have we the more: neither if we eat not, have we the less.

9 But take heed lest by any means this power of yours be an occasion of falling, to them that are weak.

10 <sup>1</sup>For if any man see thee which hast knowledge, sit at table in the idols' temple, shall not the conscience of him which is weak, be boldened, to eat those things which are sacrificed to idols?

CHAPTER 8

11 <sup>1</sup>And through thy knowledge shall the <sup>6</sup>weak brother perish, for whom Christ died.

12 <sup>1</sup>Now when ye sin so against the brethren, and wound their weak conscience, ye sin against Christ.

13 <sup>6a</sup>Wherefore if meat offend my brother, I will eat no flesh while the world standeth, that I may not offend my brother.

9 <sup>1</sup> He declareth, that from the liberty which the Lord gave him, 15 he willingly abstained, 18, 22 lest in things indifferent he should offend any. 24 He showeth that our life is like unto a race.

1 Am <sup>1</sup>I not an Apostle? am I not free? <sup>2</sup>have I not seen Jesus Christ our Lord? are ye not my work <sup>3</sup>in the Lord?

2 If I be not an Apostle unto others, yet doubtless I am unto you: for ye are the <sup>1</sup>seal of mine Apostleship in the Lord.

3 <sup>1</sup>My defense to him that <sup>2</sup>examine me, is this,

8:6 <sup>1</sup> When the Father is distinguished from the Son, He is named the beginning of all things.

<sup>2</sup> We have our being in him.

<sup>3</sup> But as the Father is called Lord, so is the Son, God therefore this word (One) doth not respect the persons, but the natures.

<sup>4</sup> This word (By) doth not signify the instrumental cause, but the efficient: For the Father and the Son work together, which is not so to be taken, that we make two causes, seeing they have both but one nature though they be distinct persons.

8:7 <sup>1</sup> The reason why that followeth not, is this: because there are many men which do not know that which you know. Now the judgments of outward things depend not only upon your conscience, but upon the conscience of them that behold you, and therefore your actions must be applied not only to your knowledge, but also to the ignorance of your brethren.

<sup>2</sup> An applying of the reason, There are many which cannot eat of things offered to idols, but with a wavering conscience, because they think them to be unclean: therefore if by thy example they enterprise to do that which inwardly they thinketh displeaseth God, their conscience is defiled with this eating, and thou hast been the occasion of this mischief.

<sup>3</sup> By conscience of the idol, he meaneth the secret judgment that they had within themselves, whereby they thought all things unclean, that were offered to idols, and therefore they could not use them with good conscience. For this force hath conscience, that if it be good, it maketh things indifferent good, and if it be evil, it maketh them evil.

8:8 <sup>1</sup> A preventing of an objection: Why then, shall we therefore be deprived of our liberty? Nay saith the Apostle, you shall lose no part of Christianity although you abstain for your brethren's sake, as also if you receive the meat, it maketh you no whit the more holy, for our commendation before God consisteth not in meats: but to use our liberty with offense of our brethren, is an abuse of liberty, the true use whereof is clean contrary, to wit, so to use it, as in using of it we have consideration of our weak brethren.

8:10 <sup>1</sup> Another plainer explication of the same reason, propounding the example of the sitting down at the table in the idol's temple, which thing the Corinthians did evil account of among things indifferent, because it is simply forbidden for the circumstance of the place, although offense do cease, as it shall be declared in his place.

8:11 <sup>1</sup> An amplification of the argument taken both of comparison and contraries: Thou wretched man, saith he, pleasing thyself with thy knowledge which indeed is none (for if thou haddest true knowledge, thou wouldest not sit down to meat in idol's temple) wilt thou destroy thy brother, hardening his weak conscience by this example to do evil, for whose salvation Christ himself has died?

8:12 <sup>1</sup> Another amplification: Such offending of our weak brethren roundeth unto Christ, and therefore let not these men think that they have to do only with their brethren.

8:13 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion, which Paul conceiveth in his own person, that he might not seem to exact that of others, which he will not be first subject unto himself. I had rather (saith he) abstain forever from all kind of flesh, than give occasion of sin to any of my brethren, much less would I refuse in any certain place or time for my brother's sake not to eat flesh offered to idols.

9:1 <sup>1</sup> Before he proceedeth any further in his proposed manner of things offered to idols he would show the cause of all this mischief, and also take it away: to wit, that the Corinthians thought themselves not bound to depart from an iota of their liberty for any man's pleasure. Therefore he propoundeth himself for an example and that in a matter almost necessary. And yet he speaketh generally of both, but first of his own person. If (saith he) you allege for yourselves that you are free, and therefore will use your liberty, am I not also free, seeing I am an Apostle?

<sup>2</sup> He proveth his Apostleship by the effects, in that that he was appointed of Christ himself, and the authority of his function was sufficiently confirmed to him amongst them by their conversion. And all these things he setteth before their eyes, to make them ashamed for that they would not in the least wise that might be, debase themselves, for the weak's sake, whereas the Apostle himself did all that he could to win them to God when they were utterly reprobate and without God.

9:2 <sup>1</sup> As a seal whereby it appeareth sufficiently that God is the author of my Apostleship.

9:3 <sup>1</sup> He addeth this by the way, as if he would say, So far it is off, that you may doubt of my Apostleship, that I use it to refute them which call it into controversy, by opposing those things which the Lord hath done by me amongst you.

4 <sup>1</sup>Have we not power to <sup>2</sup>eat and to drink?

5 Or have we not power to lead about a wife being a <sup>1</sup>sister, as well as the rest of the Apostles, and as the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas?

6 Or I only and Barnabas, have not we power <sup>1</sup>not to work?

7 <sup>1</sup>Who <sup>2</sup>goeth a warfare any time at his own cost? who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof? or who feedeth a flock, and eateth not of the milk of the flock?

8 <sup>1</sup>Say I these things <sup>2</sup>according to man? saith not the Law the same also?

9 For it is written in the Law of Moses, <sup>a</sup>Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn: doth God take care for <sup>1</sup>oxen?

10 Either saith he it not altogether for our sakes? For our sakes no doubt it is written, that he which eareth, should ear in hope, and that he that thresheth in hope, should be partaker of his hope.

11 <sup>b,1</sup>If we have sown unto you spiritual things, is it a great thing if we reap your carnal things?

12 <sup>1</sup>If others with you be partakers of this <sup>2</sup>power, are not we rather? nevertheless, we have not used this power: but suffer all things, that we should not hinder the Gospel of Christ.

13 <sup>1</sup>Do ye not know, that they which minister about the <sup>1</sup>holy things, eat of the <sup>2</sup>things of the Temple? and they which wait at the altar, are <sup>3</sup>partakers with the altar?

CHAPTER 9

<sup>a</sup> Deut. 25:4

1 Tim. 5:18

Gal. 2:3

14 So also hath the Lord ordained, that they which preach the Gospel, should live <sup>1</sup>of the Gospel.

15 But I have used none of these things: <sup>1</sup>neither wrote I these things, that it should be so done unto me: for it were better for me to die, than that any man should make my rejoicing vain.

16 For though I preach the Gospel, I have nothing to rejoice of: for necessity is laid upon me, and woe is unto me, if I preach not the Gospel.

17 For if I do it willingly, I have a reward, but if I do it against my will, notwithstanding the dispensation is committed unto me.

18 What is my reward then? verily that when I preach the Gospel, I make the Gospel of Christ <sup>1</sup>free, that I abuse not mine authority in the Gospel.

19 For though I be free from all men, yet have I made myself servant unto all men, that I may win the more.

20 <sup>d</sup>And unto the Jews, I become as a Jew, that I may win the Jews: to them that are under the <sup>1</sup>Law, as though I were under the Law, that I may win them that are under the Law:

21 To them that are without Law, as though I were without Law, (when I am not without Law as pertaining to God, but am in the Law through Christ) that I may win them that are without Law:

22 To the weak I become as weak, that I may win the weak: I am made all things to <sup>1</sup>all men, that I might by all means save some.

9:4 <sup>1</sup> Now touching the matter itself, he saith, Seeing that I am free, and truly an Apostle, why may not I (I say not, eat of all things offered to idols) but be maintained by my labors, yea and keep my wife also, as the residue of the apostles lawfully do, as by name, John and James, the Lord's cousins, and Peter himself?

9:5 <sup>1</sup> One that is a Christian and a true believer?

9:6 <sup>1</sup> Not to live by the work of our hands?

9:7 <sup>1</sup> That he may not seem to burden the Apostles, he showeth that it is just that they do, by an argument of comparison, seeing that soldiers live by their wages, and husbandmen by the fruits of their labors, and shepherds by that that cometh of their flocks.

9:8 <sup>1</sup> Secondly he bringeth forth the authority of God's institution by an argument of comparison.

<sup>2</sup> Have I no better ground than the common custom of men?

9:9 <sup>1</sup> Was it God's proper drift to provide for oxen, when he made this Law? for otherwise there is not the smallest thing in the world, but God hath a care of it.

9:11 <sup>1</sup> An assumption of the arguments with an amplification, for neither in so doing do we require a reward meet for our deserts.

9:12 <sup>1</sup> Another argument of great force: others are nourished amongst you, therefore it was lawful for me, yea rather for me than any other: and yet I refused it, and had rather still suffer any discommodity, than the Gospel of Christ should be hindered.

<sup>2</sup> The word signifieth a right and interest, whereby he giveth us to understand that the ministers of the word must of right and duty be found of the Church.

9:13 <sup>1</sup> Last of all he bringeth forth the express Law concerning the nourishing of the Levites, which privilege notwithstanding he will not use.

9:14 <sup>1</sup> Because they preach the Gospel. It followed by this place, that Paul gat no living, neither would have any other man get, by any commodity of masses, or any other such superstitious trumperies.

9:15 <sup>1</sup> He taketh away occasion of suspicion by the way, that it might not be thought that he wrote this as though he challenged his wages that was not paid him. Nay saith him, I had rather die, than not continue in this purpose to preach the Gospel freely. For I am bound to preach the Gospel, seeing that the Lord hath enjoined me this office: but unless I do it willingly and for the love of God, nothing is to be allowed that I do. If I had rather that the Gospel should be evil spoken of, than that I should not require my wages, then would it appear that I took these pains not so much for the Gospel's sake, as for my gains and advantages. But I say, this were not to use, but abuse my right and liberty. Therefore not only in this thing, but also in all others (as much as I could) I am made all things to all men, that I might win them to Christ, and might together with them be won to Christ.

9:18 <sup>1</sup> By taking nothing of them to whom I preach it.

9:20 <sup>1</sup> The word (Law) in this place, must be restrained to the ceremonial Law.

9:22 <sup>1</sup> In matters that are indifferent, which may be done or not done with a good conscience: as if he said, I changed myself into all fashions, that by all means, I might save some.

23 And this I do for the Gospel's sake, that I might be partaker thereof with <sup>1</sup>you.

24 <sup>1</sup>Know ye not, that they which run in a race, run all, yet one receiveth the prize? so run that ye may obtain.

25 And every man that proveth masteries, <sup>1</sup>abstaineth from all things: and they do it to obtain a corruptible crown: but we for an incorruptible.

26 I therefore so run, not as uncertainly: so fight I, not as one that beateth the air.

27 But I beat down my <sup>1</sup>body, and bring it into subjection, lest by any means after that I have preached to others, I myself should be <sup>2</sup>reproved.

10 <sup>1</sup>If God spared not the Jews, neither will he spare those who are of like condition, 3, 4 touching the outward signs of his grace. <sup>14</sup>That it is absurd, that such should be partakers of the table of the devils, who are partakers of the Lord's Supper. <sup>24</sup>To have consideration of our neighbor in things indifferent.

2 <sup>1</sup>And were all <sup>2</sup>baptized unto <sup>3</sup>Moses, in that cloud, and in that sea,

3 <sup>c</sup>And did all eat the <sup>1</sup>same spiritual <sup>2</sup>meat,

4 <sup>d</sup>And did all drink the same spiritual drink (for they drank of the spiritual Rock that <sup>1</sup>followed them: and the Rock was <sup>2</sup>Christ.)

5 But with many of them God was not pleased: for they were <sup>c</sup>overthrown in the wilderness.

6 <sup>1</sup>Now these things are our <sup>2</sup>examples, to the intent that we should not lust after evil things <sup>1a</sup>as they also lusted.

7 Neither be ye idolaters as were some of them, as it is written, <sup>g</sup>The people sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to play.

8 Neither let us commit fornication, as some of them committed fornication, and fell in one <sup>b</sup>day three and twenty thousand.

9 Neither let us tempt <sup>1</sup>Christ, as some of them also tempted him, and <sup>4</sup>were destroyed of serpents.

10 Neither murmur ye, as some of them <sup>1a</sup>also murmured, and were destroyed of the destroyer.

11 Now all these things came unto them for examples, and were written to admonish us, upon whom the <sup>1</sup>ends of the world are come.

12 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore, let him that thinketh he standeth, take heed lest he fall.

13 There hath no temptation taken you, but such 9:23 <sup>1</sup>That both I and they to whom I preach the Gospel, may receive fruit by the Gospel.

9:24 <sup>1</sup>He bringeth in another cause of this mischief, to wit, that they were given to gluttony, for there were solemn banquets of sacrifices, and the riot of the Priests was always too much celebrated and kept. Therefore it was hard for them which were accustomed to righteousness, especially when they pretended the liberty of the Gospel, to be restrained from these banquets: but contrarywise, the Apostle calleth them by a pleasant similitude, and also by his own example, to sobriety and mortification of the flesh, showing that they cannot be fit to run or wrestle (as then the games of Isthmians were) which pampers up their bodies, and therefore affirming that they can have no reward, unless they take another course and trade of life.

9:25 <sup>1</sup>Useth a most exquisite diet.

<sup>2</sup>This word (Reproved) is not set as contrary to the word (Elect) but as contrary to the word (Approved) when we see one by experience not to be such an one as he ought to be.

10:1 <sup>1</sup>He setteth out that which he said, laying before them an example of the horrible judgment of God against them which had in effect the selfsame pledges, of the same adoption and salvation that we have: and yet notwithstanding when they gave themselves to idols' feasts, perished in the wilderness, being horribly and manifoldly punished. Now, moreover and besides that these things are fitly spoken against them which frequented idols' feasts, the same also seems to be alleged to this end and purpose, because many men are thus minded, that those things are not of such great weight, that God will be angry with them if they use them, so that they frequent Christian assemblies and be baptized, and receive the Communion, and confess Christ.

10:2 <sup>1</sup>In effect the Sacrament of the old fathers were all one with ours, for they respected Christ only who offered himself unto them in divers shadows.

10:3 <sup>1</sup>The same that we do.

<sup>2</sup>Manna, which was a spiritual meat to the believers, which in faith lay hold upon Christ who is the true meat.

10:4 <sup>1</sup>Of the river and running Rock, which followed the people.

<sup>2</sup>Did sacramentally signify Christ, so that together with the sign, there was the thing signified, and the truth itself: for God doth not offer a bare sign, but the thing signifieth by the sign, together with it which is to be received with faith.

10:6 <sup>1</sup>An amplifying of the example against them which are carried away with their lusts beyond the bounds which God has measured out. For this is the beginning of all evil, as of idolatry (which hath gluttony a companion unto it) fornication, rebelling against Christ, murmuring, and such like, which God punished most sharply in that old people, to the end that we which succeed them, and have a more full declaration of the will of God, might by that means take better heed.

<sup>2</sup>Some read figures: which signified our sacraments: for circumcision was to the Jews a seal of righteousness, and to us a lively pattern of Baptism, and so in the other Sacraments.

10:9 <sup>1</sup>To tempt Christ, is to provoke him to a combat as it were which those men do, who abuse the knowledge that he hath given them, and make it to serve for a cloak for their lusts and wickedness.

10:11 <sup>1</sup>This our age is called the end, for it is the shutting up of all ages.

10:12 <sup>1</sup>In conclusion, he descendeth to the Corinthians themselves, warning them that they please not themselves, but rather that they prevent the subtleties of Satan. Yet he useth an insinuation, and comforteth them, that he may not seem to make them altogether like to those wicked idolaters and contemners of Christ, which perished in the wilderness.

as appertaineth to <sup>1</sup>man: and God is faithful, which will not suffer you to be tempted above that you be able, but will even <sup>2</sup>give the issue with the temptation, that ye may be able to bear it.

14 Wherefore my beloved, flee from idolatry.

15 <sup>1</sup>I speak as unto them which have understanding: judge ye what I say.

16 The cup of <sup>1</sup>blessing which we bless, is it not the <sup>2</sup>communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ?

17 For we that are many, are one bread and one body, because we all are partakers of one bread.

18 Behold Israel, which is after the <sup>1</sup>flesh: are not they which eat of the sacrifices <sup>2</sup>partakers of the Altar?

19 What say I then? that the idol is anything? or that that which is sacrificed to idols, is anything?

20 Nay, but that the things which the Gentiles sacrifice, they sacrifice to devils, and not unto God: and I would not that ye should have <sup>1</sup>fellowship with the devils.

21 Ye cannot drink the cup of the Lord, and the <sup>1</sup>cup of the devils. Ye cannot be partakers of the Lord's table, and of the table of the devils.

22 Do we provoke the Lord to anger? are we stronger than he?

23 <sup>k,1,2</sup>All things are lawful for me, but all things are not expedient: all things are lawful for me, but all things edify not.

24 Let no man seek his own, but every man another's wealth.

27 If any of them which believe not, call you to a feast, and if ye will go, whatsoever is set before you, eat, asking no question for conscience sake.

28 But if any man say unto you, This is sacrificed unto idols, eat it not, because of him that showed it, and for the conscience (for the earth is the Lord's, and all that therein is.)

29 And the conscience, I say, not thine, but of that other: <sup>1</sup>for why should my liberty be condemned of another man's conscience?

30 For if I through God's <sup>1</sup>benefit be partaker, why am I evil spoken of, for that wherefore I give thanks?

31 <sup>m,1</sup>Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God.

32 Give none offence, neither to the Jews, nor to the Grecians, nor to the Church of God:

33 Even as I please all men in all things, not seek-

10:13 <sup>1</sup> Which cometh of weakness.

<sup>2</sup> He that would have you tempted for your profit's sake, will give you an issue to escape out of the temptation.

10:15 <sup>1</sup> Now returning to those idols' feasts, that he may not seem to dally at all, first he promiseth that he will use no other reasons than such as they knew very well themselves. And he useth an induction borrowed of the agreement that is the things themselves. The holy banquets of the Christians are pledges, first of all of the community that they have with Christ, and next, one with another. The Israelites also do ratify in the sacrifices, their mutual conjunction in one self-same religion: therefore so do the idolaters also join themselves with their idols or devils rather (for idols are nothing) in those solemn banquets, whereupon it followeth, that that table is a table of devils, and therefore you must eschew it: for you cannot be partakers of the Lord and of idols together, much less may such banquets be accounted for things indifferent. Will ye then strive with God? and if you do, think you that you shall get the upper hand?

10:16 <sup>1</sup> Of thanksgiving: whereupon, that holy banquet was called Eucharist, that is, a thanksgiving.

<sup>2</sup> A most effectual pledge and note of our knitting together with Christ, and ingrafting to him.

10:18 <sup>1</sup> That is, as yet observe their ceremonies.

10:20 <sup>1</sup> Have anything to do with the devils, or enter into that society which is begun on the devil's name.

10:21 <sup>1</sup> The heathen and profane people were wont to shut up and make an end of their feasts which they kept to the honor of their gods, in offering meat offerings and drink offerings to them, with banquets and feasting.

10:23 <sup>1</sup> Coming to another kind of things offered to idols, he repeateth that general rule, that in the use of things indifferent we ought to have consideration not of ourselves only, but of our neighbors, and therefore these are many things which of themselves are lawful, which may be evil done of us, because of offense to our neighbor.

10:25 <sup>1</sup> An applying of the rule to the present matter: Whatsoever is sold in the shambles, you may indifferently buy it as it were at the Lord's hand, and eat it either at home with the faithful, or being called home to the unfaithful, to wit, in a private banquet: but yet with this exception, unless any man is present which is weak, whose conscience may be offended, by setting meats offered to idols before them: for then you ought to have consideration of their weakness.

<sup>2</sup> The flesh that was sacrificed, was used to be sold in the shambles, and the price returned to the priests.

10:26 <sup>1</sup> All those things whereof it is full.

10:29 <sup>1</sup> A reason: for we must take heed that our liberty be not evil spoken of, and that the benefit of God which we ought to use with thanksgiving be not changed into impiety, and that through our fault, if we choose rather to offend the conscience of the weak, than to yield a little of our liberty in a matter of no importance, and so give occasion to the weak to judge in such sort of us, and of Christian liberty. And the Apostle taketh these things upon his own person, that the Corinthians may have so much the less occasion to oppose anything against him.

10:30 <sup>1</sup> If I may through God's benefits eat this meat, or that meat, why should I through my fault, cause that benefit of God to turn to my blame?

10:31 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion: We must order our lives in such sort, that we seek not ourselves, but God's glory, and so the salvation of as many as we may, wherein the Apostle flieth not to propound himself to the Corinthians (even his own flock) as an example, but so that he calleth them back to Christ, unto whom he himself hath regard.

ing mine own profit, but the profit of many, that they might be saved.

11 <sup>1</sup> He blameth the Corinthians for that in their holy assemblies, 4 men do pray having their heads covered, 6 and women bareheaded: and because their meetings tended to evil, 21 who mingled profane banquets with the holy Supper of the Lord, 23 which he required to be celebrated according to Christ's institution.

1 Be <sup>a</sup>ye followers of me, even as I am of Christ:

2 <sup>1</sup>Now brethren, I commend you, that ye remember all my things, and keep the ordinances, as I delivered them to you.

3 <sup>1</sup>But I will that ye know, that Christ is the <sup>b</sup>head of every man: and the man is the woman's head: and God is <sup>2</sup>Christ's head.

4 <sup>1</sup>Every <sup>2</sup>man praying or prophesying having anything on his head, dishonoreth his head.

5 <sup>1</sup>But every woman that prayeth or prophesieth bareheaded, dishonoreth her head: <sup>2</sup>for it is even one very thing, as though she were shaven.

6 Therefore if the woman be not covered, let her also be shorn: and if it be shame for a woman to be shorn or shaven, let her be covered.

Gen. 5:1

Gen. 9:6

7 <sup>1</sup>For a man ought not to cover his head: forasmuch as he is the image and glory of God: but the woman is the glory of the man.

8 <sup>1</sup>For the man is not of the woman, but the woman of the man.

9 <sup>d1</sup>For the man was not created for the woman's sake: but the woman for the man's sake.

10 <sup>1</sup>Therefore ought the woman to have <sup>2</sup>power on her head, because of the <sup>3</sup>Angels.

11 <sup>1</sup>Nevertheless, neither is the man without the woman, neither the woman without the man <sup>2</sup>in the Lord.

12 For as the woman is of the man, so is the man also by the woman: but all things are of God.

13 <sup>1</sup>Judge in yourselves, Is it comely that a woman pray unto God uncovered?

14 Doth not nature itself teach you, that if a man have long hair, it is a shame unto him?

15 But if a woman have long hair, it is a praise unto her: for her hair is given her for a <sup>1</sup>covering.

16 <sup>1</sup>But if any man list to be contentious, we have no such custom, neither the Churches of God.

17 ¶ <sup>1</sup>Now in this that I declare, I praise you not,

11:2 <sup>1</sup> The fifth treatise of this epistle concerning the right ordering of public assemblies, containing three points, to wit, of the comely apparel of men and women, of the order of the Lord's supper, and of the right use of spiritual gifts. But going about to reprehend certain things, he beginneth notwithstanding with a general praise of them, calling those particular laws of comeliness and honesty, which belong to the ecclesiastical policy, traditions: which afterward they called Canons.

11:3 <sup>1</sup> He setteth down God, in Christ our mediator, for the end and mark not only of doctrine, but also of ecclesiastical comeliness. Then applying it to the question proposed, touching the comely apparel both of men and women in public assemblies, he declareth that the woman is one degree beneath the man by the ordinance of God, and that the man is so subject to Christ, that the glory of God ought to appear in him for the preeminence of the sex.

11:4 <sup>1</sup> Hereof he gathereth that if men do either pray or preach in public assemblies having their heads covered (which was then a sign of subjection) they did as it were spoil themselves of their dignity, against God's ordinance.

<sup>2</sup> It appeareth that this was a political law serving only for the circumstances of the time that Paul lived in, by this reason, because in these our days for a man to speak bareheaded in an assembly, is a sign of subjection.

11:5 <sup>1</sup> And in like sort he concludeth, that women which show themselves in public and ecclesiastical assemblies without the sign and token of their subjection, that is to say, uncovered, shame themselves.

<sup>2</sup> The first argument taken from the common sense of man, forso much as nature teacheth women, that it is dishonest for them to come abroad bareheaded, seeing that she hath given them thick and long hair, which they do so diligently trim and deck, that they can in no wise abide to have it shaven.

11:7 <sup>1</sup> The taking away of an objection: Have not men also hair given to them? I grant, saith the Apostle, but there is another matter in it: For man was made to this end and purpose, that the glory of God should appear in his rule and authority: but the woman was made, that by profession of her obedience, she might more honor her husband.

11:8 <sup>1</sup> He proveth the inequality of the woman, by that, that the man is the matter whereof woman was first made.

11:9 <sup>1</sup> Secondly, by that, that the woman was made for man, and not the man for the woman's sake.

11:10 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion: Women must be covered, to show by this external sign their subjection.

11:11 <sup>1</sup> A digression which the Apostle useth, lest that which he spake of the superior tie of men, and the lower degrees of women in consideration of the policy of the Church, should be so taken as though there were no measure of this inequality. Therefore he teacheth that men have in such sort the preeminence, that God made them not alone, but women also: and woman was so made of man, that men also are born by the means of women, and this ought to put them in mind to observe the degree of every sex, in such sort that mutual conjunction may be cherished.

11:13 <sup>1</sup> He urgeth the argument taken from the common sense of nature.

11:15 <sup>1</sup> To be a covering for her, and such a covering as should procure another.

11:16 <sup>1</sup> Against such as are stubbornly contentious we have to oppose this, that the Churches of God are not contentious.

11:17 <sup>1</sup> He passeth now to the next treatise concerning the right administration of the Lord's Supper. And the Apostle useth this sharper preface that the Corinthians might understand, that whereas they observed generally the Apostle's commandments, yet they foully neglected them in a matter of greatest importance.

that ye come together, not with profit, but with hurt.

18 <sup>1</sup>For first of all, when ye come together in the Church, I hear that there are dissensions among you: and I believe it to be true in some part.

19 <sup>1</sup>For there must be heresies even among you, that they which are <sup>2</sup>approved among you, might be known.

20 When ye come together therefore into one place, this is <sup>1</sup>not to eat the Lord's Supper.

21 For every man when they should eat, taketh his own supper <sup>1</sup>afore, and one is hungry, and another is drunken.

22 <sup>1</sup>Have ye not houses to eat and to drink in? despise ye the Church of God, and shame them that have not? what shall I say to you? shall I praise you in this? I praise you not.

23 <sup>1</sup>For I have received of the Lord that which I also have delivered unto you, to wit, That the Lord Jesus in the night when he was betrayed, took bread.

24 <sup>1</sup>And when he had given thanks, he brake it, and said, Take, eat: this is my body, which is <sup>1</sup>broken for you: this do ye in remembrance of me.

25 After the same manner also he took the cup, when he had supped, saying, This cup is the New Testament in my blood: this do as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me.

26 For as often as ye shall eat this bread, and drink

Mark 14:21
Luke 22:19

this cup, ye show the Lord's death till he come.

27 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore, whosoever shall eat this bread, and drink the cup of the Lord <sup>2</sup>unworthily, shall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord.

28 <sup>f</sup>1 Let <sup>2</sup>every man therefore examine himself, and so let them eat of this bread, and drink of this cup.

29 For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh his own damnation, because he <sup>1</sup>discerneth not the Lord's body.

30 <sup>1</sup>For this cause many are weak, and sick among you, and many sleep.

31 For if we would <sup>1</sup>judge ourselves, we should not be judged.

32 But when we are judged, we are chastened of the Lord, because we should not be condemned with the world.

33 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore, my brethren, when ye come together to eat, tarry one for another.

34 <sup>1</sup>And if any man be hungry, let him eat at home, that ye come not together unto condemnation. <sup>2</sup>Other things will I set in order when I come.

12 <sup>1</sup> To draw away the Corinthians from contention and pride, he showeth that spiritual gifts are therefore diversely bestowed, <sup>7</sup> that the same being jointly to each other employed, <sup>12</sup> we may grow up together into one body of Christ in such equal proportion and measure, <sup>20</sup> as the members of man's body do.

11:18 <sup>1</sup> To celebrate the Lord's Supper aright, it is required that there be not only consent of doctrine, but also of affections, that it be not profaned.

11:19 <sup>1</sup> Although that schisms and heresies proceed from the devil, are evil, and yet they come not by chance, nor without cause, and they turn to the profit of the elect.

11:20 <sup>1</sup> This is an usual kind of speech, whereby the Apostle denieth that flatly, which many did not well.

11:21 <sup>1</sup> Eateth his meat and tarrieth not till other come.

11:22 <sup>1</sup> The Apostle thinketh it good to take away the love feasts, for their abuse, although they had been a long time, and with commendation used in Churches, and were appointed and instituted by the Apostles.

11:23 <sup>1</sup> We must take a true form of keeping the Lord's Supper, out of the institution of it, the parts whereof are these, touching the Pastors, to show forth the Lord's death, by preaching his word: to bless the bread and the wine by calling upon the name of God, and together with prayers to declare the institution thereof, and finally to deliver the bread broken to be eaten, and the cup received to be drunk with thanksgiving. And touching the flock, that every man examine himself, that is to say, to prove both his knowledge, and also faith and repentance: to show forth the Lord's death, that is, in true faith to yield unto his word and institution: and last of all, to take the bread at the Minister's hand, and to eat it and to drink the wine, and give God thanks: This was Paul's and the Apostles' manner of ministering.

11:24 <sup>1</sup> This word (Broken) noteth out unto us Christ his manner of death, for although his legs were not broken, as the thieves legs were, yet was his body very sore tormented, and torn, and bruised.

11:27 <sup>1</sup> Whoever contemn the holy Sacrament: that is, use them not aright, are guilty not of the bread and wine, but of the thing itself, that is of Christ, and shall be grievously punished for it.

11:28 <sup>1</sup> The examination of a man's self, is of necessity required in the Supper and therefore they ought not to be admitted unto it, which cannot examine themselves: as children, furious and mad men, also such as either have no knowledge of Christ, or not sufficient, although they profess Christian Religion: and others such like.

<sup>2</sup> This place beateth down the faith of credit, or unwrapped faith, which the Papists maintain.

11:29 <sup>1</sup> He is said to discern the Lord's body, that hath consideration of the worthiness of it, and therefore cometh to eat of this meat with great reverence.

11:30 <sup>1</sup> The profaning of the body and blood of the Lord in his mysteries is sharply punished of him, and therefore such a mischief ought diligently to be prevented by judging and correcting of a man's self.

11:31 <sup>1</sup> Try and examine ourselves, by faith and repentance, separating yourselves from the wicked.

11:33 <sup>1</sup> The Supper of the Lord is a common action of the whole Church, and therefore there is no place, for private suppers.

11:34 <sup>1</sup> The Supper of the Lord was instituted not to feed the belly but to feed the soul with the communion of Christ, and therefore it ought to be separate from common banquets.

<sup>2</sup> Such things as pertain to order, as place, time, form of prayers, and other such like, the Apostle took order for in Congregations according to the consideration of times, places and persons.

1 Now <sup>1</sup>concerning spiritual gifts, brethren, I would not have you <sup>2</sup>ignorant.

2 <sup>1</sup>Ye know that ye were <sup>2</sup>Gentiles, and were carried away unto the dumb idols, as ye were led.

3 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore I declare unto you, that no man <sup>a</sup>speaking by the spirit of God, calleth Jesus <sup>b,2</sup>execrable: also no man can say that Jesus is the Lord, but by the holy Ghost.

4 <sup>1</sup>Now there are diversities of gifts, but the <sup>2</sup>same Spirit.

5 And there are diversities of administrations, but the same Lord.

6 And there are diversities of <sup>1</sup>operations, but God is the same which worketh all in all.

7 But the manifestation of the Spirit is <sup>1</sup>given to every man, to <sup>2</sup>profit withal.

8 <sup>1</sup>For to one is given by the Spirit the word of <sup>2</sup>wisdom: and to another the word of knowledge, by the same Spirit:

9 And to another is given faith by the same Spirit: and to another the gifts of healing, by the same Spirit:

CHAPTER 12

10 And to another the <sup>1</sup>operations of great works: and to another, <sup>2</sup>prophecy: and to another, the <sup>3</sup>discerning of spirits: and to another, diversities of tongues: and to another, the interpretation of tongues.

11 <sup>c</sup>And all these things worketh one and the selfsame Spirit, distributing to every man severally <sup>1</sup>as he will.

12 <sup>1</sup>For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of the body, which is one, though they be many, yet are but one body: <sup>2</sup>even so is <sup>3</sup>Christ.

13 For by one Spirit are we all baptized into <sup>1</sup>one body, whether we be Jews, or Grecians, whether we be bond, or free, and have been all made to <sup>2</sup>drink into one Spirit.

14 <sup>1</sup>For the body also is not one member, but many.

15 <sup>1</sup>If the foot would say, Because I am not the hand, I am not of the body, is it therefore not of the body?

12:1 <sup>1</sup> Now he entereth into the third part of this treatise, touching the right use of spiritual gifts, wherein he giveth the Corinthians plainly to understand that they abused them: for they that excelled, bragged ambitiously of them, and so robbed God of the praise of his gifts: and having no consideration of their brethren abused to a vain ostentation, and so robbed the Church of the use of those gifts. On the other side, the inferior sort envied the better, and went about to make a departure, so that all that body was as it were scattered and rent in pieces. So then he going about to remedy these abuses, will eth them first to consider diligently, that they have not these gifts of themselves, but from the free grace and liberality of God, to whose glory they ought to bestow them all.

12:2 <sup>1</sup> He proveth the same by comparing their former state with that wherein they were at this time endued with those excellent gifts.

12:3 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion: Know you therefore, that you cannot so much as move your lips to honor Christ withal, but by the grace of the holy Ghost.

12:4 <sup>1</sup> In the second place, he layeth another foundation, to wit, that these gifts are divers, as the functions also are divers, and their offices divers, but that one selfsame Spirit Lord and God is the giver of all these gifts, and that to one end, to wit, for the profit of all.

12:6 <sup>1</sup> So Paul endeth that inward force which cometh from the holy Ghost, and maketh men fit to wonderful things.

12:7 <sup>1</sup> The holy Ghost openeth and showeth himself freely in giving of these gifts.

12:8 <sup>1</sup> He declareth this manifold diversity, and reckoneth up the chiefest gifts, beating that into their heads, which he said before, to wit, that all these things proceeded from one selfsame Spirit.

<sup>2</sup> Wisdom is a most excellent gift, very requisite, not only for them which teach, but also for them that exhort and comfort, which thing is proper to the Pastor's office, as the word of knowledge agreeth to the Doctors.

12:10 <sup>1</sup> By operation he meaneth those great workings of God's mighty power, which pass and excel amongst his miracles, as the delivery of his people Israel by the hand of Moses: that which he did by Elijah against the Priests of Baal, in sending down fire from heaven to consume his sacrifice: and that which he did by Peter in the matter of Ananias and Sapphira.

12:11 <sup>1</sup> He addeth moreover something else, to wit, that although these gifts are unequal, yet they are most wisely divided, because the will of the Spirit of God is the rule of this distribution.

12:12 <sup>1</sup> He setteth forth his former saying by a similitude taken from the body: This saith he, is manifestly seen in the body, whose members are divers, but yet so knit together, that they make but one body.

<sup>2</sup> The applying of the similitude. So must we also think, saith he, of the mystical body of Christ: for all we that believe, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, are by one selfsame Baptism joined together with our head, that by that means, there may be framed one body compact of many members: and we have drunk one selfsame spirit, that is to say, a spiritual feeling, perseverance and motion common to us all, out of one cup.

12:14 <sup>1</sup> He amplifieth that which followed of the similitudes, as if he should say, The unity of the body is not only not left by this diversity of members, but also it could not be a body, if it did not consist of many, and those were divers members.

12:15 <sup>1</sup> Now he buildeth his doctrine upon the foundations which he had laid: and first of all he continueth in his purposed similitude, and afterward he goeth to the matter barely and simply. And first of all he speaketh unto them which would have separated themselves from those whom they envied, because they had not such excellent gifts as they: now this is, saith he, as if the foot should say it were not of the body, because it is not the hand: or the ear, because it is not the eye. Therefore all parts ought rather to defend the unity of the body, being coupled together to serve one the other.

16 And if the ear would say, Because I am not the eye, I am not of the body, is it therefore not of the body?

17 <sup>1</sup>If the whole body were an eye, where were the hearing? If the whole were hearing, where were the smelling?

18 But now hath God disposed the members every one of them in the body at his own pleasure.

19 For if they were all one member, where were the body?

20 But now are there many members, yet but one body.

21 <sup>1</sup>And the eye cannot say unto the hand, I have no need of thee: nor the head again to the feet, I have no need of you.

22 Yea, much rather those members of the body, which seem to be <sup>1</sup>more feeble, are necessary.

23 And upon those members of the body, which we think most dishonest, put we more <sup>1</sup>honesty on: and our uncomely parts have more comeliness on.

24 For our comely parts need it not: but God hath tempered the body together: and hath given the more honor to that part which lacked,

25 Lest there should be any division in the body: but that the members should have the same <sup>1</sup>care one for another.

26 <sup>1</sup>Therefore if one member suffer, all suffer with it: if one member be had in honor, all the members rejoice with it.

<sup>d</sup>Eph. 4:11

<sup>d</sup>Matt. 17:20

27 Now ye are the body of Christ, and members for your <sup>1</sup>part.

28 <sup>d</sup>And God hath ordained some in the Church: as first Apostles, secondly Prophets, thirdly teachers, then them that do miracles: after that, the gifts of healing, <sup>1</sup>helpers, <sup>2</sup>governors, diversity of tongues.

29 Are all Apostles? are all Prophets? are all teachers?

30 Are all doers of miracles? have all the gifts of healing? do all speak with tongues? do all interpret?

31 <sup>1</sup>But desire you the best gifts, and I will yet show you a more excellent way.

13 <sup>1</sup>He showeth that there are gifts so excellent, which in God's sight are not corrupt, if Charity be away: and therefore he digresseth unto the commendation of it.

1 Though <sup>1</sup>I speak with the tongues of men and <sup>2</sup>Angels, and have not love, I am as sounding brass, or a <sup>3</sup>tinkling cymbal.

2 And though I had the gift of prophecy, and knew all secrets and all knowledge, yea, if I had all <sup>1</sup>faith, so that I could remove <sup>4</sup>mountains, and had not love, I were nothing.

3 And though I feed the poor with all my goods, and though I give my body, that I be burned, and have not love, it profiteth me nothing.

12:17 <sup>1</sup> Again, speaking to them, he showeth them that if that should come to pass which they desire, to wit, that all should be equal one to another, there would follow a destruction of the whole body, yea, and of themselves: for it could not be a body, unless it were made of many members knit together, and divers one from another. And that no man might find fault with this division as unequal, he addeth that God himself hath coupled all these together. Therefore all must remain coupled together, that the body may remain in safety.

12:21 <sup>1</sup> Now on the other side, he speaketh unto them which were endued with more excellent gifts, willing them not to despise the inferiors as unprofitable, and as though they served to no use: for God, saith he, hath in such sort tempered this inequality, that the more excellent and beautiful members can in no wise lack the more abject and such as we are ashamed of, and that they should have more care to see unto them, and to cover them: that by this means the necessity which is on both parts, might keep the whole body in peace and concord: that although if each part be considered apart, they are of divers degrees and conditions, yet because they are joined together, they have a community both in commodities and discommodities.

12:22 <sup>1</sup> Of the smallest and vilest offices, and therefore finally accounted of, of the rest.

12:25 <sup>1</sup> Should bestow their operations and offices to the profit and preservation of the whole body.

12:26 <sup>1</sup> Now he applieth the same doctrine to the Corinthians without any allegory, warning them that seeing there are divers functions and divers gifts, it is their duty, not to offend one against another, either by envy or ambition, but rather that they being joined together in love and charity one with another, every one of them bestow to the profit of all, that which he hath received, according as his ministry doth require.

12:27 <sup>1</sup> For all churches wheresoever they are dispersed through the whole world, are divers members of one body.

12:31 <sup>1</sup> He teacheth them that are ambitious and envious, a certain holy ambition and envy, to wit, if they give themselves to the best gifts, and such as are most profitable to the Church, and so if they contend to excel one another in love, which surpasseth all other gifts.

13:1 <sup>1</sup> He reasoneth first of Charity, the excellency whereof he first showeth by this, that without it, all other gifts are as nothing before God which thing he proveth partly by an induction, and partly also by an argument taken of the end, whereof those gifts are given. For to what purpose are those gifts, but to God's glory, and the profit of the Church, as is before proved? so that those gifts, without Charity, have no right use.

<sup>2</sup> A very earnest kind of amplifying a matter, as if he said, If there were any tongues of Angels, and I had them, and did not use them to the benefit of my neighbor, it were nothing else but a vain and prattling type of babbling.

13:2 <sup>1</sup> By faith, he meaneth the gift of doing miracles, and not that faith which justified, which cannot be void of Charity as the other may.

13:4 <sup>1</sup> He describeth the force and nature of charity, partly by a comparison of contraries, and partly by the effects of itself: whereby the Corinthians may understand, both how profitable it is in the Church, and how necessary and also how far they are from it: and therefore how vainly and without cause they are proud.

not: love doth not boast itself: it is not puffed up:

5 It doth <sup>1</sup>no uncomely thing: it seeketh not her own thing: it is not provoked to anger: it thinketh no evil:

6 It rejoiceth not in iniquity, but <sup>1</sup>rejoiceth in the truth:

7 It suffereth all things: it believeth all things: it hopeth all things: it endureth all things.

8 <sup>1</sup>Love doth never fall away, though that prophesyings be abolished, or the tongues cease, or <sup>2</sup>knowledge vanish away.

9 <sup>1</sup>For we know in <sup>2</sup>part, and we prophesy in part.

10 But when that which is perfect, is come, then that which is in part shall be abolished.

11 <sup>1</sup>When I was a child, I spake as a child: I understood as a child, I thought as a child: but when I became a man, I put away childish things.

12 <sup>1</sup>For <sup>2</sup>now we see through a glass darkly: but then shall we see face to face. Now I know in part:

but then shall I know even as I am known.

13 <sup>1</sup>And now abideth faith, hope and love, even these three: but the chiefest of these is love.

1 Follow <sup>1</sup>after love, and covet spiritual gifts, and rather that ye may <sup>2</sup>prophesy.

2 <sup>1</sup>For he that speaketh a strange tongue, speaketh not unto men, but unto God: for no man heareth him: howbeit in the <sup>3</sup>spirit he speaketh secret things.

3 But he that prophesieth, speaketh unto men to <sup>1</sup>edifying, and to exhortation, and to comfort.

4 He that speaketh strange language, edifieth himself: but he that prophesieth, edifieth the <sup>1</sup>Church.

5 I would that ye all spake strange languages, but rather that ye prophesied: for greater is he that 13:5 <sup>1</sup> It is not contumelious.

13:6 <sup>1</sup> Rejoice that righteousness in the righteous. For the Hebrews mean by truth, righteousness.

13:8 <sup>1</sup> Again he commendeth the excellency of charity, in that that it shall never be abolished in the Saints, whereas the other gifts which are necessary for the building up of the Church, so long as we live here, shall have no place in the world to come.

13:9 <sup>1</sup> The reason: Because we are now in the state, that we have need to learn daily, and therefore we have need of those helps, to wit, of the gift of tongues, and knowledge, and also of those that teach them. But to what purpose serve they then, when we have obtained and gotten the full knowledge of God, which serve now but for them which are imperfect, and go by degrees to perfection?

13:11 <sup>1</sup> He setteth forth that that he said, by an excellent similitude, comparing this life to our infancy or childhood, wherein we stagger and stammer rather than speak, and think and understand but childish things, and therefore have need of such things as may form and frame our tongue and mind: But when we become men, to what purpose should we desire that stammering, those childish toys, and such like things, whereby our childhood is framed by little and little?

13:12 <sup>1</sup> The applying of the similitude of our childhood to this present life, wherein we darkly behold heavenly things, according to the small measure of light which is given us, through the understanding of tongues, and hearing the teachers and ministers of the Church: of our man's age and strength, to that heavenly and eternal life, wherein when we behold God himself present, and are lightened with his full and perfect light, to what purpose should we desire the voice of man, and those worldly things which are most imperfect? But yet then, shall all the Saints be knit both with God, and between themselves with most fervent love, and therefore charity shall not be abolished, but perfected, although it shall not be showeth forth and entertained by such manner of duties as peculiarly and only belong to the infirmity of this life.

13:13 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion: As if the Apostle should say, Such therefore shall be our condition then: but now we have three things, and they remain sure if we be Christ's as without which true religion cannot consist, to wit, faith, hope, and charity. And among these, charity is the chiefest, because it ceaseth not in the life to come as the rest do, but is perfected and accomplished. For seeing that faith and hope tend to things which are promised, and are to come, when we have presently gotten them, to what purpose should we have faith and hope? but yet there at length shall we truly and perfectly love both God, and one another.

14:1 <sup>1</sup> He inferreth now that, that he spake before: Therefore seeing charity is the chiefest of all, before all things set it before you as chief and principal: and so esteem those things as most excellent: which profit the greater part of men: (as prophecy that is to say, the gifts of teaching and applying the doctrine, which was contemned in respect of other gifts, although it be chiefest and most necessary for the Church) and not those which for a show seem to be marvelous as the gifts of tongues, when a man was suddenly endued with the knowledge of many tongues, which made men greatly amazed, and yet of itself was not greatly to any use, unless there were an interpreter.

14:2 <sup>1</sup> He reprehendeth their perverse judgment touching the gift of tongues. For why was it given? to wit, to the intent that the mysteries of God might be the better known to a greater sort. Thereby it is evident that Prophecy, whereunto the gift of tongues ought to serve, is better than this: and therefore the Corinthians did judge amiss, in that they made more account of the gift of tongues, than of prophesying: because forsooth the gift of tongues was a thing more to be bragged of. And hereupon followed another abuse of the gift of tongues, in that the Corinthians used tongues in the Congregation, without an interpreter. Which thing although it might be done to some profit of him, that spake them, yet he corrupted the right use of that gift, because there came thereby no profit to the hearers: and common assemblies were instituted and appointed not for any private man's commodity, but for the profit of the whole company.

<sup>3</sup> By that inspiration which he has received of the Spirit, which notwithstanding he abuseth, when he speaketh mysteries which none of the company can understand.

14:3 <sup>1</sup> Which may further men in the study of godliness.

prophesieth, than he that speaketh diverse tongues, except he expound it, that the Church may receive edification.

6 And now, brethren, if I come unto you speaking diverse tongues, what shall I profit you, except I speak to you, either by revelation, or by knowledge, or by prophesying, or by doctrine?

7 <sup>1</sup>Moreover things without life which give a sound, whether it be a pipe or an harp, except they make a distinction in the sounds, how shall it be known what is piped or harped?

8 And also if the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who shall prepare himself to battle?

9 So likewise you, by the tongue, except ye utter words that have <sup>1</sup>signification, how shall it be understood what is spoken? for ye shall speak in the air.

10 <sup>1</sup>There are so many kinds of voices (as it cometh to pass) in the world, and none of them is dumb.

11 Except I know then the power of the voice, I shall be unto him that speaketh a Barbarian, and he that <sup>1</sup>speaketh, shall be a Barbarian unto me.

12 <sup>1</sup>Even so, forasmuch as ye covet spiritual gifts, seek that ye may excel unto the edifying of the Church.

13 Wherefore, let him that speaketh a strange tongue, <sup>1</sup>pray that he may interpret.

14 <sup>1</sup>For <sup>2</sup>if I pray in a strange tongue, my <sup>3</sup>spirit prayeth: but mine understanding is <sup>4</sup>without fruit.

15 What is it then? I will pray with the spirit, but I will pray with the <sup>1</sup>understanding also: I will sing with the spirit: but I will sing with the understanding also.

16 <sup>1</sup>Else, when thou blessest with the <sup>2</sup>spirit, how shall he that <sup>3</sup>occupieth the room of the unlearned, say <sup>4</sup>Amen, at thy giving of thanks, seeing he knowest not what thou sayest?

17 For thou verily givest thanks well, but the other is not edified.

18 <sup>1</sup>I thank my God, I speak languages more than ye all.

19 Yet had I rather in the Church to speak <sup>1</sup>five words with mine understanding, that I might also instruct others, than ten thousand words in a strange tongue.

20 <sup>1</sup>Brethren, be not <sup>a</sup>children in understanding, but as concerning maliciousness be children, but in understanding be of a ripe age.

21 In the <sup>1</sup>Law it is written, <sup>b</sup>By men of other tongues, and by other languages will I speak unto this people: yet so shall they not hear me, saith the Lord.

22 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore strange tongues are for a sign, not to them that believe, but to them that believe not: but prophesying serveth not for them that believe not, but for them which believe.

23 <sup>1</sup>If therefore, when the whole Church is come together in one, and all speak strange tongues, there come in they that are <sup>2</sup>unlearned, or they which believe 14:7 <sup>1</sup> He setteth forth that which he said, by a similitude, which he borroweth and taketh from instruments of music, which although they speak not perfectly, yet they are distinguished by their sounds, that they may be the better used.

14:9 <sup>1</sup> That do fitly utter the matter itself.

14:10 <sup>1</sup> He proveth that interpretation is necessarily to be joined with the gift of tongues, by the manifold variety of languages, inasmuch that if one speak to another without an interpreter, it is as if he spake not.

14:11 <sup>1</sup> As the Papists in all their sermons and they that ambitiously pour out some Hebrew or Greek words in the Pulpit before the unlearned people, thereby to get them a name of vain learning.

14:12 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion: if they will excel in those spiritual gifts, as it is meet, they must seek the profit of the Church, and therefore they must not use gift of tongues, unless there is an interpreter to expound the strange and unknown tongue, whether it be himself that speaketh, or another interpreter.

14:13 <sup>1</sup> Pray for the gift of interpretation.

14:14 <sup>1</sup> A reason: Because it is not sufficient for us to speak so in the Congregation, that we ourselves do worship God in spirit, that is, according to the gift that we have received, but we must also be understood of the company, lest that be unprofitable to others which we have spoken.

<sup>2</sup> If I pray, when the church is assembled together, in a strange tongue.

<sup>3</sup> The gift and inspiration which the spirit giveth me, doeth his part, but only to myself.

14:15 <sup>1</sup> So that I may be understood of others, and may instruct others.

14:16 <sup>1</sup> Another reason: Seeing that the whole Congregation must agree to him that speaketh, and also witness this agreement, how shall they give their assent or agreement which know not what is spoken?

<sup>2</sup> Only without all consideration of the hearers.

<sup>4</sup> So then one uttered the prayers, and all the company answered, Amen.

14:18 <sup>1</sup> He propoundeth himself for an example, both that they may be ashamed of their foolish ambition, and also that he may eschew all suspicion of envy.

14:19 <sup>1</sup> A very few words.

14:20 <sup>1</sup> Now he reprovet them freely for their childish folly, which see not how this gift of tongues which was given to the profit of the Church, is turned by their ambition into an instrument of cursing, seeing that this same also is contained amongst the punishments wherewith God punished the stubbornness of his people, that he dispersed them amongst strangers whose language they understood not.

14:21 <sup>1</sup> By the Law he understandeth all the whole Scripture.

14:22 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion: Therefore the gift of tongues serveth to punish the unfaithful and unbelievers, unless it be referred to prophecy (that is to say, to the interpretation of Scripture) and that that which is spoken, be by the means understood of the hearers.

14:23 <sup>1</sup> Another argument: The gift of tongues without prophecy is not only unprofitable to the faithful: but also doth very much hurt as well to them as to the unfaithful which should be won in the public assemblies. For by this means it cometh to pass, that the faithful seem to others to be mad, much less can the unfaithful be instructed thereby.

not, will they not say, that ye are out of your wits?

24 But if all prophesy, and there come in one that believeth not, or one unlearned, he is rebuked of all men, and is judged of all,

25 And so are the secrets of his heart made manifest, and so he will fall down on his face and worship God, and say plainly that God is in you indeed.

26 <sup>1</sup>What is to be done then, brethren? when ye come together, according as every one of you hath a Psalm, or hath doctrine, or hath a tongue, or hath revelation, or hath interpretation, let all things be done unto edifying.

27 <sup>1</sup>If any man speak a strange tongue, let it be by two, or at the most, by three, and that by course, and let one interpret.

28 But if there be no interpreter, let him keep silence in the Church, which speaketh languages, and let him speak to himself, and to God.

29 <sup>1</sup>Let the Prophets speak, two or three, and let the others judge.

30 And if anything be revealed to another that sitteth by, let the first hold his peace.

31 For ye may all prophesy one by one, that all may learn, and all may have comfort.

32 And the <sup>1</sup>spirits of the Prophets are subject to the Prophets.

33 For God is not the author of confusion, but of peace, as we see in all the Churches of the Saints.

34 <sup>1</sup>Let your women keep silence in the Churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak: but they ought to be subject, as also <sup>1</sup>the Law saith.

35 And if they will learn anything, let them ask their husbands at home: for it is a shame for women to speak in the Church.

36 <sup>1</sup>Came the word of God out from you? either came it unto you only?

37 If any man think himself to be a Prophet, or <sup>1</sup>spiritual, let him acknowledge, that the things that I write unto you, are the commandments of the Lord.

38 <sup>1</sup>And if any man be ignorant, let him be ignorant.

39 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore, brethren, covet to prophesy, and forbid not to speak languages.

40 Let all things be done honestly, and by order.

15 <sup>1</sup>The Gospel that Paul preached. <sup>3</sup>The death and resurrection of Christ. <sup>8</sup>Paul saw Christ. <sup>9</sup>He had persecuted that Church, whereof afterward he was made a minister. <sup>12</sup>Christ first rose again, and we all shall rise by him. <sup>26</sup>The last enemy, death. <sup>29</sup>To be baptized for dead. <sup>32</sup>At Ephesus Paul fought with beasts. <sup>35</sup>How the dead are raised. <sup>45</sup>The first Adam. The last Adam, <sup>47</sup>The first and second man. <sup>51</sup>We shall all be changed, we shall not all sleep. <sup>55</sup>Death's sting. <sup>57</sup>Victory. <sup>58</sup>Constasy and steadfastness.

1 Moreover <sup>a1</sup>brethren, I declare unto you the Gospel which I preached unto you, which ye have also received, and wherein ye <sup>2</sup>continue,

2 And whereby ye are saved, if ye keep in memory, after what manner I preached it unto you, <sup>1</sup>except ye have believed in vain.

3 For first of all, I delivered unto you that which I received, how that Christ died for our sins, according to the <sup>b</sup>Scriptures,

4 And that he was buried, and that he arose the third day, according to the <sup>c</sup>Scriptures,

5 <sup>d</sup>And that he was seen of Cephas, then of the <sup>1</sup>twelve.

14:26 <sup>1</sup>The conclusion: The edifying of the Congregation is a rule and square of the right use of all spiritual gifts.

14:27 <sup>1</sup>The manner how to use the gift of tongues. It may be lawful for one or two, or at the most three, to use the gift of tongues, one after another in an assembly, so that there be some to expound the same: but if there are none to expound, let him that hath that gift, speak to himself alone.

14:29 <sup>1</sup>The manner of prophesying: Let two or three propound, and let the other judge of that that is propounded, whether it be agreeable to the word of God or no: If in this examination the Lord give any man nought to speak, let them give him leave to speak. Let every man be admitted to prophesy, severally and in his order, so far forth as it is required for the edifying of the Church. Let them be content to be subject to each other's judgment.

14:32 <sup>1</sup>The doctrine which the Prophets bring which are inspired with God's Spirit.

14:34 <sup>1</sup>Women are commanded to be silent in public assemblies, and they are commanded to ask of their husbands at home.

14:36 <sup>1</sup>A general conclusion of the treatise of the right use of spiritual gifts in assemblies: with a sharp reprehension, lest the Corinthians might alone seem to themselves to be wise.

14:37 <sup>1</sup>Skillful in knowing and judging spiritual things.

14:38 <sup>1</sup>The Church ought not to care for such as be stubbornly ignorant, and will not abide to be taught, but to go forward notwithstanding in those things which are right.

14:39 <sup>1</sup>Prophecy ought simply to be retained and kept in Congregations, the gift of tongues is not to be forbidden, but all things must be done orderly.

15:1 <sup>1</sup>The sixth treatise of this Epistle, concerning the resurrection: and he useth a transition, or passing over from one matter to another, showing first that he bringeth no new thing, to the end that the Corinthians might understand that they had begun to swerve from the right course: and next that he goeth not about to entreat of a trifling matter, but of another chief point of the Gospel, which if it be taken away, their faith must needs come to nought. And so at the length he beginneth this treatise at Christ's resurrection, which is the ground and foundation of ours, and confirmeth it first by the testimony of the Scriptures, and by the witness of the Apostles, and of more than five hundred brethren, and last of all his own.

15:2 <sup>1</sup>Which is very absurd, and cannot be, but that they believe, must reap the fruit of faith.

15:5 <sup>1</sup>Of those twelve picked and chosen Apostles, which were commonly called twelve, though Judas was put out of the number.

6 After that, he was seen of more than five hundred brethren at <sup>1</sup>once: whereof many remain unto this present, and some also are asleep.

7 After that, he was seen of James: then of all the Apostles.

8 <sup>e1</sup>And last of all he was seen also of me, as of one born out of due time.

9 <sup>f</sup>For I am the least of the Apostles, which am not meet to be called an Apostle, because I persecuted the Church of God.

10 <sup>g</sup>But by the grace of God I am that I am: and his grace which is in me, was not in vain: but I labored more abundantly than they all: yet not I, but the grace of God which is with me.

11 Wherefore, whether it were I, or they, so we preach, and so have ye believed.

12 ¶ <sup>h1</sup>Now if it be preached, that Christ is risen from the dead, how say some among you, that there is no resurrection of the dead?

13 <sup>i</sup>For if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen:

14 <sup>j</sup>And if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain.

15 And we are found also false witnesses of God: for we have testified of God, that he hath raised up Christ: whom he hath not raised up, if so be the dead be not raised.

16 <sup>k1</sup>For if the dead be not raised, then is Christ not raised.

17 And if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain: <sup>l</sup>ye are <sup>2</sup>yet in your sins.

18 And so they which are asleep in Christ, are perished.

19 <sup>m</sup>If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men the most miserable.

20 <sup>n</sup>But now is Christ risen from the dead, <sup>2</sup>and was made the <sup>h,3</sup>firstfruits of them that slept.

21 <sup>o</sup>For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead.

22 For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be <sup>1</sup>made alive.

23 <sup>p</sup>But every man in his <sup>1</sup>own order: the firstfruits is Christ, afterward, they that are of Christ, at his coming shall rise again.

24 <sup>q</sup>Then shall be the <sup>2</sup>end, when he hath delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father, when he hath 15:6 <sup>1</sup> Not fewer all times, but together and at one instant.

15:8 <sup>1</sup> He maintaineth by the way, the authority of his Apostleship, which was requisite to be in good credit among the Corinthians, that this Epistle might be of force and weight amongst them. In the mean season he compareth himself to such sort after a certain divine art with certain others, that he maketh himself inferior to them all.

15:12 <sup>1</sup> The first argument to prove that there is a resurrection from the dead: Christ is risen again, therefore the dead shall rise again.

15:13 <sup>1</sup> The second by an absurdity, If there is no resurrection of the dead, then is not Christ risen again.

15:14 <sup>1</sup> The proof of that absurdity by other absurdities: If Christ be not risen again, the preaching of the Gospel is in vain, and the credit that you gave unto it is vain, and we are liars.

15:16 <sup>1</sup> He repeateth the same argument taken of an absurdity, purposing to show how faith is in vain if the resurrection of Christ be taken away.

15:17 <sup>1</sup> First, seeing death is the punishment of sin, in vain should we believe that our sins were forgiven us, if they remain: but they do remain, if Christ rose not from death.

<sup>2</sup> They are yet in their sins, which are not sanctified, nor have obtained remission of their sins.

15:18 <sup>1</sup> Secondly, unless that this be certain that Christ rose again, all they which died in Christ, are perished. So then what profit cometh of faith?

15:19 <sup>1</sup> The third argument, which is also taken from an absurdity: for unless there be another life, wherein such as trust and believe in Christ shall be blessed, they were the most miserable of all creatures, because in this life they are the most miserable.

15:20 <sup>1</sup> A conclusion of the former argument: Therefore Christ is risen again.

<sup>2</sup> He putteth the last conclusion for the first proposition of the argument that followeth. Christ is risen again, Therefore shall we the faithful (for of them he speaketh) rise again: Then followeth the first reason of this consequent: for Christ is set forth unto us, to be considered of, not as a private man apart and by himself, but as the firstfruits: And he taketh that which was known, to all men, to wit, that the whole heap is sanctified in the firstfruits.

15:21 <sup>1</sup> Another confirmation of the same consequent: for Christ is to be considered as opposite to Adam, that as from one man Adam, sin came over all, so from one man Christ, life cometh unto all: that is to say, that all the faithful, as they die, because by nature they were born of Adam, so because in Christ they are made the children of God by grace, they are quickened and restored to life by him.

15:23 <sup>1</sup> He doeth two things together: for he showeth that the resurrection is in such sort common to Christ with all his members, that notwithstanding he far passeth them, both in time (for he was the first that rose again from the dead) and also in honor, because that from him and in him is all our life and glory. Then by this occasion he passeth in the next argument.

15:24 <sup>1</sup> The fourth argument, wherewith also he confirmeth the others, hath a most sure ground, to wit, because that God must reign. And this is the manner of his reign, that the Father will be showed to be King in his Son who was made man, to whom all things are made subject (the promiser only except) to the end that the Father may afterward triumph in his Son the conqueror. And he maketh two parts of this reign and dominion of the Son, wherein the Father's glory consisteth: to wit, the overcoming of his enemies (whereof some must be deprived of all power, as Satan and all the wicked, be they never so proud and mighty, and others must be utterly abolished as death) and a plain and full delivery of the godly from all enemies, that by this means God may fully set forth the body of the Church, cleaving fast to their head Christ, his kingdom and glory as a king in his subjects. Moreover he putteth the first degree of this kingdom in the resurrection of the Son, who is the head: and the perfection, in the full conjunction of the members with the head, which shall be in the latter day. Now all these tend to this purpose, to show that unless the dead do rise again, neither the Father can be King above all, neither Christ be Lord of all: for neither should the power of Satan and death be overcome, nor the glory of God be full in his Son, nor his Son in his members.

put down <sup>3</sup>all rule, and all authority and power.

25 For he must reign <sup>7</sup>till he hath put all his enemies <sup>1</sup>under his feet.

26 The <sup>1</sup>last enemy that shall be destroyed, is death.

27 <sup>k</sup>For he hath put down all things under his feet. (And when he saith that all things are subdued to him, it is manifest that he is excepted, which did put down all things under him.)

28 And when all things shall be subdued unto him, <sup>1</sup>then shall the Son also himself be subject unto him, that did subdue all things under him, that <sup>2</sup>God may be all in all.

29 <sup>1</sup>Else what shall they do which are baptized <sup>2</sup>for dead? if the dead rise not at all, why are they then baptized for dead?

30 <sup>1</sup>Why are we also in jeopardy every hour?

31 By your <sup>1</sup>rejoicing which I have in Christ Jesus our Lord, I die daily.

32 <sup>1</sup>If I have fought with beasts at Ephesus <sup>2</sup>after the manner of men, what advantageth it me, if the dead be not raised up? <sup>13</sup>let us <sup>4</sup>eat and drink: for tomorrow we shall die.

34 Awake to live righteously, and sin not: for some have not the knowledge of God, I speak this to your shame.

35 <sup>1</sup>But some man will say, How are the dead raised up? and with what body come they forth?

36 <sup>1</sup>O fool, that which thou sowest, is not quickened, except it die.

37 And that which thou sowest, thou sowest not that body that shall be, but bare corn as it falleth, of wheat, or of some other.

38 <sup>1</sup>But God giveth it a body at his pleasure, even to every seed his own body.

39 All flesh is not the same flesh, but there is one flesh of men, and another flesh of beasts, and another of fishes, and another of birds:

40 There are also heavenly bodies, and earthly bodies: but the glory of the heavenly is one, and the glory of the earthly is another.

41 There is another glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars:

<sup>3</sup> All his enemies which shall be spoiled of all the power they have.

15:25 <sup>1</sup> Christ is considered here, as he appeared in the form of a servant, in which respect he ruleth the Church as head, and that because this power was given him of his Father.

15:26 <sup>1</sup> The shutting up of the argument, which is taken from the whole to the part: for if all his enemies shall be put under his feet, then must it needs be that death also shall be subdued under him.

15:28 <sup>1</sup> Not because the Son was not subject to his Father before, but because his body, that is to say, the Church which is here in distress, and not yet wholly partaker of his glory, is not yet fully perfect, and also because the bodies of the saints which be in the graves shall not be glorified until the resurrection: but Christ as he is God, hath us subject to him as his Father hath, but as he is Priest, he is subject to his father together with us. Augustine, book 1, chap. 8, of the Trinity.

<sup>2</sup> By this high kind of speech, is set forth an incomprehensible glory which floweth from God, and shall fill all of us, as we are joined together with our head, but yet so, that our head shall always reserve his preeminence.

15:29 <sup>1</sup> The fifth argument taken of the end of Baptism, to wit, because that they which are baptized, are baptized for dead, that is to say, that they may have a remedy against death because that Baptism is a token of regeneration.

<sup>2</sup> They that are baptized, to this end and purpose, that death may be put out in them, or to rise again from the dead, whereof baptism is a seal.

15:30 <sup>1</sup> The sixth argument: Unless there be a resurrection of the dead, why should the Apostles so daily cast themselves into danger of so many deaths?

15:31 <sup>1</sup> As though he said, I die daily, as all the miseries I suffer can well witness, which I may truly boast of, that I have suffered amongst you.

15:32 <sup>1</sup> The taking away of an objection: but thou Paul, didst ambitiously, as commonly men are wont to do, when thou didst fight with beasts at Ephesus: That is very like, saith Paul, for what could that advantage me, were it not for the glory of eternal life which I hope for?

<sup>2</sup> Not upon any godly motion, nor casting mine eyes upon God, but carried away with vain glory, or a certain headiness.

<sup>3</sup> The seventh argument which dependeth upon the last: if there be no resurrection of the dead, why do we give ourselves to anything else, save to eating and drinking?

15:33 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion with a sharp exhortation, that they take heed of the naughty company of certain: from whence he showeth that this mischief sprang: warning them to be wise with sobriety unto righteousness.

15:35 <sup>1</sup> Now that he hath proved the resurrection, he discovereth their doltishness, in that they scoffingly demanded, how it could be that the dead should rise again, and if they did rise again, they asked mockingly, what manner of bodies they should have. Therefore he sendeth these fellows which seemed to themselves to be marvelous wise and witty, to be instructed of poor rude husbandmen.

15:36 <sup>1</sup> Thou mightest have learned either of these, saith Paul, by daily experience: for seeds are sown, and rot, and yet notwithstanding so far it is off, that they perish, that contrarywise they grow up far more beautiful: and whereas they are sown naked and dry, they spring up green from death by the virtue of God: and doth it seem incredible to thee that our bodies should rise from corruption, and that endued with a far more excellent quality?

15:38 <sup>1</sup> We see a diversity both in one and the selfsame thing which hath now one form and then another, and yet keepeth its own kind, as it is evident in a grain which is sown bare, but springeth up far after another sort: and also in divers kinds of one selfsame sort, as amongst beasts: and also among things of divers sorts, as the heavenly bodies and the earthly bodies: which also differ very much one from another. Therefore there is no cause why we should reject either the resurrection of the bodies, or changing of them into a better state, as a thing impossible, or strange.

for one star differeth from another star in glory.

42 <sup>1</sup>So also is the resurrection of the dead. The body is <sup>2</sup>sown in corruption, and is raised in incorruption.

43 It is sown in <sup>1</sup>dishonor, and is raised in glory: it is sown in weakness, and is raised in <sup>2</sup>power.

44 <sup>1</sup>It is sown a natural body, and is raised a spiritual body: there is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body.

45 <sup>1</sup>As it is also written, The <sup>2</sup>first man <sup>m</sup>Adam was made a living soul: and the last Adam was made a <sup>3</sup>quickening spirit.

46 <sup>1</sup>Howbeit that was not first which is spiritual: but that which is natural, and afterward that which is spiritual.

47 The first man is of the earth, <sup>1</sup>earthly: the second man is the Lord from <sup>2</sup>heaven.

48 <sup>1</sup>As is the earthly, such are they that are earthly: and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly.

49 And as we have born the <sup>1</sup>image of the earthly, so shall we bear the image of the heavenly.

50 <sup>1</sup>This say I, brethren, that <sup>2</sup>flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God, neither doth corruption inherit incorruption.

not all sleep, but we shall all be changed,

52 In <sup>1</sup>a moment, in the twinkling of an eye at the last <sup>2</sup>trumpet: for the trumpet shall blow, and the dead shall be raised up incorruptible, and we shall be changed.

53 For this corruptible must put on incorruption: and this mortal must put on immortality.

54 So when this corruptible hath put on incorruption, and this mortal hath put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying, that is written, <sup>o</sup>Death is swallowed up into victory.

55 O death where is thy sting? O grave where is thy victory?

56 The sting of death is sin: and the strength of sin is the Law.

57 <sup>p</sup>But thanks be unto God, which hath given us victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

58 <sup>1</sup>Therefore my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, abundant always in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the <sup>2</sup>Lord.

15:42 <sup>1</sup> He maketh three manner of qualities of the bodies being raised: Incorruption, to wit, because they shall be sound, and altogether of a nature that cannot be corrupt: Glory, because they shall be adorned with beauty and honor: Power, because they shall continue everlasting without meat, drink, and all other helps, without which this frail life cannot keep itself from corruption.

15:43 <sup>1</sup> Void of honor, void of glory, and beauty.

<sup>2</sup> Freed from the former weakness, whereas it is subject to such alteration and change, that it cannot maintain itself without meat and drink, and such otherlike helps.

15:44 <sup>1</sup> He showeth perfectly in one word, this change of the quality of the body by the resurrection, when he saith, that of a natural body, it shall become a spiritual body, which two qualities being clean different, the one from the other, he straightway expoundeth and setteth forth diligently.

15:45 <sup>1</sup> That is called a natural body, which is quickened and maintained by a living soul only, such as Adam was, of whom all we are born naturally: and that is said to be a spiritual, which together with the soul is quickened with a far more excellent virtue: to wit, with the Spirit of God, which descendeth from Christ the second Adam unto us.

<sup>2</sup> Adam is called the first man, because he is the root as it were from which we spring: and Christ is the latter man: because he is the beginning of all them that are spiritual, and in him we are all comprehended.

<sup>3</sup> Christ is called a Spirit, by reason of that most excellent nature, that is to say, God who dwelleth in him bodily, as Adam is called a living soul, by reason of the soul which is the best part in him.

15:46 <sup>1</sup> Secondly he willett the order of this double state or quality to be observed, that the natural was first, Adam being created of the clay of the earth: and the spiritual followed and came upon it, to wit, when the Lord being sent from heaven, endued our flesh which was prepared and made fit for him, with the fulness of the Godhead.

15:47 <sup>1</sup> Wallowing in dirt, and wholly given to an earthly nature.

<sup>2</sup> The Lord is said to come down from heaven by that kind of speech, whereby that which is proper to one is touched of another.

15:48 <sup>1</sup> He applieth both the earthly naturalness of Adam (if I may so say) to our bodies, so long as they are naturally conversant on earth, to wit, in this life, and in the grave: and also the spirituality of Christ to the same our bodies, after that they are risen again: and he saith, that that goeth before and this shall follow.

15:49 <sup>1</sup> Not a vain and false image, but such an one as had the truth with it indeed.

15:50 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion: We cannot be partakers of the glory of God, unless we put off all that gross and filthy nature of our bodies subject to corruption, that the same body may be adorned with incorruptible glory.

15:51 <sup>1</sup> He goeth further, declaring that it shall come to pass that they which shall be found alive in the latterday, shall not descend into that corruption of the grave, but shall be renewed with a sudden change, which change is very requisite: and that the certain enjoying of the benefit and victory of Christ, is deferred unto that latter time.

<sup>2</sup> A thing that hath been hid, and never known hitherto, and therefore worthy that you give good care unto it.

15:52 <sup>1</sup> He showeth us that the time shall be very short.

15:58 <sup>1</sup> An exhortation taken from the profit that ensueth, that seeing they understand that the glory of the other life is laid up for faithful workmen, they continue and stand fast in the truth of the doctrine of the resurrection of the dead.

1 Concerning <sup>1</sup>the gathering for the Saints, as I have ordained in the Churches of Galatia, so do ye also.

2 Every <sup>1</sup>first day of the week, let every one of you put aside by himself, and lay up as God hath <sup>2</sup>prospered him, that then there be no gatherings when I come.

3 And when I am come, whomsoever ye shall allow by <sup>1</sup>letters, them will I send to bring your liberality unto Jerusalem.

4 <sup>1</sup>And if it be meet that I go also, they shall go with me.

5 Now I will come unto you, after I have gone through Macedonia (for I will pass through Macedonia.)

6 And it may be that I will abide, yea, or winter with you, that ye may bring me on my way, whithersoever I go.

7 For I will not see you now in my passage, but I trust to abide a while with you, if the Lord permit.

8 And I will tarry at Ephesus until Pentecost.

9 For a great door and <sup>1</sup>effectual is opened unto me, and there are many adversaries.

10 ¶ Now if Timothy come, see that he be <sup>1</sup>without fear with you: for he worketh the work of the Lord, even as I do.

11 Let no man therefore despise him: but convey him forth <sup>1</sup>in peace, that he may come unto me: for I looked for him with the brethren.

12 As touching our brother Apollos, I greatly desired him to come unto you with the brethren: but his mind was not at all to come at this time: howbeit he will come when he shall have convenient time.

CHAPTER 16

13 ¶ Watch ye: stand fast in the faith: quit you like men, and be strong.

14 Let all your things be done in love.

15 Now brethren, I beseech you (ye know the house of <sup>1</sup>Stephanas, that it is the firstfruits of Achaia, and that they have <sup>2</sup>given themselves to minister unto the Saints.)

16 That ye be <sup>1</sup>obedient even unto such, and to all that help with us and labor.

17 I am glad of the coming of Stephanas, and Fortunatus, and Achaicus: for they have supplied the want of you.

18 For they have comforted my <sup>1</sup>spirit and yours: <sup>2</sup>acknowledge therefore such men.

19 The Churches of Asia salute you: Aquila and Priscilla with the Church that is in their house, salute you greatly in the Lord.

20 All the brethren greet you. Greet ye one another with an <sup>a</sup>holy kiss.

21 The salutation of me Paul with mine own hand.

22 If any man love not the Lord Jesus Christ, let him be had in execration <sup>1</sup>maran-atha.

23 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.

24 My love be with you all in Christ Jesus, Amen.

The first Epistle to the Corinthians, written from Philippi, and sent by Stephanas, and Fortunatus, and Achaicus, and Timothy.

16:1 <sup>1</sup> Collections in old time were made by the Apostles appointment the first day of the week, on which day the manner was then to assemble themselves.

16:2 <sup>1</sup> Which in times past was called Sunday, but now is called the Lord's day.

<sup>2</sup> That every man bestow, according to the ability that God hath blessed him with.

16:3 <sup>1</sup> Which you shall give them to carry.

16:4 <sup>1</sup> The residue of the Epistle is spent in writing of familiar matters, yet so that all things be referred to his purposed mark, that is to say, to the glory of God, and the edifying of the Corinthians.

16:9 <sup>1</sup> Very fit and convenient to do great things by.

16:10 <sup>1</sup> Without any just occasion of fear.

16:11 <sup>1</sup> Safe and sound, and that with all kinds of courtesy.

16:15 <sup>1</sup> Stephanas is the name of a man and not of a woman.

16:16 <sup>1</sup> That you honor and reverence them, be obedient to them and be content to be ruled by them, as meet as you should, seeing they have bestowed themselves, and their goods to help you withall.

16:22 <sup>1</sup> By these words, are betokened the [secret] kind of curse and excommunication that was amongst the Jews: and the words are as much as to say, as our Lord cometh: So that his meaning may be this, Let him be accursed even to the coming of the Lord, that is to say, to his death's day, even for ever.

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF PAUL TO THE CORINTHIANS

1 1 He beginneth with the praise of afflictions, 8 declaring what he hath suffered in Asia, 10 and how happily God assisted him. 17 He saith it was not upon any lightness, that he came not, according to his promise.

1 PAUL <sup>1</sup>an Apostle of JESUS Christ, by the will of God, and our brother Timothy, to the Church of God, which is at Corinth, with all the Saints, which are in all Achaia:

2 Grace be with you, and peace from God, our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 <sup>a,12</sup>Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of <sup>2</sup>mercies, and the God of all comfort,

4 Which comforteth us in all our tribulation, <sup>1</sup>that we may be able to comfort them which are in any affliction by the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God.

5 For as the <sup>1</sup>sufferings of Christ abound in us, so our consolation aboundeth through Christ.

6 <sup>1</sup>And whether we be afflicted, it is for your consolation and salvation, which is <sup>2</sup>wrought in the enduring of the same sufferings, which we also

suffer: or whether we be comforted, it is for your consolation and salvation.

7 And our hope is steadfast concerning you, in as much as we know, that as ye are partakers of the sufferings, so shall ye be also of the consolation.

8 <sup>1</sup>For brethren, we would not have you ignorant of our affliction, which came unto us in Asia, how we were pressed out of measure passing strength, so that we altogether <sup>2</sup>doubted even of life.

9 Yea, we received the sentence of death in <sup>1</sup>ourselves, because we should not rest in ourselves, but in God, which raised the dead.

10 Who delivered us from so <sup>1</sup>great a death, and doth deliver us: in whom we trust, that yet hereafter he will deliver us.

11 <sup>b,1</sup>So that ye labor together in prayer for us, <sup>2</sup>that for the gift bestowed upon us for many, thanks may be given by many persons for us.

12 <sup>1</sup>For our rejoicing is this, the testimony of our conscience, that in simplicity and godly <sup>2</sup>pureness, and not in fleshly wisdom, but by the <sup>3</sup>grace of God we have had our conversation in the world, and most

1:1 <sup>1</sup> See the declaration of such salutations in the former Epistles.

1:3 <sup>1</sup> He beginneth after his manner with thanksgiving, which notwithstanding (otherwise than he was wont) he applieth to himself: beginning his Epistle with the setting forth of the dignity of his Apostleship, constrained (as it should seem) by their importunity, which took an occasion to despise him by reason of his miseries. But he answereth that he is not so afflicted, but that his comforts do exceed his afflictions, showing the ground of them, even the mercy of God the Father in Jesus Christ.

1:4 <sup>1</sup> The Lord doth comfort us to this end and purpose, that we may so much the more surely comfort others.

1:5 <sup>1</sup> The miseries which we suffer for Christ, or which Christ suffereth in us.

1:6 <sup>1</sup> He denieth that either his afflictions wherewith he was often afflicted, or the consolations which he received of God, may justly be despised, seeing that the Corinthians both might and ought to take great occasion to be confirmed by either of them.

<sup>2</sup> Although salvation be given us freely, yet because there is a way appointed us wherewith we must come to it, which is the race of an innocent and upright life, which we must run, therefore we are said to work our salvation, Philippians 2:12. And because it is God only that of his free good will worketh all things in us, therefore is he said to work the salvation in us by those selfsame things by which we must pass to everlasting life, after that we have once overcome all encumbrances.

1:8 <sup>1</sup> He witnesseth that he is not only not ashamed of his afflictions, but that he desireth also to have all men know the greatness of them, and also his delivery from them, although it be not yet perfect.

<sup>2</sup> I know not at all what to do, neither did I see by man's help which way to save my life.

1:9 <sup>1</sup> I was resolved within myself to die.

1:10 <sup>1</sup> From these great dangers.

1:11 <sup>1</sup> That he may not seem to boast himself, he attributeth all to God, and therewith also confesseth that he attributeth much to the prayers of the faithful.

<sup>2</sup> The end of the afflictions of the Saints, is the glory of God, and therefore they ought to be precious unto us.

1:12 <sup>1</sup> Secondly he putteth away another slander, to wit, that he was a light man, and such a one as was not lightly to be credited, seeing that he promised to come unto them, and came not. And first he speaks of the simplicity of his mind, and sincerity, which they know both by his voice when he was present, and they ought to acknowledge it also in his letters, being absent: and moreover he protesteth that he will never be otherwise.

<sup>2</sup> With clearness, and holy and true plainness of mind, as God himself can witness.

of all to youwards.

13 For we write <sup>1</sup>none other things unto you, than that ye read or else that ye acknowledge, and I trust ye shall acknowledge unto the <sup>2</sup>end.

14 Even as ye have acknowledged us partly, that we are your <sup>1</sup>rejoicing, even as ye are ours, in the <sup>2</sup>day of our Lord Jesus.

15 And in this confidence was I minded first to come unto you, that ye might have had a <sup>1</sup>double grace, 16 And to pass by you into Macedonia, and to come again out of Macedonia, unto you, and to be led forth toward Judea of you.

17 <sup>1</sup>When I therefore was thus minded, did I use lightness? or mind I those things which I mind, according to the <sup>2</sup>flesh, that with me should be, <sup>3</sup>Yea, yea, and Nay, nay?

18 <sup>1</sup>Yea, God is <sup>2</sup>faithful, that our word toward you, was not Yea, and Nay?

19 <sup>1</sup>For the Son of God Jesus Christ, who was preached among you by us, that is, by me, and Silvanus, and Timothy, <sup>2</sup>was not Yea, and Nay: but in <sup>3</sup>him it was Yea.

20 <sup>1</sup>For all the promises of God in him are Yea, and are in <sup>2</sup>him Amen, unto the glory of God through <sup>3</sup>us.

21 <sup>1</sup>And it is God which established us with you in Christ, and hath anointed us.

22 Who hath also sealed us, and hath given the <sup>1</sup>earnest of the Spirit in our hearts.

23 <sup>1</sup>Now, I call God for a record unto my <sup>2</sup>soul, that to spare you, I came not as yet unto Corinth.

24 <sup>1</sup>Not that we have dominion over your faith, but we are helpers of your <sup>2</sup>joy: for by faith ye stand.

2 <sup>1</sup>He excuseth his not coming unto them, <sup>2</sup>and privily reprehendeth them: <sup>4</sup>He showeth that such is his affection towards them, <sup>5</sup>that he never rejoiceth but when they are merry. <sup>6</sup>Perceiving the adulterer (whom he commanded to be delivered up to Satan) to repent, he requesteth that they forgive him. <sup>13</sup>He mentioneth his going into Macedonia.

1 But I determined thus in myself, that I would not come again to you in <sup>1</sup>heaviness.

2 For if I make you sorry, who is he then that should make me glad, but the same which is made sorry by me?

3 And I wrote this same thing unto you, lest when I came, I should take heaviness of them of whom I ought to rejoice: this <sup>1</sup>confidence have I in you all, that my joy is the joy of you all.

4 For in great affliction, and anguish of heart I wrote unto you with many tears: not that ye should be made sorry, but that ye might perceive the love which I have, specially unto you.

5 <sup>1</sup>And if any hath caused sorrow, the same hath

1:13 <sup>1</sup> He saith he writeth barely and simply: for he that writeth in colored sort, is rightly said to write otherwise than we read: and this he saith the Corinthians shall know and like of very well.

1:14 <sup>1</sup> Paul's rejoicing in the Lord was, that he had won the Corinthians: and they themselves rejoiced that such an Apostle was their instructor, and taught them so purely and sincerely.

<sup>2</sup> When he shall sit as judge.

1:15 <sup>1</sup> Another benefit.

1:17 <sup>1</sup> He putteth away their slander and false report by denying it, and first of all in that divers went about to persuade the Corinthians, that in the preaching of the Gospel, Paul agreed not to himself: for this was the matter and the case.

<sup>2</sup> As men do, which will rashly promise anything, and change their purpose at every turning of an hand.

1:18 <sup>1</sup> He calleth God to witness, and for judge of his constancy in preaching and teaching one selfsame Gospel.

<sup>2</sup> True, and of whose faithfulness it [were] horrible wickedness to doubt.

1:19 <sup>1</sup> He joineth also with himself, his fellows as witnesses, with whom he fully consented in teaching one selfsame thing, to wit, one selfsame Christ.

<sup>2</sup> Was not divers and wavering.

1:20 <sup>1</sup> Last of all he declareth the sum of his doctrine, to wit, that all the promises of salvation are sure and ratified in Christ.

<sup>2</sup> Christ is set also forth to exhibit and fulfill them all most assuredly, and without all doubt.

1:21 <sup>1</sup> He attributeth the praise of this constancy, only to the grace of God, through the holy Ghost, and therewithall concludeth that they cannot doubt of his faith, and his fellows, without doing injury to the Spirit of God, seeing that they themselves do know all this to be true.

1:22 <sup>1</sup> An earnest, is, whatsoever is given to confirm a promise.

1:23 <sup>1</sup> Now coming to the matter, he sweareth, that he did not only, not lightly alter his purpose of coming to them, but rather that he came not unto them for this cause, that he might not be constrained to deal more sharply, with them being present, than he would.

1:24 <sup>1</sup> He removeth all suspicion of arrogance, declaring that he speaketh not as a Lord unto them, but as a servant, appointed of God to comfort them.

<sup>2</sup> He setteth the joy and peace of conscience, which God is author of, against tyrannous fear, and therewithall showeth the end of the Gospel.

2:1 <sup>1</sup> Causing grief amongst you, which he should have done if he had come to them before they had repented them.

2:3 <sup>1</sup> For I trusted that you would take that out of the way forewith, which you knew I was discontented with, considering how you are persuaded that my joy is your joy.

2:5 <sup>1</sup> He passeth to another part of this Epistle: which notwithstanding is put amongst the first, whereunto he returneth afterward, and he handleth the releasing and unloosing of the incestuous person, because he seemed to have given sufficient testimony of his repentance: showing the true use of excommunication, to wit, that it proceed not of hatred, but of love, and so ends lest if we keep no measure, we serve Satan the devil.

not made <sup>2</sup>me sorry, but <sup>3</sup>partly (lest I should more <sup>4</sup>charge him) you all.

6 It is sufficient unto the same man, that he was rebuked of many.

7 So that now contrariwise ye ought rather to <sup>1</sup>forgive him, and comfort him, lest the same should be swallowed up with overmuch heaviness.

8 Wherefore, I pray you, that you would <sup>1</sup>confirm your love towards him.

9 For this cause also did I write: that I might know the proof of you, whether ye would be obedient in all things.

10 To whom ye forgive anything, I forgive also: for verily if I forgave anything, to whom I forgave it, for your sakes forgave I it in the <sup>1</sup>sight of Christ, 11 Lest Satan should circumvent us: for we are not ignorant of his <sup>1</sup>enterprises.

12 ¶ <sup>1</sup>Furthermore, when I came to Troas to preach Christ's Gospel, and a door was opened unto me of the Lord, 13 I had no rest in my spirit, because I found not Titus my brother, but took my leave of them, and went away into Macedonia.

14 Now thanks be unto God, which always maketh us to triumph in Christ, and maketh manifest the <sup>1</sup>savor of his knowledge by us in every place.

15 <sup>1</sup>For we are unto God the sweet savor of Christ, in them that are saved, and in them which perish.

16 To the one we are the savor of death, unto death, and to the other the savor of life, unto life: <sup>1</sup>and who is sufficient for these things?

17 <sup>a</sup>For we are not as many, which make <sup>1</sup>merchandise of the word of God: but as of sincerity, but as of God in the sight of God speak we in Christ.

3 <sup>1</sup> He desireth no other commendation, <sup>3</sup> than their continuing in the faith. <sup>6</sup> He is a minister not of the letter, but of the Spirit. <sup>8</sup> He showeth the difference of the Law, and the Gospel, <sup>13</sup> that the brightness of the Law doth rather dim the sight than lighten it: <sup>18</sup> But the Gospel doth make manifest God's countenance unto us.

1 Do we begin to praise ourselves again? or need we as some others, Epistles of recommendation unto you, or letters of recommendation from you?

2 Ye are our epistle, written in our hearts, which is understood and read of all men,

3 In that ye are <sup>1</sup>manifest, to be the Epistle of Christ, <sup>2</sup>ministered by us, and written, not with ink, but with the Spirit of the <sup>3</sup>living God, <sup>4</sup>not in tables of stone, but in fleshly tables of the heart.

4 And such <sup>1</sup>trust have we through Christ to God:

5 Not that we are sufficient of ourselves, to think anything, as of ourselves: but our <sup>1</sup>sufficiency is of God,

6 <sup>1</sup>Who also hath made us able ministers of the New Testament, not of the <sup>2</sup>letter, but of the Spirit: for the letter killeth, but the Spirit giveth life.

2:5 <sup>2</sup> As if he said, All that sorrow is so clean wiped away, as though he had never felt it.

<sup>3</sup> As for me (saith Paul) I have no more to do with him.

<sup>4</sup> Lest I should overcharge him, who is burdened enough of himself, which I would be glad were taken from him.

2:7 <sup>1</sup> That whereas before you punished him sharply, you would now forgive him.

2:8 <sup>1</sup> That at my entreaty, you would declare by the consent of the whole Church, that you take him again for a brother.

2:10 <sup>1</sup> Truly and from the heart.

2:11 <sup>1</sup> Of his mischievous counsel and devilish will.

2:12 <sup>1</sup> He returneth to the confirmation of his Apostleship, and bringeth forth the testimonies, both of his labor, and also of God's blessing.

2:14 <sup>1</sup> He alludeth to the anointing of the Priests, and the incense of the sacrifices.

2:15 <sup>1</sup> He denieth that ought should be taken away from the dignity of his Apostleship, because they saw evidently that it was not received with like success in every place, nay rather very many rejected and detested him, seeing that he preacheth Christ, not only as a Savior of them that believe, but also as a Judge of them that condemn him.

2:16 <sup>1</sup> Again, he putteth away all suspicion of arrogance, attributing all things that he did, to the virtue of God, whom he serveth sincerely, and without all dishonest affection: whereof he maketh them witnesses even to verse 6 of the next chapter.

2:17 <sup>1</sup> We do not handle it craftily and covetously, or less sincerely than we ought: and he useth a metaphor which is taken from hucksters, which used to play the false harlots with whatsoever cometh into their hands.

3:3 <sup>1</sup> The Apostle frameth his speech wisely, that by little and little he may come from the commendation of the person, to the matter itself.

<sup>3</sup> By the way he setteth the virtue of God, against the ink wherewith Epistles are commonly written, to show that it was wrought by God.

<sup>4</sup> He alludeth by the way, to the comparison of the outward ministry of the Priesthood of Levi, with the ministry of the Gospel, and the Apostolic ministry, which he handleth afterward more fully.

3:4 <sup>1</sup> This boldness we show, and thus gloriously may we boast of the worthiness and fruit of our ministry.

3:5 <sup>1</sup> In that we are fit and meet to make other men partakers of so great a grace.

3:6 <sup>1</sup> He amplifieth his ministry and his fellows: that is to say, the ministry of the Gospel, comparing it with the ministry of the Law, which he considereth in the person of Moses, by whom the Law was given: against whom he setteth Christ the author of the Gospel. Now this comparison is taken from the very substance of the ministry. The Law is as it were a writing of itself dead, and without efficacy: but the Gospel, or new covenant, is as it were the very virtue of God itself, in renewing, justifying, and saving men. The Law propoundeth death, accusing all men of unrighteousness: The Gospel offereth and giveth righteousness and life. The governance of the Law served for a time to the promise: The Gospel remaineth to the end of the world. Therefore what is the glory of that in comparison of the majesty of this?

7 If then the ministration of death written with letters <sup>1</sup>and engraven in stones, was <sup>2</sup>glorious, so that the children of Israel could not behold the face of Moses, for the glory of his countenance (which glory is gone away.)

8 How shall not the <sup>1</sup>ministration of the Spirit be more glorious?

9 For if the ministry of condemnation was glorious, much more doth the ministration of <sup>1</sup>righteousness exceed in glory.

10 For even that which was glorified, was not glorified in this point, that is, as touching the exceeding glory.

11 For if that they should be <sup>1</sup>abolished, was glorious, much more shall that which remaineth be glorious.

12 <sup>1</sup>Seeing then that we have such trust, we use great boldness of speech.

13 <sup>a1</sup>And we are not as Moses, which put a veil upon his face, that the children of Israel should not look unto the <sup>2</sup>end of that which should be abolished.

14 Therefore their minds are hardened: for until this day remaineth the same covering untaken away in the reading of the old Testament, which veil in Christ is put away.

15 But even unto this day, when Moses is read, the veil is laid over their hearts.

CHAPTER 3

16 Nevertheless when their heart shall be turned to the Lord, the veil shall be taken away.

17 Now the <sup>1</sup>Lord is the <sup>6</sup>Spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty.

18 <sup>1</sup>But we all behold as in a mirror the glory of the Lord with open face, and are changed into the same image, from glory to glory, as by the Spirit of the Lord.

4 <sup>1</sup> He showeth that he hath so labored in preaching the Gospel, <sup>4</sup> That such are even blinded of Satan, who do not perceive the brightness thereof, <sup>7</sup> that the same is carried in earthen vessels, <sup>10</sup> who are subject to many miseries: <sup>16</sup> and therefore he exhorteth them by his own example to be courageous, <sup>17</sup> and condemn this present life.

1 Therefore, <sup>1</sup>seeing that we have this ministry, as we have received mercy, we <sup>2</sup>faint not:

2 But have cast from us the <sup>1</sup>cloaks of shame, and walk not in craftiness, neither handle we the word of God <sup>2</sup>deceitfully: but in declaration of the truth we approve ourselves to every man's conscience in the sight of God.

3 <sup>1</sup>If the Gospel be then hid, it is hid to them that are lost.

4 In whom the god of this world hath blinded the minds, that is, of the infidels, that the <sup>1</sup>light of the glorious Gospel of Christ, which is the <sup>2</sup>image of God, should not shine unto them.

3:7 <sup>1</sup> Imprinted and engraven: so that by this place we may plainly perceive, that the Apostle speaketh not of the ceremonies of the Law, but even of the ten commandments.

<sup>2</sup> This word Glory, betokeneth a brightness, and a majesty, which was bodily in Moses, but spiritually in Christ.

3:8 <sup>1</sup> Whereby God offereth, yea and giveth the Spirit, not as a dead thing, but a quickening Spirit, working life.

3:9 <sup>1</sup> To wit, of Christ, which being imputed to us as our own, we are not only not condemned, but also we are crowned as righteous.

3:11 <sup>1</sup> The Law, yea, and the ten commandments themselves, together with Moses, is abolished, if we consider the ministry of Moses apart by itself.

3:12 <sup>1</sup> He showeth wherein standeth this glory of the preaching of the Gospel, to wit, in that that it setteth forth plainly and evidently, that which the Law showeth darkly, for it sent them that heard it to be healed of Christ, which was to come, after it had wounded them.

3:13 <sup>1</sup> He expoundeth by the way the allegory of Moses' covering, which was a token of the darkness and weakness that is in men, which were rather dulled by the bright shining of the Law, then lightened, which covering was taken away by the coming of Christ, who lighteneth the hearts, and turneth them to the Lord, that we may be brought from the slavery of this blindness, and set in the liberty of the light, by the virtue of Christ's Spirit.

3:17 <sup>1</sup> Christ is that spirit which taketh away that covering, by working in our hearts, whereunto also the Law itself called us, though in vain, because it speaketh to dead men, until the spirit quickeneth us.

3:18 <sup>1</sup> Going forwards in the allegory of the covering, he compar- eth the Gospel to a glass, which although it be most bright and sparkling, yet doth it not only not dazzle their eyes, which look in it, as the law doth, but also transformeth them with its beams, so that they also be partakers of the glory and shining of it, to lighten others: as Christ said unto his, You are the light of the world, whereas he himself was the only light. We are also commanded in another place, to shine as candles before the world, because we are partakers of God's Spirit. But Paul speaketh here properly, of the ministers of the Gospel, as it appeareth both by that that goeth before, and that that cometh after, and that, setting them his own example and his fellows.

4:1 <sup>1</sup> Now he plainly witnesseth that both he and his fellows (through the mercy of God) do their vocation and duty uprightly and sincerely, neglecting all dangers.

<sup>2</sup> Though we are broken in pieces with miseries and calamities, yet we yield not.

4:2 <sup>1</sup> Subtlety, and all kinds of deceit, which men hunt after, as it were dens and lurking holes, to cover their shameless dealings withall.

<sup>2</sup> This is it that in the former Chapter he called, making merchandise of the word of God.

4:3 <sup>1</sup> An objection: Many hear the Gospel, and yet are no more lightened thereby than by the preaching of the Law. He answereth, The fault is in the men themselves, whose eyes Satan plucketh out, who ruleth in this world. And yet notwithstanding doth he and his fellows set forth the most clear light of the Gospel to be seen and beholden, seeing that Christ whom only they preach, is he in whom only God will be known, and as it were seen.

4:4 <sup>1</sup> The light of plain and lightsome preaching, which telleth forth the glory of Christ.

5 <sup>1</sup>For we preach not ourselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord, and ourselves your servants for <sup>2</sup>Jesus' sake.

6 For God <sup>a,1</sup>that commanded the light to shine out of darkness, is he which hath shined in our hearts, to give the <sup>2</sup>light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.

7 <sup>1</sup>But we have this treasure in earthen vessels, <sup>2</sup>that the excellency of that power might be of God, and not of us.

8 We are afflicted on every side, yet are we not in distress: we are in doubt, but yet we despair not.

9 We are persecuted, but not forsaken: cast down, but we perish not.

10 <sup>1</sup>Everywhere we bear about in our body the <sup>2</sup>dying of the Lord Jesus, that the life of Jesus might also be made manifest in our bodies.

11 For we which <sup>1</sup>live, are always delivered unto death for Jesus' sake, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our <sup>2</sup>mortal flesh.

12 <sup>1</sup>So then death worketh in us, and life in you.

13 <sup>1</sup>And because we have the same <sup>2</sup>spirit of faith, according as it is written, <sup>1</sup>I believed, and therefore have I spoken, we also believe, and therefore speak,

14 Knowing that he which hath raised up the

<sup>b</sup> Ps. 116:10

Lord Jesus, shall raise us up also by Jesus, and shall set us with you.

15 <sup>1</sup>For all things are for your sakes, <sup>2</sup>that that most plenteous grace by the thanksgiving of many, may redound to the praise of God.

16 Therefore we faint not, <sup>1</sup>but though our outward man perish, yet the inward man is <sup>2</sup>renewed daily.

17 For our <sup>1</sup>light affliction which is but for a moment, causeth unto us a far most excellent and an eternal weight of <sup>2</sup>glory:

18 While we look not on the things which are seen, but on the things which are not seen for the things which are seen, are temporal: but the things which are not seen, are eternal.

1 For <sup>1</sup>we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle be destroyed, we have a building given of God, that is, an house not made with hands, but eternal in the heavens.

2 For therefore we sigh, desiring to be <sup>1</sup>clothed

4:5 <sup>1</sup> He removeth according to his accustomed manner, all suspicion of ambition: avouching that he teacheth faithfully, but as a servant, and witnessing that all this light which he and his fellows give to others, proceedeth from the Lord.

4:7 <sup>1</sup> He taketh away a stumbling block, by which was darkened, amongst some, the bright shining of the ministry of the Gospel, to wit, because the Apostles were the most miserable of all men, Paul answereth that he and his fellows are as it were earthen vessels, but yet there is in them a most precious treasure.

<sup>2</sup> He bringeth marvelous reasons, why the Lord doth so afflict his chiefest servants, to the end saith he that all men may perceive that they stand not by any man's virtue, but by the singular virtue of God, in that they die a thousand times, but never perish.

4:10 <sup>1</sup> An amplification of the former sentence, wherein he compareth his afflictions to a daily death, and the virtue of the Spirit of God in Christ, to life, which oppresseth that death.

<sup>2</sup> So Paul calleth that miserable estate and condition, that the faithful, but especially the ministers, are in.

4:11 <sup>1</sup> Which live, that life, to wit, by the Spirit of Christ, amongst so many and so great miseries.

4:12 <sup>1</sup> A very cunning conclusion: as if he would say, Therefore to be short, we die, that you may live by our death, for that they ventured into all those dangers for the building of the Church's sake, and they ceased not to confirm all the faithful with the examples of their patience.

4:13 <sup>1</sup> He declareth the former sentence, showing that he and his fellows die in a sort to purchase life to others, but yet notwithstanding they are partakers of the same life with them: because they themselves do first believe that, which they propound to others to believe, to wit, that they also shall be saved together with them in Christ.

4:15 <sup>1</sup> He showeth how this constancy is preserved in them, to wit, because they respect God's glory, and the salvation of the Churches committed unto them.

<sup>2</sup> When it shall please God to deliver me, and restore me to you, that exceeding benefit which shall be poured upon me, shall in like sort redound to the glory of God, by the thanksgiving of many.

4:16 <sup>1</sup> He addeth as it were a triumphant song, how that he is outwardly afflicted, but inwardly he profiteth daily: and passeth not at all for all the miseries that may be sustained in this life, in comparison of that most constant and eternal glory.

<sup>2</sup> Gathereth new strength, that the outward man be not overcome with the miseries which come freshly one upon the neck of another, being maintained and upholden with the strength of the inward man.

4:17 <sup>1</sup> Afflictions are not called light, as though they were light of themselves, but because they pass away quickly, when as indeed our whole life is of no long continuance.

5:1 <sup>1</sup> Taking occasion by the former comparison, he compareth this miserable body, as it is in this life, to a frail and brickle tabernacle, against which he setteth the heavenly Tabernacle, so terming that sure and everlasting condition of this same body glorified in heaven, inasmuch, saith he, that we are not only not addicted to this tabernacle, but also do with sobs and sighs desire rather that tabernacle. And so this place also concerning the glory to come, is put within the treatise of the dignity of the ministry, as the other was, whereof we spake in the beginning of the second Chapter.

5:2 <sup>1</sup> He calleth the glory of immortality, which we shall be as it were clothed with, a garment.

with our house, which is from <sup>2</sup>heaven.

3 <sup>1</sup>Because that if we be clothed, we shall not be found <sup>a</sup>naked.

4 For indeed we that are in this tabernacle, sigh and are burdened because we would not be unclothed, but would be clothed upon, that mortality might be swallowed up of life.

5 And he that hath <sup>1</sup>created us for this thing, is God, who also hath given unto us the earnest of the Spirit.

6 <sup>1</sup>Therefore we are always <sup>2</sup>bold, though we know that while we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord.

7 (For we walk by <sup>1</sup>faith, and not by sight.)

8 Nevertheless, we are <sup>1</sup>bold, and love rather to remove out of the body, and to dwell with the Lord.

9 Wherefore also we <sup>1</sup>covet, that both dwelling at home, and removing from home, we may be acceptable to him.

10 <sup>b1</sup>For we must all <sup>2</sup>appear before the judgment seat of Christ, that every man may receive the things which are done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or evil.

11 <sup>1</sup>Knowing therefore that <sup>2</sup>terror of the Lord, we persuade men, and we are made manifest unto God, and I trust also that we are made manifest in your consciences.

12 <sup>1</sup>For we praise not ourselves again unto you, but give you an occasion to rejoice of us that ye may have to answer against them, which rejoice in the <sup>2</sup>face, and not in the heart.

13 <sup>1</sup>For whether we be out of our wit, we are it to God: or whether we be in our right mind, we are it unto you.

14 <sup>1</sup>For that love of Christ <sup>2</sup>constraineth us, 15 Because we thus judge, that if <sup>1</sup>one be dead for all, then were all dead, and he died for all, that they which live, should not henceforth <sup>2</sup>live unto themselves, but unto him which died for them, and rose again.

16 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore, henceforth know we no man after the flesh, <sup>2</sup>yea though we had known Christ after the flesh, yet not henceforth know we him no more.

17 <sup>1</sup>Therefore if any man be in Christ, let him be a

<sup>2</sup> Heavenly, not that the substance of it is heavenly, but for the glory of it.

5:3 <sup>1</sup> An exposition of the former saying: We do not without cause, desire to be clad with the heavenly house, that is, with that everlasting and immortal glory, as with a garment: for when we depart hence, we shall not remain naked, having once cast off the covering of this body, but we shall take our bodies again, which shall put on as it were another garment besides: and therefore we sigh not for the weariness of this life, but for the desire of a better life. Neither is this desire in vain, for we are made to that life, the pledge whereof we have, even the Spirit of adoption.

5:5 <sup>1</sup> He meaneth that first creation, to give us to understand, that our bodies were made to this end, that they should be clothed with heavenly immortality.

5:6 <sup>1</sup> He inferreth upon that sentence which went next before, thus, Therefore, seeing that we know by the Spirit, that we are strangers so long as we are here, we patiently suffer this tarrance (for we are now so with God, that we behold him but by faith, and are therefore now absent from him) but so that we aspire and have a longing always to him: therefore also we behave ourselves so, that we may be acceptable to him, both while we live here, and when we go from hence to him.

<sup>2</sup> He calleth them (bold) which are always resolved with a quiet and settled mind to suffer what dangers soever, nothing doubting, but their end shall be happy.

5:7 <sup>1</sup> Faith of those things which we hope for, and not having God presently in our view.

5:8 <sup>1</sup> And yet we are in such sort bold and do so pass on our pilgrimage with a valiant and quiet mind, that yet notwithstanding, we had rather depart hence to the Lord.

5:9 <sup>1</sup> And seeing it is so, we strive to live so, that both in this our pilgrimage here we may please him, and that at length we may be received home to him.

5:10 <sup>1</sup> That no man might think it to pertain to all, which he spoke of that heavenly glory, he addeth, that every one shall first render an account of his pilgrimage, after that he is departed from hence.

<sup>2</sup> We must all appear personally, and inquiry shall be made of us, that all may see, how we have lived.

5:11 <sup>1</sup> Now he passeth over, and taking occasion of the former sentence, returneth to 4:16, confirming his own sincerity and his fellows'.

5:12 <sup>1</sup> He removeth all suspicion of pride, by a new reason, because it is behoovable, not for his part, but for theirs, that his Apostleship be counted sincere against the vain ostentation of a few others.

<sup>2</sup> In outward disguising, and that colored show of man's wisdom and eloquence, and not in true godliness, which is sealed in the heart.

5:13 <sup>1</sup> The meaning is: Even when I am mad (as some men think of me) while I seem as a fool to boast myself, I do it for your profit, no less than when I preach the Gospel simply unto you.

5:14 <sup>1</sup> He goeth forward in putting away all suspicion of desire of estimation and boasting: for the love of Christ, saith he, compelleth us hereunto, that seeing he died for us all, which were dead when as we lived to ourselves (that is, while we were yet given to these earthly affections) we in like sort should consecrate our whole life which we have received of him, to him (to wit) being endued with the holy Ghost to this end and purpose, that we should meditate upon nothing but that which is heavenly.

5:16 <sup>1</sup> He showeth what it is, not to live to ourselves, but to Christ, to wit, to know no man according to the flesh, that is to say, to be so conversant amongst men, as not to care for those worldly and carnal things, as they do which respect a man's stock, his country, form, glory, riches, and such like, wherein men commonly dote, and weary themselves.

<sup>2</sup> An amplification: This is, saith he, so true, that we do not now think carnally of Christ himself, who hath now left the world, and therefore must be considered of us spiritually.

5:17 <sup>1</sup> An exhortation for every man which is renewed with the spirit of Christ, to meditate heavenly things, and not earthly.

18 <sup>1</sup>And all things are of God, which hath reconciled us unto himself by Jesus Christ, and hath given unto us the ministry of reconciliation.

19 For God was in Christ, and reconciled the world to himself, not imputing their sins unto them, and hath <sup>1</sup>committed to us the word of reconciliation.

20 Now then are we ambassadors for Christ: as though God did beseech you through us, we pray you in Christ's stead, that ye be reconciled to God.

21 For he hath made him to be <sup>1</sup>sin for us, which <sup>2</sup>knew no sin, that we should be made the <sup>3</sup>righteousness of God in him.

6 <sup>1</sup>He exhorteth them to lead their lives as it becometh Christians, <sup>5</sup>neither to be dismayed in tribulations, <sup>9</sup>nor puffed up with glory: <sup>14</sup>to avoid all uncleanness, <sup>16</sup>considering that they are the temples of the living God.

1 So <sup>1</sup>we therefore as workers together beseech you, that ye receive not the grace of God in vain.

2 <sup>1</sup>For he saith, <sup>4</sup>I have heard thee in a time <sup>2</sup>accepted, and in the day of salvation have I succored thee: behold now the accepted time, behold now the day of salvation.

3 <sup>1</sup>We give no occasion of offence in anything,

<sup>c</sup> Isa. 43:19
Rev. 21:5

CHAPTER 6

that our ministry should not be reprehended.

4 But in all things we <sup>1</sup>approve ourselves as <sup>b</sup>the ministers of God, <sup>2</sup>in much patience, in afflictions, in necessities, in distresses.

5 In stripes, in prisons, in <sup>1</sup>tumults, in labors,

6 <sup>1</sup>By watchings, by fastings, by purity, by knowledge, by long suffering, by kindness, by the holy Ghost, by love unfeigned,

7 By the <sup>1</sup>word of truth, by the <sup>2</sup>power of God, by the <sup>3</sup>armor of righteousness on the right hand, and on the left,

8 By honor, and dishonor, by evil report, and good report, as deceivers, and yet true:

9 As unknown, and yet known: as dying, and behold, we live, as chastened, and yet not killed:

10 As sorrowing, and yet always rejoicing: as poor, and yet making many rich: as having nothing, and yet possessing all things.

11 <sup>1</sup>O Corinthians, our mouth is <sup>2</sup>open unto you, our heart is made large.

12 Ye are not <sup>4</sup>kept strait in us, but ye are kept strait in your own <sup>2</sup>bowels.

13 Now for the same recompense, I speak as to my children, Be you also enlarged.

14 <sup>1</sup>Be not unequally yoked with the infidels: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unright-

5:17 <sup>2</sup>As a thing made anew of God, for though a man be not newly created when God giveth him the spirit of regeneration, but only his qualities are changed, yet notwithstanding it pleased the holy Ghost to speak so, to teach us, that we must attribute all things to the glory of God: not that we are as stocks or blocks: but because God creates in us, both the will to will well, and the power to do well.

5:18 <sup>1</sup>He commendeth the excellency of the ministry of the Gospel, both by the authority of God himself, who is the author of that ministry, and also by the excellency of the doctrine of it: for it announceth atonement with God, by free forgiveness of our sins, and justification offered unto us in Christ, and that so lovingly and liberally, that God himself doth after a sort pray men by the mouth of his ministers, to have consideration of themselves, and not to despise so great a benefit. And when he so saith, he plainly reprehendeth them which falsely challenged to themselves the name of pastors.

5:19 <sup>1</sup>Used our labor and travail.

5:21 <sup>1</sup>A sinner, not in himself, but by imputation of the guilt of all our sins to him.

<sup>3</sup>Righteous before God, and that with righteousness which is not essential to us, but being essential in Christ, God imputeth it to us through faith.

6:1 <sup>1</sup>Men do not only need the ministry of the Gospel, before they have received grace, that they may be partakers of it, but also after they have received grace, that they may continue in it.

6:2 <sup>1</sup>In that that grace is offered, it is of the grace of God, who hath appointed times and seasons to all things, that we may take occasion when it is offered.

<sup>2</sup>Which I of my free mercy and love towards you, . . . appointed, at which time God poured out that his marvelous love upon us.

6:3 <sup>1</sup>He sheweth the Corinthians a pattern of a true minister, in his own example, and Timothy and Silvanus, to the end, that (as he pur-posed from the beginning) he might procure authority to himself and his like.

6:4 <sup>1</sup>Declare and show indeed.

6:5 <sup>1</sup>In tossing to and fro, finding no place of rest and quietness.

6:6 <sup>1</sup>Secondly, he reckoneth up such virtues as are necessary, and ought always to be in them, and whereby as by good armor, all lets and hindrances may be overcome.

6:7 <sup>1</sup>Preaching of the Gospel.

6:11 <sup>1</sup>Going about to rebuke them, he saith first, that he dealt with them sincerely and with an open and plain heart, and therewithall complaineth that they do not the like in loving again their Father.

<sup>2</sup>The opening of the mouth and heart, betokeneth a most earnest affection in him that speaketh, as it fareth commonly with them that are in some great joy.

6:12 <sup>1</sup>You are in mine heart, as in an house, and that no narrow or strait house, for I have opened my whole heart to you, but you are inwardly straitlaced to me-ward.

<sup>2</sup>After the manner of the Hebrews, he calleth those tender affections which rest in the heart, bowels.

6:14 <sup>1</sup>Now he rebuked them boldly, for that they became fellows with infidels in outward idolatry, as though it were a thing indifferent. And this is the fourth part of this Epistle, the conclusion whereof is, that such as the Lord has vouchsafed the name of his children, must keep themselves pure, not only in mind, but also in body, that they may wholly be holy unto the Lord.

teousness? and what communion hath light with darkness?

15 And what concord hath Christ with Belial? or what <sup>1</sup>part hath the believer with the infidel?

16 And what agreement hath the Temple of God with idols? for ye are the Temple of the <sup>1</sup>living God: as God hath said, <sup>1</sup>I will <sup>2</sup>dwell among them, and walk there: and I will be their God, and they shall be my people.

17 Wherefore come out from among them, and separate yourselves, saith the Lord, and touch none unclean thing, and I will receive you.

18 And I will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty.

7 1 Lest by overmuch urging them he should dismay their tender minds, 2 he proveth that all that he said, 4 proceeded of the great good will he bare unto them: 8 and therefore they should not be offended, that he made them sorry, 10 and brought them to repentance not to be repented of.

1 Seeing then we have these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the <sup>1</sup>flesh and spirit, and finish our sanctification in the fear of God.

2 <sup>1,2</sup>Receive us: we have done wrong to no man: we have corrupted no man: we have defrauded no man.

3 I speak it not to your <sup>1</sup>condemnation: for I have said before, that ye are in our hearts, to die and live together.

4 I use great boldness of speech toward you: I rejoice greatly in you: I am filled with comfort, and am exceeding joyous in all our tribulation.

5 For when we were come into Macedonia, our flesh had no rest, but we were troubled on every side, fightings without, and terrors within.

6 But God, that comforteth the <sup>1</sup>abject, comforted us at the <sup>2</sup>coming of Titus:

7 And not by his coming only, but also by the consolation wherewith he was comforted of you,

<sup>d</sup> Lev. 26:11

when he told us your great desire, your mourning, your fervent mind to me-ward, so that I rejoiced much more.

8 <sup>1</sup>For though I made you sorry with a letter, I repent not, though I did repent: for I perceive that the same Epistle made you sorry, though it were but for a season.

9 I now rejoice, not that ye were sorry, but that ye sorrowed to <sup>1</sup>repentance: for ye sorrowed godly, so that in nothing ye were hurt by us.

10 For <sup>1</sup>godly sorrow causeth repentance unto salvation, not to be repented of: but the worldly sorrow causeth death.

11 For behold, this thing that ye have been godly sorry, what great care hath it wrought in you: yea, what clearing of yourselves: yea, what indignation: yea, what fear: yea, how great desire: yea, what a zeal: yea, what revenge: in all things ye have showed yourselves, that ye are pure in this matter.

12 Wherefore, though I wrote unto you, I did not it for his cause that had done the wrong, neither for his cause that had the injury, but that our care toward you in the <sup>1</sup>sight of God might appear unto you.

13 Therefore we were comforted, because ye were comforted: but rather we rejoiced much more for the joy of Titus, because his spirit was refreshed by you all.

14 For if that I have boasted anything to him of you, I have not been ashamed: but as I have spoken unto you all things in truth, even so our boasting unto Titus was true.

15 And his inward affection is more abundant toward you, when he remembereth the obedience of you all, and how with fear and trembling ye received him.

16 I rejoice therefore that I may put my confidence in you in all things.

8 1 He exhorteth them by the example of the Macedonians, 9 and also even of Christ himself, 14 to be 6:15 <sup>1</sup> What can there be between them?

6:16 <sup>1</sup> He setteth the living God against idols.

7:1 <sup>1</sup> Both of body and soul, that by this means the sanctification may be perfect, consisting in both the parts thereof.

7:2 <sup>1</sup> He returneth again from that admonition to his own person, opposing the testimonies both of his faithfulness and also of his continual good will towards them.

<sup>2</sup> Let me have some place amongst you, that I may teach you.

7:3 <sup>1</sup> To condemn you of unkindness or treachery.

7:6 <sup>1</sup> Whose hearts are cast down, and are very far spent.

<sup>2</sup> With those things which Titus told me of you at his coming, to wit, how fruitfully you read over my letters, moreover and besides that, I am exceedingly refreshed with his presence.

7:8 <sup>1</sup> An objection: But thou hast handled us roughly. The Apostle answereth that he used not this toughness without grief. And he addeth moreover, that he is also glad now that he drove them to that sorrow, although it was against his will, since it was so profitable unto them: for there is a sorrow not only praiseworthy, but also necessary, to wit, whereby repentance groweth by certain degrees, for the which repentance he praiseth them highly. And this is the fifth part of this Epistle.

7:9 <sup>1</sup> Inasmuch that that sorrow did you much good toward the amending of your lewdness and sins.

7:10 <sup>1</sup> Godly sorrow is when we are not terrified with the fear of punishment, but because we feel we have offended God our most merciful Father: contrary to this, there is another sorrow, that only feareth punishment, or when a man is vexed for the loss of some worldly goods: the fruit of the first, repentance, and the fruit of the second, is desperation, unless the Lord helps speedily.

7:12 <sup>1</sup> It was not colored nor counterfeit, but such as I dare stand to before God.

liberal towards the saints: 16 for which purpose, he showeth that Titus, 18 and another brother came unto them.

1 We <sup>1</sup>do you also to wit, brethren, of the <sup>2</sup>grace of God bestowed upon the Churches of Macedonia.

2 Because in <sup>1</sup>great trial of affliction their joy abounded, and their most extreme poverty abounded unto their rich liberality.

3 For to their power (I bear record) yea, and beyond their power they were <sup>1</sup>willing.

4 And prayed us with great instance that we would receive the <sup>1</sup>grace, and fellowship of the ministering which is toward the Saints.

5 <sup>1</sup>And this they did, not as we looked for: but gave their own selves, first to the Lord, and after unto us by the will of God,

6 That we should exhort Titus, that as he had begun, so he would also accomplish the same grace among you also.

7 Therefore, as ye abound in everything, in faith and word, and knowledge, and in all diligence, and in your love towards us, even so see that ye abound in this grace also.

8 <sup>1</sup>This say I not by commandment, but because of the <sup>2</sup>diligence of others: therefore prove I the <sup>3</sup>naturalness of your love.

9 <sup>1</sup>For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that he being rich, for your sakes became poor, that ye through his poverty might be made rich.

10 <sup>1</sup>And I show my mind herein: for this is expedient for you, which have begun not to do only, but also to <sup>2</sup>will, a year ago.

11 Now therefore perform to do it also, that as there was a readiness to will, even so ye may perform it of that which ye have.

CHAPTER 8

12 <sup>1</sup>For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not.

13 <sup>1</sup>Neither is it that other men should be eased and you grieved: But upon <sup>2</sup>like condition, at this time your abundance supplieth their lack:

14 That also their abundance may be for your lack, that there may be equality.

15 As it is written, <sup>a</sup>He that gathered much, had nothing over, and he that gathered little, had not the less.

16 <sup>1</sup>And thanks be unto God, which had put in the heart of Titus the same care for you.

17 Because he accepted the exhortation, yea, he was so careful that of his own accord he went unto you.

18 And we have sent also with him the brother, whose praise is <sup>1</sup>in the Gospel throughout all the Churches.

19 (And not so only, but is also chosen of the Churches to be a fellow in our journey, concerning this <sup>1</sup>grace that is ministered by us unto the glory of the same Lord, and declaration of your prompt mind.)

20 Avoiding this, that no man should blame us in this <sup>1</sup>abundance that is ministered by us,

21 <sup>b</sup>Providing for honest things, not only before the Lord, but also before men.

22 And we have sent with them our brother, whom we have oftentimes proved to be diligent in many things, but now much more diligent, for the great confidence, which I have in you.

23 Whether any do inquire of Titus, he is my fellow and helper to you-ward: or of our <sup>b</sup>brethren, they are messengers of the Churches, and the <sup>2</sup>glory of 8:1 <sup>1</sup> The sixth part of this epistle containing divers exhortations to stir up the Corinthians to liberality, wherewith the poverty of the Church of Jerusalem might be holpen in time convenient. And first of all he setteth out before them the example of the Churches of Macedonia, which otherwise were brought by great misery to extreme poverty, to the end that they should follow them.

8:2 <sup>1</sup> For those manifold afflictions wherewith the Lord tried them, did not only not quail their joyful readiness, but also made it much more excellent, and famous.

8:3 <sup>1</sup> Of their own accord they were liberal.

8:4 <sup>1</sup> He calleth that, Grace, that other men would have called a burden. And this verse is to be expounded by the sixth verse.

8:5 <sup>1</sup> He amplifieth the forwardness of the Macedonians, in this, that they also desired Paul to stir up the Corinthians to accomplish the giving of alms, by sending again of Titus unto them.

8:8 <sup>1</sup> Thirdly he warneth them that they deceive not their expectation which they have conceived of them.

<sup>3</sup> Then appeareth the naturalness of our love, when as in deed and that frankly and freely we help our brethren, even for Christ's sake.

8:9 <sup>1</sup> The fourth argument taken from the example of Christ.

8:10 <sup>1</sup> He taketh good heed that he seem not to wrest it out of them by constraint, for unless it be voluntary, God doth not accept it.

<sup>2</sup> Not only to do, but also to do willingly: for he noteth out a ready willingness without any enforcement by any other men; much less came it of ambition and vainglory.

8:12 <sup>1</sup> Against such as use to excuse themselves, because they are not rich, as though it were only proper to rich men to help the poor.

8:13 <sup>1</sup> Christian liberality is mutual, that proportion may be observed.

<sup>2</sup> That like as now in your abundance you help others, which are poor, with some part of your goods, so should others in like sort bestow some of theirs upon you.

8:16 <sup>1</sup> He commendeth Titus and his two companions for many causes, both that their credit might not be suspected, as though he had sent them slyly to spoil the Churches, and also that they might be so much the readier to contribute.

8:18 <sup>1</sup> In the preaching of the Gospel.

8:19 <sup>1</sup> These alms which are bestowed for the relief of the Church of Jerusalem.

8:20 <sup>1</sup> In this plentiful liberality of the Churches, which is committed to our trust.

8:23 <sup>1</sup> Titus's two companions.

<sup>2</sup> By whom the glory of Christ is set forth.

Christ.

24 Wherefore show toward them, and before the <sup>1</sup>Churches the proof of your love, and of the rejoicing that we have of you.

1 For <sup>1</sup>as touching the ministering to the Saints, it is superfluous for me to write unto you.

2 For I know your readiness of mind, whereof I boast myself of you unto them of Macedonia, and say, that Achaia was prepared a year ago, and your zeal hath provoked many.

3 Now have I sent the brethren, lest our rejoicing over you should be in vain in this behalf, that ye (as I have said) be ready.

4 Lest if they of Macedonia come with me, and find you unprepared, we (that we may not say, you) should be ashamed in this my <sup>1</sup>constant boasting.

5 Wherefore, I thought it necessary to exhort the brethren to come before unto you, and to finish your benevolence appointed afore, that it might be ready, and come as of benevolence, and not as of <sup>1</sup>niggardliness.

6 <sup>1</sup>This yet remember, that he which soweth sparingly, shall reap also sparingly, and he that soweth liberally, shall reap also liberally.

7 As every man <sup>1</sup>wiseth in his heart, so let him give, not <sup>a2</sup>grudgingly, or of <sup>3</sup>necessity: for God loveth a cheerful giver.

<sup>a</sup> Rom. 12:8

8 And God is able to make all <sup>1</sup>grace to abound toward you, that ye always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound in <sup>2</sup>every good work, 9 (<sup>b</sup>As it is written, He hath sparsed abroad and hath given to the poor: his benevolence remaineth for <sup>1</sup>ever.

10 Also he that findeth seed to the sower, will minister likewise bread for food, and multiply your seed, and increase the <sup>1</sup>fruits of your benevolence.)

11 That on all parts ye may be made rich unto all liberality, which causeth through us thanksgiving unto God.

12 <sup>1</sup>For the ministration of this service not only supplieth the necessities of the Saints, but also abundantly causeth many to give thanks to God,

13 (Which by the <sup>1</sup>experiment of this ministration praise God for your <sup>2</sup>voluntary submission to the Gospel of Christ, and for your liberal distribution to them, and to all men.)

14 And in their prayer for you, to long after you greatly, for the abundant grace of God in you.

15 <sup>1</sup>Thanks therefore be unto God for his unspeakable gift.

10 <sup>2</sup> He showeth with what confidence, <sup>4</sup> with what weapons, <sup>6</sup> and with what revenge he is armed against the cavillations of the wicked, <sup>7</sup> and that, when he is present, his deeds have no less power, <sup>11</sup> than his words have force when he is absent.

1 Now <sup>1</sup>I Paul myself beseech you by the meek-

8:24 <sup>1</sup> All Churches shall be witnesses of this your godly dealing, in whose presence you are, for so much as you see the messengers whom they have chosen by all their consents, and sent them unto you.

9:1 <sup>1</sup> He wisely meeteth with the suspicion which the Corinthians might conceive, as though the Apostle in urging them so carefully, should doubt of their good will. Therefore he witnesseth that he doeth it not to teach them that they ought to help the Saints, seeing that he had become surety for them to the Macedonians, but only to stir them up which were running of themselves to the end that all things might both be in a better readiness, and also be more plentiful.

9:4 <sup>1</sup> The word which he useth, signifieth such a stayedness and settledness of mind, as cannot be moved with any terror or fear.

9:5 <sup>1</sup> As from covetous men.

9:6 <sup>1</sup> Alms must be given neither niggardly, nor with a loathful mind, or hardly: But as frank and free alms is compared to a sowing which hath a most plentiful harvest of most abundant blessing following it.

9:7 <sup>1</sup> Determineth and appointeth freely with himself.

9:8 <sup>1</sup> All God's bountiful liberality.

9:9 <sup>1</sup> Is everlasting: Now David speaketh of a man that feareth God, and loveth his neighbor, who shall never want (saith he) to give to others.

9:10 <sup>1</sup> There is none so good an inheritance to the godly, as bountifulness is.

9:12 <sup>1</sup> Another excellent and double fruit of liberality towards the Saints, is this: that it giveth occasion to praise God, and that our faith is also thereby made manifest.

9:13 <sup>1</sup> By this proof of your liberality in this helping and succoring of them.

<sup>2</sup> In showing with one consent, that you acknowledge that only Gospel which you have willingly submitted yourselves unto, declaring thereby, that you agree with the Church of Jerusalem.

9:15 <sup>1</sup> Lest by his great commendation and praise, the Corinthians should be puffed up, he shutteth up this exhortation, with this exclamation.

10:1 <sup>1</sup> He returneth to the defense of his Apostleship, but so that he useth this authority therein: for he warneth them earnestly and gravely, using also terrible threatenings to show themselves such as are apt to be instructed. And he refelleth certain proud men which made no better account of him, than of a bragging Thraso, in that he used to be sharp against them when he was absent, because they saw no great majesty in him after the manner of men, and besides, had proved his lenity, notwithstanding that in his absence, he had written to them sharply. Therefore first of all he professeth that he was gentle and moderate, but after the example of Christ: but if they continue, still to despise his gentleness, he protesteth unto them that he will show indeed how far they are deceived, which make that account of the office of an Apostle, that they do of worldly offices, that is, according to the outward appearance.

ness, and <sup>2</sup>gentleness of Christ, which when I am present among you am base, but am bold toward you being absent:

2 And this I require you, that I need not to be bold when I am present, with that same confidence, where-with I think to be bold against some, which esteem us as though we walked <sup>1</sup>according to the flesh.

3 <sup>1</sup>Nevertheless, though we walk in the flesh, yet we do not war after the flesh.

4 (For the weapons of our warfare are not <sup>1</sup>carnal, but mighty through <sup>2</sup>God, to cast down holds.)

5 Casting down the imaginations, and every high thing that is exalted against the knowledge of God, <sup>1</sup>and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ,

6 And having ready the vengeance against all disobedience, when your obedience is fulfilled.

7 <sup>1</sup>Look ye on things after the <sup>2</sup>appearance? If any man trust in himself that he is Christ's, let him consider this again of <sup>3</sup>himself, that as he is Christ's, even so are we Christ's.

8 For though I should boast somewhat more of our authority, which the Lord hath given us for edification, and not for your destruction, I should have no shame.

9 This I say, that I may not seem as it were to fear you with letters.

10 For the letters, saith <sup>1</sup>he, are sore and strong, but his bodily presence is weak, and his speech is of no value.

11 Let such one think this, that such as we are in word by letters, when we are absent, such will we be also in deed, when we are present.

CHAPTER 10

<sup>a</sup> Eph. 4:7<sup>b</sup> Jer. 9:24<sup>1</sup> Cor. 1:31

12 <sup>1</sup>For we <sup>2</sup>dare not make ourselves of the number, or to compare ourselves to them, which praise themselves: but they understand not that they measure themselves with <sup>3</sup>themselves, and <sup>4</sup>compare themselves with themselves.

13 But we will not rejoice of things, which are not within our <sup>1</sup>measure, <sup>2</sup>but according to the measure of the line, whereof God hath distributed unto us a measure to attain even unto you.

14 For we stretch not ourselves beyond our measure, as though we had not attained unto you: for even to you also have we come in preaching the Gospel of Christ.

15 Not boasting of things which are <sup>1</sup>without our measure: that is, of other men's labors: and we hope, when your faith shall increase, to be magnified by you according to your line abundantly,

16 And to preach the Gospel in those regions which are beyond you: not to rejoice in <sup>1</sup>another man's line: that is, in the things that are prepared already.

17 <sup>b1</sup>But let him that rejoiceth, rejoice in the Lord.

18 For he that praiseth himself, is not allowed, but he whom the Lord praiseth.

11 <sup>2</sup>He testifieth that for the great loves sake he beareth to the Corinthians, he is compelled <sup>5</sup>to utter his own praises: <sup>9</sup>and that he bestowed his labor on them without any reward, <sup>13</sup>that the false apostles should not surpass him in anything, <sup>22</sup>whom he far excelled in those things which are praiseworthy indeed.

1 Would <sup>1</sup>to God, ye could suffer a little my 10:1 <sup>2</sup>That nature which is inclined to mercy, rather than to rigor of justice.

10:2 <sup>1</sup>As though I had no other aid and help than that which outwardly I seem to have: and therefore Paul setteth his flesh, that is, his weak condition and state, against his spiritual and Apostolic dignity.

10:3 <sup>1</sup>Secondly he witnesseth, that although he be like unto other men, yet he cometh furnished with that strength, which no holds of man can match, whether they resist by craft and deceit, or by force and might, because he warrioreth with divine weapons.

10:4 <sup>1</sup>Are not such as men get them authority withall one of another, and do great acts.

10:5 <sup>1</sup>An amplification of this spiritual virtue, which in such sort conquereth the enemies be they never so crafty and mighty, that it bringeth some of them by repentance unto Christ, and justly revengeth others, that are stubbornly obstinate, separating them from the others which suffer themselves to be ruled.

10:7 <sup>1</sup>He beateth into their heads that same matter, with great weight of words and sentences.

<sup>3</sup>Not being told of it by me.

10:10 <sup>1</sup>He noteth out someone that was the seeds man of this speech.

10:12 <sup>1</sup>Being constrained to refel the foolish brags of certain ambitious men, he witnesseth, that they are able to bring nothing, but that they falsely persuade themselves of themselves: and as for himself, although he brags of excellent things, yet he will not pass the bounds which God hath measured him out, according whereunto he came even unto them in preaching the Gospel of Christ, and trusteth that he shall go further, when they have so profited that he shall not need to tarry any longer amongst them to instruct them. And hereunto is added an amplification, in that he never succeeded other men in their labors.

<sup>3</sup>Upon a vain persuasion that they have of themselves, they take upon them they care not what.

10:13 <sup>1</sup>Of those things which God hath not measured to me.

10:15 <sup>1</sup>As though God had divided the whole world among the Apostles, to be husbanded.

10:16 <sup>1</sup>In countries which other men have prepared and husbanded with the preaching of the Gospel.

10:17 <sup>1</sup>He somewhat mitigateth that which he spake of himself and therewith also prepareth the Corinthians to hear other things, witnessing that he seeketh nothing else but to approve himself to God, whose glory he only seeketh.

11:1 <sup>1</sup>He granteth that after a sort he playeth the fool in this vaunting of things, but he addeth that he doeth it against his will, for their profit because he seeth them deceived by certain vain and crafty men, through the craft and subtlety of Satan.

foolishness, and indeed, ye suffer me.

2 For I am jealous over you, with <sup>1</sup>godly jealousy: for I have prepared you for one husband, to <sup>2</sup>present you as a pure virgin to Christ:

3 But I fear lest as the <sup>a</sup>serpent beguiled Eve through his subtlety, so your minds should be <sup>1</sup>corrupt from the simplicity that is in <sup>2</sup>Christ:

4 <sup>1</sup>For if he that cometh, preacheth <sup>2</sup>another Jesus whom we have not preached: or if ye receive another spirit whom ye have not received: either another Gospel which ye have not received, ye might well have suffered him.

5 Verily I suppose that I was not inferior to the very chief Apostles.

6 <sup>1</sup>And though I be <sup>2</sup>rude in speaking, yet I am not so in knowledge, but among you we have been made manifest to the uttermost, in all things.

7 <sup>1</sup>Have I committed an offence, because I abased myself, that ye might be exalted, and because I preached to you the Gospel of God freely?

8 I robbed other Churches, and took wages of them to do you service.

9 And when I was present with you, and had need, <sup>b</sup>I was not slothful to the hindrance of any man: for that which was lacking unto me, the brethren which came from Macedonia, supplied, and in all things I kept, <sup>1</sup>and will keep myself, that I should not be grievous unto you.

10 The <sup>1</sup>truth of Christ is in me, that this rejoicing shall not be <sup>2</sup>shut up against me in the regions of Achaia.

11 Wherefore? because I love you not? God knoweth.

12 But what I do, that will I do, that I may cut away occasion from them which desire occasion, that they might be found like unto us in that wherein they <sup>1</sup>rejoice.

13 <sup>1</sup>For such false apostles are deceitful workers, and transform themselves into the Apostles of Christ.

14 And no marvel: for Satan himself is transformed into an Angel of <sup>1</sup>light.

15 Therefore it is no great thing, though his ministers transform themselves, as though they were the ministers of righteousness, whose end shall be according to their works.

16 <sup>1</sup>I say again, Let no man think that I am foolish, or else take me even as a fool, that I also may boast myself a little.

17 That I speak, I speak it not after the Lord: but as it were foolishly, in this my great boasting.

18 Seeing that many rejoice after [the] flesh, I will rejoice also.

19 For ye suffer fools gladly, because that ye are wise.

20 <sup>1</sup>For ye suffer, even if a man bring you into bondage, if a man devour you, if a man take your goods, if a man exalt himself, if a man smite you on the face.

11:2 <sup>1</sup> He speaketh as a woer, but yet as one that seeketh them not for himself, but for God.

11:3 <sup>1</sup> This place is to be marked against them which loathe that plain and pure simplicity of the Scriptures, in comparison of the colors and paintings of man's eloquence.

11:4 <sup>1</sup> He showeth that they deceive themselves, if they look to receive of any other man, either a more excellent Gospel, or more excellent gifts of the holy Ghost.

11:6 <sup>1</sup> He refuteth the slanders of those Thrasoes. I grant, saith he, that I am not so eloquent an Orator, but yet they cannot take away the knowledge of the Gospel from me, whereof you have had good proof, and that every manner of way.

<sup>2</sup> Paul lacked not the kind of eloquence which is meet for a man, and fit for the Gospel, but he willingly wanted that painted kind of speech, which too many nowadays hunt after and follow.

11:7 <sup>1</sup> Another slander, to wit, that he was a rascal, and lived by the labor of his own hands. But herein, saith the Apostle, what can you lay against me, but that I was content to take any pains for your sakes, and when I lacked, to travail for my living with mine own hands in part, and partly also when poverty constrained me, I chose rather otherwise to seek my sustenance, than to be any burden to you, although I preached the Gospel unto you?

11:9 <sup>1</sup> An amplification: so far is he from being ashamed of this act, that he hath also resolved with himself to do no otherwise hereafter amongst them, to the intent that it may always be truly said, that he taught in Achaia for nothing: not that he disdaineth the Corinthians, but that these Thrasoes may never find the occasion which they have already sought for, and he in the mean season may set something before them to follow, that at length they may truly say, that they are like to Paul.

11:10 <sup>1</sup> This is a form of an oath, as if he said, let me not be thought to have any truth in me.

11:12 <sup>1</sup> Paul's adversaries sought all occasions they could, to be equal to him. And therefore seeing they had rather eat up the Corinthians, than preach to them for nothing, they sought another occasion, to wit, to make Paul to take something: which thing if he had done, then hoped they by that means to be equal to him: for they made such a show of zeal and knowledge, and set it forth with such a glossing kind of eloquence, that some of them even despised Paul: but he showeth that all this is nothing but colors and painting.

11:13 <sup>1</sup> Now at length he pointeth out these fellows in their colors, forewarning that it will come to pass, that they will at length betray themselves, what countenance soever they make of zeal that they have to God's glory.

11:14 <sup>1</sup> By light is meant the heavenly glory, whereof the Angels are partakers.

11:16 <sup>1</sup> He goeth forward boldly, and using a vehement Irony of kind of taunting, desireth the Corinthians to pardon him, if for a time he contend as a fool before them being wise, with those jolly fellows touching those eternal things, to wit, touching his stock, his ancestors and valiant acts.

11:20 <sup>1</sup> Before he cometh to the matter, he toucheth the Corinthians, who persuading themselves to very wise men, did not mark in the mean season that those false apostles abused their simplicity for advantage.

21 I speak as concerning the <sup>1</sup>reproach: as though that we had been <sup>2</sup>weak: but wherein any man is bold (I speak foolishly) I am bold also.

22 They are Hebrews, <sup>6</sup>so am I: they are Israelites, so am I: they are the seed of Abraham, so am I.

23 They are the ministers of Christ (I speak as a fool) I am <sup>1</sup>more: in labors more abundant: in stripes above measure: in prison more plenteously: in <sup>2</sup>death oft.

24 Of the Jews <sup>1</sup>five times received I forty stripes save one.

25 I was <sup>1</sup>thrice <sup>4</sup>beaten with rods: I was <sup>6</sup>once stoned: I suffered thrice <sup>5</sup>shipwreck: night and day have I been in the deep sea.

26 In journeying I was often, in perils of waters, in perils of robbers, in perils of mine own nation, in perils among the Gentiles, in perils in the city, in perils in wilderness, in perils in the sea, in perils among false brethren, 27 In weariness and <sup>1</sup>painfulness, in watching often, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and in nakedness.

28 <sup>1</sup>Beside the things which are outward, I am cumbered daily, and have the care of all the Churches.

29 Who is weak, and I am not weak? Who is offended, and I burn not?

30 <sup>1</sup>If I must needs rejoice, I will rejoice of mine infirmities.

31 The God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which is blessed for evermore, knoweth that I lie not.

32 In <sup>8</sup>Damascus the governor of the people under King Aretas, laid watch in the city of the Damascenes, and would have caught me.

33 But at a window was I let down in a basket through the wall, and escaped his hands.

1 It <sup>1</sup>is not expedient for me no doubt to rejoice: for I will come to visions and revelations of the Lord.

2 I know a man <sup>1</sup>in Christ above fourteen years ago, (whether he were in the body, I cannot tell, or out of the body, I cannot tell: God knoweth) which was taken up into the <sup>2</sup>third heaven.

3 And I know such a man (whether in the body, or out of the body, I cannot tell: God knoweth.)

4 How that he was taken up into <sup>1</sup>Paradise, and heard words which <sup>2</sup>cannot be spoken, which are not <sup>3</sup>possible for man to utter.

5 <sup>1</sup>Of such a man will I rejoice: of myself will I not rejoice, except it be of mine infirmities.

6 For though I would rejoice, I should not be a fool, for I will say the truth: but I refrain, lest any man should think of me above that he seeth in me, or that he heareth of me.

7 <sup>1</sup>And lest I should be exalted out of measure

11:21 <sup>1</sup> As if he said, in respect of that reproach which they do unto you (I speak it) which surely is as evil as if they did beat you.

<sup>2</sup> Paul is called weak, in that he seemeth to the Corinthians a vile and abject man, a beggarly artificer, a most wretched and miserable idiot, whereas notwithstanding therein God's mighty power was made manifest.

11:23 <sup>1</sup> Paul being honorable indeed, defendeth his ministry openly, not for his own sake, but because he saw his doctrine come into hazard.

11:24 <sup>1</sup> He alludeth to that that is written, Deut. 25:3, and moreover this place showeth us, that Paul suffered many things which Luke passed over.

11:25 <sup>1</sup> Of the Roman Magistrates.

11:27 <sup>1</sup> Painfulness is a troublesome sickness, as when a man who is weary and would rest, he is constrained to fall to new labor.

11:28 <sup>1</sup> He addeth this in conclusion further, that the Corinthians might be ashamed to despise him, upon whose care almost all Churches depended, as it was plainly seen by experience.

11:30 <sup>1</sup> He turneth that against the adversaries, which they objected against him: as if he should say, They allege my calamities, to take away my authority from me: but if I would boast myself, I would take no better argument: and God himself is my witness that I devise and forge nothing.

12:1 <sup>1</sup> He goeth forward in his purpose, and because those bragging mates boasted of revelations, he reckoneth up those things which lift him up above the common capacity of men: but he useth a preface, and excuseth himself advisedly.

12:2 <sup>1</sup> I speak this in Christ, that is, be it spoken without vainglory, for I seek nothing but Christ Jesus only.

<sup>2</sup> Into the highest heaven: for we need not to dispute subtly upon the word (Third) but yet this place is to be marked against them which would make heaven to [be] everywhere.

12:4 <sup>1</sup> So the Grecians name that which we call a park, that is to say, a place where trees are planted, and wild beasts kept, by which name they that translated the old Testament out of the Hebrew into Greek, called the garden Eden, whereunto Adam was put straight after his creation, as a most delicate and pleasant place. And hereunto grew it, that that blessed seat of the glory of God is called by that name.

<sup>3</sup> Which the Saints themselves are not by any means able to express, because it is God himself. Thus doth Clement Alexandria expound this place, Strom. 5.

12:5 <sup>1</sup> To remove all suspicion of ambition he witnesseth that he braggeth not of those things as his own, but as out of himself, and yet notwithstanding faineth nothing, lest by this occasion other men should attribute more unto him than indeed he is: and therefore he had rather glory in his miseries.

12:7 <sup>1</sup> An excellent doctrine: why God will have even his best servants to be vexed of Satan and by all kinds of temptations, to wit, lest they should be too much puffed up, and also that they may be made perfect by that continual exercise.

through the abundance of revelations, there was given unto me a <sup>2</sup>prick in the flesh, the messenger of <sup>3</sup>Satan to buffet me, because I should not be exalted out of measure.

8 For this thing I besought the Lord <sup>1</sup>thrice, that it might depart from me.

9 And he said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee: for my power is made perfect through weakness. <sup>1</sup>Very gladly therefore will I rejoice rather in mine infirmities, that the power of Christ may <sup>2</sup>dwell in me.

10 Therefore I take <sup>1</sup>pleasure in infirmities, in reproaches, in necessities, in persecutions, in anguish for Christ's sake: for when I am weak, then am I strong.

11 I was a fool to boast myself: ye have compelled me: <sup>1</sup>for I ought to have been commended of you: for in nothing was I inferior unto the very chief Apostles, though I be nothing.

12 The <sup>1</sup>signs of an Apostle were wrought among you with all patience, with signs, and wonders and great works.

13 For what is it, wherein ye were inferiors unto other Churches, <sup>4</sup>except that I have not been <sup>1</sup>slothful to your hindrance? forgive me this wrong.

14 Behold, the third time I am ready to come unto you, and yet will I not be slothful to your hindrance: for I seek not yours, but you: for the children ought not to lay up for the fathers, but the fathers for the children.

15 And I will most gladly bestow, and will be bestowed for your souls: though the more I love you, the less I am loved.

16 <sup>1</sup>But be it that I charged you not: yet for as much as I was crafty, I took you with guile.

<sup>2</sup> 2 Cor. 11:9

<sup>4</sup> Deut. 19:17

Matt. 18:16

John 8:17

Heb. 10:28

17 Did I pill you by any of them whom I sent unto you?

18 I have desired Titus, and with him I have sent a brother: did Titus pill you of any things? walked we not in the selfsame spirit? walked we not in the same steps?

19 <sup>1</sup>Again, think ye that we excuse ourselves unto you? we speak before God in <sup>2</sup>Christ. But we do all things, dearly beloved, for your edifying.

20 <sup>1</sup>For I fear lest when I come, I shall not find you such as I would: and that I shall be found unto you such as ye would not: and lest there be strife, envying, wrath, contentions, backbitings, whisperings, swellings, and discord.

21 I fear lest when I come again, my God abase me among you, and I shall bewail many of them which have sinned already, and have not repented of the uncleanness, and fornication, and wantonness which they have committed.

1 Lo this is the third time that I come unto you. <sup>4</sup>In the mouth of two or three witnesses shall every word stand.

2 I told you before, and tell you before: as though I had been present the second time, so write I now being absent to them, which heretofore have sinned, and to all others, that if I come again, I will not spare,

3 <sup>1</sup>Seeing that ye seek experience of Christ, that speaketh in me, which toward you is not weak, but <sup>2</sup> He meaneth concupiscence, that sticketh fast in us, as it were a prick, insomuch that it constrained Paul himself being regenerate, to cry out, I do not that good that I would, etc. And he calleth it a prick, by a borrowed kind of speech taken from thorns, or stumps, which are very dangerous and hurtful for the feet, if a man walks through woods that are cut down.

12:8 <sup>1</sup> Oft.

12:9 <sup>1</sup> He concludeth, that he will only see his miseries against the vain brags of the false apostles, and therewith also excuseth himself, for that by their importunity, he was constrained to speak so much of these things as he did: to wit, because that if his Apostleship were subverted his doctrine must needs fall.

<sup>2</sup> That I might feel the virtue of Christ more and more: For the weaker that our tabernacles are, the more doth Christ's virtue appear in them.

12:10 <sup>1</sup> I do not only take them patiently and with a good heart, but also I take great pleasure in them.

12:11 <sup>1</sup> Again he maketh the Corinthians witnesses of those things whereby God had sealed his Apostleship amongst them, and again he desireth by certain arguments, how far he is from all covetousness, and also how he is affectioned towards them.

12:12 <sup>1</sup> The arguments whereby it may well appear, that I am indeed an Apostle of Jesus Christ.

12:13 <sup>1</sup> I was not slothful in getting my living with mine own hands, that I might not be burdensome to you.

12:16 <sup>1</sup> He putteth away another most grievous slander, to wit, that he did subtly and by others, make his gain and profit of them.

12:19 <sup>1</sup> He concludeth, that he writeth not these things unto them, as though he needed to defend himself, for he is guilty of nothing: but because it is behovous for them to doubt nothing of his fidelity who instructed them.

<sup>2</sup> As it becometh him to speak truly and sincerely, that professeth himself to be in Christ, that is to say, to be a Christian.

12:20 <sup>1</sup> Having confirmed his authority unto them, he rebuketh them sharply, and threateneth them also like an Apostle, showing that he will not spare them hereafter, unless they repent, seeing that this is the third time that he hath warned them.

13:3 <sup>1</sup> A most sharp reprehension, for that, while they despise the Apostle's admonitions, they tempt Christ's own patience: and also while they condemn him as wretched and miserable, they lay nothing herein against him, which is not common to him with Christ.

is <sup>2</sup>mighty in you.

4 For though he was crucified concerning <sup>1</sup>his infirmity, yet liveth he through the power of God. And we no doubt are weak in him, but we shall live with him, through the power of God toward you.

5 <sup>b,1</sup>Prove yourselves whether ye are in the faith: examine yourselves: know ye not your own selves, how that Jesus Christ is in you, except ye be reprobates?

6 <sup>1</sup>But I trust that ye shall know that we are not reprobates.

7 Now I pray unto God that ye do none evil, not that we should seem approved, but that ye should do that which is honest: though we be as <sup>1</sup>reprobates.

8 For we cannot do anything against the truth, but for the truth.

9 For we are glad when we are weak, and that ye are strong: this also we wish for, even your <sup>1</sup>perfection.

10 Therefore write I these things being absent, lest when I am present, I should use sharpness, according to the power which the Lord hath given me, to edification, and not to destruction.

11 <sup>1</sup>Finally brethren, fare ye well: be perfect: be of good comfort: be of one mind: live in peace, and the God of love and peace shall be with you.

12 <sup>1</sup>Greet one another with an <sup>1</sup>holy kiss. All the Saints salute you.

13 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the communion of the holy Ghost be with you all, Amen.

¶ The second Epistle to the Corinthians, written from Philippi, a city in Macedonia, and sent by Titus and Lucas.

13:3 <sup>2</sup> And will be most mighty to be revenged of you, when need shall be.

13:4 <sup>1</sup> As touching that base form of a servant which he took upon him when he abased himself.

13:5 <sup>1</sup> He confirmeth that which he spake of the virtue of God appearing in his ministry, and he gathereth by the mutual relation between the people's faith and the minister's preaching, that they must either reverence his Apostleship, upon whose doctrine their faith is grounded, or they must condemn themselves of infidelity, and must confess themselves not to be of Christ's body.

13:6 <sup>1</sup> He mitigateth that sharpness, trusting that they will show themselves towards their faithful Apostle, apt and willingly to be taught: adding this moreover, that he passeth not for his own fame and estimation, so that he may serve to their salvation, which is the only mark that he shooteth at.

13:7 <sup>1</sup> In men's judgment.

13:9 <sup>1</sup> That all things may be in good order amongst you, and the members of the Church restored into their place, which have been shaken and out of place.

13:11 <sup>1</sup> A brief exhortation, but yet such an one as comprehendeth all the parts of a Christian man's life.

13:12 <sup>1</sup> He saluteth them familiarly, and in conclusion wisheth well unto them.

THE EPISTLE OF THE APOSTLE PAUL TO THE GALATIANS

1 1 Straight after the salutation, 6 He reprehendeth the Galatians for revolting, 9 from his Gospel, 15 which he received from God, 17 before he had communicated with any of the Apostles.

1 Paul <sup>1</sup>an Apostle (not <sup>2</sup>of men, neither by <sup>3</sup>man, <sup>4</sup>but by <sup>4</sup>Jesus Christ, and God the Father which hath raised him from the dead.)

2 And all the brethren which are with me unto the Churches of Galatia:

3 Grace be with you, and peace from God the Father, and from our Lord Jesus Christ,

4 <sup>1</sup>Which gave himself for our sins, that he might deliver us <sup>6</sup>from this present evil <sup>2</sup>world according to the will of God even our Father,

5 To whom be glory forever and ever, Amen.

6 <sup>1</sup>I marvel that ye are so soon <sup>2</sup>removed away unto another Gospel, from him that had called you in the grace of Christ,

CHAPTER I

7 <sup>1</sup>Which is not another Gospel, save that there be some which trouble you, and intend to <sup>2</sup>pervert the Gospel of Christ.

8 But though that we, or an Angel from heaven preach unto you otherwise than that which we have preached unto you, let him be <sup>1</sup>accursed.

9 As we said before, so say I now again, If any man preach unto you otherwise than that ye have received, let him be accursed.

10 <sup>1</sup>For now preach I <sup>2</sup>man's doctrine, or God's? or go I about to please men? for if I should yet please men, I were not the servant of Christ.

11 <sup>1</sup>Now I certify you, brethren, that the Gospel which was preached of me, was not after man.

12 For neither received I it of man, neither was I taught it, but by the <sup>1</sup>revelation of Jesus Christ.

13 <sup>1</sup>For ye have heard of my conversation in time past, in the Jewish religion, how that <sup>4</sup>I persecuted

1:1 <sup>1</sup> A salutation comprehending in few words, the sum of the Apostle's doctrine, and also besides straightway from the beginning, showing the gravity meet for the authority of an Apostle, which he had to maintain against the false apostles.

<sup>2</sup> He showeth who is the author of the minister generally: for herein the whole ministry agreeth, that whether they be Apostles, or Shepherds, or Doctors, they are appointed of God.

<sup>3</sup> He toucheth the instrumental cause: for this is a peculiar prerogative to the Apostles, to be called immediately from Christ.

<sup>4</sup> Christ no doubt is man, but he is God also, and head of the Church, and in this respect to be exempted out of the number of men.

1:4 <sup>1</sup> The sum of the true Gospel is this, that Christ by his only offering, saveth us being chosen out from the world, by the free decree of God the Father.

1:6 <sup>1</sup> The first part of the Epistle wherein he witnesseth that he is an Apostle, nothing inferior to those chief disciples of Christ, and wholly agreeing with them, whose names the false apostles did abuse. And he beginneth with chiding, reproving them of lightness for that they have ear so easily unto them which perverted them and drew them away to a new Gospel.

<sup>2</sup> He useth the passive voice, to cast the fault upon the false apostles, and he useth the time that now is, to give them to understand, that it was not already done, but in doing.

1:7 <sup>1</sup> He warneth them in time to remember that there are not many Gospels, and therefore whatsoever these false apostles pretend which had the Law, Moses and the Fathers in their mouths, yet they are in deed so many corruptions of the true Gospel, inasmuch that he himself, yea, and the very Angels themselves, (and therefore much more these false apostles) ought to be holden accursed, if they go about to change the least iota that may be in the Gospel, that he delivered to them before.

<sup>2</sup> For there is nothing more contrary to faith or free justification, than justification by the Law, or by our deserving.

1:8 <sup>1</sup> See Rom. 9:3.

1:10 <sup>1</sup> A confirmation taken both from the nature of the doctrine itself, and also from that manner which he useth in teaching: for neither saith he, did I teach those things which pleased men as these men do which put part of salvation in external things, and works of the Law, neither went I about to procure any man's favor. And therefore the matter itself showeth that that doctrine which I delivered unto you, is heavenly.

<sup>2</sup> He toucheth the false apostles who had nothing but men in their mouths, and he, though he would derogate nothing from the Apostles, preacheth God and not men.

1:11 <sup>1</sup> A second argument to prove that this doctrine is heavenly, because he had it from heaven, from Jesus Christ himself, without any man's help, wherein he excelleth them whom Christ taught here on earth after the manner of men.

1:12 <sup>1</sup> This place is to be understood of an extraordinary revelation, for otherwise the Son alone revealed his Gospel by his Spirit, although by the ministry of men, which Paul shutteth out here.

1:13 <sup>1</sup> He proveth that he was extraordinarily taught of Christ himself, by the history of his former life, which the Galatians themselves know well enough: for saith he, it is well known in what school I was brought up, even from a child, to wit, amongst the deadly enemies of the Gospel. And no man may cavil and say that I was a scholar of the Pharisees in name only and not in deed, no man is ignorant, how that I excelled in Pharisaism, and was suddenly made of a Pharisee, an Apostle of the Gentiles, so that I had no space to be instructed of men.

the Church of God extremely, and wasted it,

14 And profited in the Jewish religion above many of my companions of mine own nation, and was much more zealous of the <sup>1</sup>traditions of my fathers.

15 But when it pleased God (which had <sup>1</sup>separated me from my mother's womb, and called me by his grace.)

16 To reveal his Son <sup>1</sup>in me, that I should preach him 'among the Gentiles immediately, <sup>2</sup>I communicated not with <sup>3</sup>flesh and blood:

17 Neither came I again to Jerusalem to them which were Apostles before me, but I went into Arabia, and turned again unto Damascus.

18 Then after three years I came again to Jerusalem, to visit Peter, and abode with him fifteen days.

19 And none other of the Apostles saw I, save James the Lord's brother.

20 Now the things which I write unto you, behold, I witness <sup>1</sup>before God, that I lie not.

21 After that, I went into the coasts of Syria and Cilicia: for I was unknown by face unto the Churches of Judea which were in Christ.

22 But they had heard only some say, He which persecuted us in time past, now preacheth the <sup>1</sup>faith which before he destroyed.

23 And they glorified God for me.

2 1 That the Apostles did nothing disagree from his Gospel, 3 he declareth by the example of Titus being uncircumcised, 11 and also by his . . . the same against Peter's dissimulation. 17 And so he passeth to the handling of our free justification by Christ, etc.

<sup>c</sup> Eph. 3:8

<sup>d</sup> Deut. 10:17
<sup>e</sup> Chron. 19:7
 Job 34:19
 Acts 10:34
 Rom. 2:11
 Eph. 6:9
 Col. 3:25

1 Then <sup>1</sup>fourteen years after, I went up again to Jerusalem with Barnabas, and took with me Titus also.

2 And I went up by revelation, and declared unto them that Gospel which I preach among the Gentiles, but particularly to them that were the chief, lest by any means I should run, or had run <sup>1</sup>in vain:

3 But neither yet Titus which was with me, though he were a Grecian, was compelled to be circumcised,

4 To wit, for the <sup>1</sup>false brethren which were craftily sent in, and crept in privily to spy out our liberty which we have in Christ Jesus, that they might bring us into bondage.

5 To whom we gave not place by <sup>1</sup>subjection for an hour, that the <sup>2</sup>truth of the Gospel might continue with <sup>3</sup>you.

6 But by them which seemed to be great, I was not taught (whatsoever they were in time passed, I am nothing the better: "God accepteth no man's person) for they that are the chief, did add nothing to me above that I had.

7 But contrariwise, when they saw that the Gospel over the <sup>1</sup>uncircumcision was committed unto me, as the Gospel over the circumcision was unto Peter:

8 (For he that was mighty by Peter in the Apostleship over the circumcision, was also mighty by me toward the Gentiles.)

9 And when James, and Cephas, and John, knew of the grace that was given unto me, which are <sup>1</sup>counted to be pillars, they gave to me and to Barnabas the right <sup>2</sup>hands of fellowship, that we should preach unto the Gentiles, and they unto the circumcision,

1:14 <sup>1</sup> He calleth them the traditions of his Fathers, because he was not only a Pharisee himself, but also had a Pharisee to his father.

1:15 <sup>1</sup> He speaketh of God's everlasting predestination, whereby he appointed him to be an Apostle, whereof he maketh three degrees, the everlasting counsel of God, his appointing from his mother's womb, and his calling: here is no mention at all, we see, of works foreseen.

1:16 <sup>1</sup> To me, and this is a kind of speech which the Hebrews use, whereby this is given us to understand, that this gift cometh from God.

<sup>2</sup> Because it might be objected, that indeed he was called of Christ in the way, but afterwards was instructed of the Apostles and others, whose names (as I said before) the false apostles abused to destroy his Apostleship, as though he delivered another Gospel than the true Apostles did, and as though he were not of their number, which are to be credited without exception: therefore Paul answereth, that he began straightway after his calling to preach the Gospel at Damascus and in Arabia, and was not from that time in Jerusalem but only fifteen days, where he saw only Peter and James, and afterwards, he began to teach in Syria and Cilicia, with the consent and approbation of the Churches of the Jews, which knew him only by name, so far off was it, that he was there instructed of men.

1:20 <sup>1</sup> This is a kind of an oath.

2:1 <sup>1</sup> Now he showeth how he agreeth with the Apostles with whom he granteth that he conferred touching his Gospel which he taught among the Gentiles, fourteen years after his conversion, and they allowed it in such sort, that they constrained not his fellow Titus to be circumcised, although some tormented themselves therein, which traitorously laid wait against him, but in vain: neither did they add the least iota that might be to the doctrine which he had preached, but contrariwise they gave to him and Barnabas the right hands of fellowship and acknowledged them as Apostles appointed of the Lord to the Gentiles.

2:2 <sup>1</sup> Unfruitfully, for as touching his doctrine, Paul doubted not of it, but because there were certain reports cast abroad of him, that he was of another opinion than the rest of the Apostles were, which thing might have hindered the course of the Gospel, therefore he labored to remedy this sore.

2:4 <sup>1</sup> Which by deceit, and counterfeit holiness crept in amongst the faithful.

2:5 <sup>1</sup> By submitting ourselves to them, and betraying our own liberty.
<sup>2</sup> The true and sincere doctrine of the Gospel, which remained safe from being corrupt with any of these men's false doctrines.

2:7 <sup>1</sup> Among the Gentiles, as Peter had to preach it among the Jews.

2:9 <sup>1</sup> Whom alone and only, these men count for pillars of the Church, and whose name they abuse to deceive you.

<sup>2</sup> They gave us their hand in token that we agreed wholly in the doctrine of the Gospel.

10 Warning only that we should remember the poor: which thing also I was diligent to do.

11 ¶ And when Peter was come to Antioch, I withstood him to his <sup>1</sup>face: for he was to be condemned.

12 <sup>1</sup>For before that certain came from James, he ate with the Gentiles: but when they were come, he withdrew and separated himself, fearing them which were of the circumcision.

13 And the other Jews played the hypocrites likewise with him, insomuch that Barnabas was <sup>1</sup>led away with them by that their hypocrisy.

14 But when I saw, that they went not the <sup>1</sup>right way to the <sup>2</sup>truth of the Gospel, I said unto Peter before all men, If thou being a Jew, livest as the Gentiles, and not like the Jews, why <sup>3</sup>constrainest thou the Gentiles to do like the Jews?

15 <sup>1</sup>We which are Jews <sup>2</sup>by nature, and not <sup>3</sup>sinners of the Gentiles,

16 Know that a man is not justified by the works of the Law, but by the faith <sup>1</sup>of Jesus Christ, even we, I say, have believed in Jesus Christ, that we might be justified by the faith of Christ, and not by the works of the Law, because that by the works of the Law, <sup>2</sup>no flesh shall be justified.

17 <sup>b1</sup>If then while <sup>2</sup>we seek to be made righteous by Christ, we ourselves are found sinners, is Christ therefore the minister of sin? God forbid.

18 For if I build again the things that I have destroyed, I make myself a trespasser.

19 For I through the Law am dead to the <sup>1</sup>Law, that I might live unto God.

20 I am crucified with Christ, but I live, yet not <sup>1</sup>I anymore, but Christ liveth in me: and in that I now live in the <sup>2</sup>flesh, I live by the faith in the Son of God, who hath loved me, and given himself for me.

21 <sup>1</sup>I do not abrogate the grace of God: for if righteousness be by the Law, then Christ died without a <sup>2</sup>cause.

3 <sup>1</sup> He rebuketh them, for suffering themselves to be drawn from the grace of free justification in Christ, most lively set out unto them. <sup>6</sup> He bringeth in Abraham's example, <sup>10</sup> declaring the effects, <sup>21</sup> and causes of the giving of the Law.

1 <sup>1</sup>O foolish Galatians, who hath bewitched you, that ye should not obey the truth, to whom Jesus Christ before was described in your <sup>2</sup>sight,

2:11 <sup>1</sup> Before all men.

2:12 <sup>1</sup> Another most vehement proof of his Apostleship, and also of that doctrine, which he had delivered concerning free justification by faith only because that for this thing only he reprehended Peter at Antioch, who offended herein, in that for a few Jews' sakes which came from Jerusalem he played the Jew, and offended the Gentiles which had believed.

2:13 <sup>1</sup> By example rather than by judgment.

2:14 <sup>1</sup> Word for word, with a right foot which he setteth against halting and dissembling which is backward.

<sup>3</sup> He saith they were constrained, which played the Jews by Peter's example.

2:15 <sup>1</sup> The second part of this Epistle, the state whereof is this: we are justified by faith in Christ Jesus without the works of the Law: which thing he propoundeth in such sort, that first of all he meeteth with an objection, (for I also saith he am a Jew, that no man may say against me, that I am an enemy to the Law) and afterward, he confirmeth it by the express witness of David.

<sup>3</sup> So the Jews called the Gentiles, because they were strangers from God's covenant.

2:16 <sup>1</sup> In Jesus Christ.

<sup>2</sup> No man, and in this word (flesh) there is a great vehemence, whereby is meant that the nature of man is utterly corrupt.

2:17 <sup>1</sup> Before he goeth any further, he meeteth with their objection, which abhorred this doctrine of free justification by faith, because say they, men are by this means withdrawn from the study of good works. And in this sort is the objection, If sinners should be justified through Christ by faith without the Law Christ should approve sinners, and should as it were exhort them thereunto by his ministry. Paul answereth that this consequence is false, because that Christ destroyeth sin in the believers: For so saith he do men flee unto Christ, through the terror and fear of the Law that being quit from the curse of the Law and justified, they may be saved by him, that together therewithall, he beginneth in them by little and little, that strength and power of his which destroyeth sin: to the end that this old man being abolished by the virtue of Christ crucified, Christ may live in them, and they may consecrate themselves to God. Therefore if any man give himself to sin after he hath received the Gospel, let him not accuse Christ nor the Gospel, but himself, for that he destroyeth the work of God in himself.

<sup>2</sup> He goeth from justification to sanctification, which is another benefit we receive by Christ, if we lay hold on him by faith.

2:19 <sup>1</sup> The Law that terrifieth the conscience, bringeth us to Christ, and he only causeth us to die to the Law indeed, because that by making us righteous, he taketh away from us the terror of conscience, and by sanctifying us, causeth through the mortifying of lust in us, that it cannot take such occasion to sin by the restraint which the Law maketh, as it did before, Rom. 7:10-11.

2:20 <sup>1</sup> The same that I was before.

2:21 <sup>1</sup> The second argument taken of an absurdity: If men may be justified by the Law, then was it not necessary for Christ to die.

<sup>2</sup> For there was no cause why he should do so.

3:1 <sup>1</sup> The third reason or argument taken of those gifts of the holy Ghost, wherewith they were endued from heaven after they had heard and believed the Gospel by Paul's ministry: which seeing they were so evident to all men's eyes, that they were as it were lively images, wherein they might behold the truth of the doctrine of the Gospel, no less than if they had beheld with their eyes Christ himself crucified, in whose only death they ought to have their trust, he marvelleth how it could be that they could be so bewitched by the false apostles.

<sup>2</sup> Christ was laid before you, so notably and so plainly, that you had his lively image as it were represented before your eyes, as if he had been crucified before you.

and among you crucified?

2 This only would I learn of you, Received ye the <sup>1</sup>Spirit by the works of the Law, or by the hearing of <sup>2</sup>faith preached?

3 <sup>1</sup>Are ye so foolish, that after ye have begun in the Spirit, ye would now be made perfect by the <sup>2</sup>flesh?

4 <sup>1</sup>Have ye suffered so many things in vain? if so be it be even in vain.

5 <sup>1</sup>He therefore that ministereth to you the Spirit, and worketh miracles among you, doeth he it through the works of the Law, or by the hearing of faith preached?

6 <sup>1</sup>Yea rather as <sup>2</sup>Abraham believed God, and it was <sup>4</sup>imputed to him for righteousness.

7 <sup>1</sup>Know ye therefore, that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham.

8 <sup>1</sup>For the Scripture foreseeing, that God would justify the Gentiles through faith, preached before the Gospel unto Abraham, saying, <sup>2</sup>In thee shall all the Gentiles be <sup>3</sup>blessed.

9 <sup>1</sup>So then they which be of faith, are blessed with <sup>2</sup>faithful Abraham.

10 <sup>1</sup>For as many as are of the works of the Law, are under the curse: <sup>2</sup>For it is written, 'Cursed is every man that continueth not in all things, which are written in the book of the Law, to do them.

11 <sup>1</sup>And that no man is justified by the Law in the sight of God, it is evident: <sup>4</sup>for the just shall live by faith.

12 <sup>1</sup>And the Law is not of faith: but <sup>e</sup>the man that shall do those things, shall live in them.

13 <sup>1</sup>Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the Law, made a curse for us, (<sup>2</sup>for it is written, <sup>f</sup><sup>3</sup>Cursed is everyone that hangeth on tree.)

14 <sup>1</sup>That the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Christ Jesus, that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith.

15 <sup>1</sup>Brethren, I speak as <sup>2</sup>men do: <sup>8</sup>though it be

3:2 <sup>1</sup> Those spiritual graces and gifts, which were a seal as it were to the Galatians, that the Gospel which was preached to them was true.

3:3 <sup>1</sup> The fourth argument mixed with [the former] and it is double, If the Law is to be joined with faith, this were not to go forward, but backward, seeing that those spiritual gifts which were bestowed upon you, are more excellent than any that could proceed from yourselves. And moreover, it should follow, that the Law is better than Christ, because it should perfect and bring to end that which Christ began only.

<sup>2</sup> By the (flesh) he meaneth the ceremonies of the Law, against which he setteth the Spirit, that is, the spiritual working of the Gospel.

3:4 <sup>1</sup> An exhortation by manner of upbraiding, that they do not in vain suffer so many conflicts.

3:5 <sup>1</sup> He repeateth the third argument which was taken of the effects, because he had interlaced certain other arguments by the way.

3:6 <sup>1</sup> The first argument which is of great force, and hath three grounds, The first, That Abraham was justified by faith, to wit, by free imputation of righteousness according to the promise apprehended by faith, as Moses doth most plainly witness.

3:7 <sup>1</sup> The second, that the sons of Abraham must be esteemed and accounted of by faith.

3:8 <sup>1</sup> The third, that all people that believe, are without exception, comprehended in the promise of the blessing.

3:9 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion of the fifth argument: Therefore as Abraham is blessed by faith, so are all his children (that is to say, all the Gentiles that believe) blessed, that is to say, freely justified.

<sup>2</sup> With faithful Abraham, and not by faithful Abraham, to give us to understand that the blessing cometh not from Abraham, but from him, by whom Abraham and all his posterity is blessed.

3:10 <sup>1</sup> The sixth argument, the conclusion whereof is also in the former verse taken of contraries, thus, They are accursed which are of the works of the Law, that is to say, which value their [righteousness] by the performance of the Law. Therefore they are blessed which are of faith, that is, they which have righteousness by faith.

<sup>2</sup> A proof of the former sentence or proposition: and the proposition of this argument is this: Cursed is he that fulfilleth not the whole Law.

3:11 <sup>1</sup> The second proposition with the conclusion: But no man ful-fillethe the Law. Therefore no man is justified by the Law, or else, which seek righteousness by the works of the Law. And there is annexed also this manner of proof of the second proposition, to wit, Righteousness and life are attributed to faith, Therefore no man fulfilleth the Law.

3:12 <sup>1</sup> Here is a reason shown of the former consequence: Because the law promiseth life to all that keep it, and therefore if it be kept, it justifieth and giveth life. But the Scripture attributing righteousness and life to faith, taketh it from the Law, seeing that faith justifieth by imputation, and the Law by the performing of the work.

3:13 <sup>1</sup> A preventing of an objection: How then can they be blessed, whom the Law pronounceth to be accursed? Because Christ sustained the curse which the Law laid upon us, that we might be quit from it.

3:14 <sup>1</sup> A conclusion of all that was said before in the handling of the fifth and sixth reasons, to wit, that both the Gentiles are made partakers of the free blessing of Abraham in Christ, and also that the Jews themselves, of whose number the Apostle counteth himself to be, cannot obtain that promised grace of the Gospel, which he calleth the Spirit, but only by faith. And the Apostle doth severally apply the conclusion, both to the one and the other, preparing himself a way, to the next argument, whereby he declareth, that the one only seed of Abraham, which is made of all peoples can no otherwise be joined and grow up together, but by faith in Christ.

3:15 <sup>1</sup> He putteth forth two general [rules] before the next argument, which is the seventh in order: That one is, that it is not lawful to break covenants and contracts which are justly made and according to Law amongst men, neither may anything be added unto them: The other is, that God did so make a covenant with Abraham, that he would gather together his children which consist both of Jews and Gentiles into one body (as appeareth by that which hath been said before) For he did not say, that he would be the God of Abraham and of his seeds, (which things notwithstanding should have been said, if he had many and divers seeds, as the Gentiles apart and the Jews apart,) but that he would be the God of Abraham, and of his seed, as of one.

<sup>2</sup> I will use an example which is common among you, that you may be ashamed you give not so much to God's covenants, as you do to man's.

but a man's covenant, when it is <sup>3</sup>confirmed, yet no man doth abrogate it, or addeth anything thereto, 16 Now to Abraham and his seed were the promises made. He saith not, and to the seeds, as speaking of many: but, And to thy seed, as of one, <sup>1</sup>which is <sup>2</sup>Christ.

17 <sup>1</sup>And this I say, that the covenant that was confirmed afore of God <sup>2</sup>in respect of Christ, the <sup>3</sup>Law which was four hundred and thirty years after, cannot disannul, that it should make the promise of none effect.

18 <sup>1</sup>For if the <sup>2</sup>inheritance be of the Law, it is no more by the promise, but God gave it freely unto Abraham by promise.

19 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore then serveth the Law? It was added because of the <sup>2</sup>transgressions, <sup>3</sup>till the seed came, unto the which the promise was made: <sup>4</sup>and it was <sup>5</sup>ordained by <sup>6</sup>Angels in the hand of a Mediator.

20 Now a Mediator is not a Mediator of one: <sup>1</sup>but God is one.

21 <sup>1</sup>Is the Law then against the promises of God? God forbid: For if there had been a Law given which could have given life, surely righteousness should have been by the Law.

22 But the <sup>1</sup>Scripture hath <sup>b</sup>concluded <sup>2</sup>all under sin, that the <sup>3</sup>promise by the faith of Jesus Christ should be given to them that believe.

23 <sup>1</sup>But before faith came, we were kept under the Law, as under a garrison, and shut up unto <sup>2</sup>that faith, which should afterward be revealed.

24 Wherefore the Law was our schoolmaster to bring us to Christ, that we might be made righteous by faith.

25 But after that faith is come, we are no longer under a schoolmaster.

26 <sup>1</sup>For ye are all the sons of God by faith, in

3:16 <sup>1</sup> He putteth forth the sum of the seventh argument, to wit, that both the Jews and the Gentiles grow together into one body of the seed of Abraham, in Christ only, so that all are one in Christ, as it is afterward declared, verse 21.

<sup>2</sup> Paul speaketh not of Christ's person, but of two peoples, which grew together in one, in Christ.

3:17 <sup>1</sup> The eighth argument taken of comparison, thus: If a man's covenant (being authentical) be firm and strong, much more God's covenant. Therefore the Law was not given to abrogate the promise made to Abraham, which had respect to Christ, that is to say, the end whereof did hang of Christ.

<sup>3</sup> An enlarging of that argument, thus: Moreover and besides that the promise is of itself firm and strong, it was also confirmed with the prescription of long time, to wit, of 430 years, so that it could in no wise be broken.

3:18 <sup>1</sup> An objection: We grant that the promise was not abrogated by the covenant of the Law, and therefore we join the Law with the promise. Nay, saith the Apostle, these two cannot stand together, to wit, that the inheritance should both be given by the Law and also by promise, for the promise is free: whereby it followeth, that the Law was not given to justify, for by that means the promise should be broken.

<sup>2</sup> By this word (inheritance) is meant the right of the seed, which is, that God should be our God, that is to say, that by virtue of the covenant that was made with faithful Abraham, we that be faithful, might by that means be blessed of God as well as he.

3:19 <sup>1</sup> An objection which riseth of the former answer: If the inheritance be not by the Law (at the least in part) then why was the Law given, after that the promise was made? Therefore saith the Apostle, to reprove men of sin, and so teach them to look unto Christ, in whom at length that promise of saving all people together should be fulfilled, and not that the Law was given to justify men.

<sup>2</sup> That men might understand, by discovering of their sins, by the only grace of God, which he revealed to Abraham, and that in Christ.

<sup>3</sup> Until the partition wall was broken down, and that full seed sprang up, framed of two peoples, both of Jews and Gentiles: for by this word Seed, we may not understand, Christ alone by himself, but coupled and joined together with his body.

<sup>4</sup> A confirmation of the former answer taken from the manner and form of giving the Law: for it was given by Angels, striking a great terror into all, and by Moses a Mediator coming between. Now they that are one, need no Mediator, but they that are twain at the least, and that are at variance one with another. Therefore the Law itself and the Mediator, were witnesses of the wrath of God, and not that God would by this means reconcile men to himself, and abolish the promise, or add the Law unto the promise.

<sup>5</sup> Commanded and given, or proclaimed.

3:20 <sup>1</sup> A taking away of an objection, lest any man might say, that sometimes by consent of the parties which have made a covenant, something is added to the covenant, or the former covenants are broken. This, saith the Apostle, cometh to pass in God, who is always one, and the selfsame, and like himself.

3:21 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion uttered by a manner of asking a question, and it is the same that was uttered before, verse 17, but proceeding of another rule: so that the argument is new, and is this: God is always like unto himself: Therefore the Law was not given to abolish the promises. But it should abolish them if it gave life, for by that means it should justify, and therefore it should abolish that justification which was promised to Abraham and to his seed by faith. Nay it was rather given to bring to light the guiltiness of all men, to the end that all believers fleeing to Christ promised, might be freely justified in him.

3:23 <sup>1</sup> Now there followeth another handling of the second part of this Epistle: the state whereof is this: Although the Law (that is, the whole government of God's house according to the Law) [does] not justify, is it therefore to be abolished, seeing that Abraham himself was circumcised, and his posterity held still the use of Moses' Law? Paul affirmeth that it ought to be abolished, because it was instituted for that end and purpose, that is should be as it were a schoolmaster and keeper to the people of God, until the promise appeared in deed, that is to say, Christ, and the Gospel manifestly published with great efficacy of the Spirit.

3:26 <sup>1</sup> Because age changeth not the condition of servants, he addeth that we are free by condition, and therefore, seeing we are out of our childhood, we have no more need of a keeper and Schoolmaster.

Christ Jesus.

27 <sup>1</sup>For all ye that are <sup>2</sup>baptized into Christ, have <sup>3</sup>put on Christ.

28 There is neither Jew nor Grecian: there is neither bond nor free: there is neither male nor female: for ye are all <sup>1</sup>one in Christ Jesus.

29 And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs by promise.

4 1 Being delivered from the bondage of the Law, 4 by Christ's coming, who is the end thereof, 9 it is very absurd to slide back to beggarly ceremonies: 13 He calleth them again therefore to the purity of the doctrine of the Gospel, 21 confirming his discourse with a fine allegory.

1 Then <sup>1</sup>I say, that the heir as long as he is a child, differeth nothing from a servant, though he be Lord of all,

2 But is under tutors and governors, <sup>1</sup>until the time appointed of the Father.

3 Even so we, when we were children, were in bondage under the <sup>1</sup>rudiments of the world.

4 <sup>1</sup>But when the <sup>2</sup>fullness of time was come, God sent forth his Son made of a <sup>3</sup>woman, and made under the Law,

<sup>a</sup>Rom. 8:15

5 That he might redeem them which were under the Law, that we <sup>4</sup>might receive the <sup>1</sup>adoption of the sons.

6 <sup>1</sup>And because ye are sons, God hath <sup>2</sup>sent forth the <sup>3</sup>Spirit of his Son into your hearts, which crieth, Abba, Father.

7 Wherefore, thou art no more a <sup>1</sup>servant, but a son: now if thou be a son, thou art also the <sup>2</sup>heir of God through Christ.

8 <sup>1</sup>But even then, when ye knew not God, ye did service unto them, which by nature are not gods:

9 But now seeing ye know God, yea, rather are known of God, how turn ye again unto impotent and <sup>1</sup>beggarly rudiments, whereunto as from the beginning ye will be in bondage <sup>2</sup>again?

10 Ye observe days, and months, and times, and years.

11 I am in fear of you, lest I have bestowed on you labor in vain.

12 <sup>1</sup>Be ye as I (for I am even as you) brethren, I beseech you: ye have not hurt me at all.

13 And ye know, how through <sup>1</sup>infirmity of the 3:27 <sup>1</sup> Using a general particle, lest the Jews at the least should not think themselves bound with the band of the Law, he pronounceth that Baptism is common to all believers, because it is a pledge of our delivery in Christ, as well to the Jews as to the Grecians, that by this means all may be truly one in Christ, that is to say, that promised seed to Abraham and inheritors of everlasting life.

<sup>3</sup> The Church must put on Christ, as it were a garment, and be covered with him, that it may be thoroughly holy, and without blame.

3:28 <sup>1</sup> You are all as one: and so in this great knot and conjunction signified.

4:1 <sup>1</sup> He declareth that by another double similitude, which he said before concerning the keeper and schoolmaster. For he saith, that the Law, (that is, the whole government of God's house according to the Law) was as it were a tutor or overseer appointed for a time, until such time as that protection and overseeing which was but for a time, being ended, we should at length come to be at our own liberty, and should live as children, and not as servants. Moreover, he showeth by the way, that that governance of the Law, was as it were an ABC, and as certain principles in comparison of the doctrine of the Gospel.

4:2 <sup>1</sup> This is added, because he that is always under a tutor or governor, may hardly be counted a freeman.

4:3 <sup>1</sup> The Law is called rudiments, because that by the Law God instructed his Church as it were by rudiments, and afterward poured out his holy Spirit most plentifully in the time of the Gospel.

4:4 <sup>1</sup> He uttereth and declareth many things at once, to wit, that this tutorship was ended at his time, that curious men may leave to ask, why that schoolmastership lasted so long. And moreover, that we are not sons by nature, but by adoption, and that in that Son of God, who therefore took upon him our flesh, that we might be made his brethren.

<sup>2</sup> The time is said to be full, when all parts of it are past and ended, and therefore Christ could not have come either sooner or later.

4:5 <sup>1</sup> The adoption of the sons of God, is from everlasting, but is revealed and showed in the time appointed for it.

4:6 <sup>1</sup> He showeth that we are in such sort free and set at liberty, that in the mean season we must be governed by the Spirit of Christ, which reigning in our hearts, may teach us the true service of the Father. But this is not to serve, but rather to enjoy true liberality, as it cometh sons and heirs.

<sup>2</sup> By that that followeth he gathereth that that went before: for if we have his spirit, we are his sons, and if we are his sons, then are we free.

<sup>3</sup> The holy Ghost, who is both of the Father and of the Son: but there is a peculiar reason why he is called the Spirit of the Son, to wit, because the holy Ghost sealet up our adoption in Christ, and maketh us a full assurance of it.

4:7 <sup>1</sup> The word, servant, is not taken here for one that liveth in sin, which is proper to the infidels, but for one that is yet under the ceremonies of the Law, which is proper to the Jews.

4:8 <sup>1</sup> He applieth the former doctrine to the Galatians, with a peculiar reprehension: for in comparison of them, the Jews might have pretended some excuse as men that were born and brought up in that service of the Law. But seeing the Galatians were taken and called out of idolatry to Christian liberty: what pretence might they have to go back to those impotent and beggarly rudiments?

4:9 <sup>1</sup> They are called impotent and beggarly ceremonies, being considered apart by themselves without Christ: and again, for that by that means they gave good testimony that they were beggars in Christ, when as notwithstanding, for men, to fall back from Christ to ceremonies, is nothing else, but to cast away riches, and to follow beggarly.

4:12 <sup>1</sup> He mitigateth and qualieth those things wherein he might have seemed to have spoken somewhat sharply, very artificially and divinely, declaring his good will towards them in such sort, that the Galatians could not but either be utterly desperate when they read these things, or acknowledge their own lightness with tears, and desire pardon.

4:13 <sup>1</sup> Many afflictions.

flesh, I preached the Gospel unto you at the first.

14 And the <sup>1</sup>trial of me which was in my flesh, ye despised not, neither abhorred: but ye received me as an Angel of God, yea, as <sup>2</sup>Christ Jesus.

15 <sup>1</sup>What was then your felicity? for I bear your record, that if it had been possible, ye would have plucked out your own eyes, and have given them unto me.

16 Am I therefore become your enemy, because I tell you the truth?

17 They are jealous over you <sup>1</sup>amiss: yea, they would exclude you, <sup>2</sup>that ye should altogether love them.

18 But it is a good thing to love <sup>1</sup>earnestly always in a good thing, and not only when I am present with you, 19 My little children, of whom I travail in birth again, until Christ be formed in you.

20 And I would I were with you now, that I might <sup>1</sup>change my voice: for I am in doubt of you.

21 <sup>1</sup>Tell me, ye that <sup>2</sup>will be under the Law, do ye not hear the Law?

22 For it is written, that Abraham had two sons, <sup>6</sup>one by a servant, and <sup>7</sup>one by a free woman.

23 But he which was of the servant, was born after

the <sup>1</sup>flesh: and he which was of the free woman, was born by <sup>2</sup>promise.

24 By the which things another thing is meant: for <sup>1</sup>these mothers are the <sup>2</sup>two Testaments, the one which is Hagar of mount <sup>3</sup>Sinai, which gendereth unto bondage.

25 (For Hagar or Sinai is a mountain in Arabia, and it <sup>1</sup>answered to Jerusalem which now is) and <sup>2</sup>she is in bondage with her children.

26 But Jerusalem, which is <sup>1</sup>above, is free: which is the mother of us all.

29 But as then he that was born after the <sup>1</sup>flesh, persecuted him that was born after the <sup>2</sup>Spirit, even so it is now.

30 But what saith the Scripture? <sup>7</sup>Put out the servant and her son: for the son of the servant shall not be heir with the son of the free woman.

31 <sup>1</sup>Then brethren, we are not children of the servant, but of the free woman.

4:14 <sup>1</sup> Those daily troubles wherewith the Lord tried me amongst you.

4:15 <sup>1</sup> What a talk was there abroad in the world amongst men, how happy you were?

4:17 <sup>1</sup> For they are jealous over you for their own commodity.

<sup>2</sup> That they may convey all your love from me to themselves.

4:18 <sup>1</sup> He setteth his own true and good love, which he earnestly bent towards them, against the naughty vicious love of the false apostles.

4:20 <sup>1</sup> Use other words among you.

4:21 <sup>1</sup> Because the false apostles always urged this, that unless the Gentiles were circumcised, Christ could profit them nothing at all, and this dissension of them which believed of the circumcision against them which believed of the uncircumcision, was full of offense: the Apostle, after divers arguments whereby he hath refuted their error, bringeth forth an allegory, wherein he saith the holy Ghost did shadow not unto us, all these mysteries: to wit, that it should come to pass, that two sorts of sons should have Abraham a father common to them both, but not with like success: for as Abraham begat Ishmael, by the common course of nature, of Hagar his bondmaid and a stranger, and begat Isaac of Sarah a free woman by the virtue of the promise and by grace only, and the first was not only not heir, but also persecuted the heir: So there are two covenants, and as it were two sons born to Abraham of those two covenants, as it were of two mothers. The one was made in Sinai, without the land of promise according to which covenant Abraham's children according to the flesh were begotten: to wit, the Jews which seek righteousness by that covenant, that is, by the Law: but they are not heirs, nay they shall at length be cast out of the house, as they that persecute the true heirs. The other was made in that high Jerusalem or in Zion (to wit, by the sacrifice of Christ) which begetteth children of promise, to wit, believers by the virtue of the holy Ghost which children (as Abraham) do rest themselves in the free promise, and they only by the right of children shall be partakers of the father's inheritance, and those servants shall be shut out.

4:23 <sup>1</sup> As all men are, and by the common course of nature.

4:24 <sup>1</sup> These do represent and shadow forth.

<sup>2</sup> They are called two covenants, one of the old Testament, and another of the New: which were not two indeed, but in respect of the times, and the diversity of the government.

<sup>3</sup> He maketh mention of Sinai, because that covenant was made in that mountain, of which mountain Hagar was a shadow.

4:25 <sup>1</sup> Look how the case standeth betwixt Hagar and her children, even so standeth it between Jerusalem and hers.

4:26 <sup>1</sup> Which is excellent, and of great account.

4:27 <sup>1</sup> He showeth that in this allegory, he hath followed the steps of Isaiah, who foretold that the Church should be made and consist of the children of barren Sarah, that is to say, of them which only spiritually should be made Abraham's children by faith, rather than of fruitful Hagar, even then foreshowing the casting off of the Jews, and calling of the Gentiles.

4:28 <sup>1</sup> After the manner of Isaac who is the first begotten of the heavenly Jerusalem, as Israel is of the slavish Synagogue.

<sup>2</sup> That seed, unto which the promise belongeth.

4:29 <sup>1</sup> By the common course of nature.

4:31 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion of the former allegory, that we by no means procure and call back again the slavery of the Law, seeing that the children of the bondmaid shall not be heirs.

5 <sup>1</sup> Having declared that we came of the free woman, he showeth the price of that freedom, <sup>13</sup> and how we should use the same, <sup>16</sup> that we may obey the Spirit, <sup>19</sup> and resist the flesh.

1 Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage.

2 <sup>a1</sup> Behold, I Paul say unto you, that if ye be <sup>2</sup>circumcised, Christ shall profit you nothing.

3 For I testify again to every man, which is circumcised, that he is bound to keep the whole Law.

4 Ye are <sup>b1</sup>abolished from Christ: whosoever are <sup>2</sup>justified by the Law, ye are fallen from grace.

5 <sup>1</sup>For we through the <sup>2</sup>Spirit wait for the hope of righteousness through faith.

6 <sup>1</sup>For in Jesus Christ neither circumcision availeth anything, neither <sup>2</sup>uncircumcision, <sup>3</sup>but <sup>4</sup>faith which worketh by love.

7 <sup>1</sup>Ye did run well: who did let you, that ye did not obey the truth?

8 <sup>1</sup>It is not the persuasion of <sup>2</sup>him that calleth you.

9 <sup>a1</sup> A little leaven doth leaven the whole lump.

17 For the <sup>1</sup>flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary one to another, so that ye cannot do the same things that ye would.

18 And if ye be led by the Spirit, ye are not under the Law.

5:2 <sup>1</sup> Another obtestation wherein he plainly witnesseth that justification of works, and justification of faith cannot stand together, because no man can be justified by the Law, but he that doth fully and perfectly fulfill it. And he taketh the example of circumcision, because it was the ground of all the service of the Law, and was chiefly urged of the false Apostles.

<sup>2</sup> Circumcision is in other places called the seal of righteousness, but here we must have consideration of the circumstance of the Baptism come in place of circumcision. And moreover Paul reasoneth according to the opinion that his enemies had of it, which made circumcision a piece of their salvation.

5:4 <sup>1</sup> That is, as he himself expoundeth it afterwards, ye are fallen from grace.

<sup>2</sup> That is, seek to be justified by the Law, for in deed no man is justified by the Law.

5:5 <sup>1</sup> He privily compareth the new people with the old: for it is certain that they also did ground all their hope of justification and life in faith and not in circumcision, but so, that their faith was wrapped in the external and ceremonial worship: but our faith is bare and content with spiritual worship.

5:6 <sup>1</sup> He addeth a reason for that now circumcision is abolished, seeing that Christ is exhibited unto us with full plenty of spiritual circumcision.

<sup>2</sup> He maketh mention also of uncircumcision, lest the Gentiles should please themselves in it, as the Jews do in circumcision.

<sup>3</sup> The taking away of an objection: If all that worship of the Law be taken away, wherein then shall we exercise ourselves? In charity, saith Paul: for faith, wherof we speak, cannot be idle, nay it bringeth forth daily fruits of charity.

<sup>4</sup> So is true faith distinguished from counterfeit faith: for charity is not joined to faith as a fellow cause, to help forward our justification with faith.

5:7 <sup>1</sup> Again he chideth the Galatians, but with an admiration, and therewithall a praise of their former race, to the end that he may make them more ashamed.

5:8 <sup>1</sup> He playeth the part of an Apostle with them, and useth his authority, denying that that doctrine can come from God which is contrary to his.

5:9 <sup>1</sup> He addeth this, that he may not seem to contend upon a trifle, warning them diligently (by a similitude which he borroweth of leaven, as Christ himself also did) not to suffer the purity of the Apostolical doctrine, to be infected with the least corruption that may be.

5:10 <sup>1</sup> He mitigateth the former reprehension, casting the fault upon the false Apostles, against whom he denounceth the horrible judgment of God.

5:11 <sup>1</sup> He willeth them to consider how that he seeketh not his own profit in this matter, seeing that he could eschew the hatred of men, if he would join Judaism with Christianity.

5:12 <sup>1</sup> An example of a true Pastor inflamed with the zeal of God's glory and love of his flock.

5:13 <sup>1</sup> The third part of this Epistle, showing that the right use of Christian liberty consisteth in this, that being delivered from the slavery of sin and the flesh, and being obedient to the Spirit, we should serve unto one another's salvation through love.

5:14 <sup>1</sup> He propoundeth the love of our neighbor, as a mark whereunto all Christians ought to refer all their actions, and thereunto he citeth the testimony of the Law.

5:15 <sup>1</sup> An exhortation to the duties of charity, by the profit that ensueth thereof, because that no men provide worse for themselves, than they that hate one another.

5:16 <sup>1</sup> He acknowledgeth the great weakness of the godly, for that they are but in part regenerate: but he willeth them to remember that they are endued with the Spirit of God, which hath delivered them from the slavery of sin, and so of the Law so far forth as it is the virtue of sin, that they should not give themselves to lusts.

5:17 <sup>1</sup> For the flesh dwelleth even in the regenerate man, but the Spirit reigneth although not without great strife, as is largely set forth, Rom. 7.

19 <sup>1</sup>Moreover the works of the flesh are manifest, which are adultery, fornication, uncleanness, wantonness,

20 Idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, debate, emulations, wrath, contentions, seditions, heresies,

21 Envy, murders, drunkenness, gluttony, and such like, whereof I tell you before, as I also have told you before, that they which do such things, shall not inherit the kingdom of God.

22 But the <sup>1</sup>fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, 23 Meekness, temperancy: <sup>1</sup>against such there is no law.

24 For they that are Christ's, have crucified the flesh with the affections and the lusts.

25 If we <sup>1</sup>live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit.

26 <sup>1</sup>Let us not be desirous of vainglory, provoking one another, envying one another.

6 <sup>1</sup>Now he entreateth particularly of charity toward such as offend, <sup>6</sup> toward the Ministers of the word, <sup>10</sup> and those that are of the household of faith: <sup>12</sup> Not like unto such who have a counterfeit zeal of the Law, <sup>13</sup> glorying in the mangling of the flesh, <sup>14</sup> and not in the cross of Christ.

1 Brethren, <sup>1</sup>If a man be <sup>2</sup>suddenly taken in any

<sup>a</sup> 1 Cor. 3:18

offense, ye which are <sup>3</sup>spiritual, <sup>4</sup>restore such one with the <sup>5</sup>spirit of meekness, <sup>6</sup>considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted.

2 <sup>1</sup>Bear ye one another's burden, and so fulfill the <sup>2</sup>Law of Christ.

3 For if any man seem to himself, that he is somewhat, when he is nothing, he deceiveth himself in his imagination.

4 But let every man prove his own work: and then shall he have rejoicing in himself only and not in another.

5 <sup>a1</sup>For every man shall bear his own burden.

6 <sup>1</sup>Let him that is taught in the word, make him that hath taught him, partaker of <sup>2</sup>all his <sup>b</sup>goods.

7 <sup>1</sup>Be not deceived: God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.

8 For he that soweth to his <sup>1</sup>flesh, shall of the flesh reap corruption: but he that soweth to the spirit, shall of the spirit reap life everlasting.

9 <sup>c1</sup>Let us not therefore be weary of well doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not.

10 <sup>1</sup>While we have therefore time, let us do good unto all men, but especially unto them, which are of the household of faith.

11 ¶ <sup>1</sup>Ye see how large a letter I have written unto you with mine own hand.

5:19 <sup>1</sup> He setteth out that particularly, which he spake generally, reckoning up some chief effects of the flesh, and opposing them to the fruits of the Spirit, that no man may pretend ignorance.

5:22 <sup>1</sup> Therefore, they are not the fruits of free will, but so far forth as our will is made free by grace.

5:23 <sup>1</sup> Lest that any man should object, that Paul played the Sophister, as one who urging the Spirit, urgeth nothing but that which the Law commandeth, he showeth that he requireth not that liberal and outward obedience, but spiritual, which proceedeth not from the Law, but from the Spirit of Christ, which doth beget us again, and must and ought to be the ruler and guider of life.

5:25 <sup>1</sup> If we be indeed endued with the quickening Spirit, which causeth us to die to sin, and live to God, let us show it in our deeds, that is, by holiness of life.

5:26 <sup>1</sup> He addeth peculiar exhortations according as he knew the Galatians subject to divers vices: and first of all he warneth them to take heed of ambition, which vice hath two fellows, backbiting and envy, out of which two it cannot be but many contentions must needs arise.

6:1 <sup>1</sup> He condemneth importunate rigor, because that brotherly reprehensions ought to be moderated and tempered by the spirit of meekness.

<sup>5</sup> This is a kind of speech which the Hebrews use, giving to understand thereby, that all good gifts come from God.

<sup>6</sup> He toucheth the fore: for they commonly are most severe judges, which forget their own infirmities.

6:2 <sup>1</sup> He showeth that this is the end of reprehensions, to raise up our brother which is fallen, and not proudly to oppress him. Therefore everyone must seek to have commendation of his own life by approving of himself, and not by reprehending others.

6:5 <sup>1</sup> A reason wherefore men ought to have the greatest eye upon themselves, because that every man shall be judged before God according to his own life, and not by comparing himself with other men.

6:6 <sup>1</sup> It is meet that masters should be sound by their scholars, so far forth as they are able.

6:7 <sup>1</sup> He commendeth liberality towards the poor, and first of all chideth them which were not ashamed to pretend this and that, and all because they would not help their neighbors, as though they could deceive God: and afterward compareth alms to a spiritual sowing, which shall have a most plentiful harvest, so that it shall be very profitable: and compareth covetous niggardliness to a carnal sowing, whereof nothing can be gathered but such things as fade away, and perish by and by.

6:8 <sup>1</sup> To the commodities of this present life.

6:9 <sup>1</sup> Against such as are liberal at the beginning, but continue not, because the harvest seemeth to be deferred very long, as though the seed time and the harvest were at one instant.

6:10 <sup>1</sup> They that are of the household of faith, that is, such as are joined with us in the profession of one selfsame religion, ought to be preferred before all others, yet so notwithstanding that our liberality extends to all.

6:11 <sup>1</sup> The fourth and last part of the Epistle, wherein he returneth to his principal end and purpose: to wit, that the Galatians should not suffer themselves to be led out of the way by the false apostles: and he pointeth out those false apostles in their colors, reproving them of ambition, as men that do not that which they do, for any affection and zeal they have to the Law, but only for this purpose, that they may purchase themselves favor amongst their own sort, by the circumcision of the Galatians.

12 As many as desire to make a <sup>1</sup>fair show in the <sup>2</sup>flesh, they constrain you to be circumcised, only because they would not suffer persecution for the <sup>3</sup>cross of Christ.

13 For they themselves which are circumcised keep not the Law, but desire to have you circumcised, that they might rejoice in <sup>1</sup>your flesh.

14 <sup>1</sup>But God forbid that I should <sup>2</sup>rejoice, but in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, whereby the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world.

15 For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth anything, nor uncircumcision, but a new creature.

16 And as many as walk according to this rule, peace shall be upon them, and mercy, and upon the <sup>1</sup>Israel of God.

17 <sup>1</sup>From henceforth let no man put me to business: for I bear, in my body the <sup>2</sup>marks of the <sup>3</sup>Lord Jesus.

18 <sup>1</sup>Brethren, the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your <sup>2</sup>spirit, Amen.

¶ Unto the Galatians written from Rome.

6:12 <sup>1</sup> He setteth a fair show against the truth.

6:13 <sup>1</sup> That they have entangled you in Judaism, and yet he harpeth on the form of circumcision.

6:14 <sup>1</sup> He sticketh not to compare himself with them, showing that on the contrary part he rejoiceth in those afflictions which he suffereth for Christ's sake, and as he is despised of the world, so doth he in like sort esteem the world as naught: which is the true circumcision of a true Israelite.

<sup>2</sup> When Paul useth this word in good sense of part, it signifieth to rest a man's self wholly in a thing, and to content himself therewith.

6:16 <sup>1</sup> Upon the true Israel, whose praise is of God and not of men,

Rom. 2:19.

6:17 <sup>1</sup> Continuing still in the same metaphor, he opposeth his miseries and the marks of those stripes which he bare for Christ's sake, against the scar of the outward circumcision, as a true mark of his Apostleship.

<sup>2</sup> Marks which are burnt into a man's flesh, as they used in old times, to mark their servants that had run away from them.

<sup>3</sup> For it importeth much, whose marks we bear: for the cause maketh the Martyr, and not the punishment.

6:18 <sup>1</sup> Taking his farewell of them, he wisheth them grace, and the Spirit against the deceits of the false apostles, who labored to beat those outward things into their brains.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL TO THE EPHESIANS

1 1 After the salutation, 4 he entreateth of the free election of God, 5 and adoption. 7, 13 from whence man's salvation floweth, as from the true and natural fountain: and because so high a mystery cannot be understood, 16 he prayeth that the full, 20 knowledge of Christ, may by God be revealed unto the Ephesians.

1 Paul <sup>1</sup>an Apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, to the "Saints, which are at Ephesus, and to the <sup>2</sup>faithful in Christ Jesus:

2 Grace be with you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

4 <sup>1</sup>As he hath chosen us in <sup>2</sup>him, before the foundation of the world, <sup>3</sup>that we <sup>4</sup>should <sup>5</sup>be holy, and without blame <sup>6</sup>before him in love:

5 <sup>1</sup>Who hath predestinated us, to be adopted through Jesus Christ <sup>2</sup>in himself, according to the good pleasure of his will.

6 <sup>1</sup>To the <sup>2</sup>praise of the glory of his grace, <sup>3</sup>wherewith he hath made us freely accepted in his beloved.

7 <sup>1</sup>By whom we have redemption through his blood, even the forgiveness of sins, according to his rich grace:

8 <sup>1</sup><sup>2</sup>Whereby he hath been abundant toward us in <sup>3</sup>all wisdom and understanding,

9 And hath opened unto us the <sup>1</sup>mystery of his will <sup>2</sup>according to his good pleasure, which he hath purposed in him,

1:1 <sup>1</sup> The inscription and salutation, whereof we have spoken in the former Epistles.

1:3 <sup>1</sup> The first part of the Epistle, wherein he handleth all the parts of our salvation, propounding the example of the Ephesians, and using divers exhortations, and beginning after his manner with thanksgiving.

<sup>2</sup> The efficient cause of our salvation is God, not considered confusedly and generally, but as the father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

<sup>3</sup> The next final cause, and in respect of us, is our salvation, all things being bestowed upon us which are necessary to our salvation, which kind of blessings is heavenly and proper to the elect.

<sup>4</sup> With all kind of gracious and bountiful goodness which is heavenly indeed, and from God only.

<sup>5</sup> Which God our Father gave us from his high throne from above: or because the Saints have those gifts bestowed on them, which belong properly to the citizens of heaven.

<sup>6</sup> The matter of our salvation is Christ, in whom only we are endued with spiritual blessing and unto salvation.

1:4 <sup>1</sup> He declareth the efficient cause, or by what means God the Father saveth us in his Son: Because saith he, he chose us from everlasting in his Son.

<sup>3</sup> He expoundeth the next final cause, which he maketh double, to wit, sanctification and justification, whereof he will speak hereafter. And hereby also two things are to be noted, to wit, that holiness of life cannot be separated from the grace of election: and again what pureness forever is in us, is the gift of God, who hath freely of his mercy chosen us.

<sup>4</sup> Then God did not choose us, because we were, or otherwise should have been holy, but to the end we should be holy.

1:5 <sup>1</sup> Another plainer exposition of the efficient cause, and also of eternal election, whereby God is saith to have chosen us in Christ, to wit, because it pleased him to appoint us out when we were not yet born, whom he would make to be his children by Jesus Christ: so that there is no reason here of our election to be sought, but in the free mercy of God, neither is faith which God foresaw, the cause of predestination, but the effect.

<sup>2</sup> God respecteth nothing, either that present is, or that is to come, but himself only.

1:6 <sup>1</sup> The uttermost and chiefest final cause is the glory of God the Father, who saveth us freely in his Son.

<sup>2</sup> That as his bountiful goodness deserveth all praise, so also it should be set forth and published.

<sup>3</sup> Another final cause more near, is our justification, while that he freely accounteth us for just in his Son.

1:7 <sup>1</sup> An expounding of the material cause, how we are made acceptable to God in Christ, for it is he only, whose sacrifice by the mercy of God is imputed unto us, for the forgiveness of sin.

1:8 <sup>1</sup> Now he cometh at length to the formal cause, that is to say, to vocation or preaching of the Gospel, whereby God executeth that eternal counsel of our free reconciliation and salvation in Christ. And putting in place of the Gospel all wisdom and understanding, he showeth how excellent it is.

1:9 <sup>1</sup> For unless the Lord had opened unto us that mystery, we could never have so much as dreamed of it ourselves.

10 <sup>1</sup>That in the dispensation of the fullness of the times, he might <sup>2</sup>gather together in one all things, both which are in heaven, and which are in earth, even in Christ:

11 <sup>1</sup>In whom also we are chosen when we were predestinated according to the purpose of him, which worketh <sup>2</sup>all things after the counsel of his own will,

12 That we, which <sup>1</sup>first trusted in Christ, should be unto the praise of his glory:

13 <sup>1</sup>In whom also ye have trusted, after that ye heard the <sup>2</sup>word of truth, even the Gospel of your salvation, wherein also after that ye believed, ye were <sup>3</sup>sealed with the holy <sup>4</sup>Spirit of promise, 14 Which is the earnest of our inheritance, for the <sup>1</sup>redemption of that liberty purchased unto the praise of his glory.

15 <sup>1</sup>Therefore also after that I heard of the faith, which ye have in the Lord Jesus, and love toward all the Saints,

16 I cease not to give thanks for you, making mention of you in my prayers,

17 <sup>1</sup>That the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, that Father of <sup>2</sup>glory, might give unto you the Spirit of wisdom, and revelation through the <sup>3</sup>knowledge of him,

18 That the eyes of your understanding may be lightened, that ye may know what the <sup>1</sup>hope is of his calling, and what the riches of his glorious inheritance is in the Saints,

19 <sup>1</sup>And what is the exceeding greatness of his power toward us, which believe, <sup>2</sup>according to the working of his mighty power,

20 <sup>1</sup>Which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead, and set him at his <sup>2</sup>right hand in the heavenly places,

21 Far above all principality, and power, and might, and domination, and every <sup>1</sup>Name, that is named, not in this world only, but also in that that is to come,

22 <sup>1</sup>And hath made all things subject under his feet, and hath given him over all things to be the <sup>2</sup>head to the Church,

23 Which is his body, even the <sup>1</sup>fullness of him that filleth all in all things.

1:10 <sup>1</sup> The Father exhibiteth and gave Christ, who is the head of all the elect unto the world, at that time which was convenient, according as he most wisely disposed all times from everlasting. And Christ is he in whom all the elect from the beginning of the world, (otherwise wandering and separated from God) are gathered together: of which some were then in heaven when he came into the earth, (to wit, such as by faith in him to come, were gathered together) and others being found upon the earth, were gathered together of him, and the rest are daily gathered together.

<sup>2</sup> The faithful are said to be gathered together in Christ, because they are joined together with him through faith, and become as it were one man.

1:11 <sup>1</sup> He applieth severally the benefit of vocation to the believing Jews, going back to the very fountain, that even they also may not attribute their salvation neither to themselves, nor to their stock, nor to any other thing, but to the only grace and mercy of God, both because they were called, and also because they were first called.

<sup>2</sup> All things are attributed to the grace of God without exception, and yet for all that, we are not stocks, for he giveth us grace both to will and to be able to do those things that are good, Phil. 2:13.

1:12 <sup>1</sup> He speaketh of the Jews.

1:13 <sup>1</sup> Now he maketh the Ephesians (or rather all the Gentiles) equal to the Jews, because that notwithstanding they came last, yet being called by the same Gospel, they embraced it by faith, and were sealed up with the same spirit, which is the pledge of election, until the inheritance itself be seen, that in them also also the glory of God might shine forth, and be manifested.

<sup>4</sup> With that Spirit, which bringeth not the Law, but the promise of free adoption.

1:14 <sup>1</sup> Full and perfect.

1:15 <sup>1</sup> He returneth to the former gratulation, concluding two things together of those things that went before: the first is, that all good things come to us from God the Father in Christ, and by Christ, that for them he may be praised of us. The second is that all those things (which he bringeth to two heads, to wit, faith and charity) are increased in us by certain degrees, so that we must desire increase of his grace from whom we have the beginning, and of whom we hope for the end.

1:17 <sup>1</sup> The causes of faith are God the Father lightening our minds with his holy spirit, that we may embrace Christ opened unto us in the Gospel, to the obtaining of everlasting life, and the setting forth of God's glory.

<sup>3</sup> For it is not enough for us to have known God once, but we must know him every day more and more.

1:18 <sup>1</sup> What blessings they are which he calleth you to hope for whom he calleth to Christ.

1:19 <sup>1</sup> The excellency of faith is declared by the effects, because the mighty power of God is set forth and shown therein.

1:20 <sup>1</sup> The Apostle willett us to behold in our most glorious Christ with the eye of faith, that most excellent power and glory of God, whereof all the faithful are partakers, although it be as yet very dark in us, by reason of the ignominy of the cross and the weakness of the flesh.

<sup>2</sup> To be set on God's right hand, is to be partaker of the sovereignty which he hath over all creatures.

1:21 <sup>1</sup> Everything whatsoever it be, or above all things be they of never such power or excellency.

1:22 <sup>1</sup> That we should not think that that excellent glory of Christ is a thing wherewith we have nought to do, he witnesseth, that he was appointed of God the Father the head of all the Church, and therefore the body must be joined to his head, which otherwise should be a maimed thing without the members: which notwithstanding is not of necessity (seeing that the Church is rather quickeneth and sustained by the only virtue of Christ, so far off is it, that he needeth the fullness thereof) but of the infinite goodwill and pleasure of God, who vouchsafeth to join us to his Son.

1:23 <sup>1</sup> For the love of Christ is so great toward the Church, that though he do fully satisfy all with all things, yet he esteemeth himself but a maimed and unperfect head, unless he have the Church joined to him as his body.

2 <sup>1</sup> The better to set out the grace of Christ, he useth a comparison, calling them to mind, 5 that they were altogether castaways and aliens, 8 that they are saved by grace, 13 and brought near, 16 by reconciliation through Christ, 17 published by the Gospel.

1 And <sup>a</sup>you hath be quickened, that were <sup>2</sup>dead in <sup>3</sup>trespasses and sins,

2 <sup>1</sup>Wherein, in times past ye walked, <sup>2</sup>according to the course of this world, and <sup>3</sup>after the prince that ruleth in the air, even the spirit, that now <sup>4</sup>worketh in the <sup>5</sup>children of disobedience,

3 <sup>1</sup>Among whom we also had our conversation in time past in the lusts of our <sup>2</sup>flesh, in fulfilling the will of the flesh, and of the mind, and <sup>3</sup>were by nature the <sup>4</sup>children of wrath, as well as <sup>5</sup>others.

4 <sup>1</sup>But God which is rich in mercy, through his great love wherewith he loved us,

5 Even when we were dead by sins, hath quickened us together in Christ, by whose grace ye are saved,

6 And hath raised us up <sup>1</sup>together, and made us sit together in the heavenly places in Christ Jesus,

7 That he might show in the ages to come the exceeding riches of his grace through his kindness toward us in Christ Jesus.

<sup>a</sup> Col. 2:13

8 For by <sup>1</sup>grace are ye saved through faith, and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God,

9 <sup>1</sup>Not of works, lest any man should boast himself.

10 For we are <sup>1</sup>his workmanship created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath ordained, that we should walk in them.

11 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore remember that ye being in time past Gentiles in the flesh, and <sup>2</sup>called uncircumcision of them, which are <sup>3</sup>called circumcision in the flesh, made with hands, 12 That ye were, I say, at that time <sup>1</sup>without Christ, and were <sup>2</sup>aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and were <sup>b</sup>strangers from the covenants of promise, and had no hope, and were without God in the world.

13 <sup>1</sup>But now in Christ Jesus, ye which once were far off, are made near by the blood of Christ.

14 <sup>1</sup>For he is our peace, which hath made of both one, and hath broken the stop of the partition

2:1 <sup>1</sup> He declareth again the greatness of God's good will, by comparing that miserable state wherein we are born, with that dignity whereunto we are advanced by God the Father in Christ. So he describeth that condition in such sort, that he saith, that touching spiritual motions we are not only born half dead, but wholly and altogether dead.

<sup>2</sup> See Rom. 6:2. So then he calleth them dead, which are not regenerate: for as the immortality of them which are damned, is no life, so this knitting together of body and soul is properly no life, but death in them which are not ruled by the Spirit of God.

2:2 <sup>1</sup> He proveth by the effects that all were spiritually dead.

2:3 <sup>1</sup> After that he hath severally condemned the Gentiles, he confesseth that the Jews, amongst whom he numbereth himself, are not a whit better.

<sup>2</sup> By the name of flesh in the first place, he meaneth the whole man, which he divideth into two parts: into the flesh, which is the part that the Philosophers term without reason, and into the thought, which they call reasonable: so that he leaveth nothing in man half dead, but concludeth that the whole man is of nature the son of wrath.

<sup>3</sup> The conclusion: All men are born subject to the wrath and curse of God.

<sup>4</sup> Men are said to be children of wrath passively, that is to say, guilty of everlasting death by the judgment of God, who is angry with them.

2:4 <sup>1</sup> Now hereof followeth another member of the comparison, declaring our excellency, to wit, that by the virtue of Christ we are delivered from that death, and made partakers of eternal life, to the end that at length we may reign with him. And by divers and sundry means he beateth this into their heads, that the efficient cause of this benefit is the free mercy of God: and Christ himself is the material cause: and faith is the instrument which also is the free gift of God: and the end is God's glory.

2:6 <sup>1</sup> To wit, as he addeth afterward in Christ, for as yet this is not fulfilled in us, but only in our head, by whose spirit we have begun to die to sin, and live to God, until that work be fully brought to an end: but yet the hope is certain, for we are as sure of that we look for: as we are of that we have received already.

2:8 <sup>1</sup> So then, Grace, that is to say, the gift of God, and faith, do stand one with another, to which two these are contrary, To be saved by ourselves, or by our works. Therefore what mean they which would join together things of so contrary nature?

2:9 <sup>1</sup> He taketh away expressly and namely from our works the praise of justification, seeing that the good works themselves are the effects of grace in us.

2:10 <sup>1</sup> He speaketh here of grace, and not of nature: therefore be the works never so good, look what they are, they are it of grace.

2:11 <sup>1</sup> Applying the former doctrine to the Gentiles, he showeth that they were not only as the Jews, by nature, but also after an especial sort, strangers and without God: and therefore they ought so much the rather remember that same so great a benefit of God.

<sup>2</sup> You were called no otherwise than Gentiles, that all the world might witness of your uncleanness.

<sup>3</sup> Of the Jews which were known from you by the mark of circumcision, the mark of the covenant.

2:12 <sup>1</sup> He beginneth first with Christ, who was the end of all the promises.

2:13 <sup>1</sup> Christ is the only bond of the Jews and Gentiles, whereby they were reconciled to God.

2:14 <sup>1</sup> As by the ceremonies and worship appointed by the Law, the Jews were divided from the Gentiles, so now Christ, having broken down the partition wall, joineth them both together, both in himself, and betwixt themselves, and to God. Whereby it followeth, that whosoever established the ceremonies of the Law, maketh the grace of Christ void and of none effect.

wall,

15 <sup>1</sup>In abrogating through his flesh the hatred, that is, the Law of commandments which standeth in ordinances, for to make of twain one new man in himself, so making peace,

16 And that he might reconcile both unto God in <sup>1</sup>one body by his cross, and <sup>2</sup>slay hatred thereby,

17 <sup>1</sup>And came, and preached peace to you which were afar off, and to them that were near.

18 For <sup>1</sup>through him we both have an entrance unto the Father by one Spirit.

19 <sup>1</sup>Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners: but citizens with the Saints, and of the household of God.

20 <sup>1</sup>And are built upon the foundation of the Apostles and Prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the <sup>2</sup>chief cornerstone, 21 In whom all the building <sup>1</sup>coupled together, groweth unto an holy Temple in the Lord.

22 In whom ye also are built together to be the habitation of God by the Spirit.

1 For <sup>1</sup>this cause, I Paul am the <sup>2</sup>prisoner of Jesus Christ for you Gentiles.

2 If ye have heard of the dispensation of the grace of God, which is given me to youward,

3 That is, that God by revelation hath showed this mystery unto me (as I wrote above in few words,

4 Whereby when ye read, ye may know mine understanding in the mystery of Christ)

5 Which in <sup>1</sup>other ages was not opened unto the sons of men, as it is now revealed unto his holy Apostles and Prophets by the Spirit,

6 That the Gentiles should be inheritors also, and of the same body, and partakers of his promise in Christ by the Gospel,

7 Whereof I am made a minister by the gift of the grace of God given unto me through the effectual working of his power.

8 Even unto me the least of all Saints is this grace given, that I should preach among the Gentiles, the unsearchable riches of Christ,

9 And to make clear unto all men what the fellowship of the mystery is, which from the beginning of the world hath been hid in God, who hath created all things by Jesus Christ,

10 <sup>1</sup>To the intent, that now unto principalities and powers in heavenly places, might be known by the Church the <sup>2</sup>manifold wisdom of God,

11 According to the <sup>1</sup>eternal purpose, which he wrought in Christ Jesus our Lord:

12 By whom we have boldness and entrance with confidence, by faith in him.

13 Wherefore I desire that ye faint not at my tribulations for your sakes, which is your glory.

14 <sup>1</sup>For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ,

15 (Of whom is named the whole <sup>1</sup>family in heaven

2:16 <sup>1</sup>He alludeth to the sacrifices of the Law, which represented that true and only sacrifice.

<sup>2</sup>For he destroyed death by death, and fastened it as it were to the cross.

2:17 <sup>1</sup>The preaching of the Gospel is an effectual instrument of this grace, common as well to the Jews as to the Gentiles.

2:18 <sup>1</sup>Christ is the gate as it were, by whom we come to the Father, and the holy Ghost is as it were our lodges man who leadeth us.

2:19 <sup>1</sup>The conclusion: The Gentiles are taken into the fellowship of salvation. And he describeth the excellency of the Church, calling it the city and house of God.

2:20 <sup>1</sup>The Lord committed the doctrine of salvation, first to the Prophets, and then to the Apostles, the end whereof and matter as it were and substance, is Christ. Therefore that is indeed the true and Catholic Church, which is builded upon Christ by the Prophets and Apostles, as a spiritual temple consecrated to God.

<sup>2</sup>That is, the head of the building, for the foundations are as it were the heads of the buildings.

2:21 <sup>1</sup>So that God is the workman not only of the foundation, but also of the whole building.

3:1 <sup>1</sup>He maintaineth his Apostleship against the offense of the cross, whereon also he taketh an argument to confirm himself, affirming that he was not only appointed an Apostle by the mercy of God, but was also particularly appointed to the Gentiles, to call them on every side to salvation: because God had so determined it from the beginning, although he deferred a great while the manifestation of that his counsel.

<sup>2</sup>These words, The prisoner of Jesus Christ, are taken passively, that is to say I Paul am cast into prison for maintaining the glory of Christ.

3:5 <sup>1</sup>He meaneth not that none knew the calling of the Gentiles before, but because very few knew of it, and they that did know it, as the Prophets, had it revealed unto them very darkly, and under figures.

3:10 <sup>1</sup>The unlooked for calling of the Gentiles, was as it were a glass to the heavenly Angels, wherein they might behold the marvellous wisdom of God.

<sup>2</sup>God never had but one way only, to save men by: but it had divers fashions and forms.

3:11 <sup>1</sup>Which was before all beginnings.

3:14 <sup>1</sup>He teacheth by his own example, that the efficacy of the doctrine dependeth upon the grace of God, and therefore we ought to join prayers with the preaching and hearing of the word: which are needful not only to them which are younglings in religion, but even to the oldest also, that they growing up more and more by faith in Christ, being confirmed with all spiritual gifts, may be grounded and rooted in the knowledge of that immeasurable love, wherewith God the Father hath loved us in Christ, seeing that the whole family, whereof part is already received into heaven, and part is yet here on earth, dependeth upon that adoption of the heavenly Father, in his only Son.

3:15 <sup>1</sup>All that whole people which hath but one household Father, and that is the Church which is adopted in Christ.

and in earth)

16 That he might grant you according to the <sup>1</sup>riches of his glory, that ye may be strengthened by his Spirit in the <sup>2</sup>inner man,

17 That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith:

18 That ye, being rooted and grounded in <sup>1</sup>love, may be able to comprehend with all Saints, <sup>2</sup>what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height:

19 And to know the <sup>1</sup>love of Christ, which <sup>2</sup>passeth knowledge, that ye may be filled with all <sup>3</sup>fullness of God.

20 <sup>1</sup>Unto him therefore that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us,

21 Be praise in the Church by Christ Jesus, throughout all generations forever, Amen.

4 These three last Chapters contain precepts of manners. 1 He exhorteth them to mutual love. 7 Sundry gifts are therefore bestowed of God, 16 that the Church may be built up. 18 He calleth them from the vanity of infidels, 25 from lying. 29 and from filthy talk.

1 I therefore, <sup>1</sup>being prisoner in the Lord, pray you that ye walk worthy of the <sup>2</sup>vocation whereunto ye are called,

2 <sup>1</sup>With all humbleness of mind, and meekness, with <sup>2</sup>long suffering, supporting one another through love,

3 <sup>1</sup>Endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace.

4 <sup>1</sup>There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your vocation.

5 There is one Lord, one Faith, one Baptism.

6 One God and Father of all, which is <sup>1</sup>above all, and <sup>2</sup>through all, and <sup>3</sup>in you all.

7 <sup>1</sup>But unto every one of us is given grace according to the measure of the <sup>2</sup>gift of Christ.

8 Wherefore he saith, When he ascended upon high, he led <sup>1</sup>captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men.

9 (Now, in that he ascended, what is it but that he had also descended first into the <sup>1</sup>lowest parts of the earth?)

10 He that descended, is even the same that ascended, far above all heavens, that he might <sup>1</sup>fill <sup>2</sup>all things.)

11 <sup>1</sup>He therefore gave some to be <sup>2</sup>Apostles, and some <sup>3</sup>Prophets, and some <sup>4</sup>Evangelists, and some <sup>5</sup>Pastors, and Teachers,

12 <sup>1</sup>For the repairing of the Saints, for the work of the ministry, and for the edification of the <sup>2</sup>body

3:16 <sup>1</sup> According to the greatness of his mercy.

<sup>2</sup> See Rom. 7:22.

3:18 <sup>1</sup> Wherewith God loveth us, which is the root of our election.

3:19 <sup>1</sup> Which God hath showeth us in Christ.

<sup>2</sup> Which passeth all the capacity of man's wit, to comprehend it fully in his mind: for otherwise who so hath the Spirit of God, perceiveth so much (according to the measure that God hath given him) as is sufficient to salvation.

<sup>3</sup> So that we have abundantly in us, whatsoever things are required to make us perfect with God.

3:20 <sup>1</sup> He breaketh forth into a thanksgiving, whereby the Ephesians also may be confirmed to hope for anything of God.

4:1 <sup>1</sup> Another part of the Epistle containing precepts of Christian life, the sum whereof is this, that every man behave himself as it is meet for so excellent grace of God.

<sup>2</sup> By this is meant the general calling of the faithful, which is this, to be holy, as our God is holy.

4:2 <sup>1</sup> Secondly, he commendeth meekness of the mind, which is shown forth by bearing one with another.

4:3 <sup>1</sup> Thirdly, he requireth perfect agreement, but yet such as is knit with the band of the holy Ghost.

4:4 <sup>1</sup> An argument of great weight, for an earnest entertaining of brotherly love and charity one with another, because we are made one body as it were of one God, and Father, by one Spirit, worshipping one Lord with one faith, and consecrated to him with one Baptism, and hope for one selfsame glory, whereunto we are called. Therefore whosoever breaketh charity, breaketh all these things asunder.

4:7 <sup>1</sup> He teacheth us, that we indeed are all one body, and that all good gifts proceed from Christ only, who reigneth in heaven having mightily conquered all his enemies (from whence he heapeth all gifts upon his Church;) but yet notwithstanding these gifts are diversely and sundry ways divided according to his will and pleasure, and therefore every man ought to be content with that measure that God hath given him, and to bestow it to the common profit of the whole body.

4:8 <sup>1</sup> A multitude of captives.

4:9 <sup>1</sup> Down to the earth, which is the lowest part of the world.

4:11 <sup>1</sup> First of all he reckoneth up the Ecclesiastical functions, which are partly extraordinary and for a season, as Apostles, Prophets, Evangelists, and partly ordinary and perpetual, as Pastors and Doctors.

<sup>2</sup> The Apostles were those twelve, unto whom Paul was afterward added, whose office was to plant Churches throughout all the world.

<sup>4</sup> These the Apostles used as fellows in the execution of their office, being not able to answer all places themselves.

<sup>5</sup> Pastors are they which govern the Church, and Teachers are they which govern the Schools.

4:12 <sup>1</sup> He showeth the end of Ecclesiastical functions, to wit, that by the ministry of men all the Saints may so grow up together, that they may make one mystical body of Christ.

<sup>2</sup> The Church.

of Christ,

13 <sup>1</sup>Till we all meet together (in the <sup>2</sup>unity of faith and that acknowledging of the Son of God) unto a perfect man, and unto the measure of the <sup>3</sup>age the fullness of Christ,

14 <sup>1</sup>That we henceforth be no more children, <sup>2</sup>wavering and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the <sup>3</sup>deceit of men, and with craftiness, whereby they lay in <sup>4</sup>wait to deceive.

15 <sup>1</sup>But let us follow the truth in love, and in all things, grow up into him, which is the head, that is, Christ.

16 By whom all the body being coupled and knit together by every joint, for the furniture thereof (according to the <sup>1</sup>effectual power, which is in the measure of every part) receiveth <sup>2</sup>increase of the body, unto the edifying of itself in <sup>3</sup>love.

17 <sup>1</sup>This I say therefore and testify in the Lord, that ye henceforth walk not as <sup>2</sup>other Gentiles walk, in <sup>3</sup>vanity of their mind.

18 Having their understanding darkened, and

CHAPTER 4

being strangers from the <sup>1</sup>life of God through the ignorance that is in them, because of the hardness of their heart:

19 Which being <sup>1</sup>past feeling, have given themselves unto wantonness, to work all uncleanness, even with <sup>2</sup>greediness.

20 <sup>1</sup>But ye have not so learned Christ,

21 If so be ye have heard him, and have been taught by him, <sup>1</sup>as the truth is in Jesus,

22 <sup>1</sup>That is, that ye cast off, concerning the conversation in time past, <sup>1</sup>that old man, which is corrupt through the deceivable lusts,

23 And be renewed in the <sup>1</sup>spirit of your mind,

24 And put on the new man, which <sup>1</sup>after God is created unto <sup>2</sup>righteousness, and <sup>3</sup>true holiness.

25 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore cast off lying, and speak every man truth unto his neighbor: for we are members one of another.

26 <sup>1</sup>Be <sup>2</sup>angry, but sin not: let not the sun go down <sup>3</sup>upon your wrath, 27 Neither give place to the devil.

4:13 <sup>1</sup> The use of this ministry is perpetual so long as we are in this world, that is, until that time that having put off the flesh, and thoroughly and perfectly agreeing betwixt ourselves, we shall be joined with Christ our head. Which thing is done by that knowledge of the Son of God increasing in us, and he himself by little and little growing up in us until we come to be a perfect man, which shall be in the world to come, when God shall be all in all.

<sup>2</sup> In that most near conjunction which is knit and fastened together by faith.

<sup>3</sup> Christ is said to grow up to full age, not in himself, but in us.

4:14 <sup>1</sup> Betwixt our childhood (that is to say, a very weak state, while as we do yet altogether waiver) and our perfect age, which we shall have at length in another world, there is a mean, to wit, our youth, and steady going forward to perfection.

<sup>2</sup> He compareth them which rest not themselves upon the word of God, to little boats which are tossed hither and thither with the doctrines of men, as it were with contrary winds, and therewithal forewarneth them that it cometh to pass not only by the lightness of man's brain, but also by the craftiness of certain, which make as it were an art of it.

4:15 <sup>1</sup> By earnest affection of the truth and love, we grow up into Christ: for he (being effectual by the ministry of his word, which as the vital spirit doth so quicken the whole body, that it nourisheth all the limbs thereof according to the measure and proportion of each one) quickeneth and cherisheth his Church, which consisteth of divers functions, as of divers members, and preserveth the proportion of every one. And thereof it followeth that neither this body can live without Christ, neither can any man grow up spiritually, which separateth himself from the other members.

4:16 <sup>1</sup> Of Christ, who in manner of the soul, quickeneth all the members.

4:17 <sup>1</sup> He descendeth to the fruits of Christian doctrine, and reasoneth first upon the principles of manners and actions, setting down a most grave comparison between the children of God, and them which are not regenerate. For in these men, all the powers of the mind are corrupted and their mind is given to vanity, and their senses are darkened with most gross mistiness, and their affections are so accustomed by little and little to wickedness, that at length they run headlong into all uncleanness, being utterly destitute of all judgment.

4:18 <sup>1</sup> Whereby God liveth in them.

4:19 <sup>1</sup> Void of all judgment.

<sup>2</sup> They strove to pass one another as though there had been some gain to be gotten by it.

4:20 <sup>1</sup> Here followeth the contrary part touching men which are regenerate by the true and lively knowledge of Christ, which have other principles of their doings far different, to wit, holy and honest desires, and a mind clean changed by the virtue of the holy Ghost, from whence proceed also like effects, as a just and holy life indeed.

4:21 <sup>1</sup> As they have learned which acknowledge Christ indeed, and in good earnest.

4:23 <sup>1</sup> Where there ought to have been the greatest force of reason, there is the greatest corruption of all which wasteth all things.

4:24 <sup>1</sup> After the image of God.

4:25 <sup>1</sup> He commendeth severally certain peculiar Christian virtues, and first of all he requireth truth (that is to say, sincere manners) condemning all deceit and dissembling, because we are born one for another.

4:26 <sup>1</sup> He teacheth us to bridle our anger in such sort, that although it be not, yet that it break not out, and that it be straightway quenched before we sleep, lest Satan taking occasion to give us evil counsel through the wicked counselor, destroy us.

<sup>2</sup> If it so fall out, that you be angry, yet sin not: that is, bridle your anger, and do not wickedly put that in execution, which you have wickedly conceived.

<sup>3</sup> Let not the night come upon you in your anger, that is, make atonement quickly for all matters.

28 <sup>1</sup>Let him that stole, steal no more: but let him rather labor, and work with his hands the thing which is <sup>2</sup>good, that he may have to give unto him that needeth.

29 <sup>1</sup>Let no <sup>2</sup>corrupt communication proceed out of your mouths: but that which is good to the use of edifying, that it may minister <sup>3</sup>grace unto the hearers.

30 <sup>1</sup>And grieve not the holy Spirit of God, by whom ye are sealed unto the day of redemption.

31 Let all bitterness, and anger, and wrath, crying, and evil speaking be put away from you, with all maliciousness.

32 Be ye courteous one to another, and tender hearted, freely forgiving one another, <sup>1</sup>even as God for Christ's sake, freely forgave you.

5 <sup>3</sup>Lest, in those vices which he reprehended, they should set light by his admonitions, <sup>5</sup>he terrifieth them by denouncing severe judgment, <sup>8</sup>and stirreth them forward: <sup>15</sup>Then he defendeth from general lessons of manners, <sup>22</sup>to the particular duties of wives, <sup>25</sup>and husbands.

1 Be ye therefore followers of God, as dear children,

2 <sup>a</sup>And walk in love, even as Christ hath loved us, and hath given himself for us, to be an offering and a sacrifice of a sweet smelling savor to God.

3 <sup>b,1</sup>But fornication, and all uncleanness, or covetousness, let it not be once named among you, as it becometh Saints,

4 Neither filthiness, neither foolish talking,

4:28 <sup>1</sup>He descendeth from the heart to the hands condemning theft: and because that men which give themselves to this wickedness use to pretend poverty, he showeth that labor is a good remedy against poverty, which God blesseth in such sort that they which labor have always some overplus to help others so far is it from this, that they are constrained to steal other men's goods.

4:29 <sup>1</sup>He bridleth the tongue also, teaching us so to temper our talk, that our hearer's mind be not only not destroyed, but also instructed.

<sup>3</sup>By grace he meaneth that, whereby men may profit to the going on forward godliness and love.

4:30 <sup>1</sup>A general precept against all excess of affections which dwell in the part of the mind, which they call, Angry, and he setteth against them the contrary means. And useth a most vehement preface, how we ought to take heed that we grieve not the holy Spirit of God through our immoderateness and intemperance, who dwelleth in us to this end, to moderate all our affections.

4:32 <sup>1</sup>An argument taken from the example of Christ, most grave and vehement, both for pardoning of those injuries which have been done unto us by our greatest enemies, and much more for having consideration of the miserable, and using moderation and gentle behavior towards all men.

5:3 <sup>1</sup>Now he cometh to another kind of affections, which is in that part of the mind, which men call covetous or desirous: and he reprehended fornication, covetousness, and jesting, very sharply.

5:4 <sup>1</sup>Jests which men cast one at another: that no lightness be seen, nor evil example given, nor any offense moved by evil words neither <sup>1</sup>jesting, which are things not comely, but rather giving of thanks.

5 <sup>1</sup>For this ye know, that no whoremonger, neither unclean person, nor covetous person, which is an <sup>2</sup>idolater, hath any inheritance in the kingdom of Christ, and of God.

6 <sup>1</sup>Let no man deceive you with vain words: for, for such things cometh the wrath of God upon the children of disobedience.

7 <sup>1</sup>Be not therefore companions with them.

8 For ye were once darkness, but are now <sup>1</sup>light in the Lord: walk as children of light.

9 (For the fruit of the <sup>1</sup>Spirit is in all goodness, and righteousness, and truth.)

10 Approving that which is pleasing to the Lord.

11 And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but even <sup>1</sup>reprove them rather.

12 For it is shame even to speak of the things which are done of them in secret.

13 But all things when they are reprov'd of the light, are manifest: for it is light that maketh all things manifest.

14 Wherefore <sup>1</sup>he saith, Awake thou that sleepest, and stand up from the <sup>2</sup>dead, and Christ shall give thee light.

15 <sup>1</sup>Take heed therefore that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as <sup>d</sup>wise, or backbiting.

17 <sup>e</sup>Wherefore, be ye not unwise, but understand what the will of the Lord is.

5:5 <sup>1</sup>Because these sins are such that the most part of men count them not for sins, he awaketh the godly, to the end they should so much the more take heed to themselves from them, as most hurtful plagues.

5:7 <sup>1</sup>Because we are not so ready to anything as to follow evil examples, therefore the Apostle warneth the godly to remember always that the others are but as it were darkness, and that they themselves are as it were light. And therefore the others commit all villany (as men are wont in the dark) but they ought not only not to follow their examples, but also (as the property of the light is) reprove their darkness, and to walk so (having Christ that true light going before them) as it becometh wise men.

5:8 <sup>1</sup>The faithful are called light, both because they have the true light in them which lighteneth them, and also because they give light to others, inasmuch, that their honest conversation reproveth the life of wicked men.

5:9 <sup>1</sup>By whose force we are made light in the Lord.

5:11 <sup>1</sup>Make them open to all the world, by your good life.

5:14 <sup>1</sup>The Scripture, or God in the Scripture.

5:15 <sup>1</sup>The worse and more corrupt that the manners of this world are, the more watchful ought we to be against all occasions, and respect nothing but the will of God.

5:16 <sup>1</sup>This is a metaphor taken from the merchants: who prefer the least profit that may be, before all their pleasures.

18 <sup>1</sup>And be not drunk with wine, wherein is <sup>2</sup>excess: but be fulfilled with the Spirit,

19 Speaking unto yourselves in Psalms, and hymns, and spiritual songs, singing and making melody to the Lord in your <sup>1</sup>hearts,

20 Giving thanks always for all things unto God even the Father, in the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ, 21 <sup>1</sup>Submitting yourselves one to another in the fear of God.

22 ¶<sup>f1</sup>Wives, submit yourselves unto your husbands, <sup>2</sup>as unto the Lord.

23 <sup>g1</sup>For the husband is the wife's head, even as Christ is the head of the Church, <sup>2</sup>and the same is the Savior of his body.

24 <sup>1</sup>Therefore as the Church is in subjection to Christ, even so let the wives be to their husbands in everything.

25 ¶<sup>b,1</sup>Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ loved the Church, and gave himself for it,

26 <sup>1</sup>That he might <sup>2</sup>sanctify it, and cleanse it by the washing of water through the <sup>3</sup>word, 27 That he might make it unto himself a glorious Church, <sup>1</sup>not having spot or wrinkle, or any such thing: but that it should be holy and without blame.

Deut. 5:16
Matt. 15:4
Mark 7:10

28 <sup>1</sup>So ought men to love their wives, as their own bodies: he that loveth his wife, loveth himself.

29 For no man ever yet hated his <sup>1</sup>own flesh, but nourished and cherisheth it, even as the Lord doth the Church.

30 For we are members of his body, <sup>1</sup>of his flesh, and of his bones.

31 <sup>1</sup>For this cause shall a man leave father and mother, and shall <sup>1</sup>cleave to his wife, and they twain shall be one flesh.

32 <sup>1</sup>This is a great secret, but I speak concerning Christ, and concerning the Church.

33 <sup>1</sup>Therefore everyone of you, do ye so: let everyone love his wife, even as himself, and let the wife see that she fear her husband.

5:18 <sup>1</sup>He setteth the sober and holy assemblies of the faithful, against the dissolute bankers of the unfaithful, in which the praises of the only Lord must ring, be it in prosperity or adversity.

5:19 <sup>1</sup>With an earnest affection of the heart, and not with the tongue only.

5:21 <sup>1</sup>A short repetition of the end whereunto all things ought to be referred, to serve one another for God's sake.

5:22 <sup>1</sup>Now he descendeth to a family, dividing orderly all the parts of a family. And he saith that the duty of wives consisteth herein, to be obedient to their husbands.

<sup>2</sup>The first argument, for they cannot be disobedient to their husbands, but they must resist God also, who is the author of this subjection.

5:23 <sup>1</sup>A declaration of the former saying: Because God hath made the man head of the woman in matrimony, as Christ is the head of the Church.

<sup>2</sup>Another argument: Because the good estate of the wife dependeth of the man, so that this submission is not only just, but also very profitable: as also the salvation of the Church is of Christ, although far otherwise.

5:24 <sup>1</sup>The conclusion of the wives' duty towards their husbands.

5:25 <sup>1</sup>The husbands' duty towards their wives, is to love them as themselves, of which love, the love of Christ toward his Church is a lively pattern.

5:26 <sup>1</sup>Because many men pretend the infirmities of their wives to excuse their own hardness and cruelty, the Apostle willetth us to mark what manner of Church Christ gat, when he joined it to himself, and how he doth not only not loathe all her filth and uncleanness, but ceaseth not to wipe the same away with his cleanness, until he have wholly purged it.

5:27 <sup>1</sup>The Church, as it is considered in itself, shall not be without wrinkle, before it come to the mark it shooteth at: for while it is in this life, it runneth in a race: but if it be considered in Christ, it is clean and without wrinkle.

5:28 <sup>1</sup>Another argument: Every man loveth himself, even of nature: therefore he striveth against nature that loveth not his wife: he proveth the consequent, first by the mystical knitting of Christ and the Church together, and then by the ordinance of God, who saith, that man and wife are as one, that is, not to be divided.

5:29 <sup>1</sup>His own body.

5:30 <sup>1</sup>He alludeth to the making of the woman, which signifieth our coupling together with Christ, which is wrought by faith, but is sealed by the Sacrament of the Supper.

5:31 <sup>1</sup>See Matt. 19:5

5:32 <sup>1</sup>That no man might dream of natural conjunction or knitting of Christ and his Church together (such as the husbands and the wives is) he showeth that it is secret, to wit, spiritual and such as far differeth from the common capacity of man: as which consisteth by the virtue of the Spirit, and not of the flesh by faith, and by no natural band.

5:33 <sup>1</sup>The conclusion both of the husband's duty toward his wife, and of the wife's toward her husband.

6:1 <sup>1</sup>He cometh to another part of a family, and showeth that the duty of the children toward their parents, consisteth in obedience unto them.

<sup>2</sup>The first argument: because God hath so appointed: whereupon it followeth also, that children are so far forth bound to obey their parents, as they may not swerve from the true worship of God.

<sup>3</sup>For the Lord is author of all fatherhood, and therefore we must yield such obedience as he will have us.

6:2 <sup>1</sup>A proof of the first argument.

<sup>3</sup>With a special promise: for otherwise the second commandment hath a promise of mercy to a thousand generations, but that promise is general.

3 That it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest live long on earth.

4 <sup>1</sup>And ye, fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but bring them up in instruction and <sup>2</sup>information of the Lord.

5 <sup>1</sup>Servants, be obedient unto them that are your masters, <sup>2</sup>according to the flesh, with <sup>3</sup>fear and trembling in singleness of your hearts, as unto Christ,

6 Not with service to the eye, as men pleasers, but as the servants of Christ, <sup>1</sup>doing the will of God from the heart.

7 With good will, serving the <sup>1</sup>Lord, and not men.

8 <sup>1</sup>And know ye that whatsoever good thing any man doeth, that same shall he receive of the Lord, whether he be bond or free, 9 <sup>1</sup>And ye masters, do the same things unto them, putting away threatening: and know that even your master also is in heaven, neither is there <sup>2</sup>respect of person with him.

10 ¶ <sup>1</sup>Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.

11 Put on the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to stand against the assaults of the devil.

12 <sup>1</sup>For we wrestle not against flesh and <sup>2</sup>blood, but against <sup>3</sup>principalities, against powers, and against the worldly governors, the princes of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness, which are in the high places.

13 <sup>1</sup>For this cause take unto you the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to resist in the <sup>2</sup>evil day, and having finished all things, stand fast.

14 Stand therefore, and your loins girded about with verity, and having on the breastplate of righteousness,

15 And your feet shod with the <sup>1</sup>preparation of the Gospel of peace.

16 Above all, take the shield of Faith, wherewith ye may quench all the fiery darts of the wicked, 17 And take the helmet of Salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God.

18 And pray always with all manner prayer and supplication in the <sup>1</sup>spirit: and watch thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all Saints,

19 And for me, that utterance may be given unto me, that I may open my mouth boldly to publish the secret of the Gospel,

20 Whereof I am the ambassador in bonds, that therein I may speak boldly, as I ought to speak.

21 ¶ <sup>1</sup>But that ye may also know mine affairs, and what I do, Tychicus my dear brother and faithful minister in the Lord, shall show you of all things.

22 Whom I have sent unto you for the same purpose, that ye might know mine affairs, and that he might comfort your hearts.

23 Peace be with the brethren, and love with faith from God the Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

24 Grace be with all them which love our Lord Jesus Christ, to their <sup>1</sup>immortality, Amen.

¶ Written from Rome unto the Ephesians, and sent by Tychicus.

6:4 <sup>1</sup> It is the duty of fathers to use their fatherly authority moderately, and to God's glory.

<sup>2</sup> Such information and precepts, as being taken out of God's book are holy and acceptable to him.

6:5 <sup>1</sup> Now he ascendeth to the third part of a family, to wit, to the duty both of the masters and of the servants. And he showeth that the duty of servants consisteth in a hearty love and reverence to their master.

<sup>2</sup> He mitigateth the sharpness of service, in that they are spiritually free, notwithstanding the same, and yet that spiritual freedom taketh not away corporal service, insomuch that they cannot be Christ's, unless they serve their masters willingly and faithfully, so far forth as they may with safe conscience.

6:6 <sup>1</sup> To cut off occasion of all pretences, he teacheth us that it is God's will that some are either born or made servants, and therefore they must respect God's will, although their service be never so hard.

6:7 <sup>1</sup> Being moved with a reverence so Godward, as though ye served God himself.

6:8 <sup>1</sup> Although they serve unkind and cruel masters, yet the obedience of servants is no less acceptable to God, than the obedience of them that are free.

6:9 <sup>1</sup> It is the duty of masters to use the authority that they have over their servants modestly, and holily, seeing that they in another respect have a common master, which is in heaven, who will judge both the bond and the free.

<sup>2</sup> Either of freedom or bondage.

6:10 <sup>1</sup> He concludeth the other part of this Epistle with a grave exhortation, that all be ready, and fight constantly, trusting to spiritual weapons, until their enemies be clean put to flight. And first of all, he warneth us to take the armor of God, whereby only our enemy may be dispatched.

6:12 <sup>1</sup> Secondly he declareth that our chiefest and mightiest enemies are invisible, that we may not think that our chiefest conflict is with men.

<sup>2</sup> Against men, which are of a frail and brittle nature, against which are set spiritual subtleties, more mighty than the other by a thousand parts.

<sup>3</sup> He giveth these names to the evil angels, reason of the effects which they work: not that they are able to do the same of themselves, but because God giveth them the bridle.

6:13 <sup>1</sup> He showeth that these enemies are put to flight with the only armor of God, to wit, with uprightness of conscience, a godly and holy life, knowledge of the Gospel, faith, and to be short, with the word of God, and using daily earnest prayer for the health of the Church, and especially, for the constance of the true, godly, and valiant ministers of the word.

6:15 <sup>1</sup> That the preparation of the Gospel may be as it were shoes to you: and it is very fitly called the Gospel of peace, for that, seeing we have to go to God through most dangerous ranks of enemies, this may encourage us to go on manfully, in that we know by the doctrine of the Gospel, that we take our journey to God, who is at peace with us.

6:18 <sup>1</sup> That holy prayers may proceed from the holy Spirit.

6:21 <sup>1</sup> A familiar and very amiable declaration of his state, together with a solemn prayer, wherewith Paul is wont to end his Epistles.

6:24 <sup>1</sup> To life everlasting.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL TO THE PHILIPPIANS

1 Paul <sup>1</sup>and Timothy the servants of JESUS CHRIST, to all the Saints in Christ Jesus, which are at Philippi, with the <sup>2</sup>Bishops, and Deacons:

2 Grace be with you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ:

3 I thank my God, having you in perfect memory,

4 (Always in all my prayers for all you, praying with gladness)

5 Because of the <sup>1</sup>fellowship which ye have in the Gospel, from the <sup>2</sup>first day unto now.

6 And I am persuaded of this same thing, that he that hath begun this good work in you, will perform it until the <sup>1</sup>day of Jesus Christ,

7 As it becometh me so to judge of you all, because I have you in remembrance, that both in my <sup>1</sup>bands, and in my defense, and confirmation of the Gospel you all were partakers of my <sup>2</sup>grace.

8 <sup>1</sup>For God is my record, how I long after you all from the very heart root in Jesus Christ.

9 <sup>1</sup>And this I pray that your love may abound yet more and more in knowledge, and in all judgment,

10 That ye may allow those things which are best, that ye may be pure, and without offense, until the day of Christ, 11 Filled with the <sup>1</sup>fruits of righteousness, which are by Jesus Christ unto the glory and praise of God.

12 ¶ I would ye understood, brethren, that the things which have come unto me, are turned rather to the furthering of the Gospel, 13 So that my bands <sup>1</sup>in Christ are famous throughout all the <sup>2</sup>judgment hall, and in all other places.

14 Insomuch that many of the brethren in the Lord are boldened through my bands, and dare more frankly speak the <sup>1</sup>Word.

15 Some preach Christ even through envy and strife, and some also of good will.

16 The one part preacheth Christ of contention, and not <sup>1</sup>purely, supposing to add more affliction to my bands.

17 But the others of love, knowing that I am set for the defense of the Gospel.

18 <sup>1</sup>What then: yet Christ is preached all manner ways, whether it be under a <sup>2</sup>pretence, or sincerely: and I therein joy: yea, and will joy.

19 For I know that this shall turn to my salvation through your prayer, and by the help of the Spirit

1:1 <sup>1</sup> The mark wherewith he shooteth in this Epistle, is to confirm the Philippians by all means possible, not only not to faint, but also to go forward. And first of all, he commendeth their former doings, to exhort them to go forward: which thing he sayeth, he hopeth fully they will do, and that by the testimony of their lively charity, but in the mean season he referreth all things to the grace of God.

<sup>2</sup> By the Bishops are meant both the Pastors, which have the dispensation of the word and the Elders, that govern: and by Deacons are meant those that were stewards of the treasury of the Church and had to look unto the poor.

1:5 <sup>1</sup> Because that you also are made partakers of the Gospel.

1:6 <sup>1</sup> The Spirit of God will not forsake you unto the very latter end, until your mortal bodies shall appear before the judgment of Christ, to be glorified.

1:7 <sup>1</sup> A true proof of a true knitting together with Christ.

1:8 <sup>1</sup> He declareth his good will towards them, therewithall showing by what means chiefly they may be confirmed, to wit, by continual prayer.

1:9 <sup>1</sup> He showeth what thing we ought chiefly desire, to wit, first of all, that we may increase in the true knowledge of God (so that we may be able to discern things that differ one from another) and also in charity, that even to the end we may give ourselves to good works indeed, to the glory of God by Jesus Christ.

1:11 <sup>1</sup> If righteousness be the tree, and good works the fruits, then must the papists needs be deceived, when they say that works are the cause of righteousness.

1:12 <sup>1</sup> He preventeth the offense that might come by his persecution, whereby divers took occasion to disgrace his Apostleship. To whom he answereth, that God hath blesseth his imprisonment in such wise, that he is by that means become more famous, and the dignity of the Gospel by this occasion is greatly enlarged, although not with like affection in all men, yet indeed.

1:14 <sup>1</sup> The Gospel is called the Word, to set forth the excellence of it.

1:16 <sup>1</sup> Not with a pure mind: for otherwise their doctrine was pure.

1:18 <sup>1</sup> He showeth by setting forth his own example, that the end of our affliction is true joy: and that through the virtue of the Spirit of Christ, which he giveth to them that ask it.

<sup>2</sup> Under a goodly color and show: for they made Christ a cloak for their ambition and envy.

of Jesus Christ,

20 <sup>1</sup>As I fervently look for, and hope, that in nothing I shall be ashamed, but that with all confidence, as always, so now Christ shall be magnified in my body, whether it be by life or by death.

21 For Christ is to me both in life and in death advantage.

22 <sup>1</sup>And whether to live in the <sup>2</sup>flesh were profitable for me, and what to choose I know not.

23 For I am distressed between both, desiring to be loosed and to be with Christ, which is best of all.

24 Nevertheless, to abide in the flesh, is more needful for you.

25 And this am I sure of, that I shall abide, and with you all continue, for your furtherance and joy of your faith,

26 That ye may more abundantly rejoice in JESUS CHRIST for me, by my coming to you again.

27 <sup>1</sup>Only let your conversation be as it becometh the Gospel of Christ, that whether I come and see you, or else be absent, I may hear of your matters, that ye <sup>2</sup>continue in one spirit, and in one mind, fighting together through the faith of the Gospel.

28 <sup>1</sup>And in nothing fear your adversaries, which is to them a token of perdition, and to you of salvation, and that of God.

29 <sup>1</sup>For unto you it is given for Christ, that not only ye should believe in him, but also suffer for his sake, 30 <sup>1</sup>Having the same fight, which ye saw in me, and now hear to be in me.

2 <sup>1</sup>He exhorteth them above all things, <sup>3</sup>to humility, <sup>6</sup>and that by the example of Christ. <sup>19</sup>He promiseth to send Timothy shortly unto them, <sup>26</sup>and excuseth the long tarrying of Epaphroditus.

1 <sup>1</sup>If there be therefore any consolation in <sup>2</sup>Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the Spirit, if any <sup>3</sup>compassion and mercy,

2 Fulfill my joy, that ye be like minded, having the <sup>1</sup>same love, being of one accord, and of one judgment,

3 That nothing be done through contention or vainglory, but that in meekness of mind every man esteem others better than himself.

4 Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of other men.

5 <sup>1</sup>Let the same mind be in you that was even in Christ Jesus,

6 Who being in the <sup>1</sup>form of God, <sup>2</sup>thought it no robbery to be <sup>3</sup>equal with God:

7 But he made himself of <sup>1</sup>no reputation, and took on him the <sup>2</sup>form of a servant, and was made like unto men, and was found in shape as a man.

8 He humbled himself, and became obedient unto the death, even the death of the cross.

9 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore God hath also highly exalted him, and given him a <sup>2</sup>name above every name.

10 That at the Name of Jesus should <sup>1</sup>every knee bow, both of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth.

11 And that <sup>1</sup>every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is the Lord, unto the glory of God the Father.

1:20 <sup>1</sup>We must continue even to the end, with great confidence, having nothing before our eyes but Christ's glory only, whether we live or die.

1:22 <sup>1</sup>An example of a true shepherd, who maketh more account how he may profit his sheep, than he doth of any commodity of his own whatsoever.

1:27 <sup>1</sup>Having set down those things before, in manner of a Preface, he descendeth now to exhortations, warning them first of all, to consent both in doctrine and mind, and afterward, that being thus knit together with those common bands, they continue through the strength of faith to bear all adversity in such sort, that they admit nothing unworthy the profession of the Gospel.

1:28 <sup>1</sup>We ought not to be discouraged, but rather encouraged by the persecutions which the enemies of the Gospel imagine and practice against us: seeing that they are certain witnesses from God himself, both of our salvation, and of the destruction of the wicked.

1:29 <sup>1</sup>He proveth that his saying, that persecution is a token of our salvation, because it is a gift of God to suffer for Christ, which gift he bestoweth upon his own, as he doth the gift of faith.

1:30 <sup>1</sup>Now he showeth for what purpose he made mention of his afflictions.

2:1 <sup>1</sup>A most earnest request to remove all those things, whereby that great and special consent and agreement is commonly broken, to wit, contention and pride, whereby it cometh to pass, that they separate themselves one from another.

2:5 <sup>1</sup>He setteth before them a most perfect example of all modesty and sweet conversation, Christ Jesus, whom we ought to follow with all our might: who abased himself so far for our sakes, although he be above all, that he took upon him the form of a servant, to wit, our flesh willingly, subject to all infirmities, even to the death of the cross.

2:6 <sup>1</sup>Such as God himself is, and therefore God, for there is none in all parts like to God, but God himself.

<sup>2</sup>Christ, that glorious and everlasting God, knew that he might rightfully and lawfully not appear in the base flesh of man, but remain with majesty meet for God: yet he chose rather to debase himself.

<sup>3</sup>If the Son be equal to the Father, then is there of necessity an equality, which Arrius, that Heretic, denieth: and if the Son be compared with the Father, then is there a distinction of persons, which Sabellius, that heretic, denieth.

2:7 <sup>1</sup>He brought himself from all things, as it were to nothing.

2:9 <sup>1</sup>He showeth the most glorious event of Christ's submission, to teach us, that modesty is the true way to true praise and glory.

<sup>2</sup>Dignity and renown, and the matter with it.

2:10 <sup>1</sup>All creatures shall at length be subject to Christ.

2:11 <sup>1</sup>Every nation.

12 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore my beloved, as ye have always obeyed me, not as in my presence only, but now much more in mine absence, so <sup>2</sup>make an end of your own salvation with fear and trembling.

13 <sup>1</sup>For it is God which worketh in you both <sup>2</sup>the will and the deed, even of his good pleasure.

14 <sup>1</sup>Do all things without <sup>2</sup>murmuring and reasonings,

15 <sup>1</sup>That ye may be blameless, and pure, and the sons of God without rebuke in the midst of a naughty and crooked nation, among whom ye shine as <sup>2</sup>lights in the world,

16 Holding forth the <sup>1</sup>word of life, <sup>2</sup>that I may rejoice in the day of Christ, that I have not run in vain, neither have labored in vain.

17 Yea, and though I be offered up upon the <sup>1</sup>sacrifice, and service of your faith, I am glad, and rejoice with you all.

18 For the same cause also be ye glad, and rejoice with me.

19 <sup>1</sup>And I trust in the Lord Jesus, to send <sup>2</sup>Timothy shortly unto you, that I also may be of <sup>3</sup>good comfort, when I know your state.

20 For I have no man like-minded, who will faithfully care for your matters.

21 <sup>1</sup>For <sup>2</sup>all seek their own, and not that which is Jesus Christ's.

22 But ye know the proof of him, that as a son with the father, he hath served with me in the Gospel.

23 Him therefore I hope to send as soon as I know how it will go with me,

CHAPTER 2

24 And I trust in the Lord, that I also myself shall come shortly.

25 But I supposed it necessary to send my brother Epaphroditus unto you my companion in labor, and fellow soldier, even your messenger, and he that ministered unto me such things as I wanted.

26 For he longed after all you, and was full of heaviness, because ye had heard that he had been sick.

27 And no doubt he was sick, very near unto death: but God had mercy on him, and not on him only, but on me also, lest I should have sorrow upon sorrow.

28 I sent him therefore the more diligently, that when ye should see him again, ye might rejoice, and I might be the less sorrowful.

29 Receive him therefore in the Lord with all gladness, and make much of such:

30 Because that for the <sup>1</sup>work of Christ he was near unto death, and regarded not his life, to fulfill that service which was lacking on your part toward me.

3 2 He refuteth the vain boastings of the false apostles, 7 and setteth Christ against them. 10 He setteth out the force and nature of faith, 15 that laying all things aside, they may be partakers of the Cross of Christ, 18 the enemies whereof, he noteth out.

1 Moreover, <sup>1</sup>my brethren, rejoice in the Lord. <sup>2</sup>It grieveth me not to write the <sup>3</sup>same things to you, and for you it is a sure thing.

2 Beware of dogs: beware of evil workers: beware of the <sup>1</sup>concision.

3 <sup>1</sup>For we are the circumcision, which worship

2:12 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion: We must go on to salvation with humility and submission, by the way of our vocation.

<sup>2</sup> He is said to make an end of his salvation, which runneth in the race of righteousness.

2:13 <sup>1</sup> A most sure and grounded argument against pride, for that we have nothing in us praiseworthy but it cometh of the free gift of God, and is without us, for we have no ability or power, so much as to will well (much less to do well) but only of the free mercy of God.

<sup>2</sup> Why then, we are not stocks, but yet we do not will well of nature, but only because God hath made of our naughty will a good will.

2:14 <sup>1</sup> He describeth modesty by the contrary effects of pride, teaching us, that it is far both from all malicious, and close or inward hatred and also from open contentions and brawlings.

2:15 <sup>1</sup> To be short, he requireth a life without fault, and pure, that being lightened with the word of God, they may shine in the darkness of this world.

2:16 <sup>1</sup> The Gospel is called the word of life, because of the effects which it worketh.

<sup>2</sup> Again he pricketh them forward, setting before them his true Apostolic care that he had of them, comforting them moreover, to the end they should not be sorry for the greatness of his afflictions, no not although he should die to make perfect their oblation with his blood, as it were with a drink offering.

2:17 <sup>1</sup> As if he said, I brought you Philippians to Christ, my desire is that you present yourselves a lively sacrifice to him, and then shall it not grieve me to be offered up as a drink offering, to accomplish this your spiritual offering.

2:19 <sup>1</sup> Moreover he confirmeth their minds both by sending back Epaphroditus unto them, whose fidelity towards them, and great pains in helping him, he commendeth: and also promising to send Timothy shortly unto them, by whose presence they shall receive great commodity, and hoping also to come himself shortly unto them, if God wills.

2:30 <sup>1</sup> He calleth it here the work of Christ, to visit Christ, being poor and in bands in the person of Paul.

3:1 <sup>1</sup> A conclusion of those things which have been before said, to wit, that they go forward cheerfully in the Lord.

<sup>2</sup> A preface to the next admonition that followeth, to take good heed and beware of false apostles, which join Circumcision with Christ, (that is to say, justification by works, with free justification by faith) and beat into men's heads the ceremonies which are abolished: for true exercises of godliness and charity. And he calleth them dogs as profane barkers, and evil workmen, because they neglected true works and did not teach the true use of them. To be short, he calleth them Concision, because in urging Circumcision, they cut off themselves and others from the Church.

<sup>3</sup> Which you have oftentimes heard of me.

3:2 <sup>1</sup> He alludeth to Circumcision, of the name whereof while they boasted, they cut asunder the Church.

3:3 <sup>1</sup> He showeth that we ought to use true circumcision, to wit, the circumcision of the heart, that cutting off all wicked affections by the virtue of Christ, we may serve God in purity of life.

God in the spirit, and rejoice in Christ Jesus, and have no confidence <sup>2</sup>in the flesh:

4 <sup>1</sup>Though I might also have confidence in the flesh. If any other man thinketh that he hath whereof he might trust in the flesh, much more I,

5 Circumcised the eighth day, of the kindred of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, <sup>a</sup>an Hebrew of the Hebrews, <sup>b</sup>by the Law a Pharisee.

6 Concerning zeal, I persecuted the Church: touching the righteousness which is in the Law, I was unrebukeable.

7 But the things that were <sup>1</sup>vantage unto me, the same I counted loss for Christ's sake.

8 Yea, doubtless I think <sup>1</sup>all things but loss for the excellent knowledge sake of Christ Jesus my Lord, for whom I have counted all things loss, and do judge them to be dung, that I might <sup>2</sup>win Christ,

9 And might be found in <sup>1</sup>him, that is, <sup>2</sup>not having mine own righteousness, which is of the Law, but that which is through the faith of Christ, even the righteousness which is of God through faith,

10 <sup>1</sup>That I may <sup>2</sup>know him, and the virtue of his resurrection, and the <sup>3</sup>fellowship of his afflictions, and be made conformable unto his death,

11 If by any means I might attain unto the <sup>1</sup>resurrection of the dead:

12 Not as though I had already attained to it, either were already perfect: but I follow, if that I may comprehend that for whose sake also I am <sup>1</sup>comprehended of Christ Jesus.

CHAPTER 3

Titus 2:13

13 Brethren, I count not myself, that I have attained to it, but one thing I do: I forget that which is behind, and endeavor myself unto that which is before,

14 And follow hard toward the mark, for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

15 <sup>1</sup>Let us therefore as many as be <sup>2</sup>perfect, be thus minded: and if ye be otherwise minded, God shall reveal even the same unto you.

16 Nevertheless, in that whereunto we are come, let us proceed by one rule, that we may mind one thing.

17 Brethren, be followers of me, and look on them, which walk so, as ye have us for an example.

18 <sup>c1</sup> For many walk, of whom I have told you often, and now tell you weeping, that they are the enemies of the cross of Christ:

19 Whose <sup>1</sup>end is damnation, whose God is their belly, and whose <sup>2</sup>glory is to their shame, which mind earthly things.

20 <sup>1</sup>But our conversation is in heaven, from whence also we look for the <sup>d</sup>Savior, even the Lord Jesus Christ, 21 Who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working, whereby he is able even to subdue all things unto himself.

1 Therefore, <sup>1</sup>my brethren, beloved and longed for, my joy and my <sup>2</sup>crown, so continue in the <sup>3</sup>Lord,

3:4 <sup>1</sup> He doubteth not to prefer himself even according to the flesh, before those perverse hote urgers of the Law, that all men may know that he doth with good judgment of mind, lightly esteem all those outward things: forso much as he lacketh nothing which hath Christ, nay, the confidence of our works cannot stand with the free justification in Christ by faith.

3:7 <sup>1</sup> Which is accounted for vantage.

3:8 <sup>1</sup> He shutteth out all works, as well those that go before, as those that come after faith.

<sup>2</sup> That in their place I might get Christ, and of a poor man become rich: so far off am I from losing anything.

3:9 <sup>1</sup> In Christ: for they that are found without Christ, are subject to condemnation.

<sup>2</sup> That is, to be in Christ, to be found not in a man's own righteousness, but clothed with the righteousness of Christ imputed to him.

3:10 <sup>1</sup> This is the end of righteousness by faith touching us, that by the virtue of his resurrection we may scape from death.

<sup>2</sup> That I may feel him indeed, and have a trial of him.

<sup>3</sup> The way to that eternal salvation is to follow Christ's steps, by afflictions and persecutions, until we come to Christ himself, who is our mark whereto we shoot, and receive that reward whereunto God calleth us in him. And the Apostle setteth these true exercises of godliness against those vain ceremonies of the Law, wherein the false apostles put the sum of godliness.

3:11 <sup>1</sup> To life everlasting, which followeth the resurrection of the Saints.

3:12 <sup>1</sup> For we run not, but so far forth, as we are laid hold on of Christ, that is, as God giveth us strength, and showeth us the way.

3:15 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion of this exhortation standing upon three members: The one is, that such as have profited in the truth of this doctrine, should continue in it. The second is, that if there be any which are yet ignorant and understand not these things, and doubt of the abolishing of the Law, they should cause no trouble, and should be gently born withal, until they also be instructed of the Lord. The third is, that they esteem the false apostles by their fruits: wherein he doubteth not to set forth himself for an example.

<sup>2</sup> He said before that he was not perfect. So that in this place he calleth them perfect, which have somewhat profited in the knowledge of Christ and the Gospel, whom he setteth against the rude and ignorant, as he expoundeth himself in the next verse following.

3:18 <sup>1</sup> He painteth out the false apostles in their colors, not upon malice or ambition, but with sorrow and tears, to wit, because that being enemies of the Gospel (for that is joined with affliction) they regard nothing else, but the commodities of this life: that is to say, that flowing in peace, and quietness, and all worldly pleasures, they may live in great estimation amongst men, whose miserable end he forewarned them of.

3:20 <sup>1</sup> He setteth against these fellows, true pastors which neglect earthly things, and aspire to heaven only, where they know, that even in their bodies they shall be clothed with that eternal glory, by the virtue of God.

4:1 <sup>1</sup> A rehearsal of the conclusion: That they manfully continue, until they have gotten the victory, trusting to the Lord's strength.

ye beloved.

2 <sup>1</sup>I pray Euodia, and beseech Syntyche, that they be of one accord in the Lord.

3 Yea, and I beseech thee, faithful yokefellow, help those women, which labored with me in the Gospel, with Clement also, and with other my fellow laborers, whose names are in the <sup>41</sup>book of life.

5 <sup>1</sup>Let your <sup>2</sup>patient mind be known unto all men. <sup>3</sup>The Lord is at hand.

6 <sup>1</sup>Be nothing careful, but in all things let your requests be showed unto God in prayer and supplication with <sup>2</sup>giving of thanks.

7 And the <sup>1</sup>peace of God which passeth all understanding, shall preserve your <sup>2</sup>hearts and minds in Christ Jesus.

8 <sup>1</sup>Furthermore, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things <sup>2</sup>are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are worthy love, whatsoever things are of good report, if there be any virtue, or if there be any praise, think on these things.

9 Which ye have both learned and received, and heard, and seen in me: those things do, and the God of peace shall be with you.

10 <sup>1</sup>Now I rejoice also in the Lord greatly, that now at the last your care for me springeth afresh, wherein notwithstanding ye were careful, but ye lacked opportunity.

11 I speak not because of <sup>1</sup>want: for I have learned in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content.

CHAPTER 4

<sup>a</sup> Rev. 3:5
Rev. 10:8
Rev. 21:27

12 And I can be <sup>1</sup>abased, and I can abound: everywhere in all things I am <sup>2</sup>instructed, both to be full, and to be hungry, and to abound, and to have want.

13 I am able to do all things through the help of Christ, which strengtheneth me.

14 Notwithstanding ye have well done, that ye did communicate to mine affliction.

15 <sup>1</sup>And ye Philippians know also that in the <sup>2</sup>beginning of the Gospel, when I departed from Macedonia, no Church communicated with me, concerning the matter of giving and receiving, but ye only.

16 For even when I was in Thessalonica, ye sent once, and afterward again for my necessity.

17 <sup>1</sup>Not that I desire a gift: but I desire the fruit which may further your reckoning.

18 Now I have received all, and have plenty: I was even filled, after that I had received of Epaphroditus that which came from you, an <sup>1</sup>odor that smelleth sweet, a sacrifice acceptable and pleasant to God.

19 And my God shall fulfill all your necessities through his riches with glory in Jesus Christ.

20 Unto God even our Father be praise for evermore, Amen.

21 Salute all the Saints in Christ Jesus. The brethren, which are with me, greet you.

22 All the Saints salute you, and most of all they which are of <sup>1</sup>Caesar's household.

23 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all, Amen.

¶ Written to the Philippians from Rome, and sent by Epaphroditus.

4:2 <sup>1</sup> He also calleth on some by name, partly, because they needed private exhortation, and partly also to stir up others, to be more prompt and ready.

4:3 <sup>1</sup> God is said after the manner of men, to have a book, wherein the names of his elect are written, to whom he will give everlasting life. Ezekiel calleth it the writing of the house of Israel, and the secret of the Lord, Ezek. 13:9.

4:4 <sup>1</sup> He addeth particular exhortations: and the first is, that the joy of the Philippians be not hindered by any afflictions that the wicked imagine and work against them.

4:5 <sup>1</sup> The second is not taking all things in good part, they behave themselves moderately with all men.

<sup>3</sup> The taking away of an objection: We must not be disquieted through impatience, seeing that God is at hand to give us remedy in time against all our miseries.

4:6 <sup>1</sup> The third is, that we be not too careful for anything, but with sure confidence give God thanks, and crave of him whatsoever we have need of, that with a quiet conscience we may wholly and with all our hearts submit ourselves to him.

4:7 <sup>1</sup> That great quietness of mind, which God only giveth in Christ.

<sup>2</sup> He divideth the mind into the heart, that is, into that part which is the seat of the will and affections, and into the higher part, whereby we understand and reason of matters.

4:8 <sup>1</sup> A general conclusion, that as they have been taught both in word and example, so they frame their lives to the rule of all holiness and righteousness.

4:10 <sup>1</sup> He witnesseth that their liberality was acceptable to him, wherein they did help him in his extreme poverty: but yet so moderating his words, that he might declare himself void of all suspicion of dishonesty, and that he hath a mind contented both with prosperity and adversity, and to be short, that he repositeth himself in the only will of God.

4:11 <sup>1</sup> As though I passed for my want.

4:12 <sup>1</sup> He useth a general word, and yet he speaketh but of one kind of cross, which is poverty, for commonly poverty bringeth all kinds of discommodity with it.

4:15 <sup>1</sup> He witnesseth that he remembereth also their former benefits, and again putteth away sinistrous suspicion of immoderate desire, in that that he received nought of any else.

4:17 <sup>1</sup> He witnesseth again, that he alloweth well of their benefit not so much for his own sake as for theirs, because they gave it not so much to him, as they offered it to God as a sacrifice, whereof the Lord himself will not be forgetful.

4:18 <sup>1</sup> He alludeth to the sweet smelling savors that were offered in the old Law.

4:22 <sup>1</sup> Such as belong to the Emperor Nero.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL TO THE COLOSSIANS

1 1 After the salutation, 4 he praiseth them the more, to make them attentive unto him. 7 He reporteth the testimony of the doctrine which they heard of Epaphras. 13 He magnifieth God's grace towards them, 20 and showeth that all the parts of our salvation consist in Christ alone.

1 Paul an Apostle of Jesus Christ, by the <sup>1</sup>will of God, and Timothy our brother,

2 To them which are at <sup>1</sup>Colosse, Saints and faithful brethren in Christ: Grace be with you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 <sup>1</sup>We give thanks to God even the <sup>2</sup>Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, always praying for you:

4 Since we heard of your faith in Christ Jesus, and of your love toward all Saints.

5 For the <sup>1</sup>hope's sake, which is laid up for you in heaven, whereof ye have heard before by the word of truth, which is the Gospel,

6 Which is come unto you, even as it is unto all the world, and is fruitful as it is also among you from the day that ye heard and truly knew the grace of God,

7 As ye also learned of Epaphras our dear fellow servant, which is for you a faithful minister of Christ:

<sup>2</sup> Pet. 1:17

8 <sup>1</sup>Who hath also declared unto us your love in the <sup>2</sup>Spirit.

9 For this cause we also, since the day we heard of it, cease not to pray for you, and to desire that ye might be fulfilled with knowledge of <sup>4</sup>his will in all wisdom, and spiritual understanding.

10 That ye might walk worthy of the Lord, and please him in all things, being fruitful in all good works, and increasing in the knowledge of God,

11 <sup>1</sup>Strengthened with all might through his glorious power, unto all patience, and longsuffering with <sup>2</sup>joyfulness,

12 <sup>1</sup>Giving thanks unto the <sup>2</sup>Father, which hath made us meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the Saints in <sup>3</sup>light,

13 Who hath delivered us from the power of darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom <sup>4</sup>of his dear Son, 14 <sup>1</sup>In whom we have redemption through his blood, that is, the forgiveness of sins.

15 <sup>1</sup>Who is the <sup>6</sup>image of the invisible God, <sup>2</sup>the first begotten of every creature.

16 <sup>4</sup>For by him were all things created which are in heaven, and which are in earth, things visible and invisible: whether they be <sup>1</sup>Thrones, or Dominions,

1:1 <sup>1</sup> By the free bountifulness of God.

1:2 <sup>1</sup> Colosse is situated in Phrygia, not far from Hierapolis and Laodicea, on that side that they bend toward Lycia and Pamphylia.

1:3 <sup>1</sup> He commendeth the doctrine that was delivered them by Epaphras, and their readiness in receiving it.

<sup>2</sup> We cannot otherwise consider of God to our salvation, but as he is Christ's Father, in whom we are adopted.

1:5 <sup>1</sup> For the glory that is hoped for.

1:8 <sup>1</sup> He declareth his good will towards them, telling them that they must not still remain at one stay but go on further both in the knowledge of the Gospel, and also in the true use of it.

<sup>2</sup> Your spiritual love, or your love which cometh from the Spirit.

1:9 <sup>1</sup> God's will.

1:11 <sup>1</sup> The gift of continuance is not of us, but it proceedeth from the virtue of God, which he doth freely give us.

<sup>2</sup> It must not be unwilling, and as it were drawn out of us by force, but proceed from a merry and joyful mind.

1:12 <sup>1</sup> Having ended the preface, he goeth to the matter itself, that is to say, to an excellent description (although it be but short) of whole Christianity, which is fitly divided into three treatises: for first of all he expoundeth the true doctrine, according to the order of the causes, beginning from this verse to the 24. And from thence he beginneth to apply the same to the Colossians with divers exhortations to verse 6 of the second Chapter. And last of all in the third place even to the third Chapter, he refuteth the corruption of true doctrine.

<sup>2</sup> The efficient cause of our salvation is the only mercy of God the Father, who maketh us meet to be partakers of eternal life, delivering us from the darkness wherein we were born, and bringing us to the light of the knowledge of the glory of his Son.

1:14 <sup>1</sup> The matter itself of our salvation, is Christ the Son of God, who hath obtained remission of sins for us by the offering up of himself.

1:15 <sup>1</sup> A lively description of the person of Christ, whereby we understand that in him only, God showeth himself to be seen: who was begotten of the Father before anything was made, that is, from everlasting, by whom also all things that are made, were made without any exception, by whom also they do consist, and whose glory they serve.

<sup>2</sup> Begotten before anything was made: and therefore the everlasting Son of the everlasting Father.

1:16 <sup>1</sup> He setteth forth the Angels with glorious names, that by the comparison of most excellent spirits we may understand how far passing the excellence of Christ, in whom only we have to content ourselves, and let go all Angels.

or Principalities, or Powers, all things were created by him, and for him.

17 And he is before all things, and in him all things consist.

18 <sup>1</sup>And he is the head of the body of the Church: he is the beginning, <sup>4</sup>and the <sup>2</sup>first begotten of the dead, that in all things he might have the preeminence.

19 <sup>1</sup>For it pleased the Father, that in him should <sup>1</sup>all fullness dwell.

20 <sup>1</sup>And through peace made by that blood of that his cross, to reconcile to himself through him, through him, I say, <sup>2</sup>all things, both which are in earth, and which are in heaven.

21 <sup>1</sup>And you which were in times past strangers and enemies, because your minds were set in evil works, hath <sup>2</sup>he now also reconciled,

22 In that body of his <sup>1</sup>flesh through death, to make you holy and unblameable, and without fault in his sight.

23 <sup>1</sup>If ye continue, grounded and established in the faith, and be not moved away from the hope of the Gospel, whereof ye have heard, and which hath been preached to <sup>2</sup>every creature, which is under heaven, <sup>3</sup>whereof I Paul am a minister.

24 Now rejoice I in my sufferings <sup>1</sup>for you, and fulfill the <sup>2</sup>rest of the afflictions of Christ in my flesh, for his body's sake, which is the Church,

25 <sup>1</sup>Whereof I am a minister, according to the dispensation of God, which is given me unto youward, to fulfill the word of God,

26 <sup>1</sup>Which is the mystery hid since the world began, and from all ages, but now is made manifest to his <sup>1</sup>Saints,

27 To whom God <sup>1</sup>would make known what is the riches of his glorious mystery among the Gentiles, which riches is Christ in you, the hope of glory, 28 <sup>1</sup>Whom we preach, admonishing every man, and teaching every man in <sup>2</sup>all wisdom, that we may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus.

29 Whereunto I also labor and strive, according to his working which worketh in me mightily.

1 For I <sup>1</sup>would ye knew what great fighting I have for your sakes, and for them of Laodicea, and for as many as have not seen my <sup>2</sup>person in the flesh.

2 <sup>1</sup>That <sup>2</sup>their hearts might be comforted, and

1:18 <sup>1</sup> Having gloriously declared the excellent dignity of the person of Christ, he describeth his office and function, to wit, that he is that same to the Church, that the head is to the body, that is to say, the prince and governor of it, and the very beginning of true life, as who rising first from death, he is the Author of eternal life, so that he is above all, in whom only there is most plentiful abundance of all good things, which is poured out upon the Church.

<sup>2</sup> Who so rose again that he shall die no more, and who raiseth others from death to life by his power.

1:19 <sup>1</sup> Most plentiful abundance of all things pertaining to God.

1:20 <sup>1</sup> Now he teacheth how Christ executed that office which his Father joined him, to wit, by suffering the death of the cross (which was joined with the curse of God) according to his decree, that by this sacrifice he might reconcile his Father all men as well them which believed in him to come, and were already under this hope gathered into heaven, as them which should upon the earth believe in him afterwards. And thus is justification described of the Apostle, which is one and the chiefest part of the benefit of Christ.

1:21 <sup>1</sup> Sanctification is another work of God in us by Christ, in that that he restored us (which hated God extremely, and were wholly and willingly given to sin) to his gracious favor, in such sort, that he therewithal purifieth us with his holy Spirit, and consecrateth us to righteousness.

1:22 <sup>1</sup> In that fleshly body, to give us to understand that his body was not a fantastical body, but a true body.

1:23 <sup>1</sup> This second treatise of this part of the Epistle, wherein he exhortheth the Colossians not to suffer themselves by any means to be moved from this doctrine, showing and declaring that there is nowhere any other true Gospel.

<sup>2</sup> To all men: whereby we learn that the Gospel was not shut up within the corners of Judea alone.

taketh a most sure proof thereof, of his afflictions which he suffereth for Christ's Name to instruct the Churches with these examples of patience.

1:24 <sup>1</sup> For your profit and commodity.

<sup>2</sup> The afflictions of the Church are said to be Christ's afflictions, by reason of that fellowship and knitting together, that the body and the head have the one with the other, not that there is any more need to have the Church redeemed, but that Christ showeth his power in the daily weakness of his, and that for the comfort of the whole body.

1:25 <sup>1</sup> He bringeth another proof of his Apostleship, to wit, that God is the author of it, by whom also he was appointed peculiarly Apostle of the Gentiles, to the end that by this means, that same might be fulfilled by him, which the Prophets foretold of the calling of the Gentiles.

1:26 <sup>1</sup> Whom he chose to sanctify unto himself in Christ: moreover he sayeth that the mystery of our redemption was hidden since the world began, except it were revealed unto a few, who also were taught it extraordinarily.

1:27 <sup>1</sup> This Paul bridleth the curiosity of men.

1:28 <sup>1</sup> He protesteth that he doth faithfully execute his Apostleship in every place, bringing men unto Christ only, through the Lord's plentiful blessings of his labors.

<sup>2</sup> Perfect and sound wisdom, which is perfect in itself, and shall in the end make them perfect that follow it.

2:1 <sup>1</sup> The taking away of an objection, in that that he visited not the Colossians, nor the Laodiceans, he did it not of any negligence but is so much the more careful for them.

2:2 <sup>1</sup> He concludeth shortly the sum of the former doctrine, to wit, that the whole sum of true wisdom and most secret knowledge of God, consisteth in Christ only, and that this is the use of it touching men, that they being knit together in love, rest themselves happily in the knowledge of so great a goodness, until they come fully to enjoy it.

they knit together in love, and in all riches of the <sup>3</sup>full assurance of understanding, to know the mystery of God, even the Father, and of Christ:

3 In whom are hid all the treasures of <sup>1</sup>wisdom and knowledge.

4 <sup>1</sup>And this I say, lest any man should beguile you with <sup>2</sup>enticing words:

5 <sup>a</sup>For though I be absent in the flesh, yet am I with you in the spirit, rejoicing and beholding your <sup>1</sup>order, and your <sup>2</sup>steadfast faith in Christ.

6 As ye have therefore <sup>1</sup>received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk in him.

7 Rooted and built in him, and established in the faith, as ye have been taught, abounding therein with thanksgiving:

9 <sup>1</sup>For <sup>2</sup>in him <sup>3</sup>dwelleth <sup>4</sup>all the fullness of the 10 And ye are complete in him, which is the head of all principality and power.

<sup>3</sup> Of that understanding, which bringeth forth certain and undoubted persuasion in our minds.

2:3 <sup>1</sup> There is no true wisdom without Christ.

2:5 <sup>1</sup> The manner of your Ecclesiastical discipline.

2:6 <sup>1</sup> So then Christ hangeth not upon men's traditions.

2:8 <sup>1</sup> He bringeth all corruptions to three kinds: The first is that, which resteth of vain and curious speculations, and yet beareth a show of a certain subtle wisdom.

<sup>2</sup> This is a word of war, and it is as much as to drive or carry away a spoil or booty.

<sup>5</sup> Principles and rulers, wherewith God ruled his Church, as it were under a schoolmaster.

<sup>6</sup> A general confutation of all corruptions is this, that that must needs be a false religion, which addeth anything to Christ.

2:9 <sup>1</sup> A reason: Because only Christ God and man, is most perfect, and passeth far above all things, so that whosoever hath him, may require nothing more.

<sup>4</sup> These words set down most perfect Godhead to be in Christ.

2:11 <sup>1</sup> Now he dealeth perfectly against the third kind, that is to say, against them which urged the Jewish religion: and first of all, he denieth that we have need of the Circumcision of the flesh, seeing that without it we are circumcised within, by the virtue of Christ.

2:12 <sup>1</sup> The taking away of an objection: we need not so much as the eternal sign which our fathers had, seeing that our baptism is a most effectual pledge and witness, of that inward restoring and renewing.

<sup>3</sup> So then all the force of the matter cometh not from the very deed done, that is to say, it is not the dipping of us into the water by a Minister that maketh us to be buried with Christ, as the Papists say, that even for the very act's sake, we become verily Christians, but it cometh from the virtue of Christ, for the Apostle addeth the resurrection of Christ and faith.

<sup>4</sup> One end of Baptism is the death and burial of the old man, and that by the mighty power of God only, whose virtue we lay hold on by faith, in the death and resurrection of Christ.

2:13 <sup>1</sup> Another end of Baptism is, that we which were dead in sin, might obtain free remission of sins and eternal life through faith in Christ who died for us.

<sup>2</sup> A new argument which lieth in these few words, and it is thus: Uncircumcision was no hindrance to you, why you being justified in Christ should not obtain life therefore you need not circumcision to the argument of salvation.

2:14 <sup>1</sup> He speaketh now more generally against the whole service of the Law, and showeth by two reasons that it is abolished: First, to what purpose should he that hath obtained remission of all his sins in Christ require those helps of the Law? Secondly, because that if a man do rightly consider those rites, he shall find that they were so many testimonies of our guiltiness, whereby we manifestly witnessed as it were by our own handwriting that we deserved damnation. Therefore did Christ put out that handwriting by his coming and fastening it to the cross, triumphed over all our enemies, were they never so mighty. Therefore to what end and purpose should we now use those ceremonies, as though we were still guilty of sin, and subject to the tyranny of our enemies?

2:15 <sup>1</sup> Satan and his angels.

<sup>3</sup> The cross was as a chariot of triumph. No conqueror could have triumphed so gloriously in his chariot, as Christ did upon the cross.

2:16 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion: wherein also he nameth certain kinds, as the difference of days and meats, and proveth by a new argument that we are not bond unto them: to wit, because those things were shadows of Christ to come but we possess him now exhibited unto us.

and drink, or in respect of an holy day, or of the new moon, or of the Sabbath days, 17 Which are but a shadow of things to come: but the <sup>1</sup>body is in Christ.

18 <sup>1</sup>Let no man at his pleasure bear rule over you by <sup>2</sup>humbleness of mind, and worshipping of Angels, <sup>3</sup>advancing himself in those things which he never saw, <sup>4,5</sup>rashly puffed up with his fleshly mind, 19 <sup>1</sup>And holdeth not the <sup>2</sup>head, whereof all the body furnished and knit together by joints and bands, increaseth with the increasing of <sup>3</sup>God.

20 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore if ye be dead with Christ from the ordinances of the world, why, <sup>2</sup>as though ye lived in the world, are ye burdened with traditions?

22 <sup>1</sup>Which all perish with the using, <sup>2</sup>and are after the commandments and doctrines of men.

1 If ye then <sup>2</sup>be <sup>3</sup>risen with Christ, <sup>4</sup>seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth at the right hand of God.

2 Set your affections on things which are above, and not on things which are on the <sup>1</sup>earth.

2:17 <sup>1</sup> The body as a thing of substance and pith, he setteth against shadows.

2:18 <sup>1</sup> He disputeth against the first kind of corruptions, and setteth down the worshipping of Angels for an example: which kind of false religion he confuteth, first this way: because that they which being in such a worship, attribute that unto themselves which is proper only to God, to wit, authority to bind men's consciences with religion, although they seem to bring in these things by humbleness of mind.

<sup>3</sup> Secondly, because they rashly thrust upon them for oracles, those things which they neither saw nor heard, but devised of themselves.

<sup>4</sup> Thirdly, because these things have no other ground, whereupon they are built, but only the opinion of men, which please themselves without all measure in their own duties.

2:19 <sup>1</sup> The fourth argument, which is of great weight, because they spoil Christ of his dignity, who only is sufficient both to nourish, and also to increase his whole body.

2:20 <sup>1</sup> Now last of all he fighteth against the second kind of corruptions, that is to say, against mere superstitions, invented of men, which partly deceive the simplicity of some with their craftiness, and partly with very foolish superstitions, and to be laughed at: as when godliness, remission of sins, or any such like virtue is put in some certain kind of meat and such like things, which the inventors of such rites themselves understand not, because indeed it is not. And he useth an argument taken of comparison. If by the death of Christ who establisheth a new covenant with his blood, you be delivered from those external rites wherewith it pleased the Lord to prepare the world, as it were by certain rudiments to that full knowledge of true religion, why would ye be burdened with traditions, I wrote not what, as though ye were citizens of this world, that is to say, as though ye depended upon this life, and earthly things? Now this is the cause why before verse 8 he followed another order than he doth in the confutation: because he showeth thereby what degrees false religions came into the world, to wit, beginning first by curious speculations of the wise after which in process of time succeeded gross superstition, against which mischiefs the Lord set at length that service of the Law, which some abused in like sort: but in the confutation he began with the abolishing of the Law service, that he might show by comparison, that those false services ought much more to be taken away.

<sup>2</sup> As though your felicity stood in these earthly things, and the kingdom of God were not rather spiritual.

2:21 <sup>1</sup> An imitation in the person of these superstitious men, rightly expressing their nature and use of speech.

2:22 <sup>1</sup> Another argument: The spiritual and inward kingdom of God cannot consist in these outward things, and such as perish with the using.

<sup>2</sup> The third argument: Because God is not the author of these traditions, and therefore they do not bind the conscience.

2:23 <sup>1</sup> The taking away of an objection. These things have a goodly show, because men by this means, seem to worship God with a good mind and humble themselves, and neglect the body, which the most part of men curiously pamper up and cherish: but yet notwithstanding the things themselves are of no value, for so much as they pertain not to things that are spiritual and everlasting, but to the nourishment of the flesh.

<sup>2</sup> Which seem indeed to be some exquisite thing, and so wise devices as though they came from heaven.

<sup>3</sup> Hence sprang the works of supererogation, as the Papists term them, that is to say, needless works, as though men performed more than is commanded them, which was the beginning and the very ground whereon Monks' merits were brought in.

3:1 <sup>1</sup> Another part of this Epistle, wherein he taketh occasion by the reason of those vain exercises, to show the duty of a Christian life: which is an ordinary thing with him after he hath once set down the doctrine itself.

<sup>2</sup> Our renewing or new birth, which is wrought in us by being partakers of the resurrection of Christ, is the fountain of all holiness, out of which sundry arms or rivers do afterwards flow.

<sup>3</sup> For if we be partakers of Christ, we are carried as it were into another life, where we shall need neither meat nor drink, for we shall be like unto the Angels.

<sup>4</sup> The end and mark which all the duties of Christian life shoot at, is to enter into the kingdom of heaven, and to give ourselves to those things which lead us thither, that is to true godliness, and not to those outward and corporal things.

3:2 <sup>1</sup> So he calleth that show of religion, which he spake of in the former Chapter.

3 <sup>1</sup>For ye are dead, <sup>2</sup>and your life is hid with Christ in God.

4 When Christ which is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory.

5 <sup>a1</sup>Mortify therefore your <sup>2</sup>members which are on the earth, fornication, uncleanness, the inordinate affection, evil concupiscence, and covetousness which is idolatry.

6 For the which things' sake the wrath of God <sup>1</sup>cometh on the children of disobedience.

7 Wherein ye also walked once, when ye lived in them.

8 But now put ye away even all these things, wrath, anger, maliciousness, cursed speaking, filthy speaking, out of your mouth.

9 Lie not one to another: <sup>1</sup>seeing that ye have put off the old man with his works,

10 And have put on the new, <sup>1</sup>which is renewed in <sup>2</sup>knowledge after the image of him that created him,

11 <sup>1</sup>Where is neither Grecian nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond, free: But Christ is all, and in all things.

12 Now therefore as the elect of God, holy and beloved, <sup>1</sup>put on the <sup>2</sup>bowels of mercies, kindness, humbleness of mind, meekness, longsuffering:

CHAPTER 3

1 Pet. 2:8

13 Forbearing one another, and forgiving one another, if any man have a quarrel to another: even as Christ forgave, even so do ye.

14 And above all these things put on love, which is the <sup>1</sup>bond of perfectness.

15 And let the peace of God <sup>1</sup>rule in your hearts, to the which ye are called in <sup>2</sup>one body, and be ye thankful:

16 Let the word of Christ dwell in you plenteously in all wisdom, teaching and admonishing your own selves, in <sup>1</sup>Psalms, and hymns, and spiritual songs, singing with a grace in your hearts to the Lord,

17 <sup>b</sup>And whatsoever ye shall do, in word or deed, do all in the <sup>1</sup>Name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God even the Father by him.

18 ¶ <sup>c1</sup>Wives, submit yourselves unto your husbands, as it is <sup>2</sup>comely in the Lord.

19 <sup>d1</sup>Husbands, love your wives, and be not bitter unto them.

20 ¶ <sup>e1</sup>Children, obey your parents in <sup>2</sup>all things: for that is well pleasing unto the Lord.

21 <sup>1</sup>Fathers, provoke not your children to anger, lest they be discouraged.

22 ¶ <sup>f1</sup>Servants, be obedient unto them that are your masters according to the flesh, in all things, not with eye service as men pleasers, but in singleness

3:3 <sup>1</sup> A reason taken of the efficient causes and others: you are dead as touching the flesh, that is, touching the old nature which seeketh after all transitory things, and on the other side, you have begun to live according to the Spirit, therefore give yourselves to spiritual and heavenly, and not to carnal and earthly things.

<sup>2</sup> The taking away of an objection: while we are yet in this world, we are subject to many miseries of this life, so that the life that is in us, is as it were hidden: yet notwithstanding we have the beginnings of life and glory, the accomplishment whereof which lieth now in Christ's and in God's hand, shall be assuredly and manifestly performed in that glorious coming of the Lord.

3:5 <sup>1</sup> Let not your dead nature be any more effectual in you, but let your living nature be effectual. Now the force of nature is known by the motions. Therefore let the affections of the flesh die in you, and let the contrary motions which are spiritual, live. And he reckoneth up a great long scroll of vices, and their contrary virtues.

<sup>2</sup> The motions and lusts that are in us, are in this place very properly called members, because that the reason and will of man corrupted, doth use them as the body doth his members.

3:6 <sup>1</sup> Useth to come.

3:9 <sup>1</sup> A definition of our new birth taken of the parts thereof, which are the putting off of the old man, that is to say, of the wickedness which is in us by nature, and the restoring, and repairing of the new man, that is to say, of pureness which is given us by grace: but both of them are but begun in us in this present life, and by certain degrees finished: the one dying in us by little and little, and the other coming to the perfection of another life, by little and little.

3:10 <sup>1</sup> Newness of life consisteth in knowledge, which transformeth man to the image of God his maker, that is to say, to the sincerity and pureness of the whole soul.

3:11 <sup>1</sup> He telleth them again, that the Gospel doth not respect those external things, but true justification and sanctification in Christ only, which have many fruits, as he reckoneth them up here: But commendeth two things especially, to wit, godly concord, and continual study of God's word.

3:12 <sup>1</sup> So put on, that you never put off.

3:14 <sup>1</sup> Which bindeth and knitteth together all the duties that pass from man to man.

3:15 <sup>1</sup> Rule and govern all things.

<sup>2</sup> You are joined together into one body through God's goodness, that you might help one another as fellow members.

3:16 <sup>1</sup> By Psalms he meaneth all godly songs, which were written upon divers occasions, and by hymns, all such as contain the praise of God, and by spiritual songs, other more peculiar and artificial songs which were also in praise of God, but they were made fuller of music.

3:17 <sup>1</sup> Call upon the name of Christ, when you do it, or, do it to Christ's praise and glory.

3:18 <sup>1</sup> He goeth from precepts which concern the whole civil life of man, to precepts pertaining to every man's family, and requireth of wives, subjection in the Lord.

<sup>2</sup> For those wives do not well, that do not set God in Christ before them in their love, but this Philosophy knoweth not.

3:19 <sup>1</sup> He requireth of husbands, that they love their wives, and use them gently.

3:20 <sup>1</sup> He requireth of children, that according to God's Commandment they be obedient to their parents.

<sup>2</sup> In the Lord, and so is it expounded, Eph. 5:19.

3:21 <sup>1</sup> Of parents, that they be gentle towards their children.

3:22 <sup>1</sup> Of servants that fearing God himself to whom their obedience is acceptable, they reverently, faithfully, and from the heart, obey their masters.

of heart, fearing God.

23 And whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not to men, 24 Knowing that of the Lord ye shall receive the <sup>1</sup>reward of the inheritance: for ye serve the Lord Christ.

25 <sup>1</sup>But he that doeth wrong, shall receive for the wrong that he hath done: and there is no respect of persons.

4 <sup>2</sup> He returneth to general exhortations, <sup>3</sup> touching prayer and gracious speech, <sup>7</sup> and so endeth with greetings and commendations.

1 Ye masters, do unto your servants, that which is just and equal, knowing that ye also have a master in heaven.

2 <sup>a,1,2</sup>Continue in prayer, and watch in the same with thanksgiving,

3 <sup>b,1</sup>Praying also for us, that God may open unto us the <sup>2</sup>door of utterance, to speak the mystery of Christ: wherefore I am also in bonds,

4 That I may utter it, as it becometh me to speak.

17 And say to Archippus, Take heed to the ministry, that thou hast received in the Lord, that thou fulfill it.

18 The salutation by the hand of me Paul. Remember my bands. Grace be with you, Amen.

¶ Written from Rome to the Colossians, and sent by Tychicus, and Onesimus.

3:24 <sup>1</sup> For that that you shall have duly obeyed your masters, the time shall come, that you shall be made sons of servants, and then shall you know this of a surety, which shall be when you are made partakers of the heavenly inheritance.

3:25 <sup>1</sup> He requireth of masters that being mindful how that they themselves also shall render an account before that heavenly Lord and Master, which will revenge wrongful doings without any respect of masters or servants, they show themselves just and upright with equity, unto their servants.

4:2 <sup>1</sup> He addeth certain general exhortations and at length endeth his Epistle with divers familiar and godly salutations.

4:3 <sup>1</sup> Such as minister the word, must especially be commended to the prayers of the Church.

4:5 <sup>1</sup> In all parts of our life, we ought to have good consideration even of them which are without the Church.

<sup>2</sup> Advisedly and circumspectly.

4:6 <sup>1</sup> Our speech and talk must be applied to the profit of the hearers.

<sup>2</sup> Framed to the profit of your neighbor.

4:11 <sup>1</sup> Why then, Peter was not at that time at Rome.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PAUL TO THE THESSALONIANS

1 1 He therefore beginneth with thanksgiving, 4 to put them in mind that whatsoever was praiseworthy in them, it came of God's goodness: 7 and that they are ensamples unto others.

1 Paul, and Silvanus, and Timothy, unto the Church of the Thessalonians, which is in God the Father, and in the Lord Jesus Christ: Grace be with you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

2 1 We give God thanks always for you all, making mention of you in our prayers.

3 1 Without ceasing, remembering your effectual faith, and diligent love, and the patience of your hope in our Lord Jesus Christ, in the sight of God, even our Father,

4 Knowing, beloved brethren, that ye are <sup>1</sup>elect of God.

5 <sup>1</sup>For our Gospel was not unto you in word only, but also in power, and in the holy Ghost, and in <sup>2</sup>much assurance, as ye know after what manner we were among you for your sakes.

6 <sup>1</sup>And ye became followers of us, and of the Lord, and received the word in much affliction, with <sup>2</sup>joy of the holy Ghost,

7 So that ye were as ensamples to all that believe in Macedonia and in Achaia.

8 For from you sounded out the word of the Lord, not in Macedonia and in Achaia only: but your faith also which is toward God, spread abroad in all quarters, that we need not to speak anything.

9 For <sup>1</sup>they themselves show of us what manner of entering in we had unto you, <sup>2</sup>and how ye turned to God from idols, to serve the living and true God.

10 And to look for his son from heaven, whom he raised from the dead, even Jesus which delivereth us from <sup>1</sup>that wrath to come.

2 1 He declareth how faithfully he preacheth the Gospel unto them, 5 seeking neither gain, 6 nor praise of men: 10 and he proveth the same by their own testimony: 14 that they did courageously bear persecution of their countrymen: 17 that he desireth very much to see them.

1 For <sup>1</sup>ye yourselves know, brethren, that our entrance in unto you was not in vain,

2 <sup>1</sup>But even after that we had suffered before, and were shamefully entreated at <sup>a</sup>Philippi, (as ye know) we were bold in <sup>2</sup>our God, to speak unto you the Gospel of God, with much striving.

3 <sup>1</sup>For our exhortation was not by deceit, nor <sup>2</sup>by uncleanness, nor by guile.

1:2 <sup>1</sup>An example of a right Christian rejoicing: whereby also we learn, that such as have great gifts in them are in two sorts bridled, to wit, if they consider that they have received all from God, and that continuance must be desired at his hands, whereunto also the whole Epistle exhorteth the Thessalonians.

1:3 <sup>1</sup>He commendeth them for three special gifts, effectual faith, continual love, and patient hope: to the end they might be ashamed being endued with such excellent gifts, not to continue in God's election.

1:4 <sup>1</sup>Word for word, that your election is of God.

1:5 <sup>1</sup>Another reason why they ought in no wise start back but continue to the end, because they cannot doubt of his doctrine which hath been so many ways confirmed unto them, even from heaven as they themselves did well know.

1:6 <sup>1</sup>Another reason: Because even to that day, they embraced the Gospel with great cheerfulness, insomuch that they were an example to all their neighbors: so that it should be more shame for them to faint in the mid-race.

<sup>2</sup>With joy which cometh from the holy Ghost.

1:9 <sup>1</sup>All the believers.

<sup>2</sup>It is no true conversion to forsake idols, unless a man therewithall worship the true and living God in Christ the only redeemer.

1:10 <sup>1</sup>This word (That) is not put here without cause: and by (wrath) is meant that revenge and punishment, wherewith the Lord will judge the world at length in his terrible wrath.

2:1 <sup>1</sup>That which he touched before shortly concerning his Apostleship, he handleth now more at large, and to that end and purpose which we spake of.

2:2 <sup>1</sup>The virtues of a true Pastor are freely, and without fear to preach the Gospel, even in the midst of dangers.

2:3 <sup>1</sup>To teach pure doctrine faithfully and with a pure heart.

4 <sup>1</sup>But as we were <sup>2</sup>allowed of God, that the Gospel should be committed unto us, so we speak, not as they that please men, but God, which <sup>3</sup>approveth our hearts:

5 Neither yet did we ever use flattering words, as ye know, nor colored covetousness, God is record.

6 <sup>1</sup>Neither sought we praise of men, neither of you, nor of others, when we might have been <sup>2</sup>chargeable, as the Apostles of Christ.

7 But we were <sup>1</sup>gentle among you, even as a nurse cherisheth her children.

8 <sup>1</sup>Thus being affectioned toward you, our good will was to have dealt unto you, not the Gospel of God only, but also our own souls, because ye were dear unto us.

9 <sup>1</sup>For ye remember, brethren, <sup>b</sup>our labor and travail: for we labored day and night, because we would not be chargeable unto any of you, and preached unto you the Gospel of God.

10 <sup>1</sup>Ye are witnesses, and God also, how holily, and justly, and unblameably we behaved ourselves among you that believe.

11 <sup>1</sup>As ye know how that we exhorted you, and comforted, and besought every one of you, (as a father his children.)

12 <sup>1</sup>That ye <sup>c</sup>would walk worthy of God, who hath called you unto his kingdom and glory.

13 <sup>1</sup>For this cause also thank we God without ceasing, that when ye received the word of God, which ye heard of us, ye received it not as the word of men, but as it is indeed the word of God, which also worketh in you that believe.

14 <sup>1</sup>For brethren, ye are become followers of the Churches of God, which in Judea are in <sup>2</sup>Christ Jesus, because ye have also suffered the same things of your own <sup>3</sup>country men, even as they have of the Jews,

15 <sup>1</sup>Who both killed the Lord Jesus and their own Prophets, and have persecuted us away, <sup>2</sup>and God they please not, and are contrary to <sup>3</sup>all men, 16 And forbid us to preach unto the Gentiles, that they might be saved, to <sup>1</sup>fulfill their sins always: for the <sup>2</sup>wrath of God is come on them to the utmost.

17 <sup>1</sup>Forasmuch, brethren, as we <sup>2</sup>were kept from you for a season, concerning sight, but not in the heart, we enforced the more to see your face with great desire.

18 Therefore we would have come unto you (I Paul, at least once or twice) but Satan hindered us.

19 For what is our hope or joy, or crown of rejoicing? are not even you it in the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ at his coming?

20 Yea, ye are our glory and joy.

3 <sup>1</sup>To show his affection towards them, he sendeth Timothy unto them: <sup>6</sup>He is so moved by the report of their prosperous state, <sup>9</sup>that he cannot give sufficient thanks, <sup>11</sup>and therefore he breaketh out into prayer.

1 Wherefore since we could no longer forbear, we thought it good to remain at Athens alone,

2:4 <sup>1</sup> To approve his conscience to God, being free from all flattery and covetousness.

<sup>2</sup> Seeing there is this difference between the judgments of God and the judgments of men, that when men choose, they respect the qualities of those things which stand before them, but God findeth the reason of his counsel only in himself, it followeth, that seeing we are not able to think a good thought, that whomsoever he first chooseth to those holy callings, he maketh them able, and doth not find them able. And therefore in that we are allowed of God, it hangeth upon his mercy.

2:6 <sup>1</sup> To submit himself even to the basest, to win them, and to eschew all pride.

2:7 <sup>1</sup> We were not rough, but easy, and gentle, as a nurse that is neither ambitious nor covetous, but taketh all pains as patiently, as if she were a mother.

2:8 <sup>1</sup> To have the flock that is committed unto him in more estimation than his own life.

2:9 <sup>1</sup> To depart with his own rights rather than to be chargeable to his sheep.

2:10 <sup>1</sup> To excel others in example of godly life.

2:11 <sup>1</sup> To exhort and comfort with a fatherly mind and affection.

2:12 <sup>1</sup> To exhort all men diligently and earnestly to lead a godly life.

2:13 <sup>1</sup> Having approved his ministry, he commendeth again (to that end and purpose that I spake of) the cheerfulness of the Thessalonians, which was answerable to his diligence in preaching, and their manly patience.

2:14 <sup>1</sup> He confirmeth them in their afflictions which they suffered of their own people, because they were afflicted of their own countrymen: which came as well (saith he) to the Churches of the Jews, as to them: and therefore they ought to take it in good part.

<sup>3</sup> Even of them which are of the same country, and the same town that you are of.

2:15 <sup>1</sup> He preventeth an offense which might be taken, for that the Jews especially above all others persecuted the Gospel. That is no new thing, sayeth he, seeing they slew Christ himself and his Prophets, and have banished me also.

<sup>2</sup> He foretellethe the utter destruction of the Jews, lest any man should be moved by their rebellion.

<sup>3</sup> For the Jews would neither enter into the kingdom of God themselves, nor suffer others to enter in.

2:16 <sup>1</sup> Until the wickedness of theirs which they have by inheritance as it were of their fathers, be grown so great that the measure of their iniquity being filled, God may come forth to wrath.

<sup>2</sup> The judgments of God being angry, which indeed appeared shortly after in the destruction of the city of Jerusalem, whither many resorted even out of divers provinces, when it was besieged.

2:17 <sup>1</sup> He meeteth with an objection, why he came not to them straightway being in so great misery, I desired oftentimes (saith he) and it lay not in me, but Satan hindered my endeavors, and therefore I sent Timothy my faithful companion unto you, because you are most dear to me.

<sup>2</sup> Were kept asunder from you, and as it were orphans.

2 <sup>a</sup>And have sent Timothy our brother and minister of God, and our labor fellow in the Gospel of Christ, to establish you, and to comfort you touching your faith,

3 That no man should be moved with these afflictions: <sup>b</sup>for ye yourselves know, that we are appointed thereunto.

4 For verily when we were with you, we told you before that we should suffer tribulations, even as it came to pass, and ye know it.

5 Even for this cause, when I could no longer forbear, I sent him that I might know of your faith, lest the tempter had tempted you in any sort, and that our labor had been in vain.

6 <sup>1</sup>But now lately when Timothy came from you unto us, and brought us good tidings of your faith and love, and that ye have good remembrance of us always, desiring to see us, as we also do you,

7 Therefore brethren, we had consolation in you, in all our affliction and necessity through your faith.

8 For now are we <sup>1</sup>alive, if ye stand fast in the Lord.

9 For what thanks can we recompense to God again for you, for all the joy wherewith we rejoice for your sakes before our God,

10 Night and day, <sup>b</sup>praying exceedingly, that we might see your face, and might <sup>1</sup>accomplish that which is lacking in your faith?

11 Now God himself, even our Father, and our Lord Jesus Christ, guide our journey unto you.

12 <sup>1</sup>And the Lord increase you, and make you abound in love one toward another, and toward all men, even as we do toward you:

13 <sup>c</sup>To make your hearts stable and unblameable in holiness before God even our Father, at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ with all his Saints.

1 John 4:22

4 <sup>1</sup>He exhortheth them <sup>3</sup>to holiness, <sup>9</sup>and brotherly love. <sup>13</sup>He forbiddeth them to sorrow after to manner of infidels. <sup>15</sup>He setteth out the history of our resurrection.

1 And <sup>1</sup>furthermore we beseech you, brethren, and exhort you in the Lord Jesus, that ye <sup>2</sup>increase more and more, as ye have received of us, how ye ought to walk, and to please God.

2 For ye know what commandments we gave you by the Lord Jesus.

3 <sup>a,1</sup>For this is the will of God even your <sup>2</sup>sanctification, and that ye should abstain from fornication,

4 <sup>1</sup>That everyone of you should know, how to possess his vessel in holiness and honor,

5 <sup>1</sup>And not in the lust of concupiscence, even as the Gentiles which know not God:

6 <sup>b,1</sup>That no man oppress or defraud his brother in any matter: for the Lord is avenger of all such things, as we also have told you beforetime, and testified.

7 <sup>c</sup>For God hath not called us unto uncleanness, but unto holiness.

8 He therefore that <sup>1</sup>despiset these things, despiset not man, but God who hath even given you his holy Spirit.

9 <sup>1</sup>But as touching brotherly love, ye need not that I write unto you: <sup>d</sup>for ye are taught of God to love one another.

10 Yea, and that thing verily ye do unto all the brethren, which are throughout all Macedonia: but we beseech you brethren, that ye increase more and more,

11 <sup>1</sup>And that ye study to be quiet, and to meddle with your own business, <sup>2</sup>and to work with your own hands, as we commanded you.

12 That ye may behave yourselves honestly toward them that are without, and that nothing be lacking unto you.

3:3 <sup>1</sup> The will of God, who calleth his on this condition, to bring them to glory by affliction is a most sure remedy against all affliction.

3:6 <sup>1</sup> Because they have hitherto gone so well forward, he exhortheth them again to make an end of the rest of the journey, seeing that therein also they shall do him their Apostle a great pleasure.

3:8 <sup>1</sup> For now you cannot otherwise think me safe and in good case, unless you go forward in religion and faith.

3:10 <sup>1</sup> Paul was constrained through the importunate dealing of the enemies to leave the building which he had scarce begun: And for that cause he had left Silas and Timothy in Macedonia, and when Timothy came to Athens to him, he sent him back again straightway. So that he desireth to see the Thessalonians, that he may thereby thoroughly accomplish their faith and religion, that was as yet imperfect.

3:12 <sup>1</sup> Another part of the Epistle, wherein he speaketh of the duties of a Christian life. And he showeth that the perfection of a Christian life consisteth in two things, to wit, in charity toward all men, and inward purity of the heart, the accomplishment whereof notwithstanding is deferred to the next coming of Christ, who will then perfect his work by the same grace, wherewith he began it in us.

4:1 <sup>1</sup> Divers exhortations, the ground whereof is this, to be mindful of those things, which they have heard of the Apostle.

<sup>2</sup> That ye labor to excel more and more, and daily pass yourselves.

4:3 <sup>1</sup> This is the sum of those things, which he delivered them, to dedicate themselves wholly to God. And he condemneth plainly all filthiness through lust, because it is altogether contrary to the will of God.

4:4 <sup>1</sup> Another reason, because it defileth the body.

4:5 <sup>1</sup> The third, because the Saints are discerned from them which know not God, by honesty and purity.

4:6 <sup>1</sup> Secondly, he reprehendeth all violent oppression and immoderate desire, and showeth most severely as the Prophet of God, that God will revenge such wickedness.

4:8 <sup>1</sup> These commandments which I gave you.

4:9 <sup>1</sup> Thirdly, he requireth a ready mind to all manner of lovingkindness, and exhortheth them to profit more and more in that virtue.

4:11 <sup>1</sup> He condemneth unquiet brains, and such as are curious in matters which appertain not unto them.

<sup>2</sup> He rebuketh idleness and slothfulness, which vices whosoever are given unto, fall into other wickedness, to the great offense of the Church.

13 ¶ I would not brethren, have you ignorant <sup>2</sup>concerning them <sup>3</sup>which are asleep, that ye sorrow not even as others which have no hope.

14 <sup>1</sup>For if we believe that Jesus is dead, and is risen, even so them which sleep in <sup>2</sup>Jesus, will God <sup>3</sup>bring with him.

15 <sup>1</sup>For this say we unto you by the <sup>2</sup>word of the Lord, that <sup>3</sup>we which live, and are remaining in the coming of the Lord, shall not prevent them which sleep.

16 For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a <sup>1</sup>shout, and with the voice of the Archangel, and <sup>4</sup>with the trumpet of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first:

17 Then shall we which live and remain, be <sup>1</sup>caught up with them also in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord.

18 Wherefore, comfort yourselves one another with these words.

5 <sup>1</sup> Condemning the curious searching for the seasons of Christ's coming. <sup>6</sup> he warneth them to be ready daily to receive him: <sup>11</sup> And so giveth them sundry good lessons.

1 But <sup>1</sup>of the times and <sup>2</sup>seasons, brethren, ye have no need that I write unto you.

2 For ye yourselves know perfectly, that the day of the Lord shall come, even as a thief in the night.

4:13 <sup>1</sup> The third part of the Epistle, which is interlaced among the former exhortations (which he returneth unto afterward) wherein he speaketh of mourning for the dead, and the manner of the resurrection, and of the latter day.

<sup>2</sup> We must take heed that we do not immoderately bewail the dead, that is, as they used to do which think that they are utterly perished.

<sup>3</sup> A confirmation: for death is but a sleep of the body (for he speaketh of the faithful) until the Lord cometh.

4:14 <sup>1</sup> A reason of the confirmation, for seeing that the head is risen, the members also shall rise, and that by the virtue of God.

<sup>2</sup> They die in Christ, which continue in faith, whereby they are grafted into Christ, even to the last gasp.

<sup>3</sup> Will call their bodies out of their graves, and join their souls to them again.

4:15 <sup>1</sup> The manner of the resurrection shall be thus: The bodies of the dead shall be as it were raised out of sleep, at the sound of the trumpet of God, Christ himself shall descend from heaven. The Saints (for he speaketh properly of them) which shall then be found alive together with the dead which shall rise, shall be taken up into the clouds to meet the Lord, and shall be in perpetual glory with him.

<sup>2</sup> In the Name of the Lord, as though he himself speaks unto you.

<sup>3</sup> He speaketh of these things, as though he should be one of them whom the Lord shall find alive at his coming, because that time is uncertain, and therefore every one of us ought to be in such a readiness, as if the Lord were coming at every moment.

4:16 <sup>1</sup> The word which the Apostle useth here, signifieth properly that encouragement which mariners use one to another, when they altogether with one shout put forth their oars and row together.

4:17 <sup>1</sup> Suddenly and in the twinkling of an eye.

* 1 Cor. 15:52

3 For when they shall say, Peace and safety, then shall come upon them sudden destruction, as the travail upon a woman with child, and they shall not escape.

4 <sup>1</sup>But ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that that day shall come on you, as it were a thief.

5 Ye are all the children of light, and the children of the day: we are not of the night, neither of darkness.

6 Therefore let us not sleep as do others, but let us watch and be sober.

7 For they that sleep, sleep in the night, and they that be drunken, are drunken in the night.

8 <sup>1</sup>But let us which are of the day, be sober, <sup>4</sup>putting on the breastplate of faith and love, and the hope of salvation for an helmet.

9 <sup>1</sup>For God hath not appointed us unto wrath, but to obtain salvation by the means of our Lord Jesus Christ.

10 <sup>1</sup>Which died for us, that whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him.

11 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore exhort one another, and edify one another, even as ye do.

12 <sup>1</sup>Now we beseech you brethren, that ye <sup>2</sup>acknowledge them which labor among you, and are over you in the <sup>3</sup>Lord, and admonish you.

13 That ye have them in singular love for <sup>1</sup>their work's sake. <sup>2</sup>Be at peace among yourselves.

5:1 <sup>1</sup> The day that God hath appointed for his judgment, we know not. But this is sure that it shall come upon men when they look for nothing less.

5:4 <sup>1</sup> Returning to exhortations he warneth us which are lightened with the knowledge of God, that it is our duty not to live securely in deliciousness, lest we be suddenly taken in a dead sleep in pleasures, but contrarywise to have an eye to the Lord, and not suffer ourselves to be oppressed with the cares of this world, for that is meet for the darkness of the night, and this for the light.

5:8 <sup>1</sup> We must fight with faith and hope, much less ought we lie carelessly snorting.

5:9 <sup>1</sup> He pricketh us forward by seeing most certain hope of victory before us.

5:10 <sup>1</sup> The death of Christ is a pledge of our victory, for therefore he died, that we might be partakers of his life or virtue, yea even while we live here.

5:11 <sup>1</sup> We must not only watch ourselves, but we are also bound to stir up and to confirm one another.

5:12 <sup>1</sup> We must have great consideration of them which are appointed to the ministry of the word, and government of the Church by God, and do their duty.

<sup>2</sup> That you acknowledge and take them for such as they are, that is to say, men worthy to be greatly accounted of among you.

<sup>3</sup> In those things which pertain to God's service: so is the Ecclesiastical function distinguished from civil authority, and true shepherds from wolves.

5:13 <sup>1</sup> So then, where this cause ceaseth, there must the honor cease.

14 <sup>1</sup>We desire you, brethren, admonish them that are <sup>2</sup>out of order: comfort the feebleminded: bear with the weak: be patient toward all men.

15 <sup>b,1</sup>See that none recompense evil for evil unto any man: but ever follow that which is good, both toward yourselves, and toward all men.

17 <sup>c</sup>Pray continually.

18 In all things, give thanks, for this is the <sup>1</sup>will of God in Christ Jesus toward you.

20 Despise not <sup>1</sup>prophesying.

21 Try all things, and keep that which is good.

22 <sup>1</sup>Abstain from all <sup>2</sup>appearance of evil.

23 Now the very God of peace <sup>1</sup>sanctify you throughout: and I pray God that your whole spirit and soul and body, may be kept blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.

24 <sup>d,1,2</sup>Faithful is he which calleth you, which will also <sup>3</sup>do it.

25 <sup>1</sup>Brethren, pray for us.

26 Greet all the brethren with an holy kiss.

27 I charge you in the Lord, that this Epistle be read unto all the brethren the Saints.

28 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you, Amen.

¶ The first Epistle unto the Thessalonians written from Athens.

5:14 <sup>1</sup> We must have consideration of every man, and as the disease is, so must the remedy be used.

<sup>2</sup> That keep not their rank or standing.

5:15 <sup>1</sup> Charity ought not to be overcome with any injuries.

5:16 <sup>1</sup> A quiet and appeased mind, is nourished with continual prayers, respecting the will of God.

5:18 <sup>1</sup> An acceptable thing to God and such as he liketh well of.

5:19 <sup>1</sup> The sparks of the Spirit of God that are kindled in us, are nourished by daily hearing the word of God: but true doctrine must be diligently distinguished from false.

5:20 <sup>1</sup> The expounding of the word of God.

5:22 <sup>1</sup> A general conclusion, that we waiting for the coming of Christ, do give ourselves to pureness both in mind, will, and body, through the grace and strength of the Spirit of God.

5:23 <sup>1</sup> Separate you from the world, and make you holy to himself through his spirit, in Christ in whom only you shall attain unto that true peace.

5:24 <sup>1</sup> The good will and power of God is a sure confirmation against all difficulties, whereof we have a sure witness in our vocation.

<sup>2</sup> Always one and ever like himself, who performeth in deed whatsoever he promiseth: and an effectual calling is nothing else but a right declaring and true setting forth of God's will: and therefore the salvation of the elect is safe and sure.

<sup>3</sup> Who will also make you perfect.

5:25 <sup>1</sup> The last part of the Epistle, wherein with most weighty charge, he commendeth both himself and this Epistle unto them.

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF PAUL TO THE THESSALONIANS

1 3 He commendeth the increase of faith and charity, 4 and the patience of the Thessalonians: 6 And describing God's vengeance against such as oppress the godly, 10 he teacheth the godly to wait for the last judgment.

1 Paul and Silvanus, and Timothy, unto the Church of the Thessalonians, which is in God our Father, and in the Lord Jesus Christ:

2 Grace be with you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 <sup>a</sup>1 We ought to thank God always for you, brethren, as it is meet, because that your faith <sup>2</sup>groweth exceedingly, and the love of every one of you toward another, aboundeth,

4 So that we ourselves rejoyce of you in the Churches of God, because of your patience and faith in all your persecutions and tribulations that ye suffer.

5 <sup>b</sup>1 Which is a manifest token of the righteous judgment of God, that ye may be counted worthy of the kingdom of God, for the which ye also suffer.

6 <sup>1</sup>For it is a righteous thing with God, to recompense tribulation to them that trouble you,

7 And to you which are troubled, rest <sup>1</sup>with us, <sup>c</sup>2 when the Lord Jesus shall show himself from heaven with his mighty Angels,

CHAPTER 1

<sup>a</sup> 1 Thess. 1:2

8 In flaming fire, rendering vengeance unto them, <sup>1</sup>that do not know God, and which obey not unto the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ,

9 Which shall be punished with everlasting perdition from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power,

10 When he shall come to be glorified in his Saints, and to be made marvelous in all them that believe (<sup>1</sup>because our testimony toward you was believed) in that day.

11 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore, we also pray always for you, that our God may make you worthy of <sup>2</sup>this calling, and fulfill <sup>3</sup>all the good pleasure of his goodness, and the <sup>4</sup>work of faith with power.

12 That the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ may be glorified in you, and ye in him, according to the grace of our God, and of the Lord Jesus Christ.

2 2 He showeth that the day of the Lord shall not come, till there be a departure from the faith, 3 and that Antichrist be revealed, 8 whose destruction he setteth out, 15 and thereupon exhorteth to constancy.

1 Now <sup>1</sup>we beseech you, brethren, by the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, and by our <sup>2</sup>assembling unto him,

1:3 <sup>1</sup> The first part of the Epistle, wherein he rejoiceth that through the grace of God, they have manfully sustained all the assaults of their enemies, wherein he confirmeth them moreover showing with what gifts they must chiefly fight, to wit, with faith and charity, which must daily increase.

<sup>2</sup> That whereas it grew us before, it doth also receive some increase every day more and more.

1:5 <sup>1</sup> He openeth the fountain of all true comfort, to wit, that in afflictions, which we suffer of the wicked for righteousness sake, we may behold as it were in a glass the testimony of that judgment to come, and the end therefore most acceptable to us, and most sharp to his enemies.

1:6 <sup>1</sup> A proof: God is just, therefore he will worthily punish the unjust, and will do away the miseries of his people.

1:7 <sup>1</sup> He confirmeth them also by the way, by this means, that the condition both of this present state and the state to come, is common to him with them.

<sup>2</sup> A most glorious description of the second coming of Christ, to be set against all the miseries of the godly, and the triumphs of the wicked.

1:8 <sup>1</sup> There is no knowledge of God unto salvation, without the Gospel of Christ.

1:10 <sup>1</sup> The children of God shall be counted by the faith which they have in the Gospel, which is preached unto them by the Apostles.

1:11 <sup>1</sup> Seeing that we have the mark set before us, it remaineth that we go unto it. And we go to it, by certain degrees of causes: first by the free love and good pleasure of God, by virtue whereof all other inferior causes work: from thence proceedeth the free calling to Christ, and from calling, faith, whereupon followeth both the glorifying of Christ in us, and us in Christ.

<sup>2</sup> By (calling) he meaneth not the very act of calling, but that selfsame thing whereunto we are called, which is the glory of that heavenly kingdom.

<sup>3</sup> Which he determined long since, only upon his gracious and merciful goodness toward you.

<sup>4</sup> So then, faith is an excellent work of God in us: and we see here plainly that the Apostle leaveth nothing to free will, to make it check-mate with God's working therein, as the Papists dream.

2:1 <sup>1</sup> The second part of the Epistle, containing an excellent prophecy of the state of the Church, which shall be from the Apostles' times unto the latter day of judgment.

<sup>2</sup> If we think earnestly upon that immeasurable glory, which we shall be partakers of with Christ, it will be an excellent remedy for us against wavering, and impatience, so that neither the glistening of the world shall allure us, nor the dreadful sight of the cross dismay us.

CHAPTER 2

a Isa. 11:4

2 <sup>1</sup>That ye be not suddenly moved from your mind, nor troubled neither by <sup>2</sup>spirit, nor by <sup>3</sup>word, nor by <sup>4</sup>letter, as it were from us, as though the day of Christ were at hand.

3 Let no man deceive you by any means: <sup>1</sup>for that day shall not come, except there come a departing first, and that <sup>2</sup>that man of sin be disclosed, even the son of perdition.

4 Which is an adversary, and <sup>1</sup>exalteth himself against all that is called God, or that is worshipped: <sup>2</sup>so that he doth sit as God in the Temple of God, showing himself that he is God.

5 Remember ye not, that when I was yet with you, I told you these things?

6 And now ye know <sup>1</sup>what withholdeth, that he might be revealed in his time.

7 <sup>1</sup>For the mystery of iniquity doth already work: <sup>2</sup>only he which now <sup>3</sup>withholdeth, shall let till he be taken out of the way.

9 <sup>1</sup>Even him whose coming is by the effectual working of Satan, with all power, and signs, and <sup>2</sup>lying wonders,

10 And in all deceivableness of unrighteousness, among them that perish, because they received not the love of the truth, that they might be saved.

11 And therefore God shall send them <sup>1</sup>strong delusion, that they should believe lies, 12 That all they might be damned which believed not the truth, but <sup>1</sup>had pleasure in unrighteousness.

13 <sup>1</sup>But we ought to give thanks always to God for you, brethren beloved of the Lord, because that God hath from the beginning chosen you to salvation, through <sup>2</sup>sanctification of the Spirit, and the <sup>3</sup>faith of truth, 14 Whereunto he called you by our <sup>1</sup>Gospel, to obtain the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ.

15 <sup>1</sup>Therefore, brethren, stand fast and keep the instructions, which ye have been taught, either by word, or by our Epistle.

16 Now the same Jesus Christ our Lord, and our God, even the Father, which hath loved us, and hath given us everlasting consolation and good hope through grace, 17 Comfort your hearts, and stablish you in every word and good work.

3 <sup>1</sup>He desireth them to further the preaching of the Gospel with their prayers, <sup>6</sup> and to withdraw themselves

2:2 <sup>1</sup>We must take heed of false prophets, especially in this matter, which go about to deceive, and that for the most part, after three sorts: for either they brag of fained prophetic revelations, or they bring conjectures and reasons of their own, or use counterfeit writings.

<sup>2</sup> By dreams and fables, which men pretend to be spiritual revelations.

2:3 <sup>1</sup>The Apostle foretelleth that before the coming of the Lord, there shall be a throne set up clean contrary to Christ's glory, wherein that wicked man shall sit, and transfer all things that appertain to God, to himself, and many shall fall away from God to him.

<sup>2</sup> By speaking of one, he pointed out the body of the tyrannous and persecuting Church.

2:4 <sup>1</sup>All men know who he is that saith he can shut up heaven and open it at his pleasure, and took upon him to be Lord and master above all Kings and Princes, before whom Kings and Princes fall down and worship, honoring that Antichrist as a god.

<sup>2</sup> He foretelleth that Antichrist, (that is, whosoever he be that shall occupy that seat that falleth away from God) shall not reign without the Church, but in the very bosom of the Church.

2:5 <sup>1</sup>This prophecy was continually declared to the Ancient Church, but it was neglected of them that followed.

2:6 <sup>1</sup>What hindereth and stayeth.

2:7 <sup>1</sup>Even in the Apostles' time the first foundations of the Apostolical seat were laid, but yet so, that they deceived men.

<sup>3</sup> He which is now in authority and ruleth all, to wit, the Roman Empire.

2:8 <sup>1</sup>That wickedness shall at length be detected by the word of the Lord, and utterly be abolished by Christ's coming.

2:9 <sup>1</sup>He foretelleth that Satan will bestow all his might and power, and use all false miracles that he can to establish that seat, and that with great success, because the wickedness of the world doeth so deserve it: yet so, that only the unfaithful shall perish through his deceit.

<sup>2</sup> Which are partly false, and partly wrought to establish a falsehood.

2:11 <sup>1</sup>A most mighty working to deceive them.

2:12 <sup>1</sup>They liked lies so well, that they had pleasure in them which is the greatest madness that may be.

2:13 <sup>1</sup>The elect shall stand steadfast and safe from all these mischiefs. Now election is known by these testimonies: Faith is gathered by sanctification: faith, by that that we accord unto the truth: truth by calling through the preaching of the Gospel: from whence we come at length to a certain hope of glorification.

2:14 <sup>1</sup>By our preaching.

2:15 <sup>1</sup>The conclusion remaineth then, that we continue in the doctrine which was delivered unto us by the mouth and writings of the Apostles, through the free good will of God, which comforteth us with an invincible hope, and also in all godliness our whole life long.

from those, who through idleness, <sup>11</sup> and curiosity pervert good order: <sup>14</sup> Whom he excludeth from the company of the faithful.

1 Furthermore, <sup>1</sup>brethren, "pray for us, that the word of the Lord may have free passage and be glorified, even as it is with you.

2 And that we may be delivered from <sup>1</sup>unreasonable and evil men: <sup>2</sup>for all men have not faith.

3 But the Lord is faithful, which will stablish you, and keep you from <sup>1</sup>evil.

4 <sup>1</sup>And we are persuaded of you through the Lord, that ye both do, and will do the things which we warn you of.

5 <sup>1</sup>And the Lord guide your hearts to the love of God, and the waiting for of Christ.

6 <sup>1</sup>We warn you, brethren, in the Name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye withdraw yourselves from every brother that walked inordinately, and not after the instruction, which he received of us.

7 <sup>1</sup>For ye yourselves know, <sup>1</sup>how ye ought to follow us: 'for we behaved not ourselves inordinately among you,

8 Neither took we bread of any man for nought: but we wrought with labor and travail night and day, because we would not be chargeable to any of you.

9 Not because we have not authority, but that we might make ourselves an ensample unto you to follow us.

10 For even when we were with you, this we warned you of, that if there were any, which would not work, that he should not <sup>1</sup>eat.

11 For we hear, that there are some which walk among <sup>1</sup>you inordinately, and work not at all, <sup>2</sup>but are busybodies.

12 <sup>1</sup>Therefore them that are such, we warn and exhort by our Lord Jesus Christ, that they work with quietness, and eat their own bread.

13 <sup>1</sup>And ye, brethren, be not weary in well doing.

14 <sup>1</sup>If any man obey not this our saying in this letter, note him, and have no <sup>2</sup>company with him, <sup>3</sup>that he may be ashamed.

15 <sup>1</sup>Yet count him not as an enemy, but admonish him as a brother.

16 <sup>1</sup>Now the Lord himself of peace give you peace always by all means. The Lord be with you all.

17 <sup>1</sup>The salutation of me Paul, with mine own hand, which is the token in every Epistle: so I write,

18 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all, Amen.

¶ The second Epistle to the Thessalonians,
written from Athens.

3:1 <sup>1</sup> He addeth now consequently according to his manner, divers admonitions: The first of them is, that they make prayers for the increase and free passage of the Gospel, and for the safety of the faithful ministers of the same.

3:2 <sup>1</sup> Which have no care of their duty.

<sup>2</sup> It is no marvel that the Gospel is hated of so many, seeing that faith is a rare gift of God. Notwithstanding, the Church shall never be destroyed by the multitude of the wicked, because it is grounded and stayed upon the faithful promise of God.

3:3 <sup>1</sup> From Satan's snares, or from evil.

3:4 <sup>1</sup> The second admonition is, that they follow always the doctrine of the Apostles as a rule for their life.

3:5 <sup>1</sup> Thirdly, he diligently and earnestly admonisheth them of two things which are given us by the only grace of God, to wit, of charity, and a watchful mind to the coming of Christ.

3:6 <sup>1</sup> Fourthly, he saith, that idle and lazy persons ought not to be relieved of the Church, nay, that they are not to be suffered.

3:7 <sup>1</sup> Lest he might seem to deal harshly with them, he setteth forth himself as an example, who besides his travail in preaching labored with his hands, which he saith he was not simply bound to do.

3:10 <sup>1</sup> What shall we do then with those idle bellied Monks, and sacrificing Priests? A Monk (saith Socrates, book 8, of his Tripartite history) which worketh not with hands, is like a thief.

3:11 <sup>1</sup> How great a fault idleness is, he declareth by that that God created no man in vain or to no purpose, neither is there any unto whom he hath not allotted as it were a certain standing and room. Whereupon it followeth, that the order which God hath appointed, is troubled by the idle, yea, broken, which is great sin and wickedness.

<sup>2</sup> He reprehendeth a vice which is joined with the former, whereupon follow an infinite sort of mischiefs: to wit, that there are none more busy in other men's matters than they which neglect their own.

3:12 <sup>1</sup> The Lord commandeth, and the Apostles pray in the name of Christ, first that no men be idle, and next, that every man do quietly and carefully see to do his duty in that office and calling wherein the Lord hath placed him.

3:13 <sup>1</sup> We must take heed that some men's unworthiness cause us not to be slacker in well doing.

3:14 <sup>1</sup> Excommunication is a punishment for the obstinate.

<sup>3</sup> The end of the excommunication is not the destruction, but the salvation of the sinner, that at least through shame he may be driven in repentance.

3:15 <sup>1</sup> We must so eschew familiarity with the excommunicate, that we diligently seek all occasions and means that may be to bring them again into the right way.

3:16 <sup>1</sup> Prayers are the seals of all exhortations.

3:17 <sup>1</sup> The Apostle subscribeth his letters with his own hand, that false letters might not be brought and put in place of true.

THE FIRST EPISTLE OF PAUL TO TIMOTHY

1 Setting forth a perfect pattern of a true Pastor, whose office especially consisteth in teaching, 4 he warneth him that vain questions set apart, he teach those things, 5 which further charity and faith: 12 and that his authority be not condemned, 14 he showeth what an one he is made through the grace of God.

1 Paul <sup>1</sup>an Apostle of Jesus Christ, by the <sup>2</sup>commandment of God our Savior, and of our Lord Jesus Christ our hope,

2 Unto Timothy my natural son in the faith: Grace, <sup>1</sup>mercy, and peace from God our Father, and from Christ Jesus our Lord.

3 <sup>1</sup>As I besought thee to abide still in Ephesus, when I departed into Macedonia, so do, that thou mayest warn some, that they teach none other doctrine,

4 <sup>1</sup>Neither that they give heed to fables and <sup>2</sup>genealogies which are endless, which breed questions rather than godly edifying which is by faith.

5 <sup>41</sup>For the end of the <sup>2</sup>commandment is <sup>3</sup>love out of a pure heart, and of a good conscience, and of faith unfeigned.

<sup>4</sup>Rom. 13:10

6 <sup>1</sup>From the which things some have erred, and have turned unto vain jangling.

7 <sup>1</sup>They would be doctors of the Law, and yet understand not what they speak, neither whereof they affirm.

8 <sup>1</sup>And we know, that the Law is good, if a man use it lawfully.

9 <sup>1</sup>Knowing this, that the Law is not given unto a <sup>2</sup>righteous man, but unto the lawless and disobedient, to the ungodly, and to <sup>3</sup>sinners, to the unholy, and to the profane, to murderers of fathers and mothers, to manslayers,

10 To whoremongers, to buggers, to menstealers, to liars, to the perjured, and if there be any other thing that is contrary to wholesome doctrine,

11 <sup>1</sup>Which is according to the glorious Gospel of the blessed God, <sup>2</sup>which is committed unto me.

12 <sup>1</sup>Therefore I thank him which hath made me <sup>2</sup>strong, that is, Christ Jesus our Lord: for he counted me faithful, and put me in his service:

1:1 <sup>1</sup> First of all, he avoucheth his own free vocation, and also Timothy's, that the one might be confirmed by the other: and therewithal he declareth the sum of the Apostolical doctrine, to wit, the mercy of God in Christ Jesus apprehended by faith, the end whereof is yet hoped for.

1:2 <sup>1</sup> There is as much difference betwixt mercy and grace, as is betwixt the effect, and the cause: For grace is that free good will of God, whereby he chose us in Christ, and mercy is that free justification which followeth it.

1:3 <sup>1</sup> This whole Epistle consisteth in admonitions, wherein all the duties of a faithful Pastor are lively set out. And the first admonition is this, that no innovation be made either in the Apostle's doctrine itself, or in the manner of teaching it.

1:4 <sup>1</sup> The doctrine is corrupted not only by false opinions, but also by vain and curious speculations: the declaration and utterance whereof can nothing help our faith.

1:5 <sup>1</sup> The second admonition is, that the right use and practice of the doctrine must be joined with the doctrine. And that consisteth in pure charity, and a good conscience, and true faith.

<sup>3</sup> There is neither love without a good conscience, nor a good conscience without faith, nor faith without the word of God.

1:6 <sup>1</sup> That which he spake before generally of vain and curious controversies, he applieth to them, which pretending a zeal of the Law, dwelled upon outward things, and never made an end of babbling of foolish trifles.

1:7 <sup>1</sup> There are none more unlearned, and more impudent in usurping the name of holiness, than foolish sophistical babblers.

1:8 <sup>1</sup> The taking away of an objection. He condemneth not the Law, but requireth the right use and practice of it.

1:9 <sup>1</sup> He indeed escapeth the curse of the Law, and therefore doth not abhor it, who fleeing and eschewing those things which the Law condemneth, giveth himself with all his heart to observe it: and not he that maketh a vain babbling of outward and curious matters.

<sup>2</sup> And such a one is he, whom the Lord hath endued with true doctrine, and with the holy Ghost.

<sup>3</sup> To such as make an art as it were of sinning.

1:11 <sup>1</sup> He setteth against fond and vain babbling, not only the Law, but the Gospel also, which condemneth not, but greatly commendeth the wholesome doctrine contained in the commandments of God, and therefore he calleth it a glorious Gospel, and the Gospel of the blessed God, the virtue whereof these babblers knew not.

<sup>2</sup> A reason why neither any other Gospel is to be taught than he hath taught in the Church, neither after any other sort, because there is no other Gospel besides that which God committed to him.

1:12 <sup>1</sup> He maintaineth of necessity his Apostleship against some that did carp at his former life, debasing himself, even to hell, to advance Christ's only mercy, wherewith he abolished all those his former doings.

<sup>2</sup> Which gave me strength, not only when I had no will to do well, but also when I was wholly given to evil.

13 When before I was a <sup>1</sup>blasphemer, and a persecutor, and an oppressor: but I was received to mercy: for I did it ignorantly through unbelief.

14 But the grace of our Lord was exceeding abundant <sup>1</sup>with faith and love, which is in Christ Jesus.

15 <sup>1</sup>This is a <sup>2</sup>true saying, and by all means worthy to be received, that <sup>6</sup>Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am chief.

16 Notwithstanding for this cause was I received to mercy, that Jesus Christ should first show on me all long suffering unto the ensample of them, which shall in time to come believe in him unto eternal life.

17 <sup>1</sup>Now unto the king everlasting, immortal, invisible, unto God <sup>2</sup>only wise, be honor, and glory, for ever, and ever, Amen.

19 Having <sup>1</sup>faith and a good conscience, <sup>2</sup>which some have put away, and as concerning faith, have made shipwreck.

20 Of whom is Hymenaeus, and Alexander, <sup>61</sup>whom I have <sup>2</sup>delivered unto Satan, that they might <sup>3</sup>learn

<sup>b</sup> Matt. 4:13

<sup>c</sup> 1 Cor. 5:5

not to blaspheme.

2 He exhorteth them to make public prayers for all men, 4, 5 and that for two causes, 8 and therefore he willett all men in all places to pray, 9 and declareth in what apparel, 11 and with what modesty, women ought to behave themselves in holy assemblies.

1 I <sup>1</sup>Exhort therefore, that first of all supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks be made for all men,

2 For Kings, and for all that are in authority, <sup>1</sup>that we may lead a quiet and a peaceable life, in all godliness, and <sup>2</sup>honesty.

3 For this is good and acceptable in the sight of God our Savior.

4 <sup>1</sup>Who will that all men shall be saved, and come unto the acknowledging of the truth.

5 <sup>1</sup>For there is one God, and one Mediator between God and man, which is the <sup>2</sup>man Christ Jesus,

6 Who gave himself a ransom for all men, <sup>1</sup>to be that testimony in due time,

7 <sup>4</sup>Whereunto I am ordained a preacher and an Apostle (I speak the truth in Christ, and lie not) even a teacher of the Gentiles in <sup>1</sup>faith and verity.

8 <sup>1</sup>I will therefore that the men pray, everywhere

1:13 <sup>1</sup> These are the preparative works which Paul braggeth of.

1:14 <sup>1</sup> He proveth this change by the effects, for that, that he that was a profane man, is become a believer: and he that did most outrageously persecute Christ, burneth now in love towards him.

1:15 <sup>1</sup> He turneth the reproach of the adversaries upon their own head, showing that this singular example of the goodness of God, roundtendeth to the commodity of the whole Church.

1:17 <sup>1</sup> He breaketh out into an exclamation, even for very zeal of mind, for that he cannot satisfy himself in amplifying the grace of God.

1:18 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion of both the former fatherly admonitions, to wit, that Timothy striving manfully against all lets, being called to the ministry according to many prophecies which went before of him, should both maintain the doctrine which he had received, and keep also a good conscience.

<sup>2</sup> By the help of them.

1:19 <sup>1</sup> Wholesome and sound doctrine.

<sup>2</sup> Whosoever keep not a good conscience, do lose also by little and little the gift of understanding: which he proveth by two most lamentable examples.

1:20 <sup>1</sup> Such as fall from God, and his religion, are not to be suffered in the Church, but rather ought to be excommunicated.

<sup>2</sup> Cast out of the Church, and so delivered them to Satan.

2:1 <sup>1</sup> Having dispatched those things which pertain to doctrine, he speaketh now in the second place of the other part of the ministry of the word, to wit, of public prayers. And first of all declaring this question, for whom we ought to pray: he teacheth that we must pray for all men, and especially for all manner of magistrates, which thing was at that time somewhat doubted of, seeing that kings, yea and the most part of magistrates were at that time enemies of the Church.

2:2 <sup>1</sup> An argument taken of the end: to wit, because that magistrates are appointed to this end, that men might peaceably and quietly live in all godliness and honesty, and therefore must we commend them especially to God, that they may faithfully execute so necessary an office.

<sup>2</sup> This word containeth all kind of duty, which is to be used amongst men in all their affairs.

2:3 <sup>1</sup> Another argument, why Churches or Congregations ought to pray for all men, without any difference of nation, kind, age, or order: to wit, because the Lord by calling of all sorts, yea, sometimes those that are greatest enemies to the Gospel, will have his Church gathered together after this sort, and therefore prayers to be made for all.

2:5 <sup>1</sup> God would not else be manifested to be the only God of all men, unless he would show his goodness in saving of all sorts of men: neither should Christ be seen to be the only mediator between God and all sorts of men, by having taken upon him that nature of man which is common to all men, unless he had satisfied for all sorts of men, and made intercession for all.

2:6 <sup>1</sup> A confirmation, because that even to the Gentiles in the secret of salvation now opened and made manifest the Apostle himself being appointed properly to this office, which he doth faithfully and sincerely execute.

2:7 <sup>1</sup> Faithfully and sincerely: and by faith he meaneth wholesome and sound doctrine, and by truth, an upright and sincere handling of it.

2:8 <sup>1</sup> He hath spoken of the persons for whom we must pray: and now he teacheth that the difference of places is taken away: for in times past, one only nation, and in one certain place, came together to public service: but now Churches or Congregations are gathered together everywhere (orderly and decently) and men come together to serve God publicly with common prayer, neither must we strive for the nation or for the purification of the body, or for the place, but for the mind, to have it clean from all offense, and full of sure trust and confidence.

9 <sup>b</sup><sup>1</sup>Likewise also the women, that they array themselves in comely apparel, with shamefastness and modesty, not with braided hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly apparel,

10 But (as becometh women that profess the fear of God) with good works.

11 Let the woman learn in silence with all subjection.

12 <sup>1</sup>I permit not a woman to teach, <sup>1</sup>neither to usurp authority over the man, but to be in silence.

14 <sup>c</sup><sup>1</sup>And Adam was not <sup>2</sup>deceived, but the woman was deceived, and was in the transgression.

15 <sup>1</sup>Notwithstanding, through bearing of children she shall be saved, if they continue in faith, and love, and holiness with modesty.

1 This <sup>1</sup>is a true saying, <sup>2</sup>If any man <sup>3</sup>desire the office of a Bishop, he desireth a worthy work.

2 <sup>a</sup>A Bishop therefore must be unreprouable, the husband of one <sup>1</sup>wife, watching, temperate, modest, harborous, apt to teach,

3 Nor <sup>1</sup>given to wine, no striker, not given to filthy lucre, but gentle, no fighter, not covetous.

<sup>e</sup> Gen. 3:6

<sup>a</sup> Titus 2:6

4 One that can rule his own house honestly, having children under obedience with all honesty.

5 For if any cannot rule his own house, how shall he care for the Church of God?

6 He may not be a young scholar, lest he being puffed up fall into the <sup>1</sup>condemnation of the devil.

7 He must also be well reported of, even of them which are without, lest he fall into rebuke, and the snare of the devil.

8 <sup>1</sup>Likewise must <sup>2</sup>Deacons be grave, not double tongued, not given unto much wine, neither to filthy lucre, 9 <sup>b</sup>Having the <sup>1</sup>mystery of the faith in pure conscience.

10 And let them first be proved, then let them minister, if they be found blameless.

11 <sup>1</sup>Likewise their wives must be honest, not evil speakers, but sober, and faithful in all things.

12 <sup>1</sup>Let the Deacons be the husbands of one wife, and such as can rule their children well, and their own households.

13 For they that have ministered well, get themselves a good <sup>1</sup>decree, and <sup>2</sup>great liberty in the faith, which is in Christ Jesus.

14 <sup>1</sup>These things write I unto thee, trusting to come very shortly unto thee.

15 But if I tarry long, that thou mayest yet know, how thou oughtest to behave thyself in the <sup>1</sup>house

<sup>2</sup> He putteth the sign for the thing itself, the lifting up of hands, for the calling upon God.

2:9 <sup>1</sup> Thirdly he appointeth women to learn in the public assemblies with silence and modesty, being comely appareled without any riot or excess in their apparel.

2:12 <sup>1</sup> The first argument, why it is not lawful for women to teach in the Congregation, because by this means they should be placed above men, for they should be their masters: which is against God's ordinance.

2:13 <sup>1</sup> He proveth this ordinance of God, whereby the woman is subject to man, first by that, that God made the woman after man, for man's sake.

2:14 <sup>1</sup> Then because that after sin God enjoined the woman this punishment, for that the man was deceived by her.

<sup>2</sup> Adam was deceived, but through his wife's means, and therefore she is worthily for this cause subject to her husband, and ought to be.

2:15 <sup>1</sup> He addeth a comfort by the way, that their subjection hindereth not but that women may be saved as well as men, if they behave themselves in those burdens of marriage holily and modestly, with faith and charity.

3:1 <sup>1</sup> Having dispatched the treatise, as well of doctrine and of the manner of handling of it, as also of public prayer, he now in the third place cometh to the persons themselves, speaking first of Pastors and afterward of Deacons, and he useth a preface, that the Church may know that these be certain and sure rulers.

<sup>2</sup> A Bishopric or the ministry of the word is not an idle dignity, but a work and that an excellent work: and therefore a Bishop must be furnished with many virtues both at home and abroad. Wherefore it be requisite before he be chosen, to examine well his learning, his gifts, and ableness, and his life.

<sup>3</sup> He speaketh not here of ambitious seeking, than the which there cannot be a worse fault in the Church, but general of the mind, and disposition of man, framed and disposed to help and edify the Church of God, when and wheresoever it shall please the Lord.

3:2 <sup>1</sup> Therefore he that shutteth out married men from the office of Bishops, only because they are married, is Antichrist.

3:3 <sup>1</sup> A common tippler, and one that will sit by it.

3:6 <sup>1</sup> Lest by reason that he is advanced to that degree, he take occasion to be proud, which will undo him, and so he fall into the same condemnation that the devil himself is fallen into.

3:8 <sup>1</sup> Likewise the Deacons must first be proved that there may be a good trial of their honesty, truth, sobriety, mind, void of covetousness, that they are well instructed in the doctrine of faith, and to be short, of their good conscience and integrity.

3:9 <sup>1</sup> The doctrine of the Gospel, which is a mystery indeed: for flesh and blood do not reveal it.

3:11 <sup>1</sup> Regard must be had also to the Pastors' and Deacons' wives.

3:12 <sup>1</sup> They that have more wives than one at one time, must neither be called to be ministers, nor to be Deacons.

3:13 <sup>1</sup> Honor and estimation.

3:14 <sup>1</sup> Paul purposing to add many peculiar things pertaining to the daily office of a Pastor, speaketh first a word or two concerning his coming to Timothy, that he would be so much the more careful, lest at his coming he might be reproved of negligence.

3:15 <sup>1</sup> The Pastor hath always to think, how that he is occupied in the house of the living God, wherein the treasure of the truth is kept.

of God, which is the Church of the living God, the <sup>2</sup>pillar and ground of truth.

16 <sup>1</sup>And without controversy, great is the mystery of godliness, which is, God is manifested in the flesh, <sup>2</sup>justified in the Spirit, seen of Angels, preached unto the Gentiles, believed on in the world, and received up in glory.

1 Now <sup>1</sup>the Spirit speaketh evidently, that in the latter times some shall depart from the <sup>2</sup>faith, and shall give heed unto spirits of error, and doctrines of devils,

2 <sup>1</sup>Which speak lies through <sup>2</sup>hypocrisy, and have their <sup>3</sup>consciences burned with an hot iron,

3 <sup>1</sup>Forbidding to marry, and commanding to abstain from meats <sup>2</sup>which God hath created <sup>3</sup>to be received <sup>4</sup>with giving thanks of them which believe and know the truth.

4 <sup>1</sup>For every creature of God is good, and nothing ought to be refused, if it be received with thanksgiving.

5 <sup>1</sup>For it is <sup>2</sup>sanctified by the <sup>3</sup>word of God, and prayer.

6 <sup>1</sup>If thou put the brethren in remembrance of these things, thou shalt be a good minister of Jesus Christ, which hath been nourished up in the words of faith, and of good doctrine which thou hast continually <sup>2</sup>followed.

7 <sup>1</sup>But cast away profane, and old wives' fables, <sup>2</sup>and exercise thyself unto <sup>3</sup>godliness.

8 <sup>1</sup>For bodily exercise profiteth little: but godliness is profitable unto all things, which hath the promise of the life present, and of that that is to come.

9 <sup>1</sup>This is a true saying, and by all means worthy to be received.

10 For therefore we labor and are rebuked, because we trust in the living God, which is the Savior of all men, specially of those that believe.

11 These things warn and teach.

3:15 <sup>2</sup>To wit, in respect of men: for the Church resteth upon that cornerstone, Christ, and is the preserver of the truth, but not the mother.

3:16 <sup>1</sup>There is nothing more excellent than this truth, whereof the Church is the keeper and preserver here amongst men, the ministry of the word being appointed to that end and purpose: for it teacheth us the greatest matters that may be thought of, to wit, that God is become visible in the person of Christ by taking our nature upon him, whose Majesty notwithstanding in so great weakness was manifested many ways, insomuch that the sight of it pierced the very Angels: and to conclude, he being preached unto the Gentiles was received of them, and is now placed above in glory unspeakable.

<sup>2</sup>The power of the Godhead showeth itself so marvelously in that weak flesh of Christ, that though he were a weak man, yet all the world knoweth he was, and is God.

4:1 <sup>1</sup>He setteth against that true doctrine, false opinions, which he foretelleth that certain which shall fall away from God and his religion, shall bring in by the suggestion of Satan, and so that a great number shall give ear to them.

4:2 <sup>1</sup>Although heretics counterfeit holiness never so much, yet they have no conscience.

<sup>2</sup>For they will as it were practice the art of disguised persons and players, that we may not think they will lie lurking in some one corner, or keep any resemblance of shamefastness.

<sup>3</sup>Whose conscience waxed so hard, that there grew an hard fleshiness over it, and so became to have a canker on it, and now at length required of very necessity to be burned with an hot iron.

4:3 <sup>1</sup>He setteth down two kinds of this false doctrine, to wit, the Law of sole life, and difference of meats.

<sup>2</sup>He proveth that he justly called such doctrines devilish, first, because the teachers of them make laws of things which are not their own: for have they created the meats?

<sup>3</sup>Secondly, because they overthrow with their decrees, the end wherefore they were created of God, to wit, that we should use them.

<sup>4</sup>Thirdly, for that by this means they rob God of his glory, who will be honored in the use of them. And herewithal the Apostle declar-eth that we must use the liberality of God soberly, and with a good conscience.

4:4 <sup>1</sup>He setteth an Apostolical rule, for taking away the difference of meats, against that false doctrine.

4:5 <sup>1</sup>He useth God's benefits rightly, which acknowledge the giver of them by his word, and calleth upon him.

<sup>2</sup>It is so made pure and holy in respect of us, so that we may use it with a good conscience, as received at the Lord's hand.

<sup>3</sup>We confess and acknowledge that God is the maker and giver of those creatures which we use. Secondly, that we are of the number of those, who through Christ's benefit have recovered that right over all creatures, which Adam lost by his fall. Thirdly, by our prayers we crave of the Lord, that we may use those meats with a good conscience, which we receive at his hands. Fourthly, we make an end of our eating and drinking, with thanksgiving and prayer: and so are our meats sanctified to us.

4:6 <sup>1</sup>The conclusion with an exhortation to Timothy, to propound these things diligently to the Churches, which he had sucked of the Apostle, even in a manner from the teat.

4:7 <sup>1</sup>He setteth again true doctrine not only against that false and apostatical doctrine, but also against all vain and curious subtleties.

<sup>2</sup>It is not only requisite that the minister of the word be sound in doctrine, but also that his life be godly and religious.

4:8 <sup>1</sup>Godliness consisteth in spiritual exercise, and not in outward austereness of life, which though it be something to be accounteth of, if it be rightly used, yet is it in no wise comparable with godliness: For it profiteth not of itself, but through the benefit of another, but this hath the promise both of the life present, and of that that is to come.

4:9 <sup>1</sup>He goeth a little from his matter, and showeth that they which give themselves to godliness, although they are afflicted and reproached, are notwithstanding not to be counted miserable as other men are, because they are not afflicted for that cause that other men are, and the end of them both is far different one from the other. For how can God forsake his, which is bountiful even towards his enemies? And he willeth that this doctrine be well beaten into their heads.

12 <sup>1</sup>Let no man despise thy youth, but be unto them that believe, an ensample, in word, in conversation, in love, in spirit, in faith and in pureness.

13 <sup>1</sup>Till I come, give attendance to reading, to exhortation, and to doctrine.

14 Despise not the gift that is in thee, which was given thee by prophecy with the laying on of the hands of the company of the Eldership.

15 These things exercise, and give thyself unto them, that it may be seen how thou profitest among all men.

16 Take heed unto thyself, and unto learning: continue therein: for in doing this thou shalt both <sup>1</sup>save thyself, and them that hear thee.

5 <sup>1</sup> Having set down a manner how to rebuke all degrees. <sup>5</sup> He entreateth of widows, who then were chosen for the service of the Church: <sup>17</sup> Then he cometh to Elders, <sup>23</sup> and speaketh somewhat touching the health of the body.

1 Rebuke <sup>1</sup>not an elder, but exhort him as a father, and the younger men as brethren,

2 The elder women as mothers, the younger as sisters, with all pureness.

3 <sup>12</sup>Honor widows, which are widows indeed.

4 <sup>1</sup>But if any widow have children or nephews let them learn first to show godliness <sup>2</sup>toward their own house, and <sup>3</sup>to recompense their kindred: <sup>4</sup>for that is an honest thing, and acceptable before God.

5 <sup>1</sup>And she that is a widow indeed and left alone, trusteth in God, and continueth in supplications and prayers night and day.

6 <sup>1</sup>But she that liveth in pleasure, is dead, while she liveth.

7 These things therefore warn them of, that they may be blameless.

8 If there be any that provideth not for his own, and namely for them of his household, he denieth the faith, and is worse than an infidel.

9 <sup>1</sup>Let not a widow be taken into the number under threescore years old, that hath been the wife of <sup>2</sup>one husband.

10 And well reported of for good works: if she have nourished her children, if she have lodged the strangers, if she have <sup>1</sup>washed the Saints' feet, if she have ministered unto them which were in adversity, if she were continually given unto every good work.

11 <sup>1</sup>But <sup>2</sup>refuse the younger widows: for when they have begun to wax wanton against Christ, they will marry.

12 Having damnation, because they have broken the first faith.

13 <sup>1</sup>And likewise also being idle they learn to go about from house to house: yea they are not only idle, but also prattlers and busybodies, speaking things which are not comely.

14 <sup>1</sup>I will therefore that the younger women marry, and bear children, and govern the house, and give none occasion to the adversary to speak evil.

15 For certain are already turned back after Satan.

16 <sup>1</sup>If any faithful man or faithful woman have widows, let them minister unto them, and let not the Church be charged, that there may be sufficient for them that are widows indeed.

4:12 <sup>1</sup> Now he returneth to that exhortation, showing which are the virtues of a Pastor, whereby he may come to be revered, although he be but young, to wit, such speech and life as are witnesses of charity, zeal, faith, and purity, but here is no mention made of the crosier staff, ring, cloak, and such other foolish and childish toys.

4:13 <sup>1</sup> The private exercise of Pastors, is continual reading of the Scriptures, whence out they may draw matter of wholesome doctrine and exhortation, both to themselves and to others.

4:16 <sup>1</sup> Faith is by hearing, and hearing by preaching: and therefore the ministers of the word are so said to save themselves and others, for that in them the Lord hath put the word of reconciliation.

5:1 <sup>1</sup> Of keeping measure in private reprehensions according to the degrees of ages and kinds.

5:3 <sup>1</sup> The Apostle giveth these rules touching the care of widows.

<sup>2</sup> Have care of those widows which have need of help.

5:4 <sup>1</sup> Widows' children and nephews must take care for their parents, according to their ability.

<sup>2</sup> The first reason, because that, that which they bestow upon theirs, they bestow it upon themselves.

<sup>3</sup> Another, because nature itself teacheth us to recompense our parents.

5:5 <sup>1</sup> The second rule: Let the church have care of such as are widows indeed, that is to say, such as are poor and destitute of help of their own friends, and live godly and religiously.

5:6 <sup>1</sup> The third rule: Let widows that live in pleasure, and neglect the care of their own family, be holden and accounted as fallers away from God and his religion, and worse than very infidels.

5:9 <sup>1</sup> The fourth rule: Let none under threescore years old, be taken into the number of widows, to serve the Congregations or Churches, and such as are free from all reproach of unchastity, and are well reported of for their diligence, charity, and integrity.

<sup>2</sup> That hath had no more husbands, but one at one time.

5:10 <sup>1</sup> This is spoken in respect of the manner of those countries.

5:11 <sup>1</sup> The first reason why younger widows are not to be admitted to this ministry, to wit, because for the lightness of their age, they will at length shake off the burden that Christ hath laid upon them, and think rather upon marrying again: and so will forsake the ministry whereunto they had bound themselves.

5:13 <sup>1</sup> Another reason: because they are for the most part prattlers and busybodies, and gadders up and down, neglecting their charge and duty.

5:14 <sup>1</sup> The fifth rule: Let younger widows marry and govern their houses godly.

5:16 <sup>1</sup> The sixth rule: Let the faithful help their widows at their own charges as much as they can, and let not the Congregation be burdened with these expenses.

17 ¶ <sup>1</sup>The Elders that rule well, let them be had in <sup>2</sup>double honor, <sup>3</sup>specially they which labor in the word and doctrine.

18 For the Scripture saith, <sup>a</sup>Thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn: and, <sup>b</sup>The laborer is worthy of his wages.

19 <sup>1</sup>Against an Elder receive none accusation, but under two or three witnesses.

20 <sup>1</sup>Them that sin, rebuke openly, that the rest also may fear.

21 ¶ <sup>a</sup>I charge thee before God and the Lord Jesus Christ, and the elect Angels, that thou observe these things, without preferring one to another, and do nothing partially.

22 <sup>1</sup>Lay hands <sup>2</sup>suddenly on no man, neither be partaker of other men's sins; keep thyself pure.

23 <sup>1</sup>Drink no longer water, but use a little wine for thy stomach's sake, and thine often infirmities.

24 <sup>1</sup>Some men's sins are open before hand, and go before unto judgment: but some men's follow after.

25 <sup>1</sup>Likewise also the good works are manifest before hand, and they that are otherwise, cannot be hid.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>a</sup> Deut. 25:4

<sup>b</sup> Matt. 10:10

6 <sup>1</sup> He showeth the duty of servants: 10 and what a mischievous evil covetousness is: 13 and having spoken somewhat of rich men, he once again forbiddeth Timothy, 20 to cumber himself with vain babblings.

1 Let <sup>1</sup>as many servants as are under the yoke, count their masters worthy of all honor, <sup>2</sup>that the Name of God, and his doctrine be not evil spoken of.

2 <sup>1</sup>And they which have believing masters, let them not despise them, because they are brethren, but rather do service, because they are faithful, and beloved, and <sup>2</sup>partakers of the benefit. <sup>3</sup>These things teach and exhort.

3 <sup>1</sup>If any man teach otherwise, and consenteth not to the wholesome words of our Lord Jesus Christ, and to the doctrine which is according to godliness,

4 He is puffed up and knoweth nothing, but doteth about questions and <sup>1</sup>strife of words, whereof cometh envy, strife, railings, evil surmisings,

5 Froward <sup>1</sup>disputations of men of corrupt minds and destitute of the truth, which think that gain is godliness: from such separate thyself.

6 <sup>1</sup>But godliness is great gain, if a man be content with that he hath.

5:17 <sup>1</sup> Now he giveth rules, and showeth how he ought to behave himself with the Elders, that is to say, with the Pastors and such as have the governance in the discipline of the Church, which is president of their company. The first rule: Let the Church or Congregation see unto this especially, as God himself hath commanded, that the Elders that do their duty well, be honestly maintained.

<sup>3</sup> There were two kinds of Elders, the one attended upon the government only, and looked to the manners of the Congregation; the other did beside that, attend upon preaching and prayers, to and for the Congregation.

5:19 <sup>1</sup> The second rule: Let no accusation be admitted against an Elder, but under two or three witnesses.

5:20 <sup>1</sup> The third rule: Let the Elders so convicted be rebuked openly, that they may be an example to others.

5:21 <sup>1</sup> The fourth rule: Let sincerity be used without any prejudice or respect of persons in Ecclesiastical proceedings, (especially against the Elders) because God himself is there present, and the Lord Jesus Christ with a multitude of Angels.

5:22 <sup>1</sup> The [fifth] rule: Let the minister lay hands suddenly on no man. Let him not be faulty herein either by favoring any man's folly, or perverse affection: If ought be done otherwise than well of his fellows, let him keep his conscience pure.

<sup>2</sup> As much as in these lieth do not rashly admit any whatsoever, to any Ecclesiastical function.

5:23 <sup>1</sup> The sixth rule: Let the Elders have indifferent consideration of their health, in the manner of their diet.

5:24 <sup>1</sup> Because hypocrites sometimes creep into the ministry although there be never so great diligence used, the Apostle willeth the Pastors not to be troubled therefore, or slack any whit of their diligence in trying and examining, because the Lord hath appointed a time to discover the faults of such men, and it is our parts to take heed that we offend not therein.

5:25 <sup>1</sup> Another comfort belonging to them, which sometimes are slandered and misrepresented of.

6:1 <sup>1</sup> He addeth also rules for the servants' duty towards their masters: whereupon no doubt there were many questions then moved by them which took occasion by the Gospel to trouble the common state. And this is the first rule: Let servants that are come to the faith, and have infidels to their masters, serve them notwithstanding with great fidelity.

<sup>2</sup> The reason: lest God should seem by the Doctrine of the Gospel to stir up men to rebellion and all wickedness.

6:2 <sup>1</sup> The second rule: Let not servants that are come to the faith, and have also masters of the same profession and religion, abuse the name of brotherhood, but let them so much the rather obey them.

<sup>2</sup> Let this be sufficient, that as touching those things which pertain to everlasting life, they are partakers of the same good will and love of God, as their masters themselves are.

<sup>3</sup> A general conclusion, that these things ought not only to be simply taught, but must with exhortations be diligently beaten into their heads.

6:3 <sup>1</sup> He condemneth severely, and excommunicateth or casteth out of the Church as proud men, such as content not themselves with Christ's doctrine, (that is to say, the doctrine of godliness) but weary both themselves and others in vain questions, (for all other things are vain) because they content not themselves in Christ's doctrine: and as lying deceivers, because they savor or sound of nothing but vanity: as mad men, because they trouble themselves so much in matters of nothing: as mischievous plagues, for that they cause great contentions, and corrupt men's minds and judgment: to be short, as profane and wicked, because they abuse the precious name of godliness and religion to filthy lucre.

6:4 <sup>1</sup> Striving about words, and not about matter: and by words he meaneth all those things which have no pith in them, and whereby we can reap no profit.

6:5 <sup>1</sup> Such as we see in those shameless schools of Popery, which are nothing else but vain babbling and prating.

6:6 <sup>1</sup> He turneth away fitly the name of gain and lucre, confessing that godliness is great gain, but far after another sort, to wit, because it bringeth true sufficiency.

7 <sup>1</sup>For we brought nothing into the world, and it is certain, that we can carry nothing out.

8 Therefore when we have food and raiment, let us therewith be content.

9 <sup>1</sup>For they that will be rich, fall into tentation and snares, and into many foolish and noisome lusts, which drown men in perdition and destruction.

10 For the desire of money is the root of all evil, which while some lusted after they erred from the faith, and <sup>1</sup>pierced themselves through with many sorrows.

11 <sup>1</sup>But thou, O <sup>2</sup>man of God, flee these things, and follow after righteousness, godliness, faith, love, patience, and meekness.

12 Fight the good fight of faith: lay hold of eternal life, whereunto thou art also called, and hast professed a good profession before many witnesses.

13 <sup>a1</sup>I charge thee in the sight of God, who quickeneth all things, and before Jesus Christ, which under Pontius Pilate <sup>b</sup>witnessed a good confession.

14 That thou keep this commandment without spot, and unrebukeable, until the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ,

20 <sup>1</sup>O Timothy, keep that which is committed unto thee, and avoid profane and vain babblings, and oppositions of science falsely so called,

21 Which while some <sup>1</sup>profess, they have erred concerning the faith. Grace be with thee, Amen.

¶The first Epistle to Timothy, written from Laodicea, which is the chiefest city of Phrygia Pacatiana.

6:7 <sup>1</sup> He mocketh their folly, which do so greedily gape after frail things, that they can in no wise be satisfied, and yet notwithstanding they cannot enjoy that excess.

6:9 <sup>1</sup> He frayeth Timothy from covetousness after another sort, to wit, because it draweth with it an infinite sort of lusts, and those very hurtful, wherewith covetous men do torment themselves so far forth, that in the end they cast away from them their faith and salvation.

6:10 <sup>1</sup> Sorrow and grief do as it were pierce through the mind of man, and are the harvest and true fruits of covetousness.

6:11 <sup>1</sup> A peculiar exhortation to divers virtues, wherewith it behooveth the Pastors especially to be furnished.

6:13 <sup>1</sup> A most earnest request and charge, to observe and keep all the premises faithfully, with our eyes set upon the coming of Jesus Christ, whose glory we have to set against the vain glistening of this world, and his power, against all the terrors of the wicked.

6:15 <sup>1</sup> He heapeth many words together, to one purpose: whereby he voucheth the power of God, which if we stick fast unto, we shall not be moved out of our standings.

6:17 <sup>1</sup> He addeth for an overplus as it were a sharp admonition to the rich, that they chiefly take heed of two mischiefs, to wit, of pride, and deceitful hope, against which he setteth three excellent virtues, hope in the living God, liberality towards their neighbor, and gentle conditions.

<sup>2</sup> In things pertaining to this life, with whom those men are compared which are rich in good works.

<sup>3</sup> Who only is, and that everlasting: for he setteth the frail nature of riches against God.

6:19 <sup>1</sup> The praise of liberality by the effects thereof: because it is a sure testimony of the Spirit of God which dwelleth in us, and therefore of the salvation that shall be given us.

6:20 <sup>1</sup> He rehearseth the chiefest of all the former exhortations, which ought to be deeply imprinted in the minds of all ministers of the word, to wit, that they eschew all vain babblings of sophistry and continue in the simplicity of sincere doctrine.

6:21 <sup>1</sup> Not only in word, but also in countenance and gesture: to be short, while their behavior was such that even when they held their peace, they would make men believe their heads were occupied about nothing but high and weighty matters, even then they erred concerning the faith.

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF PAUL TO TIMOTHY

1 <sup>3</sup> He commendeth Timothy's faith, <sup>6</sup> and exhorteth him to go on faithfully in the charge committed unto him: <sup>8</sup> and that neither for his bonds, <sup>15</sup> nor the revolting of others, he faint. <sup>11</sup> He triumpheth of his Apostleship. <sup>14</sup> He willeth him to have care of the thing committed unto him, <sup>16</sup> and praiseth Onesiphorus.

1 Paul an Apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, <sup>1</sup> according to the promise of life which is in Christ Jesus,

2 To Timothy my beloved son: Grace, mercy and peace from God the Father, and from Jesus Christ our Lord.

3 <sup>1</sup> I thank God, whom I serve from mine <sup>2</sup> elders with pure conscience, that without ceasing I have remembrance of thee in my prayers night and day.

4 Desiring to see thee, mindful of thy tears, that I may be filled with joy:

5 When I call to remembrance the unfeigned faith that is in thee, which dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois, and in thy mother Eunice, and am assured that it dwelleth in thee also.

6 <sup>1</sup> Wherefore, I put thee in remembrance that thou <sup>2</sup> stir up the gift of God which is in thee, by the putting on of mine hands.

7 For God hath not given to us the Spirit of <sup>1</sup> fear, but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind.

8 <sup>1</sup> Be not therefore ashamed of the testimony of our Lord, neither of me <sup>2</sup> his prisoner: but be partaker of the afflictions of the <sup>3</sup> Gospel according to the <sup>4</sup> power of God,

9 <sup>1</sup> Who hath saved us, and called us with an <sup>h</sup> holy calling, not according to our <sup>c</sup> works, but according to his own purpose and grace, which was <sup>2</sup> given to us through Christ Jesus <sup>3</sup> before the <sup>4</sup> world was,

10 But is now made manifest by that appearing of our Savior Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality unto <sup>1</sup> light through the Gospel.

11 <sup>1</sup> Whereunto I am appointed a preacher, and Apostle, and a teacher of the Gentiles.

12 <sup>1</sup> For the which cause I also suffer these things, <sup>2</sup> but I am not ashamed: for I know whom I have believed, and I am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed to him against that

1:1 <sup>1</sup> Sent of God to preach that life which he promised in Christ Jesus.

1:3 <sup>1</sup> The chiefest mark that he shooteth at in this Epistle, is to confirm Timothy to continue constantly and manfully even to the end, setting first before him the great good will he beareth him, and then reckoning up the excellent gifts which God would as it were have to be by inheritance in Timothy, and his ancestors, which might so much the more make him bound to God.

<sup>2</sup> From Abraham, Isaac and Jacob: for he speaketh not of Pharisaism, but of Christianism.

1:6 <sup>1</sup> He warneth us to set the invincible power of the Spirit, which God hath given us, against those storms which may and do come upon us.

<sup>2</sup> The gift of God is as it were a certain lively flame kindled in our hearts, which the flesh and the devil go about to put out: and therefore we on the contrary side must labor as much as we can to foster and keep it burning.

1:7 <sup>1</sup> To pierce us through, and terrify us, as men whom the Lord will destroy.

1:8 <sup>1</sup> He proveth that the ignominy or shame of the cross is not only not to be ashamed of, but also that it is glorious and most honorable: first, because the Gospel wherefore the godly are afflicted, is the testimony of Christ: and secondly, because at length the great virtue and power of God appeareth in them.

1:9 <sup>1</sup> He showeth with how great benefits God hath bound us to maintain boldly and constantly his glory which is joined with our salvation, and reckoneth up the causes of our salvation, to wit, that free and eternal purpose of God to save us in Christ which was to come, whereby it should come to pass, that we should at length be freely called of God by the preaching of the Gospel, to Christ the destroyer of death and author of immortality.

<sup>2</sup> He sayeth that that grace was given us from everlasting, unto which we were predestinate from everlasting. So that the doctrine of foreseen faith and foreseen works, is clean contrary to the doctrine which preached and teacheth the grace of God.

<sup>3</sup> Before that course of years, which hath run on ever since the beginning of the world.

1:10 <sup>1</sup> Hath caused life and immortality to appear.

1:11 <sup>1</sup> That is, the Gospel which the Apostle preached.

1:12 <sup>1</sup> He confirmeth his Apostleship by a strange argument, to wit, because the world could not abide it, and therefore it persecuted him that preached it.

<sup>2</sup> By setting his own example before us, he showeth us how it may be, that we shall not be ashamed of the cross of Christ, to wit, if we be sure that God both can and will keep the salvation which he hath as it were laid up in store by himself for us against that day.

day.

13 <sup>1</sup>Keep the true pattern of the wholesome words, which thou hast heard of me in faith and love which is in Christ Jesus.

14 <sup>1</sup>That worthy thing, which was committed to thee, keep <sup>2</sup>through the holy Ghost, which dwelleth in us.

15 <sup>1</sup>This thou knowest, that all they which are in Asia, be turned from me: of which sort are Phygellus and Hermogenes.

16 The Lord give mercy unto the house of Onesiphorus: for he oft refreshed me, and was not ashamed of my chain, 17 But when he was at Rome, he sought me out very diligently, and found me.

18 The Lord grant unto him, that he may find mercy with the Lord at that day, and in how many things he hath ministered unto me at Ephesus, thou knowest very well.

2 <sup>2</sup> The better to set out perseverance in the Christian warfare, 3 he taketh similitudes, 4 from soldiers, 6 and from husbandmen. 10 He showeth that his bonds are for the profit of the Saints: 15 Then he warneth Timothy to divide the word of truth aright, 17 to beware of the examples of the wicked, 22 and to do all things modestly.

1 Thou <sup>1</sup>therefore, my son, be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus.

2 And what things thou hast heard of me, by <sup>1</sup>many witnesses, the same deliver to faithful men, which shall be able to teach others also.

3 <sup>1</sup>Thou therefore suffer affliction as a good soldier of Jesus Christ.

4 No man that warreth, entangleth himself with the affairs of <sup>1</sup>this life, because he would please him that hath chosen him to be a soldier.

5 <sup>1</sup>And if any man also strive for a mastery, he is not crowned, except he strive as he ought to do.

6 <sup>1</sup>The husbandman must labor before he receive the fruits.

7 <sup>1</sup>Consider what I say: and the Lord give thee understanding in all things.

8 <sup>1</sup>Remember that Jesus Christ, made of the seed of David, was raised again from the dead according to my Gospel, 9 <sup>1</sup>Wherein I suffer trouble as an evil doer, even unto bonds: but the word of God is not bound.

10 Therefore I suffer all things for the elect's sake, that they might also obtain the salvation which is in Christ Jesus, with eternal glory.

11 <sup>1</sup>It is a true saying, For if we be <sup>a,2</sup>dead together with him: we also shall live together with him.

12 If we suffer, we shall also reign together with him: <sup>b</sup>if we deny him, he also will deny us.

13 If <sup>c</sup>we believe not, yet abideth he faithful: he cannot deny himself.

14 Of these things put them in remembrance, and <sup>1</sup>protest before the Lord, that they strive not about words, which is to no profit, but to the perverting of the hearers.

1:13 <sup>1</sup> He showeth wherein he ought to be most constant, to wit, both in the doctrine itself, the abridgment whereof is faith and charity, and next in the manner of teaching it, a lively pattern and shape whereof Timothy knew in the Apostle.

1:14 <sup>1</sup> An amplification, taken of the dignity of so great a benefit committed of the ministers.

<sup>2</sup> The taking away of an objection. It is a hard thing to do it, but the Spirit of God is mighty, who hath inwardly endued us with his virtue.

1:15 <sup>1</sup> He preventeth an offense which arose by the means of certain that fell from God and the religion, and uttereth also their names, that they might be known of all men. But he setteth against them the singular faith of one man, that one only good example might counterpoise and weigh down all evil examples.

2:1 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion of the former exhortation, which hath also added unto it a declaration how that they do not keep that worthy thing that is committed unto them which keep it to themselves, but they rather which do most freely communicate it with others, to the end that many may be partakers of it, without any man's loss or hindrance.

2:2 <sup>1</sup> When many were by, which can bear witness of these things.

2:3 <sup>1</sup> Another admonition: That the ministry of the word is a spiritual warfare, which no man can so travail in, that he may please his captain, unless he forgo and part with all hindrances which might draw him away from it.

2:4 <sup>1</sup> With affairs of household, or other things that belong to other ordinary businesses.

2:5 <sup>1</sup> The third admonition: The ministry is like to a game or justing, wherein men strive for the victory, and no man is crowned unless he strive according to the laws which are prescribed, be they never so hard and painful.

2:6 <sup>1</sup> Another similitude tending to the same end: no man may look for the harvest, unless he first take pains to plow and sow his ground.

2:7 <sup>1</sup> All these things cannot be understood, and much less practiced, unless we ask of God and he gives us understanding.

2:8 <sup>1</sup> He confirmeth plainly two principles of our faith, which are always assaulted of heretics, the one whereof (to wit, that Christ is the true Messiah made man of the seed of David) is the ground of our salvation: and the other is the highest part of it, to wit, that he is risen again from the dead.

2:9 <sup>1</sup> The taking away of an objection: Truth it is, that he is kept in prison, as an evildoer, yet there is no cause, why therefore some should go about to derogate credit from his Gospel, seeing that notwithstanding God did bless his ministry, nay rather, that example of this his captivity and patience did sundry ways confirm the Church in the hope of a better life.

2:11 <sup>1</sup> The fourth admonition: we ought not to contend upon words and questions, which are not only unprofitable, but also for the most part hurtful: but rather upon this, how we may frame ourselves to all manner of patience, and to die also with Christ (that is to say, for Christ's Name) because that is the plain way to the most glorious life: as contrariwise the falling away of men can diminish no part of the truth of God, although by such means, they procure most certain destruction to themselves.

2:14 <sup>1</sup> Call God to witness, or as a Judge: as Moses, Joshua, Samuel, and Paul himself did, Acts 20.

15 <sup>1</sup>Study to show thyself approved unto God a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, dividing the word of truth <sup>2</sup>aright.

16 <sup>1</sup>Stay profane, and vain babblings: <sup>2</sup>for they shall increase unto more ungodliness.

17 And their word shall fret as a canker: of which sort is Hymenaeus and Philetus.

18 Which as concerning the truth have erred from the mark, saying that the resurrection is past already, and do destroy the faith of certain.

19 <sup>1</sup>But the foundation of God remaineth sure, and hath this seal, The Lord knoweth who are his: and, Let everyone that <sup>2</sup>calleth on the Name of Christ, depart from iniquity.

20 <sup>1</sup>Norwithstanding in a great house are not only vessels of gold and of silver, but also of wood and of earth, <sup>4</sup>and some for honor, and some unto dishonor.

21 If any man therefore <sup>1</sup>purge himself from these, he shall be a vessel unto honor, sanctified, and meet for the Lord, and prepared unto every good work.

22 <sup>1</sup>Flee also from the lusts of youth, and follow after righteousness, faith, love, and <sup>2</sup>peace, with them that <sup>3</sup>call on the Lord with pure heart,

23 <sup>1</sup>And put away foolish and unlearned questions, knowing that they engender strife.

24 But the servant of the Lord must not strive, but must be gentle toward all men, apt to teach, <sup>1</sup>suffering the evil,

25 Instructing them with meekness that are <sup>1</sup>contrary minded, proving if God at any time will give them repentance, that they may acknowledge the truth,

26 And come to amendment out of that snare of the devil, of whom they are taken prisoners, to do his will.

1 This <sup>1</sup>know also, that in the <sup>4</sup>last days shall come perilous times.

2 For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, cursed speakers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, <sup>1</sup>unholy,

3 Without natural affection, truce breakers, false accusers, intemperate, fierce, no lovers at all of them which are good,

4 Traitors, heady, high-minded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God,

5 Having a show of godliness, but have denied the power thereof: <sup>1</sup>turn away therefore from such.

6 For of this sort are they which creep into houses, and lead captive simple women laden with sins, and led with divers lusts,

7 Which women are ever learning, and are never able to come to the acknowledging of the truth.

8 <sup>b</sup>And as Jannes and Jambres withstood Moses, so do these also resist the truth, men of corrupt minds, reprobate concerning the faith.

9 <sup>1</sup>But they shall prevail no longer: for their madness shall be evident unto all men, as theirs also was.

2:15 <sup>1</sup>The fifth admonition: A minister must not be an idle disputer, but a faithful steward in dividing aright the word of truth, insomuch that he must stop the mouths of other vain babblers.

<sup>2</sup>By adding nothing to it, neither overslipping anything, neither mangling it, nor renting it in sunder, nor wresting of it: but marking diligently what his hearers are able to hear, and what is fit to edifying.

2:16 <sup>1</sup>Mark and watch, and see they creep not on further.

<sup>2</sup>He discovereth the subtlety of Satan, who beginning with these principles draweth us by little and little to ungodliness through the means of that wicked and profane babbling, still creeping on: which he proveth by the horrible example of them that taught that, the resurrection was already past.

2:19 <sup>1</sup>A digression: wherein he saveth that offense that rose by their falling away: showing first, that the elect are out of all danger of any such falling away: secondly, that they are known to God and not to us: and therefore it is no marvel if we count hypocrites oftentimes for true brethren: but we must take heed that we be not like them, but rather that we be indeed, such as we are said to be.

<sup>2</sup>That serveth and worshippeth him, and is as it were named of him, a faithful man or Christian.

2:20 <sup>1</sup>The taking away of an objection: it is no dishonor to the good man of the house, that he hath not in a great house all vessels of one sort and for one service, but we must look to this, that we be found vessels prepared to honor.

2:21 <sup>1</sup>By these words is meant the execution of the matter, and not the cause: for in that we purge ourselves, it is not to be attributeth to any free will that is in us, but to God, who freely and wholly worketh in us a good and an effectual will.

2:22 <sup>1</sup>Returning to the matter from whence he digressed, verse 16, he warneth him to exercise himself in weighty matters, and such as pertain to godliness.

<sup>2</sup>The sixth admonition: We must above all things eschew all bitterness of mind both in teaching all men, and also in calling them back which have gone out of the way.

2:24 <sup>1</sup>To win them through our patient bearing with them, but not to please them or excuse them in their wickedness.

2:25 <sup>1</sup>He meaneth such as do not yet see the truth.

3:1 <sup>1</sup>The seventh admonition: We may not hope for any Church in this world without corruption: but there shall be rather great abundance of most wicked men, even in the very bosom of the Church, which notwithstanding shall make a show and countenance of great holiness and charity.

3:2 <sup>1</sup>Which make no account, either of right or honesty.

3:5 <sup>1</sup>We must not dally with such men as resist the truth not of simple ignorance, but of a perverse mind, (which thing appeareth by their fruits which he painteth out here lively) but we must rather turn away from them.

3:9 <sup>1</sup>He addeth a comfort: The Lord will at length pluck off all their vizards.

10 ¶ <sup>1</sup>But thou hast <sup>2</sup>fully known my doctrine, manner of living, purpose, faith, longsuffering, love, patience, 11 Persecutions, and afflictions which came unto me at <sup>1</sup>Antioch, at Iconium, and at Lystra, which persecutions I suffered: but from them all the Lord delivered me.

12 Yea, and all that will live godly in Christ Jesus, shall suffer persecution.

13 But the evil men and deceivers shall wax <sup>1</sup>worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived.

14 But continue thou in the things which thou hast learned, and which are committed unto thee, knowing of whom thou hast learned them:

15 And that thou hast known the holy Scriptures of a child, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation, through the faith which is in Christ Jesus.

16 <sup>1</sup>For the whole Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable to teach, to convince, to correct, and to instruct in righteousness, 17 That the <sup>1</sup>man of God may be absolute, being made perfect unto all good works.

4 <sup>1</sup>He chargeth him to preach the Gospel with all diligence, <sup>3</sup>in that so miserable a time: <sup>6</sup>that his death is hard at hand, <sup>8</sup>yet so, that as a conqueror he maketh haste to a glorious triumph. <sup>10</sup>He showeth the cause why he sendeth for Timothy, <sup>11</sup>even by reason of his present state.

1 I <sup>1</sup>Charge thee therefore before God, and before the Lord Jesus Christ, which shall judge the quick and dead at that his appearing, and in his kingdom,

2 Preach the word: be instant, in season, and out of season: improve, rebuke, exhort with all longsuffering and doctrine.

3 <sup>1</sup>For the time will come when they will not suffer wholesome doctrine: but having their ears itching, shall after their own lusts get them an heap of teachers,

4 And shall turn their ears from the truth, and shall be given unto <sup>1</sup>fables.

5 <sup>1</sup>But watch thou in all things: suffer adversity: do the work of an Evangelist: <sup>2</sup>cause thy ministry to be thoroughly liked of.

6 <sup>1</sup>For I am now ready to be <sup>2</sup>offered, and the time of my departing is at hand.

7 I have fought a good fight, and have finished my course: I have kept the faith.

8 For henceforth is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord the righteous Judge shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love that his appearing.

9 <sup>1</sup>Make speed to come unto me at once:

10 For Demas hath forsaken me, and hath <sup>1</sup>embraced this present world, and is departed unto Thessalonica. Crescens is gone to Galatia, Titus unto Dalmatia.

11 <sup>1</sup>Only Luke is with me. Take Mark and bring him with thee: for he is profitable unto me to minister.

12 And Tychicus have I sent to Ephesus.

13 The cloak that I left at Troas with Carpus, when thou comest, bring with thee, and the books, but specially the parchments.

14 Alexander the coppersmith hath done me much evil: the Lord reward him according to his works.

15 Of whom be thou ware also: for he withstood our preaching sore.

16 At my first answering no man assisted me, but all forsook me: I pray God, that it may not be laid to their charge.

17 Notwithstanding the Lord assisted me, and strengthened me, that by me the preaching might be fully believed, and that all the Gentiles should

3:10 <sup>1</sup> That we be not deceived by such hypocrites, we must set before us the virtues of the holy servants of God, and we must not be afraid of persecution, which they suffered willingly, and which always followeth true godliness. But we must especially hold fast the doctrine of the Apostles, the sum whereof is this, that we are saved through faith in Christ Jesus.

<sup>2</sup> Thou knowest thoroughly, not only what I taught and did, but also how I was minded and disposed.

3:13 <sup>1</sup> Their wickedness shall daily increase.

3:16 <sup>1</sup> The eighth admonition, which is most precious: A Pastor must be wise by the word of God only: wherein we have perfectly delivered unto us, whatsoever pertaineth either to discern, know and establish true opinions, and to confute false, and furthermore, to correct evil manners, and to frame good.

3:17 <sup>1</sup> The Prophets and expounders of God's will, are properly and peculiarly called, Men of God.

4:1 <sup>1</sup> The principal and chief of all admonitions, being therefore proposed with a most earnest charge, is this: That the word of God be propounded with a certain holy importunity, as necessity requireth:

but so, that a good and true ground of the doctrine be laid, and the vehemency be tempered with all holy meekness.

4:3 <sup>1</sup> Faithful Pastors in times past took all occasions they could, because men were very prompt and ready to return to their fables.

4:4 <sup>1</sup> To false and unprofitable doctrines, which the world is now so bewitched withal, that it had rather the open light of the truth were utterly put out, when it would come out of darkness.

4:5 <sup>1</sup> The wickedness and falling away of the world, ought to cause faithful ministers to be so much the more careful.

<sup>2</sup> Prove and show by good and substantial proof, that thou art the true minister of God.

4:6 <sup>1</sup> He foretelleth his death to be at hand, and setteth before them an excellent example, both of invincible constancy and sure hope.

<sup>2</sup> To be offered for a drink offering: and he alludeth to the pouring out of blood or wine which was used in sacrifices.

4:9 <sup>1</sup> The last part of the Epistle, setting forth grievous complaints against certain, and examples of singular godliness in every place, and of a mind never wearied.

4:10 <sup>1</sup> Contented himself with this world.

hear: and I was delivered out of the mouth of the <sup>1</sup>lion.

18 And the Lord will deliver me from every <sup>1</sup>evil work, and will preserve me unto his <sup>2</sup>heavenly kingdom: to whom be praise for ever and ever, Amen.

19 Salute Prisca and Aquila, and the <sup>1</sup>household of Onesiphorus.

21 Make speed to come before winter. Eubulus greeteth thee, and Pudens, and Linus, and Claudia, and all the brethren.

22 The Lord Jesus Christ be with thy Spirit. Grace be with you, Amen.

¶ The second Epistle written from Rome unto Timothy, the first Bishop elected of the Church of Ephesus, when Paul was presented the second time before the Emperor Nero.

4:17 <sup>1</sup> Of Nero.

4:18 <sup>1</sup> Preserve me pure from committing anything unworthy my Apostleship.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL TO TITUS

1 <sup>6</sup> He showeth what kind of men ought to be chosen <sup>1</sup> Ministers: <sup>10</sup> how vain babblers' mouths should be stopped: <sup>12</sup> and through this occasion he toucheth the nature of the Cretans, <sup>14</sup> and the Jews, who put boldness in outward things.

1 Paul <sup>1a</sup> <sup>2</sup>servant of God, and an Apostle of Jesus Christ, according to the faith of God's <sup>3</sup>elect, <sup>4</sup>and the acknowledging of the truth, which is according unto godliness.

2 Unto the <sup>1</sup>hope of eternal life, which God that cannot lie, hath <sup>2</sup>promised before the <sup>4,3</sup>world began:

3 <sup>1</sup>But hath made his word manifest in due time through the preaching, which is <sup>b</sup>committed unto me according to the commandment of God our <sup>2</sup>Savior:

4 <sup>1</sup>To Titus my natural son according to the common faith, <sup>2</sup>Grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ our Savior.

pointed thee.

6 <sup>1</sup>If any be unreprouceable, the husband of one wife, having faithful children, which are not slandered of riot, neither are <sup>1</sup>disobedient.

7 <sup>1</sup>For a Bishop must be unreprouceable, as God's <sup>2</sup>steward, not <sup>3</sup>froward, not angry, not given to wine, no striker, not given to filthy lucre,

8 But harberous, one that loveth goodness, <sup>1</sup>wise, righteous, holy, temperate,

9 <sup>1</sup>Holding fast that faithful word according to doctrine, <sup>2</sup>that he also may be able to exhort with wholesome doctrine, and convince them that say against it.

10 <sup>1</sup>For there are many disobedient and vain talkers and deceivers of minds, chiefly they of the <sup>2</sup>Circumcision,

11 Whose mouths must be stopped, which subvert whole houses, teaching things which they ought not, for filthy lucre's sake.

12 <sup>1</sup>One of themselves, even one of their own Prophets said, The Cretans are always liars, evil beasts, slow bellies.

1:1 <sup>1</sup> He voucheth his Apostleship, (not for Titus, but for the Cretans' sake) both by the testimony of his outward calling, and by his consent wherein he agreeth with all the elect from the beginning of the world.

<sup>2</sup> Minister, as Christ himself, in that that he was a minister and head of the Prophets, is called a servant, Isa. 43:10.

<sup>4</sup> The faith wherein all the elect consent, is the true and sincere knowledge of God, tending to this end, that worshipping God aright that they at length obtain life everlasting according to the promise of God, who is true, which promise was exhibited to Christ in due time according to his eternal purpose.

1:2 <sup>1</sup> Hope is the end of faith.

1:3 <sup>1</sup> This truth is no other where to be sought, but in the preaching of the Apostle.

<sup>2</sup> This word (Savior) doth not only signify a preserver of life, but also a giver of life.

1:4 <sup>1</sup> The Apostle moveth the Cretans to hear Titus, by setting forth his consent and agreement with him in the faith, and therewithal showeth by what special note we may distinguish true ministers from false.

<sup>2</sup> There is but one way of salvation, common both to the Pastor and the flock.

1:5 <sup>1</sup> The first admonition, to ordain Elders in every city.

1:6 <sup>1</sup> This word is proper to horses and oxen, which will not abide the yoke.

1:7 <sup>1</sup> The second admonition, what faults pastors (whom he comprehended afore under the word Elders) ought to be void of, and what virtues they ought to have.

1:8 <sup>1</sup> Circumspect, of a sound judgment, and of a singular example of moderation.

1:9 <sup>1</sup> The third admonition: The Pastor must hold fast that doctrine, which the Apostles delivered, and pertaineth to salvation, leaving all curious and vain matters.

<sup>2</sup> The fourth admonition: To apply the knowledge of true doctrine unto use, which consisteth in two things, to wit, in governing them which show themselves apt to learn, and confuting the obstinate.

1:10 <sup>1</sup> An applying of the general proposition to a particular: The Cretans above all others need sharp reprehensions: both because their minds are naturally given to lies and slothfulness, and also because of certain covetous Jews, which under a color of godliness joined partly certain vain traditions, and partly old ceremonies with the Gospel.

<sup>2</sup> Of the Jews, or rather of those Jews, which went about to join Christ and the Law together.

1:12 <sup>1</sup> Epimenides, who was counted a Prophet amongst them. Look upon Laetius and Cicero in his first book of Divination.

13 This witness is true: wherefore convince them <sup>1</sup>sharply, that they may be sound in the faith.

14 And not taking heed to <sup>4</sup>Jewish fables and commandments of men, that turn away from the truth.

15 <sup>1</sup>Unto the pure <sup>2</sup>are all things pure, but unto them that are defiled, and unbelieving, is nothing pure, but even their <sup>2</sup>minds and consciences are defiled.

16 They profess that they know God, but by works they deny him, and are abominable and disobedient, and unto every good work reprobate.

2 2 He setteth out the duties of sundry persons and states, 6 and willeth him to instruct the Church in manners. 11 He draweth an argument from the end of our redemption, 12 which is, that we live godly and uprightly.

1 But <sup>1</sup>speak thou the things which become wholesome doctrine,

2 <sup>1</sup>That the elder men be watchful, grave, temperate, sound in the faith, in love, and in patience:

3 The elder women likewise, that they be in such behavior as becometh holiness, not false accusers, not subject to much wine, but teachers of honest things.

4 That they may instruct the young women to be sober minded, that they love their husbands, that they love their children,

5 That they be temperate, chaste, 1keeping at home, good and 2subject unto their husbands, that the word of God be not evil spoken of.

6 Exhort young men likewise, that they be sober minded.

7 <sup>1</sup>In all things show thyself an example of good works with uncorrupt doctrine, with <sup>2</sup>gravity, integrity,

9 <sup>b1</sup>Let servants be subject to their masters, and please them in all <sup>2</sup>things, not answering again,

10 Neither pickers, but that they show all good faithfulness, that they may adorn the doctrine of God our Savior in all things.

11 <sup>c1</sup>For that grace of God, that bringeth salvation unto all men, hath appeared,

12 And teacheth us, that we should deny ungodliness and <sup>1</sup>worldly lusts, and that we should live soberly and righteously, and godly in this present world,

13 <sup>1</sup>Looking for that blessed hope, and appearing of that glory of that mighty God, and of our Savior Jesus Christ.

14 Who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purge us to be a <sup>1</sup>peculiar people unto himself, zealous of good works.

15 These things speak, and exhort, and convince with all <sup>1</sup>authority. See that no man despise thee.

3 1 He willeth that all generally be put in mind to reverence such as be in authority: 3 That they remember their former life, and attribute all justification unto grace. 9 And if any brabblor withstand these things, 10 he willeth that he be rejected.

1 Put <sup>1</sup>them in remembrance that they <sup>2</sup>be subject to the principalities and powers, and that they be obedient, and ready to every good work.

2 That they speak evil of no man, that they be no fighters, but soft, showing all meekness unto all men.

3 <sup>b1</sup> For we ourselves also were in times past unwise, disobedient, deceived, serving the lusts and

1:13 <sup>1</sup> Roughly and plainly, and go not about the bush with them.

1:15 <sup>1</sup> He showeth in few words, that purity consisteth not in any external worship, and that that is according to the old Law, (as in difference of meats, and washing, and other such things which are abolished) but in the mind and conscience: and whosoever teach otherwise, know not what is true religion indeed, and also are nothing less than that they would seem to be.

<sup>2</sup> If our minds and conscience be unclean, what cleanness is there in us before regeneration?

2:1 <sup>1</sup> The fifth admonition: The doctrine must not only be generally pure, but also be applied to all ages and orders of men, according to the diversity of circumstances.

2:2 <sup>1</sup> What are the chiefest virtues for old and young, both men and women: and how they ought to be stirred up unto them continually.

2:5 <sup>1</sup> No gadders up and down.

2:7 <sup>1</sup> The sixth admonition: That both the Pastor's life and doctrine must be sound.

<sup>2</sup> Not such a gravity as may drive men from coming to the minister, but such as may cause them to come in most reverent and honest sort.

2:9 <sup>1</sup> The seventh admonition, of servants' duty toward their masters.

<sup>2</sup> Which may be done without offense to God.

2:11 <sup>1</sup> The eighth admonition belonging to all the godly, that seeing God calleth all men to the Gospel, and Christ hath so justified us, that he hath also sanctified us, we must all of us give ourselves to true godliness and righteousness, setting before us a sure hope of that immeasurable glory: which thing must in such sort be beaten into their heads, that the gainsayers also must be reprov'd, by the authority of the mighty God.

2:12 <sup>1</sup> Lusts of the flesh, which belong to the present state of this life and world.

2:13 <sup>1</sup> Christ is here most plainly called that mighty God, and his appearance and coming is called by the figure Metonymy, our hope.

2:14 <sup>1</sup> As it were a thing peculiarly laid up for himself.

2:15 <sup>1</sup> With all authority possible.

3:1 <sup>1</sup> He declareth particularly and severally, that which he said before generally, noting out certain chief and principal duties, which men owe to men, and especially subjects to their magistrates.

3:3 <sup>1</sup> He confirmeth again the former exhortation, by propounding the free benefit of our regeneration, the pledge whereof is our Baptism.

divers pleasures, living in maliciousness and envy, hateful, and hating one another.

4 But when that bountifulness and that love of God our Savior toward man appeared,

5 ¶Not by the works of <sup>1</sup>righteousness, which we had done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of the new birth, and the renewing of the <sup>2</sup>holy Ghost,

6 Which he shed on us abundantly, through Jesus Christ our Savior,

7 That we, being justified by his grace, should be made heirs according to the hope of eternal life.

8 <sup>1</sup>This is a true saying, and these things I will thou shouldest affirm, that they which have believed God, might be careful to show forth <sup>2</sup>good works. These things are good and profitable unto men.

9 ¶But stay foolish questions, and genealogies, and contentions, and brawlings about the Law: for they are unprofitable and vain.

1 Tim. 4:7

10 <sup>1</sup>Reject him that is an heretic, after once or twice admonition, 11 Knowing that he that is such, is perverted, and sinneth, being damned of his own self.

12 <sup>1</sup>When I shall send Artemas unto thee, or Tychicus, be diligent to come to me unto Nicopolis: for I have determined there to winter.

13 Bring Zenas the expounder of the Law, and Apollos on their journey diligently, that they lack nothing.

14 And let ours also learn to show forth good works for necessary uses, that they be not unfruitful.

15 All that are with me, salute thee. Greet them that love us in the faith. Grace be with you all. Amen.

¶ To Titus, elect the first Bishop of the Church of the Cretans, written from Nicopolis in Macedonia.

3:5 <sup>1</sup> Word for word, of works which are done in righteousness: and this place doth fully refute the doctrine of merits.

3:8 <sup>1</sup> Again with great earnestness he beateeth into our heads, how that we ought to give ourselves, to true godliness, and eschew all vain questions, which serve to nothing but to move strife and debate.

3:10 <sup>1</sup> The ministers of the word must at once cast off heretics, that is, such as stubbornly and seditiously disquiet the Church, and will give no ear to Ecclesiastical admonitions.

3:12 <sup>1</sup> Least of all, he writeth a word or two of private matters and commendeth certain men.

THE EPISTLE OF PAUL TO PHILEMON

1 Paul handling a base and small matter, yet according to his manner mounteth aloft unto God. 8 Sending again to Philemon his vagabond and thievish servant, he entreateth pardon for him, and very gravely preacheth of Christian equity.

1 Paul a prisoner of Jesus Christ, and our brother Timothy, unto Philemon our dear friend, and fellow helper,

2 And to our dear sister Apphia, and to Archipus our fellow soldier, and to the Church that is in thine house:

3 Grace be with you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

4 I give thanks to my God, making mention always of thee in my prayers,

5 (When I hear of thy love and faith, which thou hast toward the Lord Jesus, and toward all Saints.)

6 That the fellowship of thy faith may be made effectual, and that whatsoever good thing is in you through Christ Jesus, may be known.

7 For we have great joy and consolation in thy love, because by thee, brother, the Saints bowels are comforted.

8 Wherefore, though I be very bold in Christ to command thee that which is convenient, 9 Yet for love's sake I rather beseech thee, though I be as I am, even Paul aged, and even now a prisoner for Jesus Christ.

10 I beseech thee for my son Onesimus, whom I have begotten in my bonds, 11 Which in times past was to thee unprofitable, but now profitable both to thee and to me.

12 Whom I have sent again: thou therefore receive him, that is mine own bowels,

13 Whom I would have received with me, that in thy stead he might have ministered unto me in the bonds of the Gospel.

14 But without thy mind would I do nothing, that thy benefit should not be as it were of necessity, but willingly.

15 It may be that he therefore departed for season, that thou shouldest receive him forever,

16 Not now as a servant, but above a servant, even as a brother beloved, specially to me: how much more then unto thee, both in the flesh and in the Lord?

17 If therefore thou count our things common, receive him as myself.

18 If he hath hurt thee, or oweth thee ought, that put on my accounts.

19 I Paul have written this with mine own hand: I will recompense it, albeit I do not say to thee, that thou owest moreover unto me even thine own self.

20 Yea, brother, let me obtain this pleasure of thee in the Lord: comfort my bowels in the Lord.

21 Trusting in thine obedience, I wrote unto thee knowing that thou wilt do even more than I say, 22 Moreover also prepare me lodging: for I trust through your prayers I shall be freely given unto you.

23 There salute thee Epaphras my fellow prisoner in Christ Jesus,

24 Mark, Aristarchus, Demas and Luke, my fellow helpers.

25 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit, Amen.

¶ Written from Rome to Philemon, and sent by Onesimus a servant.

1:6 <sup>1</sup> By fellowship of faith, he meaneth those duties of charity which are bestowed upon the Saints, and flow forth of an effectual faith.

<sup>2</sup> That by this means all men may perceive how rich you are in Christ, to wit, in faith, charity, and all bountifulness.

1:7 <sup>1</sup> Because thou didst so dutifully and cheerfully refresh the Saints, that they conceived inwardly a marvelous joy: for by this word (Bowels) is meant not only the inward feeling of wants and miseries that men have one of another's state, but also that joy and comfort which entereth into the very bowels, as though the heart were refreshed and comforted.

1:9 <sup>1</sup> An example of a Christian exercise and commendation for another man.

1:12 <sup>1</sup> As mine own son, and as if I had begotten him of mine own body.

1:14 <sup>1</sup> That thou mightest not seem to have lent me thy servant upon constraint, but willingly.

1:15 <sup>1</sup> Thus he assuageth the harder kind of speech, which is to say, he ran away.

1:16 <sup>1</sup> Because he is thy servant, as other servants are, and because he is the Lord's servant, so that thou must needs love him both for the Lord's sake, and for thine own sake.

1:20 <sup>1</sup> Good brother let me obtain this benefit at thine hand.

THE EPISTLE TO THE HEBREWS

The drift and end of this Epistle, is to show that Jesus Christ the Son of God both God and man, is that true eternal and only Prophet, King, and high Priest, that was shadowed by the figures of the old Law, and is now indeed exhibited: of whom the whole Church ought to be taught, governed and sanctified.

1 <sup>2</sup>To show that the doctrine which Christ brought, is most excellent, in that it is the knitting up of all prophecies. <sup>4</sup>he advanceth him above the Angels: <sup>10</sup>And proveth by divers testimonies of the Scripture, that he far passeth all others.

1 At <sup>1</sup>sundry times and in divers manners God spake in the old time to our fathers by the Prophets: in these <sup>2</sup>last days he hath spoken unto us by his <sup>3</sup>Son,

2 <sup>1</sup>Whom he hath made <sup>2</sup>heir of all things, by whom also he made the <sup>3</sup>worlds,

3 <sup>a</sup>Who being the <sup>1</sup>brightness of the glory, and the engraved form of his <sup>2</sup>person, and <sup>3</sup>bearing up all things by his mighty word: <sup>4</sup>hath by himself purged our sins: and <sup>5</sup>sitteth at the right hand of the Majesty in the highest places,

4 <sup>1</sup>And is made so much more excellent than the Angels, inasmuch as he hath obtained a more excellent <sup>2</sup>Name than they.

6 And <sup>1</sup>again, when he bringeth in his first begotten Son into the world, he saith, <sup>d</sup>And let all the Angels of God worship him.

7 And of the Angels he saith, <sup>e</sup>He maketh the spirits his <sup>1</sup>messengers, and his ministers a flame <sup>2</sup>of fire.

1:1 <sup>1</sup>The first part of the general proposition of this Epistle: the Son of God is indeed that Prophet or teacher, which hath actually now performed that that God after a sort and in shadows signified by his Prophets, and hath fully opened his Father's will to the world.

<sup>2</sup> So that the former declaration made by the Prophets was not full, and nothing must be added to this latter.

1:2 <sup>1</sup>The second part of the same proposition: The same Son is appointed by the Father to be our King and Lord, by whom also he made all things, and in whom only he setteth forth his glory, yea and himself also to be beholden of us, who beareth up and sustaineth all things by his will and pleasure.

1:3 <sup>1</sup>He in whom that glory and Majesty of the Father shineth, who is otherwise infinite, and cannot be beholden.

<sup>4</sup> The third part of the same proposition. The same Son executed the office of the high Priest in offering up himself, and is our only and most mighty Mediator in heaven.

<sup>5</sup> This showeth that the savor of that his sacrifice is not only most acceptable to the Father, but also is everlasting, and furthermore how far this high Priest passeth all the other high Priests.

1:4 <sup>1</sup>Before he cometh to declare the office of Christ, he setteth forth the excellency of his person, and first of all he showeth him so to be man, that therewithal he is God also.

1:5 <sup>1</sup>He proveth and confirmeth the dignity of Christ manifested in the flesh by these six evident testimonies, whereby it appeareth that he far passeth all Angels, insomuch that he is called both Son, and God, in verses 5, 6, 7, 10, 13.

<sup>2</sup> The Father begat the Son from everlasting, but that everlasting generation was made manifest and represented to the world in his time, and therefore he addeth this word (Today)

1:6 <sup>1</sup>The Lord was not content to have spoken it once, but repeateth it in another place.

1:7 <sup>1</sup>Cherub, Ps 18:11.

1:8 <sup>1</sup>The throne is proper to the Prince, and not to the servant.

1:9 <sup>1</sup>This kind of rehearsing in which the Jews use contraries, hath great force in it.

<sup>2</sup> In that, that the word became flesh, by pouring the holy Ghost upon him without measure.

time, <sup>b</sup>Sit at my right hand, till I make thine enemies thy footstool?

14 Are they not all <sup>1</sup>ministering spirits, sent forth to minister, for their sakes which shall be heirs of salvation?

2 <sup>1</sup> Thereof he inferreth, that good heed must be given to Christ's doctrine: <sup>9</sup> And he setteth him out unto us even as our brother in our flesh, that we may with a good will yield up ourselves wholly unto him.

1 Wherefore <sup>1</sup>we ought diligently to give heed to the things which <sup>2</sup>we have heard, lest at any time we <sup>3</sup>run out.

2 For if the <sup>1</sup>word spoken by Angels was steadfast, and every transgression, and disobedience received a just recompense of reward,

3 How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation, <sup>1</sup>which at the first began to be preached by the Lord, and afterward was confirmed unto us by <sup>2</sup>them that heard him.

the holy Ghost, according to his own will?

5 <sup>1</sup>For he hath not put in subjection unto the Angels the <sup>2</sup>world to come, whereof we speak.

6 <sup>1</sup>But <sup>b</sup>one in a certain place witnessed, saying, <sup>2</sup>What is man, that thou shouldest be mindful of him? or the <sup>3</sup>son of man, that thou wouldest consider him?

7 Thou <sup>1</sup>madest him a little inferior to the Angels: thou crownedst him with <sup>2</sup>glory and honor, and hast set him above the works of thine hands.

8 Thou hast put all things in subjection under his feet. And in that he hath put all things in subjection under him, he left nothing that should not be subject unto him. <sup>1</sup>But we yet see not all things subdued unto him, 9 <sup>1</sup>But we <sup>2</sup>see Jesus crowned with glory and honor, <sup>a</sup>which was made little <sup>3</sup>inferior to the Angels, <sup>4</sup>through the <sup>5</sup>suffering of death, that by God's grace he might <sup>6</sup>taste death for <sup>7</sup>all men.

10 <sup>1</sup>For it became <sup>2</sup>him, for whom are all these things, and by whom are all these things, <sup>3</sup>seeing that he brought many children unto glory, <sup>4</sup>that

1:14 <sup>1</sup> By that name by which we commonly call Princes' messengers, he here calleth the spirits.

2:1 <sup>1</sup> Now as it were pausing with himself and showing to what end and purpose all these things were spoken, to wit, to understand by the excellency of Christ above all creatures, that his doctrine, majesty and Priesthood is most perfect, he useth an exhortation taken from a comparison.

<sup>3</sup> They are said to let the word run out, which hold it not fast when they have heard it.

2:2 <sup>1</sup> The Law which appointed punishment for the offenders: and which Paul saith was given by Angels, Gal. 3:19, and Stephen, Acts 7:53.

2:3 <sup>1</sup> If the breach and transgression of the word spoken by Angels was not suffered unpunished, much less shall it be lawful for us to neglect the Gospel which the Lord of Angels preached, and was confirmed by the voice of the Apostles, and with so many signs and wonders from heaven, and especially with so great and mighty working of the holy Ghost.

2:4 <sup>1</sup> This is the true end of miracles. Now they are called signs, because they appear one thing, and represent another: and they are called wonders, because they represent some strange and unaccustomed things and virtues, because they give us a glimpse of God's mighty power.

2:5 <sup>1</sup> If it were an heinous matter to contemn the Angels which are but servants, much more heinous is it to contemn that most mighty King of the restored world.

<sup>2</sup> The world to come, whereof Christ is Father, Isa. 9:6, or the Church, which as a new world, was to be gathered together by the Gospel.

2:6 <sup>1</sup> He showeth that the use of this kingly dignity consisteth herein, that men might not only [in] Christ recover that dignity which they have lost, but also might be through him advanced above all things, which dignity of men David describeth most excellently.

<sup>2</sup> What is there in man that thou shouldest have so great regard of him, and do him that honor?

<sup>3</sup> He calleth all the citizens of that heavenly kingdom as they are considered in themselves, before that God giveth them the liberty, of that city in Christ, Man, and Son of man.

2:7 <sup>1</sup> This is the first honor of the citizens of the world to come, that they are next [to] the Angels.

<sup>2</sup> For they shall be in very great honor, when they shall be partakers of the kingdom. And he speaketh of the thing that shall be, as though it were already, because it is so certain.

2:8 <sup>1</sup> An objection: But where is this so great rule and dominion?

2:9 <sup>1</sup> The answer: this is already fulfilled in Jesus Christ our head, who was for a time for our sakes inferior to the Angels, being made man: but now is advanced into most high glory.

<sup>4</sup> He showeth the cause of this subjection, to wit, to taste of death for our sakes, that so doing the part of a redeemer, he might not only be our Prophet and King, but also our high Priest.

<sup>7</sup> Herein consisteth the force of the argument: for we could not at length be glorified with him, unless he was abased for us even all the faithful. And by this occasion the Apostle cometh to the other part of the declaration of Christ's person, wherein he proveth him to be in such sort God, and he is also man.

2:10 <sup>1</sup> He proveth moreover by other arguments, why it behooveth the Son of God who is true God (as he proveth a little before) to become man notwithstanding, subject to all miseries, sin only except.

<sup>3</sup> First of all, because the Father, to whose glory all these things are to be referred, purposed to bring many sons unto glory. And how could he have men for his sons, unless his only begotten Son had become brother to men?

<sup>4</sup> Secondly, The Father determined to bring those sons to glory, to wit, out of that ignominy wherein they lay before. Therefore the Son should not have been seen plainly to be made man, unless he had been made like unto other men, that he might come to glory in the selfsame way, by which he should bring others: yea rather, it became him which was Prince of the salvation of others, to be consecrated above others, through those afflictions, Prophet, King, and Priest, which are the parts of that principality for the salvation of others.

he should consecrate the <sup>5</sup>Prince of their salvation through afflictions.

11 <sup>1</sup>For he that <sup>2</sup>sanctifieth, and they which are sanctified, are all of <sup>3</sup>one: wherefore he is not ashamed to call them brethren, 12 <sup>1</sup>Saying, I will declare thy Name unto my brethren: in the midst of the Church will I sing praises to thee.

13 <sup>1</sup>And again, I will put my <sup>2</sup>trust in him. And again, <sup>8,2</sup>Behold, here am I, and the children which God hath given me.

14 Forasmuch then as the children are <sup>1</sup>partakers of flesh and blood, he also himself likewise took part with them, that he might destroy <sup>h</sup>through death, him that had the <sup>2</sup>power of death, that is, the <sup>3</sup>devil,

15 And that he might deliver all them, which for fear of <sup>1</sup>death were all their lifetime subject to bondage.

16 <sup>1</sup>For he in no sort took on him the <sup>2</sup>Angels' nature, but he took on him the <sup>3</sup>seed of Abraham.

17 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore in <sup>2</sup>all things it behooved him to be made like unto his brethren, that he might be <sup>3</sup>merciful, and a <sup>4</sup>faithful high Priest in things concerning God, that he might make reconciliation for the sins of the people.

18 For in that he suffered, and was <sup>1</sup>tempted, he is able to succor them that are tempted.

3 <sup>1</sup>Now he showeth how far inferior Moses is to Christ, 5, 6 even so much as the servant to the Master: and so he bringeth in certain exhortations and threatenings taken out of David, 8 against such as either stubbornly resist, 12 or else are very slow to obey.

1 Therefore, <sup>1</sup>holy brethren, partakers of the heavenly vocation, consider the <sup>2</sup>Apostle and high Priest of our <sup>3</sup>profession Christ Jesus:

2 <sup>1</sup>Who was faithful to him that hath <sup>2</sup>appointed him, <sup>3</sup>even as <sup>4</sup>Moses was in all his house.

3 <sup>1</sup>For this man is counted worthy of more glory than Moses, inasmuch as he which hath builded the house, hath more honor than the house.

4 For every house is builded of some man, and he that hath built all things, is God.

<sup>5</sup> The Chieftain, who as he is chiefest in dignity, so is he the first begotten from among the dead, amongst many brethren.

2:11 <sup>1</sup> The ground of both the former arguments: for neither should we be sons through him, neither could he be consecrated through afflictions, unless he hath been made man like unto us. But because this Sonhood dependeth not upon nature only, for no man is accounted the son of God, unless that besides that he is a son of a man, he be also Christ's brother, (which is by sanctification, that is, by becoming one with Christ, who sanctifieth us through faith) therefore the Apostle maketh mention of the sanctifier, to wit, of Christ, and of them that are sanctified, to wit, of all the faithful, whom therefore Christ vouchsafeth to call brethren.

<sup>2</sup> He useth the time that now is, to show us that we are yet still going on, and increasing in this sanctification, and by sanctification he meaneth our separation from the rest of the world, our cleansing from sin, and our dedication wholly unto God, all which Christ alone worketh in us.

2:12 <sup>1</sup> That which he taught before of the incarnation of the sanctifier, he applieth to the prophetic office.

2:13 <sup>1</sup> He applieth the same to the kingly power of Christ in delivering his from the power of the devil and death.

<sup>2</sup> I will commit myself to him, and to his defense.

<sup>3</sup> This Isaiah speaketh of himself and his disciples, but betokening thereby all ministers, as also his disciples signify the whole Church. And therefore seeing Christ is the head of the Prophets and ministers, these words are more rightly verified of him, than of Isaiah.

2:14 <sup>1</sup> Are made of flesh and blood which is a frail and brittle nature.

<sup>2</sup> The devil is said to have the power of death, because he is the author of sin: and from sin cometh death, and for this cause he eggeth us daily to sin.

<sup>3</sup> He speaketh of one as of the Prince, joining to him secretly all his angels.

2:15 <sup>1</sup> By (death) thou must understand here that death which is joined with the wrath of God, as it must needs be, if it be without Christ, then there can be nothing devised more miserable.

2:16 <sup>1</sup> He expoundeth those words of flesh and blood, showing that Christ is true man, and not by turning his divine nature, but by taking on man's nature. And he nameth Abraham, respecting the promises made to Abraham in this behalf.

2:17 <sup>1</sup> He applieth the same to the Priesthood, for which he should not have benefit, unless he had become man, and that like unto us in all things, sin only except.

<sup>2</sup> Not only as touching nature, but qualities also.

2:18 <sup>1</sup> Was tried and egged to wickedness by the devil.

3:1 <sup>1</sup> Having laid the foundation, that is to say, declared and proved both the natures of one selfsame Christ, he giveth him three offices, to wit, the office of a Prophet, king, and Priest: and as touching the office of teaching and governing, compareth them with Moses and Joshua, unto verse 14 of the next Chapter, and with Aaron touching the Priesthood. And he propoundeth that which he purposeth to speak of, with a most grave exhortation, that all our faith may tend to Christ, as to the only everlasting teacher, governor, and high Priest.

3:2 <sup>1</sup> He confirmeth this exhortation with two reasons, first of all because Christ Jesus was appointed such an one of God: secondly, because he thoroughly executed the offices that his Father enjoined him.

<sup>3</sup> Now he cometh to the comparison with Moses, and he maketh them like one to the other in this, that they were both appointed rulers over God's house, and executed faithfully their office: but by and by after he showeth that there is great unlikeness in that similitude.

3:3 <sup>1</sup> The first comparison: The builder of the house is better than the house itself, therefore is Christ better than Moses. The reason of the consequent is this: because the builder of this house is God, which cannot be attributed to Moses: and therefore Moses was not properly the builder, but a part of the house: but Christ as Lord and God, made all this house.

5 <sup>1</sup>Now Moses verily was faithful in all his house, as a servant, for a witness of the things which should be spoken after.

6 But Christ is as the Son, over his own house, <sup>1</sup>whose <sup>2</sup>house we are, if we hold fast that <sup>3</sup>confidence and that rejoicing of that hope unto the end.

7 Wherefore, as the holy Ghost saith, <sup>b</sup>Today if ye <sup>1</sup>shall hear his voice,

8 Harden not your hearts, as in the <sup>1</sup>provocation, according to the day of the temptation in the wilderness,

9 Where your fathers tempted me, proved me, and saw my works forty years long.

10 Wherefore I was grieved with that generation, and said, They <sup>1</sup>err ever in their heart, neither have they known my ways.

11 Therefore I swear in my wrath, If they shall enter into my rest.

12 <sup>1</sup>Take heed brethren, lest at any time there be in any of you an evil heart, and unfaithful, to depart away from the living God.

13 But exhort one another daily, <sup>1</sup>while it is called today, lest any of you be hardened through the deceitfulness of sin.

14 <sup>1</sup>For we are made partakers of Christ, if we keep sure unto the end that <sup>2</sup>beginning, wherewith we are upholden, 15 <sup>1</sup>So long as it is said, Today if ye hear his voice, harden not your hearts, as in the provocation.

16 For some when they heard, provoked him to anger: howbeit, not all that came out of Egypt by Moses.

17 But with whom was he displeased forty years? Was he not displeased with them that sinned, <sup>c</sup>whose carcasses fell in the wilderness?

18 And to whom swear he that they should not enter into his rest, but unto them that obeyed not?

19 So we see that they could not enter in, because of unbelief.

4 <sup>1</sup> He joineth exhortation with threatening, lest they, even as their fathers were be deprived of the rest offered unto them, <sup>11</sup> but that they endeavor to enter into it. <sup>14</sup> And so he beginneth to entreat of Christ's Priesthood.

1 Let us fear therefore, lest at any time by forsaking the promise of entering into his rest, any of you should seem to be deprived.

2 <sup>1</sup>For unto us was the Gospel preached as also unto them: but the word that they heard, profited not them, because it was not <sup>2</sup>mixed with faith in those that heard it.

3 <sup>1</sup>For we which have believed, do enter into rest, as he said to the other, <sup>a</sup>As I have sworn in my wrath, If they shall enter into my rest: although the works were finished from the foundation of the world.

4 For he spake in a certain place of the seventh day on this wise, <sup>b</sup>And God did rest the seventh day from all his works.

5 And in this place again, If they shall enter into my rest.

6 Seeing therefore it remaineth that some must enter therein, and they to whom it was first preached, entered not therein for unbelief's sake:

7 Again he appointed in David a certain day, by

3:5 <sup>1</sup> Another comparison: Moses was a faithful servant in this house, that is, in the Church, seeing the Lord that was to come, but Christ ruleth and governeth his house as Lord.

3:6 <sup>1</sup> He applieth the former doctrine to this end, exhorting all men by the words of David to hear the Son himself speak, and to give full credit to his words, seeing that otherwise they cannot enter into that eternal rest.

<sup>3</sup> He calleth that excellent effect of faith (whereby we cry, Abba, that is, Father) confidence, and to confidence he joineth hope.

3:7 <sup>1</sup> So that God was to speak once again after Moses.

3:8 <sup>1</sup> In the day that they vexed the Lord, or strove with him.

3:10 <sup>1</sup> They are brutish and mad.

3:12 <sup>1</sup> Now weighing the words of David, he showeth first by this word, Today that we must not neglect the occasion while we have it: for that word is not to be restrained to David's time, but it comprehendeth all the time wherein God calleth us.

3:13 <sup>1</sup> While today lasteth, that is to say, so long as the Gospel is offered to us.

3:14 <sup>1</sup> Now he considereth these words, If you hear his voice, etc., showing that they are spoken and meant of the hearing of faith, against which he setteth hardening through unbelief.

<sup>2</sup> That beginning of trust and confidence: and after the manner of the Hebrews, he calleth that beginning, which is chiefest.

3:15 <sup>1</sup> So long as this voice soundeth out.

4:2 <sup>1</sup> By these words, His voice, he showeth that David meant the preaching of Christ, who was then also preached, for Moses and the Prophets respected none other.

4:3 <sup>1</sup> Lest any man should object, that those words were meant of the Land of Canaan, and of Moses' doctrine, and therefore cannot well be drawn to Christ, and to eternal life, the Apostle showeth that there are two manner of rests spoken of in the Scriptures: the one, of the seventh day, wherein God is said to have rested from all his works: the other is said to be that same, whereinto Joshua led the people: but this rest is not the last rest whereto we are called and that he proveth by two reasons. For seeing that David so long time after, speaking to the people which were then placed in the land of Canaan, useth these words, Today, and threateneth them still that they shall not enter into the rest of God, which refuseth then the voice of God that sounded in their ears, we must needs say that he meant another time than the time of Moses, and another rest than the rest of the land of Canaan: And that is, that everlasting rest, wherein we begin to live to God, after that the race of this life ceaseth: as God resteth the seventh day from those his works, that is to say, from making the world. Moreover, the Apostle therewithal signifieth that the way to this rest, which Moses and the land of Canaan and all that order of the Law did shadow, is opened in the Gospel only.

Today, after so long a time, saying, as it is said, ‘This day, if ye hear his voice, harden not your hearts.

8 For if <sup>1</sup>Jesus had given them rest, then would he not after this have spoken of another day.

9 There remaineth therefore a rest to the people of God.

10 <sup>1</sup>For he that is entered into his rest, hath also ceased from his own works, as God did from his.

11 <sup>1</sup>Let us study therefore to enter into that rest, lest <sup>2</sup>any man fall after the same example of disobedience.

12 <sup>1</sup>For the <sup>2</sup>word of God is <sup>3</sup>lively, and mighty in operation, and sharper than any two edged sword, and entereth through, even unto the dividing asunder of the <sup>4</sup>soul and the <sup>5</sup>spirit, and of the joints, and the marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts, and the intents of the heart.

13 Neither is there any creature, which is not manifest in <sup>1</sup>his sight: but all things are naked and open unto his eyes, with whom we have to do.

14 <sup>1</sup>Seeing then that we have a great high Priest, which is entered into heaven, even Jesus the Son of God, let us <sup>2</sup>hold fast our profession.

15 <sup>1</sup>For we have not an high Priest, which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities, but was in all things tempted in like sort, yet without sin.

16 Let us therefore go boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy, and find grace to help in time of need.

5 <sup>1</sup>First he sheweth the duty of the high Priest: <sup>5</sup> Secondly, that Christ is appointed of God to be our high Priest, <sup>7</sup> and that he hath fulfilled all things belonging thereunto.

1 For <sup>1</sup>every high Priest is taken from among men, and is ordained for men, in things pertaining to God, <sup>2</sup>that he may offer both <sup>3</sup>gifts and <sup>4</sup>sacrifices for sins.

2 Which is <sup>1</sup>able sufficiently to have compassion <sup>2</sup>on them that are ignorant, and that are out of the way, because that he also is <sup>3</sup>compassed with infirmity,

3 And for the same sake he is bound to offer for sins, as well for his own part, as for the peoples.

4 <sup>a</sup>And no man taketh this honor unto himself, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron.

5 So likewise Christ took not to himself this honor to be made the high Priest, but he that said unto him, <sup>b</sup>Thou art my son, this day begat I thee, gave it him.

6 As he also in another place speaketh, ‘Thou art a Priest forever, after the <sup>1</sup>order of Melchizedek,

7 <sup>1</sup>Who in the <sup>2</sup>days of his flesh did offer up prayers and supplications, with strong crying and tears unto him, that was able to <sup>3</sup>save him from death, and was also heard in that which he feared.

8 And though he were the Son, yet <sup>1</sup>learned he

4:8 <sup>1</sup> He speaketh of Joshua the son of Nun: and as the land of Canaan was a figure of our true rest, so was Joshua a figure of Christ.

4:10 <sup>1</sup> As God rested the seventh day, so must we rest from our works, that is, from such as proceed from our corrupt nature.

4:11 <sup>1</sup> He returneth to an exhortation.

4:12 <sup>1</sup> An amplification taken from the nature of the word of God, the power whereof is such, that it entereth even to the deepest and most inward and secret parts of the heart, wounding them deadly that are stubborn, and plainly quickening the believers.

<sup>2</sup> The doctrine of God which is preached both in the Law and in the Gospel.

<sup>3</sup> He calleth the word of God lively by reason of the effects it worketh in them, to whom it is preached.

<sup>4</sup> He calleth that the soul, which hath the affections resident in it.

<sup>5</sup> By the spirit he meaneth that noblest part which is called the mind.

4:13 <sup>1</sup> In God's sight.

4:14 <sup>1</sup> Now he entereth into the comparison of Christ's Priesthood with Aaron's, and declareth even in the very beginning the marvelous excellency of this Priesthood, calling him the Son of God and placing him in the seat of God in heaven, plainly and evidently setting him against Aaron's Priests, and the transitory tabernacle: which comparisons he setteth forth afterward more at large.

<sup>2</sup> And let it not go out of your hands.

4:15 <sup>1</sup> Lest he might seem by this great glory of our high Priest, to stay and stop us from going unto him, he addeth straightways after, that he is notwithstanding our brother indeed, (as he proved it also before) and that he accounteth all our miseries, as his own, to call us boldly to him.

5:1 <sup>1</sup> The first part of the first comparison of Christ's high Priesthood, with Aaron's: Other high Priests are taken from among men, and are called after the order of men.

<sup>2</sup> The first part of the second comparison, Others as weak: are made high Priests, to the end that feeling the same infirmity in themselves which is in all the rest of the people, they should in their own and the people's name offer gifts and sacrifices, which are witnesses of common faith, and repentance.

<sup>4</sup> Beasts which were killed, but especially in the sacrifices for sins and offenses.

5:2 <sup>1</sup> Fit and meet.

<sup>2</sup> On them that are sinful: for in the Hebrew tongue, under ignorance and error is every sin meant, even that sin that is voluntary.

<sup>3</sup> For that he himself beareth about with him a nature subject to the same discommodities and vices.

5:4 <sup>1</sup> The third comparison which is whole: The others are called of God, and so was Christ, but in another order than Aaron: for Christ is called the Son, begotten of God, and a Priest forever after the order of Melchizedek.

5:6 <sup>1</sup> After the likeness or manner as it is afterward declared, Heb. 7:15.

5:7 <sup>1</sup> The other part of the second comparison: Christ being exceedingly afflicted and exceedingly merciful, asked not for his sins, for he had none, but for his fear, and obtained his request, and offered himself for all his.

<sup>2</sup> While he lived here with us in our weak and frail nature.

5:8 <sup>1</sup> He learned indeed what it is to have a Father, whom a man must obey.

obedience, by the things which he suffered.

9 <sup>1</sup>And being <sup>2</sup>consecrated, was made the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him:

10 And is called of God an high Priest after the order of Melchizedek.

11 <sup>1</sup>Of whom we have many things to say, which are hard to be uttered, because ye are dull of hearing.

12 <sup>1</sup>For when as concerning the time ye ought to be teachers, yet have ye need again that we teach you what are the first principles of the word of God: and are become such as have need of milk, and not of strong meat.

13 For everyone that useth milk, is inexpert in the <sup>1</sup>word of righteousness: for he is a babe.

14 But strong meat belongeth to them that are of age, which through long custom have their <sup>1</sup>wits exercised, to discern both good and evil.

1 Therefore, leaving the doctrine of the <sup>1</sup>beginning of Christ, let us be led forward unto perfection, <sup>2</sup>not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God,

2 Of the doctrine of baptisms, and laying on of hands, and of the resurrection from the dead, and of eternal judgment.

3 And this will we do if God permit.

<sup>a</sup> Heb. 10:26
Matt. 12:45
<sup>2</sup> Pet. 1:10

<sup>b</sup> Gen. 12:2
Gen. 17:1
Gen. 22:17

4 <sup>a1</sup> For it is <sup>2</sup>impossible that they which were once lightened, and have <sup>3</sup>tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the holy Ghost,

5 And have tasted of the good word of God, and of the powers of the world to come,

6 If they fall away, should be renewed again by repentance: seeing they <sup>1</sup>crucify again to themselves the Son of God, and make a mock of him.

7 <sup>1</sup>For the earth which drinketh in the rain that cometh oft upon it, and bringeth forth herbs meet for them by whom it is dressed, receiveth blessing of God.

8 But that which beareth thorns and briars, is reproved, and is near unto cursing, whose end is to be burned.

9 <sup>1</sup>But beloved, we have persuaded ourselves better things of you, and such as accompany salvation, though we thus speak.

10 <sup>1</sup>For God is not unrighteous, that he should forget your work, and labor of love, which ye showed toward his Name, in that ye have ministered unto the Saints, and yet minister.

11 And we desire that every one of you show the same diligence, to the full assurance of hope unto the end,

12 <sup>1</sup>That ye be not slothful, but followers of them, which through faith and patience, inherit the promises.

13 <sup>1</sup>For when God made the promise to Abraham, because he had no greater to swear by, he swore by himself,

14 Saying, <sup>b</sup>Surely I will <sup>1</sup>abundantly bless thee, and multiply thee marvelously.

15 And so after that he had tarried patiently, he

5:9 <sup>1</sup> The other part of the first comparison: Christ was consecrate of God the Father as the author of our salvation, and an high Priest forever, and therefore he is so a man that notwithstanding he is far above all men.

5:11 <sup>1</sup> A digression, until he comes to the beginning of the seventh chapter: wherein he partly holdeth the Hebrews in the diligent consideration of those things which he hath said, and partly prepareth them to the understanding of those things whereof he will speak.

5:12 <sup>1</sup> An example of an Apostolic chiding.

5:13 <sup>1</sup> In the word that teacheth righteousness.

5:14 <sup>1</sup> All their power whereby they understand and judge.

6:1 <sup>1</sup> The first principles of Christian religion, which we call the Catechism.

<sup>2</sup> Certain principles of a Catechism, which comprehend the sum of the doctrine of the Gospel, were given in few words and briefly to the rude and ignorant, to wit, the profession of repentance and faith in God: the articles of which doctrine, were demanded of them which were not as yet received members of the Church, at the days appointed for Baptism: and of the children of the faithful which were baptized in their infancy: when hands were laid upon them. And of those articles, two are by name recited: the resurrection of the flesh, and the eternal judgment.

6:4 <sup>1</sup> He addeth a vehemency to his exhortation, and a most sharp threatening of the certain destruction that shall come to them which fall from God and his religion.

<sup>2</sup> He speaketh of a general backsliding, and such as do altogether fall away from the faith, and not of sins which are committed through the frailty of man against the first and the second table.

<sup>3</sup> We must mark the force of this word, for it is one thing to believe as Lydia did, whose heart God opened, Acts 16:13, and another thing to have some taste.

6:6 <sup>1</sup> As men that hate Christ, and as though they crucified him again make him a mocking stock to all the world, and that to their own destruction, as Julian the Apostate or backslider did.

6:7 <sup>1</sup> He setteth forth the former threatening with a similitude.

6:9 <sup>1</sup> He mitigateth and assuageth all that sharpness, hoping better of them to whom he writeth.

6:10 <sup>1</sup> He praiseth them for their charity, thereby encouraging them to go forward, and to hold out to the end.

6:12 <sup>1</sup> He showeth what virtues chiefly they have need of to go forward constantly, and also to profit: to wit, of charity, and patience: and lest any man should object and say, that these things are impossible to be done, he willeth them to set before themselves the examples of their ancestors, and to follow them.

6:13 <sup>1</sup> Another prick to prick them forward: Because the hope of the inheritance is certain, if we continue to the end, for God hath not only promised it, but also promised it with an oath.

6:14 <sup>1</sup> I will heap up benefits most plentifully upon thee.

enjoyed the promise.

16 For men verily swear by him that is greater than themselves, and an oath for confirmation is among them an end of all strife.

17 So God, willing more <sup>1</sup>abundantly to show unto the heirs of promise the stableness of his counsel, bound himself by an oath,

18 That by two immutable things, wherein it is impossible that God should lie, we might have strong consolation, which have our refuge to lay hold upon that hope that is set before us,

19 <sup>1</sup>Which hope we have, as an anchor of the soul, but sure and steadfast, and it entereth into that which is within the veil.

20 <sup>1</sup>Whither the forerunner is for us entered in, even Jesus that is made an high Priest forever after the order of Melchizedek.

7 <sup>1</sup> He hath hitherto stirred them up, to mark diligently what things are to be considered in Melchizedek, 15 wherein he is like unto Christ. 20 Wherefore the Law should give place to the Gospel.

1 For this <sup>1</sup>Melchizedek was King of Salem, the Priest of the most high God, who met Abraham, as he returned from the slaughter of the Kings, and <sup>2</sup>blessed him:

2 To whom also Abraham gave the tithes of all things: who first is by interpretation King of righteousness: after that, he is also King of Salem, that is, King of peace,

3 <sup>1</sup>Without father, without mother, without kindred, and hath neither beginning of his days, neither end of life: but is likened unto the Son of God, and continueth a Priest forever.

4 <sup>1</sup>Now consider how great this man was, unto whom even the Patriarch Abraham gave the tithes of the spoils.

5 For verily they which are the children of Levi, which receive the office of the Priesthood, have a <sup>b</sup>commandment to take, according to the Law, tithes of the people (that is, of their brethren) though they <sup>1</sup>came out of the loins of Abraham.

6 But he whose kindred is not counted among them, received tithes of Abraham, and blessed him that had the promises.

7 And <sup>1</sup>without all contradiction the less is blessed of the greater.

8 And here men that die, receive tithes: but there he receiveth them, of whom it is witnessed, that he liveth.

9 <sup>1</sup>And to say as the thing is, Levi also which receiveth tithes, payeth tithes in Abraham.

10 For he was yet in the loins of his father Abraham, when Melchizedek met him.

11 <sup>1</sup>If therefore <sup>2</sup>perfection had been by the Priesthood of the Levites (for under it the Law was established to the people) what needed it furthermore, that another Priest should rise after the order of Melchizedek, and not to be called after the order of Aaron?

12 <sup>1</sup>For if the Priesthood be changed, then of necessity must there be a change of the <sup>2</sup>Law.

6:17 <sup>1</sup> More than was needful, were it not for the wickedness of men which believe not God, no though he swear.

6:19 <sup>1</sup> He likeneth hope to an anchor: because that even as an anchor being cast into the bottom of the sea, stayeth the whole ship, so doth hope also enter even into the very secret places of heaven. And he maketh mention of the Sanctuary, alluding to the old tabernacle, and by this means returneth to the comparisons of the Priesthood of Christ with the Levitical.

6:20 <sup>1</sup> He repeateth David's words, wherein all those comparisons whereof he hath before made mention, are signified, as he declareth in all the next chapter.

7:1 <sup>1</sup> Declaring those words, According to the order of Melchizedek, whereupon that comparison standeth of the Priesthood of Christ with the Levitical: first Melchizedek himself is considered as the figure of Christ, and these are the hands of that comparison, Melchizedek was a King and a Priest: and such an one indeed is Christ alone. He was a King of peace and righteousness: such an one indeed is Christ alone.

7:3 <sup>1</sup> Another figure: Melchizedek set before us to be considered as one without beginning and without ending, for neither his father, nor his mother, nor his ancestors, nor his death are written of: and such an one indeed is the Son of God, to wit, an everlasting Priest: as he is God, without mother wonderfully begotten: as he is man, without father wonderfully conceived.

7:4 <sup>1</sup> Another figure: Melchizedek in consideration of his Priesthood was above Abraham, for he took tenths of him, and blessed him as a Priest: Such an one indeed is Christ, upon whom dependeth even Abraham's sanctification, and all the believers, and whom all men ought to worship and reverence as the author of all.

7:5 <sup>1</sup> Were begotten by Abraham.

7:7 <sup>1</sup> He speaketh of the public blessing which the Priests used.

7:9 <sup>1</sup> A double amplification: The first, that Melchizedek took the tenths, as one immortal (to wit, in respect, that he is the figure of Christ, for his death is in no place made mention of, and David setteth him forth as an everlasting Priest) but the Levitical Priests, as mortal men, for they succeed one another: the second, that Levi himself was tithed in Abraham by Melchizedek. Therefore the Priesthood of Melchizedek (that is, Christ's who is pronounced to be an everlasting Priest according to his order) is more excellent than the Levitical.

7:11 <sup>1</sup> The third treatise of this Epistle, wherein after he hath proved Christ to be a King, a Prophet, and a Priest, he now handleth distinctly the condition and excellency of all these offices, showing that all these were but shadows in all other, but in Christ they are true and perfect. And he beginneth with the Priesthood, wherewith also the former treatise ended, that by this means all the parts and members of this disputation, may better hang together. And first of all he proveth that the Levitical Priesthood was imperfect because another Priest is promised a long time after according to another order, that is to say, of another manner of rule and fashion.

7:12 <sup>1</sup> He showeth how that by the institution of the new Priesthood, not only the imperfection of the Priesthood of Levi was declared, but also that it was changed for this: for these two cannot stand together, because that first appointment of the tribe of Levi, did shut forth the tribe of Judah, and made it also inferior to Levi: and this latter doth place the Priesthood in the tribe of Judah.

13 For he of whom these things are spoken, pertaineth unto another tribe, whereof no man <sup>1</sup>served at the altar.

14 For it is evident, that our Lord sprung out of Judah, concerning the which tribe Moses spake nothing, touching the Priesthood.

15 <sup>1</sup>And it is yet a more evident thing, because that after the similitude of Melchizedek, there is risen up another Priest, 16 <sup>1</sup>Which is not made Priest after the <sup>2</sup>Law of the carnal commandment, but after the power of the endless life.

17 For he testifieth thus, <sup>4</sup>Thou art a Priest forever, after the order of Melchizedek.

18 <sup>1</sup>For the <sup>2</sup>commandment that went afore, is disannulled, because of the weakness thereof, and unprofitableness.

19 For the Law made nothing perfect, but the bringing in of a better hope made perfect, whereby we draw near unto God.

20 <sup>1</sup>And forasmuch as it is not without an oath (for these are made Priests without an oath:

21 But this is made with an oath by him that said unto him, <sup>4</sup>The Lord hath sworn, and will not repent, Thou art a Priest forever, after the order of Melchizedek.)

22 By so much is Jesus made a surety of a better Testament.

23 <sup>1</sup>And among them many were made Priests,

<sup>c</sup> Ps. 110:4

Heb. 5:6

<sup>e</sup> Lev. 16:11

because they were not suffered to endure, by the reason of death.

24 But this man, because he endureth ever, hath a Priesthood, which <sup>1</sup>cannot pass from one to another.

25 Wherefore, he is <sup>1</sup>able also perfectly to save them that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth, to make intercession for them.

26 <sup>1</sup>For such an high Priest it became us to have, which is holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners, and made higher than the heavens:

27 Which needeth not daily as those high Priests to offer up sacrifice, <sup>4</sup>first for his own sins, and then for the peoples: <sup>1</sup>for <sup>2</sup>that did he <sup>3</sup>once, when he offered up himself.

28 For the Law maketh men high Priests, which have infirmity: but the <sup>1</sup>word of the oath <sup>2</sup>that <sup>3</sup>was since the Law, maketh the Son, who is consecrated for evermore.

8 <sup>1</sup>To prove more certainly that the ceremonies of the Law are abrogated, <sup>5</sup>he sheweth that they were appointed to serve the heavenly pattern. <sup>8</sup>He bringeth in the place of Jeremiah, <sup>13</sup>to prove the amendment of the old covenant.

1 Now <sup>1</sup>of the things which we have spoken, this is the sum, that we have such an high Priest, that sitteth at the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in heavens,

2 <sup>1</sup>And is a minister of the <sup>2</sup>Sanctuary, <sup>3</sup>and of

7:13 <sup>1</sup> Had anything to do about the altar.

7:15 <sup>1</sup> Lest any man might object, that the Priesthood indeed was translated from Levi to Judah, but yet notwithstanding the same remaineth still, he both weigheth and expoundeth these words of David, forever, according to the order of Melchizedek, whereby also a divers institution of priesthood is well perceived.

7:16 <sup>1</sup> He proveth the diversity and excellency of the institution of Melchizedek's Priesthood, by this, that the priesthood of the Law did stand upon an outward and bodily anointing: but the sacrifice of Melchizedek is set out to be everlasting and more spiritual.

<sup>2</sup> Not after the ordination, which commandeth frail and transitory things, as was done in Aaron's consecration, and all that whole Priesthood.

7:18 <sup>1</sup> Again, that no man might object that the last Priesthood was added to make a perfect one, by the coupling of them both together, he proveth that the first was abrogated by the latter as unprofitable, and that by the nature of them both. For how could those corporal and transitory things sanctify us, either of themselves, or being joined with another?

7:20 <sup>1</sup> Another argument whereby he proveth that the Priesthood of Christ is better than the Priesthood of Levi, because his was established with an oath, but theirs was not so.

7:23 <sup>1</sup> Another argument tending to the same purpose. The Levitical Priests (as mortal men) could not be everlasting, but Christ as he is everlasting, so hath he also an everlasting Priesthood making most effectual intercession for them which by him come unto God.

7:24 <sup>1</sup> Which cannot pass away.

7:25 <sup>1</sup> He is fit and meet.

7:26 <sup>1</sup> Another argument: There are required in an high Priest inno-centy, and perfect pureness, which may separate him from sinners, for whom he offereth. But the Levitical high Priests shall not be found to be such, for they offer first for their own sins: But Christ only is such a one; and therefore the true and only high Priest.

7:27 <sup>1</sup> Another argument which notwithstanding he handleth afterward: The Levitical Priests offered sacrifice after sacrifice, first for themselves, and then for the people. But Christ offered not for himself, but for others, not sacrifices, but himself, not oftentimes, but once. And this ought not to seem strange; saith he, forasmuch as they are weak, but this man is consecrated an everlasting Priest, and that by an oath.

<sup>3</sup> It was so done, that it needeth not be repeated or offered again anymore.

7:28 <sup>1</sup> The commandment of God which was bound with an oath.

8:1 <sup>1</sup> He briefly repeateth that, whereunto all these things are to be referred, to wit, we have a far other high Priest than those Levitical high Priests are, even such an one as sitteth at the right hand of the most high God in heaven.

8:2 <sup>1</sup> They of Levi were high Priests in an earthly sanctuary, but Christ is in the heavenly.

<sup>3</sup> They of Levi exercised their Priesthood in a frail tabernacle, but Christ beareth about with him a far other tabernacle, to wit, his body which God himself made to be everlasting, as it shall afterward be declared, Heb. 9:11.

that <sup>4</sup>true Tabernacle which the Lord pitched, and not man.

3 <sup>1</sup>For every high Priest is ordained to offer both gifts and sacrifices: wherefore it was of necessity, that this man should have somewhat also to offer.

4 <sup>1</sup>For he were not a Priest, if he were on the earth, seeing there are Priests that according to the Law offer gifts,

5 Who serve unto the pattern and shadow of heavenly things, as Moses was warned by God when he was about to finish the Tabernacle. "See, said he, that thou make all things according to the pattern, showed to thee in the mount.

6 <sup>1</sup>But now our high Priest hath obtained a more excellent office, inasmuch as he is the Mediator of a better Testament, which is established upon better promises.

7 <sup>1</sup>For if that first Testament had been unblameable, no place should have been sought for the second.

8 For in rebuking them he saith, <sup>b</sup>Behold, the days will come, saith the Lord, when I shall make with the <sup>1</sup>house of Israel, and with the house of Judah a new Testament:

9 Nor like the Testament that I made with their fathers, in the day that I took them by the hand, to lead them out of the land of Egypt: for they continued not in my Testament, and I regarded them not, saith the Lord.

10 For this is the Testament that I will make with the house of Israel, After those days, saith the Lord, I will put my Laws in their mind, and in their heart I will write them, and I will be their God, and they shall be my people.

11 And they shall not teach every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord:

for all shall know me, from the least of them to the greatest of them.

12 For I will be merciful to their unrighteousness, and I will remember their sins and their iniquities no more.

13 <sup>1</sup>In that he saith a new Testament, he hath abrogated the old: now that which is disannulled and waxed old, is ready to vanish away.

9 <sup>2</sup> Comparing the form of the Tabernacle, 10 and the ceremonies of the Law, 11 unto the truth set out in Christ, 15 he concludeth that now there is no more need of another Priest, 24 because Christ himself had fulfilled these duties under the new covenant.

1 Then <sup>1</sup>the first Testament had also ordinances of religion, and a <sup>2</sup>worldly Sanctuary,

2 For the first Tabernacle was made, wherein was the candlestick, and the table, and the showbread, which Tabernacle is called the Holy places.

3 And after the <sup>1</sup>second veil was the Tabernacle, which is called the <sup>2</sup>Holiest of all,

4 Which had the golden censer, and the Ark of the Testament overlaid round about with gold, wherein the golden pot, which had Manna, was, and <sup>a</sup>Aaron's rod that had budded, and the <sup>b</sup>tables of the Testament.

5 <sup>c</sup>And over the Ark were the glorious Cherubims, shadowing the <sup>1</sup>mercy seat: of which things we will not now speak particularly.

6 <sup>1</sup>Now when these things were thus ordained, the Priest went always into the first Tabernacle, and accomplished the service.

7 But into the second went the <sup>d</sup>high Priest alone, once every year, not without blood which he offered for himself, and for the <sup>1</sup>ignorances of the people.

8:3 <sup>1</sup> He bringeth a reason why it must needs be that Christ should have a body (which he calleth a tabernacle which the Lord pight and not man) to wit, that he might have what to offer: for otherwise he could not be an high Priest. And the selfsame body is both the tabernacle and the sacrifice.

8:4 <sup>1</sup> He giveth a reason why he said that our high Priest is in the heavenly sanctuary and not in the earthly: because, saith he, if he were now on the earth, he could not minister in the earthly sanctuary, seeing there are yet Levitical Priests, which are appointed for him, that is to say, to be patterns of that perfect example. And to what purpose should the patterns serve when the true and original example is present.

8:6 <sup>1</sup> He entereth into the comparison of the old and transitory Testament or covenant being but for a time, whereof the Levitical Priests were mediators with the new the everlasting Mediator whereof is Christ, to show that this is not only better than that in all respects, but also that that was abrogated by this.

8:7 <sup>1</sup> He proveth by the testimony of Jeremiah, that there is a second Testament or covenant, and therefore that the first was not perfect.

8:8 <sup>1</sup> He calleth it an house, as it were one family of the whole kingdom: for whereas the kingdom of David was divided into two factions, the Prophet giveth us to understand that through the new Testament they shall be joined together again in one.

8:13 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion: Therefore by the latter and the new, the first and old is taken away, for it could not be called new if it differed not from the old. And again that same is at length taken away: which is subject to corruption, and therefore imperfect.

9:1 <sup>1</sup> A division of the first Tabernacle which he calleth worldly, that is to say, transitory and earthly into two parts, to wit, into the holy places and the Holiest of all.

9:3 <sup>1</sup> He calleth it the second veil, not because there were two veils, but because it was behind the Sanctuary or the first Tabernacle.

9:5 <sup>1</sup> The Hebrews call the cover of the Ark of the covenant, the mercy seat, whom both the Greeks and we follow.

9:6 <sup>1</sup> Now he cometh to the sacrifices which he divideth into those daily sacrifices, and that yearly and solemn sacrifice, with the which the high Priest only, but once every year entering into the Holiest of all with blood, offered for himself and the people.

9:7 <sup>1</sup> For the sins. See Heb. 5:2.

8 <sup>1</sup>Whereby the holy Ghost this signified, that the way into the Holiest of all was not yet opened, while as yet the first tabernacle was standing,

9 <sup>1</sup>Which was a figure <sup>2</sup>for that present time, wherein were offered gifts and sacrifices that could not make holy, concerning the conscience, him that did the service,

10 <sup>1</sup>Which only stood in meats and drinks, and divers washings, and carnal rites, <sup>2</sup>which were enjoined, until the time of reformation.

11 <sup>1</sup>But Christ being come an high Priest of good things to come, <sup>2</sup>by a <sup>3</sup>greater and a more perfect Tabernacle, not made with hands, that is, not of this building, 12 <sup>1</sup>Neither by the blood of <sup>2</sup>goats and calves: but by his own blood entered he in once unto the holy place, and obtained eternal redemption for us.

13 <sup>1</sup>For if the blood of bulls and of goats, and the ashes of an heifer, sprinkling them that are unclean, sanctifieth as touching the <sup>2</sup>purifying of the flesh,

<sup>c</sup> Lev. 16:14
 Num. 19:4
<sup>f</sup> 1 Pet. 1:19
 1 John 1:7
 Rev. 1:5
<sup>g</sup> Luke 1:74
<sup>h</sup> Rom. 5:6
 1 Pet. 3:18

14 How much more shall the <sup>4</sup>blood of Christ which through the eternal Spirit offered himself without fault to God, <sup>8</sup>purge your conscience from <sup>1</sup>dead works, to serve the living God?

15 <sup>1</sup>And for this cause is he the Mediator of the new Testament, that through <sup>h</sup>death which was for the redemption of the transgressions that were in the former Testament, they which were called, might receive the promise of eternal inheritance.

16 <sup>1</sup>For where a Testament is, there must be the death of him that made the Testament.

17 <sup>1</sup>For the Testament is confirmed when men are dead: for it is yet of no force as long as he that made it, is alive.

18 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore, neither was the first ordained without blood.

19 For when Moses had spoken every precept to the people, <sup>1</sup>according to the Law, he took the blood of calves and of goats, with water and purple wool and hyssop, and <sup>2</sup>sprinkled both the book, and all

9:8 <sup>1</sup> Of that yearly rite and ceremony he gathereth that the way was not by such sacrifices opened into heaven, which was shadowed by the Holiest of all. For why did the high Priest alone enter in thither, shutting out all other, and that to offer sacrifices there both for himself and for others, and after did shut the Holiest of all again?

9:9 <sup>1</sup> An objection: if the way were not opened into heaven by those sacrifices (that is to say, if the worshippers were not purged by them) why then were those ceremonies used? to wit, that men might be called back to that spiritual example, that is to say, to Christ, who should correct all those things at his coming.

9:10 <sup>1</sup> Another reason why they could not make clean the conscience of the worshipper, to wit, because they were outward and carnal or corporal things.

<sup>2</sup> For they were as you would say a burden, from which Christ delivered us.

9:11 <sup>1</sup> Now he entereth into the declaration of the figures, and first of all comparing the Levitical high Priest with Christ, (that is to say, the figure with the thing itself) he attributeth to Christ the administration of good things to come, that is, everlasting, which those carnal things had respect unto.

<sup>2</sup> Another comparison of the first corruptible Tabernacle with the latter (that is to say, with the human nature of Christ) which is the true incorruptible Temple of God, whereinto which the Son of GOD entered, as the Levitical high Priests into the other which was frail and transitory.

<sup>3</sup> By a more excellent and better.

9:12 <sup>1</sup> Another comparison of the blood of sacrifices with Christ. The Levitical high Priests entering by their holy places into the Sanctuary, offered corruptible blood for one year only: but Christ entering into that holy body of his, entered by it into heaven itself, offering his own most pure blood for an everlasting redemption: For one selfsame Christ answereth both to the high Priest, and the Tabernacle, and the sacrifices, and offering themselves, as the truth to the figures, so that Christ is both the high Priest, and Tabernacle, and Sacrifice, yea, all these both truly, and forever.

<sup>2</sup> For in this yearly sacrifice of reconciliation, there were two kinds of sacrifices, the one a goat, the other a heifer, or calf.

9:13 <sup>1</sup> If the outward sprinkling of blood and ashes of beasts, was a true and effectual sign of purifying and cleansing, how much more shall the thing itself and the truth being present, which in times past was shadowed by those external Sacraments, that is to say, his blood which is in such sort man's blood, that is also the blood of the Son of God, and therefore hath an everlasting virtue of purifying and cleansing, does it?

9:14 <sup>1</sup> From sins which proceed from death, and bring forth nothing but death.

9:15 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion of the former argument: therefore seeing the blood of beasts did not purge sins, the new Testament which was before time promised, whereunto those outward things had respect, is now indeed established, by the virtue whereof all transgressions might be taken away, and heaven indeed opened unto us: whereof it followeth that Christ shed his blood also for the Fathers: For he was shadowed by those old ceremonies, otherwise, unless they had served to represent him, they had been nothing at all profitable. Therefore this Testament is called the latter, not concerning the virtue of it, (that is to say, remission of sins) but in respect of that time, wherein the thing itself was finished, that is to say, wherein Christ was indeed exhibited to the world, and fulfilled all things which were necessary to our salvation.

9:16 <sup>1</sup> A reason why the Testament must be established by the death of the Mediator, because this Testament hath the condition of a Testament or gift, which is made effectual by death, and therefore that it might be effectual, it must needs be that he that made the Testament, should die.

9:18 <sup>1</sup> There must be a proportion between those things which purify, and those which are purified: Under the Law all those figures were earthly, the Tabernacle, the book, the vessels, the sacrifices, although they were the figures of heavenly things. Therefore it was requisite that all those should be purified with some matter and ceremony of the same nature, to wit, with the blood of beasts, with water, wool, hyssop. But under Christ all things are heavenly, an heavenly tabernacle, an heavenly sacrifice, an heavenly people, an heavenly doctrine, and heaven itself is set open before us for an eternal habitation. Therefore all these things are sanctified in like sort, to wit, with the everlasting offering of the quickening blood of Christ.

9:19 <sup>1</sup> As the Lord had commanded.

<sup>2</sup> He useth to sprinkle.

the people,

20 <sup>j</sup>Saying, This is the blood of the Testament, which God hath appointed unto you.

21 Moreover, he sprinkled likewise the Tabernacle with blood also, and all the ministering vessels,

22 And almost all things are by the Law purged with blood, and without shedding of blood is no remission.

23 It was then necessary, that the <sup>1</sup>similitudes of heavenly things should be purified with such things: but the heavenly things themselves are purified with better sacrifices than are these.

24 <sup>1</sup>For Christ is not entered into the holy places that are made with hands, which are similitudes of the true Sanctuary: but is entered into very heaven, to appear now in the sight of God for us,

25 <sup>1</sup>Not that he should offer himself often, as the high Priest entered into the Holy place every year with others' blood, 26 <sup>1</sup>(For then must he have often suffered since the foundation of the world) but now in the <sup>2</sup>end of the world hath he been made manifest, once to put away <sup>3</sup>sin by the sacrifice of himself.

27 And as it is appointed unto men that they shall <sup>1</sup>once die, and after that cometh the judgment:

28 So <sup>k</sup>Christ was once offered to take away the sins of <sup>1</sup>many, <sup>2</sup>and unto them that look for him, shall he appear the second time without sin unto salvation.

<sup>j</sup> Exod. 24:8

<sup>1</sup> Pet. 3:18

1 For <sup>1</sup>the law having the shadow of good things to <sup>2</sup>come, and not the very image of the things, can never with those sacrifices, which they offer year by year continually, sanctify the comers thereunto.

2 For would they not then have ceased to have been offered, because that the offerers once purged, should have had no more conscience of sins?

3 But in those sacrifices there is a remembrance again of sins every year.

4 For it is impossible that the blood of bulls and goats should take away sins.

5 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore when he <sup>2</sup>cometh into the world, he saith, "Sacrifice and offering thou wouldest not: but a <sup>3</sup>body hast thou ordained me.

6 In burnt offerings, and sin offerings thou hast had no pleasure.

7 Then I said, Lo, I come (in the beginning of the book it is written of me) that I should do thy will, O God.

8 Above, when he said, Sacrifice and offering, and burnt offerings, and sin offerings, thou wouldest not have, neither hadst pleasure therein (which are

9:23 <sup>1</sup> The similitudes of heavenly things were earthly, and therefore they were to be set forth with earthly things, as with the blood of beasts, and wool, and hyssop. But under Christ all things are heavenly, and therefore they could not but be sanctified with the offering of his lively blood.

9:24 <sup>1</sup> Another double comparison: the Levitical high Priest entered into the Sanctuary, which was made indeed by the commandment of God, but yet with men's hands, that it might be a pattern of another more excellent, to wit, of the heavenly place. But Christ entered even into heaven itself. Again, he appeared before the Ark, but Christ before God the Father himself.

9:25 <sup>1</sup> Another double comparison: the Levitical high Priest offered other blood, but Christ offered his own: he every year once iterated his offering: Christ offering himself but once, abolished sin altogether, both of the former ages and of the ages to come.

9:26 <sup>1</sup> An argument to prove that Christ's offering ought not to be repeated: Seeing that sins were to be purged from the beginning of the world, and it is proved that sins cannot be purged, but by the only blood of Christ: he must needs have died oftentimes since the beginning of the world. But a man can die but once: therefore Christ's oblation which was once done in the latter days, neither could nor can be repeated. Seeing then it is so, surely the virtue of it extendeth both to sins that were before, and to sins that are after his coming.

9:27 <sup>1</sup> He speaketh of the natural state and condition of man: For as for Lazarus and certain others that died twice, that was no usual thing but extraordinary, and for them that shall be changed, their changing is a kind of death, 1 Cor. 15:51.

9:28 <sup>1</sup> Thus the general promise is restrained to the elect only: and we have to seek the testimony of our election: not in the secret counsel of God, but in the effects that our faith worketh, and so we must climb up from the lowest step to the highest, there to find such comfort as is most certain, and shall never be moved.

<sup>2</sup> Shortly by the way he setteth out Christ as Judge, partly to terrify them, which do not rest themselves in the only oblation of Christ once made, and partly to keep the faithful in their duty, that they will go not back.

10:1 <sup>1</sup> He preventeth a privy objection. Why then were those sacrifices offered? The Apostle answereth first touching that yearly sacrifice which was the solemnest of all, wherein (saith he) there was made every year a remembrance again of all former sins. Therefore that sacrifice had no power to sanctify: for to what purpose should those sins which are purged be repeated again, and wherefore should new sins come to be repeated every year, if those sacrifices did abolish sin?

<sup>2</sup> Of things which are everlasting, which were promised to the Fathers, and exhibited in Christ.

10:5 <sup>1</sup> A conclusion following of those things that went before, and comprehending also the other sacrifices. Seeing that the sacrifices of the Law could not do it, therefore Christ speaking of himself as of our high Priest manifested in the flesh, witnesseth evidently that God resteth not in the sacrifices, but in the obedience of his Son our high Priest, in which obedience he offered up himself once to his Father for us.

<sup>2</sup> The Son of God is said to come into the world, when he was made man.

<sup>3</sup> It is word for word in the Hebrew text, Thou hast pierced mine ears through, that is, thou hast made me obedient, and willing to hear.

offered by the Law.)

9 Then said he, Lo, I come to do thy will, O God, he taketh away the <sup>1</sup>first, that he may stablish the second.

10 By the which will we are sanctified, even by the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once made.

11 <sup>1</sup>And every Priest <sup>2</sup>standeth daily ministering, and oftentimes offereth one manner of offering, which can never take away sins:

12 But this man after he had offered one sacrifice for sins, <sup>b</sup>sitteth forever at the right hand of God, 13 <sup>1</sup>And from henceforth tarrieth, 'till his enemies be made his footstool.

14 For with one offering hath he consecrated forever them that are sanctified.

15 <sup>1</sup>For the holy Ghost also beareth us record: for after that he had said before, 16 <sup>d</sup>This is the Testament that I will make unto them after those days, saith the Lord, I will put my Laws in their heart, and in their minds I will write them.

17 And their sins and iniquities will I remember <sup>1</sup>no more.

18 Now where remission of these things is, there is no more offering for <sup>1</sup>sins.

19 <sup>1</sup>Seeing therefore, brethren, that by the blood of Jesus we may be bold to enter into the Holy place,

20 By the new and living way, which he hath prepared for us, through the veil, that is, his <sup>1</sup>flesh:

21 And seeing we have an high Priest, which is over the house of God,

22 <sup>1</sup>Let us draw near with a <sup>2</sup>true heart in assurance of faith, our <sup>3</sup>hearts being pure from an evil conscience,

23 And washed in our bodies with <sup>1</sup>pure water, let us keep the profession of our hope, without wavering, (for he is faithful that promised.)

24 And let us consider one another, to provoke unto love, and to good works,

25 Not forsaking the fellowship that we have among ourselves, as the manner of some is: but let us exhort one another, <sup>1</sup>and that so much the more, because ye see that the day draweth near.

26 <sup>1</sup>For if we sin <sup>1</sup>willingly after that we have received and acknowledged that truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, 27 But a fearful looking for of judgment, and violent fire, which shall devour the <sup>1</sup>adversaries.

28 <sup>1</sup>He that despiseth Moses' Law, dieth without mercy <sup>f</sup>under two, or three witnesses:

29 Of how much sorer punishment suppose ye shall he be worthy, which treadeth under foot the Son of God, and counteth the blood of the Testament as an unholy thing, wherewith he was sanctified, and doeth despite the Spirit of grace?

30 <sup>1</sup>For we know him that hath said, <sup>g</sup>Vengeance

10:9 <sup>1</sup> That is the sacrifices, to establish the second, that is, the will of God.

10:11 <sup>1</sup> A conclusion, with the other part of the comparison. The Levitical high Priest repeateth the same sacrifices daily in his sanctuary: whereupon which it followeth that neither those sacrifices, neither those offerings, neither those high Priests could take away sins. But Christ, having offered one sacrifice once for the sins of all men, and having sanctified his own forever, sitteth at the right hand of the Father, having all power in his hands.

10:13 <sup>1</sup> He preventeth a privy objection, to wit, that yet notwithstanding we are subject to sin and death, whereunto the Apostle answereth, that the full efficacy of Christ's virtue hath not yet showed itself, but shall at length appear when he will at once put to flight all his enemies, with whom as yet we strive.

10:15 <sup>1</sup> Although there do yet remain in us relics of sin, yet the work of our sanctification which is to be perfected, hangeth upon the self-same sacrifice which never shall be repeated: and that the Apostle proveth by alledging again the testimonies of Jeremiah, thus, Sin is taken away by the new Testament, seeing the Lord saith that it shall come to pass, that according to the form of it, he will no more remember our sins: Therefore we need now no purging sacrifice to take away that which is already taken away, but we must rather take pains, that we may now through faith be partakers of that sacrifice.

10:17 <sup>1</sup> Why then, where is the fire of Purgatory, and that Popish distinction of the fault and the punishment?

10:18 <sup>1</sup> He said well, for sin: for there remaineth another offering, to wit, of thanksgiving.

10:19 <sup>1</sup> The sum of the former treatise: We are not shut out now of the holy place, as the Fathers were, but we have an entrance into the true holy place (that is, into heaven) seeing that we are purged with the blood not of beasts, but of Jesus. Neither as in times past, doth the high Priest shut us out by setting the veil against us, but through the veil, which is his flesh, he hath brought us into heaven itself, being present with us, so that we have now truly an high Priest, which is over the house of God.

10:20 <sup>1</sup> So Christ's flesh showeth us the Godhead as it were under a veil, for otherwise we were not able to abide the brightness of it.

10:22 <sup>1</sup> A most grave exhortation, wherein which he showeth how that sacrifice of Christ may be applied to us: to wit, by faith, which also he describeth, by the consequence, to wit, by sanctification of the Spirit, which causeth us surely to hope in God, and to procure by all means possible one another's salvation, through the love that is in us one toward another.

<sup>2</sup> With no double and counterfeit heart, but with such an heart as is truly and indeed given to God.

<sup>3</sup> This is it which the Lord saith, Be ye holy, for I am holy.

10:23 <sup>1</sup> With the grace of the holy Ghost.

10:25 <sup>1</sup> Having mentioned the last coming of Christ, he stirreth up the godly to the meditation of an holy life, and cites the faithless fallers from God, to the fearful judgment seat of the judge, because they wickedly rejected him in whom only salvation consisteth.

10:26 <sup>1</sup> Without any cause or occasion, or show of occasion.

10:27 <sup>1</sup> For it is another matter to sin through the frailty of man's nature, and another thing to proclaim war as it were to God as to an enemy.

10:28 <sup>1</sup> If the breach of the Law of Moses was punished by death, how much more worthy death is it to fall away from Christ?

10:30 <sup>1</sup> The reason of all these things is, because God is a revenger of such as despise him: otherwise he should not rightly govern his Church. Now there is nothing more horrible then the wrath of the living God.

belongeth unto me: I will recompense, saith the Lord. And again, The Lord shall <sup>2</sup>judge his people.

31 It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

32 <sup>1</sup>Now call to remembrance the days that are passed, in the which, after ye had received light ye endured a great fight in afflictions,

33 Partly while ye were made a <sup>1</sup>gazing stock both by reproaches and afflictions, and partly while ye became <sup>2</sup>companions of them which were so tossed to and fro.

34 For both ye sorrowed with me for my bonds, and suffered with joy the spoiling of your goods, knowing in yourselves how that ye have in heaven a better, and an enduring <sup>1</sup>substance.

35 Cast not away therefore your confidence which hath great recompense of reward.

36 For ye have need of patience, that after ye have done the will of God, ye might receive the promise.

37 For yet a very <sup>1</sup>little while, and he that shall come, will come, and will not tarry.

38 <sup>b,1</sup>Now the just shall live by faith: but if any withdraw himself, my soul shall have no pleasure in him.

39 But we are not they which withdraw ourselves unto perdition, but follow faith unto the conservation of the soul.

11 1 He declareth in the whole Chapter, that the Fathers, which from the beginning of the world were approved of God, attained salvation no other way than by faith, that the Jews may know that by the same only, they are knit unto the Fathers in an holy union.

1 Now <sup>1</sup>faith is the grounds of things which are hoped for, and the evidence of things which are not seen.

4 <sup>1</sup>By faith Abel <sup>b</sup>offered unto God a greater sacrifice than Cain, by <sup>c</sup>the which he obtained witness that he was righteous, God testifying of his gifts: by the which faith also he being dead, yet speaketh.

5 <sup>1</sup>By faith was <sup>d</sup>Enoch translated, that he should not <sup>2</sup>see death: neither was he found: for God had translated him: for before he was translated, he was reported of, that he had pleased God.

6 But without faith it is impossible to please him: for he that cometh to God, must believe that God is, and that he is a <sup>1</sup>rewarder of them that seek him.

7 <sup>1</sup>By faith <sup>e</sup>Noah being warned of God of the things which were as yet not seen, moved with reverence, prepared the Ark to the saving of his household, through the which Ark he condemned the world, and was made heir of the righteousness, which is by faith.

8 <sup>1</sup>By faith <sup>f</sup>Abraham, when he was called, obeyed God, to go out into a place, which he should afterward receive for inheritance, and he went out, not knowing whither he went.

10:37 <sup>1</sup> He will come within this very little while.

10:38 <sup>1</sup> He commendeth the excellency of a sure faith by the effect, because it is the only way to life, which sentence he setteth forth and amplifieth by setting the contrary against it.

11:1 <sup>1</sup> An excellent description of faith by the effects, because it representeth things which are but yet in hope, and setteth as it were before our eyes things that are invisible.

11:2 <sup>1</sup> He showeth that the Fathers ought to be accounted of, by this virtue.

<sup>2</sup> That is, those Fathers of whom we came: and whose authority and example ought to move us very much.

11:3 <sup>1</sup> He showeth the propriety of faith, by setting unto us most piked examples of such as from the beginning of the world excelled in the Church.

14 For they that say such things, declare plainly, that they seek a country.

15 And if they had been mindful of that country, from whence they came out, they had leisure to have returned.

16 But now they desire a better, that is an heavenly: wherefore God is not ashamed of them to be called their God: for he hath prepared for them a city.

17 By faith <sup>h</sup>Abraham offered up Isaac, when he was <sup>l</sup>tried, and he that had received the <sup>2</sup>promises, offered his only begotten son.

18 (To whom it was said, 'In Isaac shall thy seed be called.)

31 <sup>1</sup>By faith the <sup>2</sup>harlot <sup>r</sup>Rahab perished not with them which obeyed not, when <sup>u</sup>she had received the spies <sup>3</sup>peaceably.

33 Which through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained the <sup>l</sup>promises, stopped the mouths of lions, 34 Quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, of weak were made strong, waxed valiant in battle, turned to flight the armies of the aliens.

35 The <sup>l</sup>women received their dead raised to life: others also were <sup>2</sup>racked, and would not be delivered, that they might receive a better resurrection.

36 And others have been tried by mockings and scourgings, yea, moreover by bonds, and imprisonment.

37 They were stoned, they were hewn asunder, they were tempted, they were slain with the sword, they wandered up and down in <sup>l</sup>sheep's skins, and in goats' skins, being destitute, afflicted, and tormented:

1 Wherefore, <sup>a1</sup>let us also, seeing that we are compassed with so great a cloud of witnesses, cast away everything that presseth down, and the sin that <sup>2</sup>hath so fast on: let us run with patience the race that is set before us,

2 <sup>12</sup>Looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith, who for the <sup>3</sup>joy that was set before him, endured the cross, and despised the shame, and is set at the right hand of the throne of God.

3 <sup>1</sup>Consider therefore him that endureth such speaking against of sinners, lest ye should be wearied and faint in your minds.

4 <sup>1</sup>Ye have not yet resisted unto blood, striving against sin.

5 <sup>1</sup>And ye have forgotten the consolation, which speaketh unto you as unto children, <sup>b</sup>My son, despise not the chastening of the Lord, neither faint when thou art rebuked of him.

6 For whom the Lord loveth, he chasteneth: and he scourgeth every son that he receiveth.

7 If ye endure chastening, God offered himself unto you as unto sons: for what son is it whom the father chasteneth not?

8 If therefore ye be without correction, whereof all are partakers, then are ye bastards, and not sons.

9 <sup>1</sup>Moreover we have had the fathers of our bodies which corrected us, and we gave them reverence: should we not much rather be in subjection unto the father of spirits, that we might live?

10 <sup>1</sup>For they verily for a few days chastened us after their own pleasure, but he chastened us for our profit, that we might be partakers of his holiness.

11 Now no chastising for the present seemeth to be joyous, but grievous: but afterward, it bringeth the quiet fruit of righteousness, unto them which are thereby exercised.

12 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore lift up your hands which <sup>2</sup>hang down, and your weak knees, 13 And make <sup>3</sup>straight steps unto your feet, lest that which is halting, be turned out of the way, but let it rather be healed.

14 <sup>c1</sup>Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without the which no man shall see the Lord.

15 <sup>1</sup>Take heed, that no man fall away from the grace of God: let no <sup>2</sup>root of bitterness spring up and trouble you, lest thereby many be defiled.

16 <sup>1</sup>Let there be no fornicator, or profane person as <sup>d</sup>Esau, which for one portion of meat sold his birthright.

17 <sup>e</sup>For ye know how that afterward also when he would have inherited the blessing, he was rejected: for he found no <sup>1</sup>place to repentance, though he sought that blessing with tears.

18 <sup>1</sup>For ye are not come unto the <sup>f</sup>mount that might

11:40 <sup>1</sup> For their salvation did hang upon Christ, who was exhibited in our days.

12:1 <sup>1</sup> An applying of the former examples, whereby we ought to be stirred up to run the whole race, casting away all stops and impediments.

<sup>2</sup> For sin besiegeth us on all sides, so that we cannot escape out.

12:2 <sup>1</sup> He setteth before us, as the mark of this race, Jesus himself our captain, who willingly overcame all the roughness of the same way.

<sup>2</sup> As it were upon the mark of our faith.

<sup>3</sup> Whereas he had all kind of blessedness in his hand and power, yet suffered willingly the ignominy of the cross.

12:3 <sup>1</sup> An amplification taken of the circumstance of the person, and the things themselves, which he compareth betwixt themselves: for how great is Jesus in comparison of us, and how far more grievous things did he suffer than we?

12:4 <sup>1</sup> He taketh an argument of the profit which cometh to us by God's chastisements, unless we be in fault. First of all because sin, or that rebellious wickedness of our flesh, is by this means turned.

12:5 <sup>1</sup> Secondly, because they are testimony of his fatherly good will toward us, insomuch that they show themselves to be bastards, which cannot abide to be chastened of God.

12:9 <sup>1</sup> Thirdly, if all men yield this right to fathers, to whom next after God we owe this life, that they may rightfully correct their children, shall we not be much more subject to that our Father, who is the Author of the spiritual and everlasting life?

12:10 <sup>1</sup> An amplification of the same argument: Those fathers have corrected us after their fancy, for some frail and transitory profit: but God chasteneth and instructeth us for our singular profit, to make us partakers of his holiness: which thing although these our senses do not presently perceive, yet the end of the matter proveth it.

12:12 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion, we must go forward courageously and keep always a right course, and (as far forth as we may) without any staggering or stumbling.

12:13 <sup>1</sup> Keep a right course, and so, that you show example of good life for others to follow.

12:14 <sup>1</sup> We must live in peace, and holiness with all men.

12:15 <sup>1</sup> We must study to edify one another, both in doctrine and example of life.

12:16 <sup>1</sup> We must eschew fornication, and a profane mind, that is, such a mind, as giveth not to God his due honor, which wickedness how severely God will at length punish, the horrible example of Esau teacheth us.

12:17 <sup>1</sup> There was no place left for his repentance: and it appeareth by the effects, what his repentance was, for when he was gone out of his father's sight, he threatened his brother to kill him.

12:18 <sup>1</sup> Now he applieth the same exhortation, to the Prophetical and kingly office of Christ compared with Moses, after this sort, If the majesty of the Law was so great, how great think you that the glory of Christ and the Gospel is? And this comparison he declareth also particularly.

be <sup>2</sup>touched, nor unto burning fire, nor to blackness and darkness, and tempest, 19 Neither unto the sound of a trumpet, and the voice of words, which they that heard it, excused themselves, <sup>8</sup>that the word should not be spoken to them any more.

20 (For they were not able to abide that which was commanded, <sup>b</sup>yea, though a beast touch the mountain, it shall be stoned, or thrust through with a dart:

21 And so terrible was the <sup>1</sup>sight which appeared, that Moses said, I fear and quake.)

22 But ye are come unto the mount Sion, and to the city of the living God, the celestial Jerusalem, and to the company of innumerable Angels.

23 And to the assembly and congregation of the first born, which are written in heaven, and to God the judge of all, and to the spirits of just and <sup>1</sup>perfect men, 24 And to Jesus the Mediator of the new Testament, and to the blood of sprinkling that speaketh better things than that of Abel.

25 <sup>1</sup>See that ye despise not him that speaketh: for if they escaped not which refused him, that spake on earth: much more shall we not escape, if we turn away from him that speaketh from heaven.

26 <sup>1</sup>Whose voice then shook the earth, and now hath declared, saying, <sup>1</sup>Yet <sup>2</sup>once more will I shake, not the earth only, but also heaven.

27 And this word, Yet once more, signifieth the removing of those things which are shaken, as of things which are made with hands, that the things which are not shaken, may remain.

28 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore seeing we receive a kingdom, which cannot be shaken, let us have grace whereby we may so serve God, that we may please him with <sup>2</sup>reverence and <sup>3</sup>fear.

29 For <sup>j</sup>even our God is a consuming fire.

13 <sup>1</sup>He giveth good lessons not only for manners, <sup>7</sup>but also for doctrine.

1 Let <sup>a,1</sup>brotherly love continue.

2 <sup>b</sup>Be not forgetful to entertain strangers: for thereby some have <sup>r</sup>received Angels into their houses unawares.

3 Remember them that are in bonds, as though ye were bound with them: and them that are in affliction, as <sup>1</sup>if ye were also afflicted in the body.

4 <sup>1</sup>Marriage is honorable among all, and the bed undefiled: but whoremongers and adulterers God will judge.

5 <sup>1</sup>Let your conversation be without covetousness, and be content with those things that ye have, for <sup>2</sup>he hath said,

6 <sup>d</sup>I will not fail thee, neither forsake thee:

7 So that we may boldly say, <sup>e</sup>The Lord is mine helper, neither will I fear what <sup>1</sup>man can do unto me.

8 <sup>1</sup>Remember them which have the oversight of you, which have declared unto you the word of God: whose faith follow, considering what hath been the end of their conversation. <sup>2</sup>Jesus Christ yesterday, and today, the same also is forever.

9 Be not carried about with divers and strange doctrines: <sup>1</sup>for it is a good thing that the heart be stablished with grace, and not with <sup>2</sup>meats, which have not profited them that have been <sup>3</sup>occupied therein.

12:18 <sup>2</sup> Which might be touched with hands, which was of a gross and earthly matter.

12:21 <sup>1</sup> The shape and form which he saw, which was no counterfeit and forged shape, but a true one.

12:23 <sup>1</sup> So he calleth them that are taken up into heaven, although one part of them sleep in the earth.

12:25 <sup>1</sup> The applying of the former comparison, If it were not lawful to condemn his word which spake on the earth, how much less his voice which is from heaven?

12:26 <sup>1</sup> He compareth the steadfast majesty of the Gospel, where-with the whole world was shaken, and even the very frame of heaven was as it were astonished, with the small and vanishing sound of the governance by the Law.

<sup>2</sup> It appeareth evidently in this that the Prophet speaketh of the calling of the Gentiles, that these words must be referred to the kingdom of Christ.

12:28 <sup>1</sup> A general exhortation to live reverently and religiously under the most happy subjection of so mighty a king, who as he blesteth his most mightily, so doth he most severely revenge the rebellious. And this is the sum of a Christian life, respecting the first table.

13:1 <sup>1</sup> He cometh to the second table, the sum whereof is charity, especially toward strangers and such as are afflicted.

13:3 <sup>1</sup> Be so much touched, as if their misery were yours.

13:4 <sup>1</sup> He commendeth chaste matrimony in all sorts of men, and threateneth utter destruction from God, against whoremongers and adulterers.

13:5 <sup>1</sup> Covetousness is condemned, against which is set a contented mind with that which the Lord hath given.

<sup>2</sup> Even the Lord himself.

13:7 <sup>1</sup> He setteth man against God.

13:8 <sup>1</sup> We have to set before us the examples of valiant Captains, whom we ought diligently to follow.

<sup>2</sup> He repeateth the sum of the doctrine, to wit, the only ground of all precepts of manners, and that is this: That we ought to quiet and content ourselves in Christ only: for there was yet never any man saved without the knowledge of him, neither is at this day saved, neither shall be saved hereafter.

13:9 <sup>1</sup> He toucheth them which mixed an external worship, and especially the difference of meats, with the Gospel, which doctrine he plainly condemneth as clean repugnant to the benefit of Christ.

<sup>2</sup> By this one kind which concerneth the difference of clean and unclean meats, we have to understand all the ceremonial worship.

10 <sup>1</sup>We have an <sup>2</sup>altar, whereof they have no authority to eat, which <sup>3</sup>serve in the Tabernacle.

11 <sup>f</sup>For the bodies of those beasts whose blood is brought into the holy place by the high Priest for sin, are burnt without the camp.

12 Therefore even Jesus, that he might sanctify the people with his own blood, suffered without the gate.

13 <sup>1</sup>Let us go forth to him therefore out of the camp, bearing his reproach.

14 <sup>g</sup>For here have we no continuing city: but we seek one to come.

15 <sup>1</sup>Let us therefore by him offer the sacrifice of praise always to God, that is, the <sup>h</sup>fruit of the lips, which confess his Name.

16 To do good, and to distribute forget not: for with such sacrifices God is pleased.

17 <sup>1</sup>Obeys them that have the oversight of you, and submit yourselves: for they watch for your souls, as they that must give accounts, that they may do it with joy, and not with grief: for that is unprofitable for you.

18 <sup>1</sup>Pray for us, for we are assured that we have a good conscience in all things, desiring to live honestly.

19 And I desire you somewhat the more earnestly, that ye so do, that I may be restored to you more quickly.

20 The God of peace that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, the great shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting Covenant, 21 Make you <sup>1</sup>perfect in all good works, to do his will, <sup>2</sup>working in you that which is pleasant in his sight through Jesus Christ, to whom be praise forever and ever, Amen.

22 I beseech you also, brethren, suffer the words of exhortation: for I have written unto you in few words.

23 Know that our brother Timothy is delivered, with whom (if he come shortly) I will see you.

24 Salute all them that have the oversight of you, and all the Saints. They of Italy salute you.

25 Grace be with you all, Amen.

¶ Written to the Hebrews from Italy, and sent by Timothy.

13:10 <sup>1</sup> He refuteth their error by an apt and fit comparison. They which in times past served the Tabernacle, did not eat of the sacrifices whose blood was brought for sin into the holy place by the high Priest. Moreover these sacrifices did represent Christ our offering. Therefore they cannot be partakers of him which serve the Tabernacle, that is, such as stand in the service of the Law: but let not us be ashamed to follow him out of Jerusalem, from whence he was cast out and suffered: for in this also Christ, who is the truth, answereth that figure, in that he suffered without the gate.

<sup>3</sup> Whereof they cannot be partakers which stubbornly retain the rites of the Law.

13:13 <sup>1</sup> He goeth on further in this comparison, and showeth that this also signified unto us, that the godly followers of Christ must as it were go out of the world, bearing his cross.

13:15 <sup>1</sup> Now that those corporal sacrifices are taken away, he teacheth us that the true sacrifices of confession remain, which consist partly in giving of thanks, and partly in liberality, with which sacrifices indeed God is now delighted.

13:17 <sup>1</sup> We must obey the warnings and admonitions of our Ministers and Elders, which watch for the salvation of the souls which are committed unto them.

13:18 <sup>1</sup> The last part of this Epistle, wherein he commendeth his ministry to the Hebrews, and wisheth them continuance and increase of graces from the Lord: and excuseth himself in that he hath used but few words to comfort them, having spent the Epistle in disputing: and saluteth certain brethren familiarly and friendly.

13:21 <sup>1</sup> Make you fit or meet.

THE <sup>1</sup>GENERAL EPISTLE OF JAMES

1 <sup>4</sup> He entreateth of patience, 6 of faith, 10 and of lowliness of mind in rich men. 13 That tentations come not of God for our evil, 17 because he is the author of all goodness. 21 In what manner the word of life must be received.

1 James a servant of God, and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve Tribes, which are <sup>1</sup>scattered abroad, salutation.

2 <sup>1</sup>My brethren, <sup>2</sup>count it exceeding joy, <sup>3</sup>when ye fall into divers tentations,

3 <sup>a1</sup>Knowing that the <sup>2</sup>trying of your faith bringeth forth patience,

4 <sup>1</sup>And let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, lacking nothing.

5 <sup>1</sup>If any of you lack <sup>2</sup>wisdom, let him ask of God, which giveth to all men liberally, and reproacheth no man, and it shall be given him.

7 Neither let that man think that he shall receive anything of the Lord.

8 A double minded man is unstable in <sup>1</sup>all his ways.

9 <sup>1</sup>Let the brother of <sup>2</sup>low degree rejoice in that he is exalted:

12 <sup>1,d</sup>Blessed is the man, that endureth <sup>2</sup>tentation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him.

Title <sup>1</sup> That is, written to no one man, city or country, but to all the Jews generally, being now dispersed.

1:1 <sup>1</sup> To all the believing Jews, of what Tribe soever they be, and are dispersed through the whole world.

1:2 <sup>1</sup> The first place or part touching comfort in afflictions, wherein we ought not be cast down and be fainthearted, but rather rejoice and be glad.

<sup>2</sup> Seeing their condition was miserable in that scattering abroad, he doth well to begin as he doth.

<sup>3</sup> The first argument, because our faith is tried through afflictions: which ought to be most pure, for so it is behoovable for us.

1:3 <sup>1</sup> The second, Because patience, far passing and most excellent virtue, is by this means engendered in us.

1:4 <sup>1</sup> The third argument propounded in manner of an exhortation, that true and continual patience may be discerned from fained and for a time. The cross is as it were the instrument wherewith God doth polish and [re]fine us. Therefore the work and effect of afflictions, is the perfecting of us in Christ.

1:5 <sup>1</sup> An answer to a privy objection: It is easily said, but it is not so easily done. He answereth that we need in this case a far other manner of wisdom, than the wisdom of man, to judge those things best for us, which are most contrary to the flesh: but yet we shall easily obtain this gift of wisdom, if we ask it rightly, that is, with a sure confidence of God, who is most bountiful and liberal.

<sup>2</sup> By wisdom he meaneth the knowledge of that doctrine whereof mention was made before, to wit, wherefore we are afflicted of God, and what fruit we have to reap of affliction.

1:6 <sup>1</sup> Why then what need other Mediator?

which are conceived with a doubting mind, whereas we have a certain promise of God, and this is that second part of the Epistle.

1:8 <sup>1</sup> In all his thoughts and his deeds.

1:9 <sup>1</sup> He returneth to his purpose, repeating the proposition, which is, that we must rejoice in the cross, for it doth not press us down, but exalt us.

<sup>2</sup> Who is afflicted with poverty, or contempt, or with any kind of calamity.

1:10 <sup>1</sup> Before he concludeth, he giveth a doctrine contrary to the former: to wit, how we ought to use prosperity, which is plenty of all things: to wit, so that no man therefore please himself, but be so much the more void of pride.

<sup>3</sup> An argument taken of the very nature of the things themselves, for that they are most vain and uncertain.

1:11 <sup>1</sup> Whatsoever he either purposeth in his mind, or doeth.

1:12 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion: Therefore we must patiently bear the cross: and he addeth a fourth argument, which comprehendeth the sum of all the former, to wit, because we come by this way to the crown of life, but yet of grace according to the promise.

1:13 <sup>1</sup> The third part of this Epistle, wherein he descendeth from outward tentations, that is, from afflictions, whereby God trieth us, to inward, that is, to those lusts whereby we are stirred up to do evil. The sum is this: Every man is the author of these temptations to himself, and not God: for we bear about in our bosoms that wicked corruption, which taketh occasions by what means soever, to stir up evil motions in us, whence out at length proceed wicked doing, and in conclusion followeth death the just reward of them.

<sup>3</sup> Here is a reason showed, why God cannot be the author of evil doing in us, because he desireth not evil.

evil, neither tempteth he any man.

14 But every man is tempted, when he is drawn away by his own concupiscence, and is enticed.

15 Then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth <sup>1</sup>sin, and sin when it is finished, bringeth forth death.

16 <sup>1</sup>Err not my dear brethren.

17 Every good giving and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the <sup>1</sup>Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither <sup>2</sup>shadow of turning.

18 <sup>1</sup>Of his own <sup>2</sup>will begat he us with the word of truth, that we should be as the <sup>3</sup>firstfruits of his creatures.

19 Wherefore my dear brethren, let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, and slow to wrath.

20 For the wrath of man doth not accomplish the <sup>1</sup>righteousness of God.

21 Wherefore lay apart all filthiness, and superfluity of maliciousness, and receive with <sup>1</sup>meekness the word that is grafted in you, which is able to save your souls.

22 <sup>1</sup>And be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, <sup>2</sup>deceiving your own selves.

23 <sup>1</sup>For if any hear the word, and do it not, he is like unto a man, that beholdeth his <sup>2</sup>natural face in a glass.

24 For when he hath considered himself, he goeth his way, and forgetteth immediately what manner of one he was.

25 But who so looketh in the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein, he not being a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the work, shall be blessed in his <sup>1</sup>deed.

26 <sup>1</sup>If any man among you seem religious, and refraineth not his tongue, but deceiveth his <sup>2</sup>own heart, this man's religion is vain.

27 <sup>1</sup>Pure religion and undefiled before God, even the Father, is this, to <sup>2</sup>visit the fatherless, and widows in their adversity, and to keep himself unspotted of the world.

2 <sup>1</sup>He sayeth, that to have respect of persons is not agreeable to Christ's faith, <sup>14</sup> which to profess in words is not enough, unless <sup>15</sup> we show it also in deeds of mercy and charity, <sup>21</sup> after the example of Abraham.

1 My <sup>1</sup>brethren, have not the faith of our <sup>2</sup>glorious Lord Jesus Christ <sup>4</sup>in respect of persons.

2 For if there come into your company a man with a gold ring, and in goodly apparel, and there come in also a poor man in vile raiment,

3 And ye have a respect to him that weareth the gay clothing; and say unto him, Sit thou here in a <sup>1</sup>goodly place, and say unto the poor, Stand thou there, or sit here under my footstool,

4 Are ye not partial in <sup>1</sup>your selves, and are become Judges of evil thoughts?

5 <sup>1</sup>Hearken my beloved brethren, hath not God chosen the <sup>2</sup>poor of this world, that they should be rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom which he

1:15 <sup>1</sup> By sin is meant in this place actual sin.

1:16 <sup>1</sup> Another reason taken of contraries: God is the author of all goodness, and so, that he is always like himself; how then can he be thought to be author of evil?

1:17 <sup>1</sup> From him who is the fountain and author of all goodness.

<sup>2</sup> He goeth on in the metaphor: for the sun by his manifold and sundry kinds of turning, maketh hours, days, months, years, light and darkness.

1:18 <sup>1</sup> The fourth part concerning the excellency and fruit of the word of God. The sum is this: we must hear the word of God most carefully and diligently, seeing it is the seed, wherewith God of his free favor and love hath begotten us unto himself, picking us out of the number of his creatures. And the Apostle condemneth two faults, which do greatly trouble us in this matter, to wit, for that we so please ourselves, that we had rather speak ourselves than hear God speaking: yea, we snuff and are angry when we are reprehended: against which faults, he setteth a peaceable and quiet mind, and such an one as is desirous of purity.

<sup>2</sup> This is it which Paul calleth gracious favor, and good will, which is the fountain of our salvation.

<sup>3</sup> As it were an holy kind of offering, taken out of the residue of man.

1:20 <sup>1</sup> That which God appointeth.

1:21 <sup>1</sup> By meekness, he meaneth modesty, and whatsoever is contrary to an haughty and proud stomach.

1:22 <sup>1</sup> Another admonition. Therefore is God's word heard, that we may frame our lives according to the prescript thereof.

<sup>2</sup> He addeth reasons, and those most weighty: first, because they that do otherwise, do very much hurt themselves.

1:23 <sup>1</sup> Secondly, because they lose the chiefest use of God's word, which correct not by it the faults that they know.

<sup>2</sup> He alludeth to that natural spot, to which is contrary that purity whereunto we are born again, the lively image whereof we behold in the Law.

1:25 <sup>1</sup> Behaving himself so: for works do show faith.

1:26 <sup>1</sup> The third admonition: The word of God prescribeth a rule not only to do well, but also to speak well.

<sup>2</sup> The fountain of all bragging, and cursed speaking, and sauciness, is this, that men know not themselves.

1:27 <sup>1</sup> The fourth: the true service of God standeth in charity toward our neighbors (especially such as need others' help, as the fatherless and widows), and purity of life.

<sup>2</sup> To have a care of them, and to help them as much as we can.

2:1 <sup>1</sup> The fifth: Charity which proceedeth from a true faith, cannot stand with the accepting of persons: which he proveth plainly by setting forth their example, who with the reproach or disdain of the poor, honor the rich.

<sup>2</sup> For if we knew what Christ's glory is, and esteemed it as we ought to do, there would not be such respect of persons as there is.

2:3 <sup>1</sup> In a worshipful and honorable place.

2:4 <sup>1</sup> Have ye not (which you ought not to do) by this means with yourselves judged one man to be preferred before another?

2:5 <sup>1</sup> He showeth that they are perverse and naughty Judges, which prefer the rich before the poor, by that that God on the contrary side preferreth the poor, whom he hath enriched with true riches, before the rich.

<sup>2</sup> The needy and wretched, and (if we measure it after the opinion of the world) the veriest objects of all men.

promised to them that love him?

6 But ye have despised the poor. <sup>1</sup>Do not the rich oppress you by tyranny, and do they not draw you before the judgment seats?

7 Do not they blaspheme the worthy Name after which ye be <sup>1</sup>named?

8 <sup>1</sup>But if ye fulfill the <sup>2</sup>royal Law according to the Scripture, which saith, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself, ye do well.

9 But if ye regard the persons, ye commit sin, and are rebuked of the Law, as transgressors.

10 <sup>1</sup>For whosoever shall keep the whole Law, and yet faileth in one point, he is guilty of <sup>2</sup>all.

11 <sup>1</sup>For he that said, Thou shalt not commit adultery, said also, Thou shalt not kill. Now though thou doest none adultery, yet if thou killest, thou art a transgressor of the Law.

12 <sup>1</sup>So speak ye, and so do, as they that shall be judgeth by the Law of liberty.

13 For there shall be condemnation merciless to him that showeth not <sup>1</sup>mercy, and mercy rejoiceth against condemnation.

14 <sup>1</sup>What availeth it my brethren, though a man saith, he hath faith, when he hath no works? can that faith save him?

15 <sup>1</sup>For if a brother or a sister be naked and destitute of daily food,

16 And one of you say unto them, Depart in peace: warm yourselves, and fill your bellies, notwithstanding ye give them not those things, which are needful to the body, what helpeth it?

17 Even so the faith, if it have no works, is dead in itself.

18 But <sup>1</sup>some man might say, Thou hast the faith, and I have works: show me thy faith out of thy works, and I will show thee my faith by my works.

19 <sup>1</sup>Thou believest that there is one God: thou doest well: the devils also believe it, and tremble.

20 <sup>1</sup>But wilt thou understand, O thou vain man, that the faith which is without works, is dead?

21 Was not Abraham our father <sup>1</sup>justified through works, <sup>b</sup>when he offered Isaac his son upon the altar?

22 Seest thou not that the faith <sup>1</sup>wrought with his works? and through the works was the faith made <sup>2</sup>perfect.

23 And the Scripture was <sup>1</sup>fulfilled which saith, Abraham believed God, and it was imputed unto him for righteousness: and he was called the friend of God.

24 <sup>1</sup>Ye see then how that of works a man is <sup>2</sup>justified, and not of <sup>3</sup>faith only.

2:6 <sup>1</sup> Secondly, he proveth them to be mad men: for that the rich men are rather to be holden execrable and cursed, considering that they persecute the Church, and blaspheme Christ: for he speaketh of wicked and profane rich men, such as the most part of them have been always, against whom he setteth the poor and abject.

2:7 <sup>1</sup> Word for word, which is called upon of you.

2:8 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion: Charity which God prescribeth cannot agree with the accepting of persons, seeing that we must walk in the King's highway.

<sup>2</sup> The Law is said to be royal and like the King's highway, for that it is plain and without turnings, and that the Law calleth everyone our neighbor, without respect, whom we may help by any kind of duty.

2:10 <sup>1</sup> A new argument to prove the same conclusion: They do not love their neighbors, which neglect some, and ambitiously honor others: for he doth not obey God, which cutteth off from the commandments of God that that is not so commodious for him, nay he is rather guilty generally for the breach of the whole Law, although he observe the residue.

<sup>2</sup> Not that all sins are equal, but because he that breaketh one tittle of the Law, offendeth the majesty of the Lawgiver.

2:11 <sup>1</sup> A proof: because the Lawmaker is always one and the self-same, and the body of the Law cannot be divided.

2:12 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion of the whole treatise: we are upon this condition delivered from the curse of the Law by the mercy of God, that in like sort we should maintain and cherish charity and goodwill one towards another, and whoso doth not so, shall not taste of the grace of God.

2:13 <sup>1</sup> He that is hard and currish against his neighbor, or else helpeth him not, he shall find God an hard and rough Judge to himself-ward.

2:14 <sup>1</sup> The fifth place which hangeth very well with the former treatise, touching a true and lively faith. And the proposition of this place is this: faith which bringeth not forth works, is not that faith whereby we are justified, but an image of faith: or else this, they are not justified by faith, which show not the effects of faith.

2:15 <sup>1</sup> The first reason taken of a similitude: If a man say to one that is hungry, Fill thy belly, and yet giveth him nothing, this shall not be true charity: so if a man say he believeth, and bringeth forth no works of his faith, this shall not be a true faith, but a certain dead thing set out with the name of faith, whereof no man hath to brag, unless he will openly incur reprehension, seeing that the cause is understood by the effects.

2:18 <sup>1</sup> Nay, thus may every man beat down the pride.

2:19 <sup>1</sup> Another reason taken of an absurdity: If such a faith were the true faith whereby we are justified, the devils should be justified: for they have that, but yet notwithstanding they tremble, and are not justified therefore, neither is that faith a true faith.

2:20 <sup>1</sup> The third reason from the example of Abraham, who no doubt had a true faith: but he in offering his son, showed himself to have that faith which was not void of works, and therefore he received a true testimony when it was said, that faith was imputed to him for righteousness.

2:21 <sup>1</sup> Was he not by his works known and found to be justified? for he speaketh not here of the causes of justification, but by what effects we may know that a man is justified.

2:22 <sup>1</sup> Was effectual and fruitful with good works.

<sup>2</sup> That the faith was declared to be a true faith, and that by works.

2:23 <sup>1</sup> Then was the Scripture fulfilled, when it appeared plainly, how truly it was written of Abraham.

2:24 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion: he is only justified that hath that faith which hath works following it.

<sup>2</sup> Is proved to be just.

25 <sup>1</sup>Likewise also was not <sup>4</sup>Rahab the harlot justified through works, when she had received the messengers, and sent them out another way?

26 <sup>1</sup>For as the body without the spirit is dead, even so the faith without works is dead.

3 <sup>2</sup>To show that a Christian man must govern his tongue with the bridle of faith and charity, <sup>6</sup> he declareth the commodities and mischiefs that ensue thereof: <sup>15</sup> and how much man's wisdom <sup>17</sup> differeth from heavenly.

1 My <sup>1</sup>brethren, be not many masters, <sup>2</sup>knowing that we <sup>3</sup>shall receive the greater condemnation.

2 For in many things we <sup>1</sup>sin all. <sup>2</sup>If any man sin not in word, he is a perfect man, and able to bridle all the body.

3 <sup>1</sup>Behold, we put bits into the horses' mouths, that they should obey us, and we turn about all their body.

4 Behold also the ships, which though they be so great, and are driven of fierce winds, yet are they turned about with a very small rudder, whithersoever the governor listeth.

5 Even so the tongue is a little member, and boasteth of great things: <sup>1</sup>behold, how great a thing a little fire kindleth.

6 And the tongue is fire, yea, a <sup>1</sup>world of wickedness: so is the tongue set among our members, that it defileth the whole body, and <sup>2</sup>setteth on fire the course of nature, and it is set on fire of hell.

7 For the whole nature of beasts, and of birds, and of creeping things, and things of the sea is tamed, and hath been tamed of the nature of man.

8 But the tongue can no man tame. It is an unruly evil, full of deadly poison.

9 <sup>1</sup>Therewith bless we God even the Father, and therewith curse we men, which are made after the <sup>2</sup>similitude of God.

10 <sup>1</sup>Out of one mouth proceedeth blessing and cursing: my brethren, these things ought not so to be.

11 Doth a fountain send forth at one place sweet water and bitter?

12 Can the fig tree, my brethren, bring forth olives, either a vine figs? so can no fountain make both salt water and sweet.

13 <sup>1</sup>Who is a wise man and endued with knowledge among you? let him show by good conversation his works in meekness of wisdom.

14 But if ye have bitter envying and strife in your hearts, rejoice not, neither be liars against the truth.

15 This wisdom descendeth not from above, but is earthly, sensual, and devilish.

16 For where envying and strife is, there is sedition, and all manner of evil works.

17 But the wisdom that is from above, is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, easy to be entreated, full of <sup>1</sup>mercy and good fruits, without judging, and without hypocrisy.

18 <sup>1</sup>And the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace, of them that make peace.

2:25 <sup>1</sup> A fourth reason taken from a like example of Rahab the harlot, who also proved by her works that she was justified by a true faith.

2:26 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion repeated again: faith which bringeth not forth fruits and works, is not faith, but a dead carcass.

3:1 <sup>1</sup> The sixth part or place: Let no man usurp (as most men ambitiously do) authority to judge and censure others righteously.

<sup>3</sup> Unless we surcease from this masterlike and proud finding fault with others.

3:2 <sup>1</sup> Or, stumble.

<sup>2</sup> The seventh place, touching the bridling of the tongue, joined with the former, so that it is manifest that there is no man which may not justly be found fault withal, seeing it is a rare virtue to bridle the tongue.

3:3 <sup>1</sup> He showeth by two similitudes the one taken from the bridles of horses, the other from the rudders of ships, how great matters may be brought to pass by the good moderation of the tongue.

3:5 <sup>1</sup> On the contrary part he showeth how great discommodities arise by the intemperance of the tongue, throughout the whole world, to the end that men may so much the more diligently give themselves to moderate it.

3:6 <sup>1</sup> An heap of all mischiefs.

<sup>2</sup> It is able to set the whole world on fire.

3:9 <sup>1</sup> Amongst other faults of the tongue, the Apostle chiefly reproveth backbiting and speaking evil of our neighbors, even in them especially which otherwise will seem godly and religious.

<sup>2</sup> He denieth by two reasons, that God can be praised by that man, that useth cursed speaking, or to backbite: first because man is the image of God, which whosoever reverenceth not doth not honor God himself.

3:10 <sup>1</sup> Secondly, because the order of nature which God hath set in things, will not suffer things that are so contrary the one to the other, to stand the one with the other.

3:13 <sup>1</sup> The eighth part which hangeth with the former, touching meekness of mind, against which he setteth envy and a contentious mind. And in the beginning he stoppeth the mouth of the chief fountain of all these mischiefs, to wit, a false persuasion of wisdom, whereas notwithstanding there is no true wisdom, but that is heavenly, and frameth our minds to all kinds of true moderation and simplicity.

3:17 <sup>1</sup> He setteth mercy against the fierce and cruel nature of man, and showeth that heavenly wisdom bringeth forth good fruits, for he that is heavenly wise, referreth all things to God's glory, and the profit of his neighbor.

3:18 <sup>1</sup> Because the world persuadeth itself that they are miserable which live peaceably and simply, on the contrary side the Apostle pronounceth that they shall at the length reap the harvest of peaceable righteousness.

1 From <sup>1</sup>whence are wars and contentions among you? are they not hence, even of your pleasures, that fight in your members?

2 Ye lust, and have not: ye envy, and desire immoderately, and cannot obtain: ye fight, and war, and get nothing, <sup>1</sup>because ye ask not.

3 Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye might lay the same on your pleasures.

4 <sup>1</sup>Ye adulterers and adulteresses, know ye not that the amity of the world is the enmity of God? Whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world, maketh himself the enemy of God.

5 <sup>1</sup>Do ye think that the Scripture saith in vain, The spirit that dwelleth in us, lusteth after envy?

6 But the Scripture offereth more grace, and therefore saith, <sup>4</sup>God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble.

7 <sup>b1</sup>Submit yourselves to God: resist the devil, and he will flee from you.

8 Draw near to God, and he will draw near to you. Cleanse your hands, ye sinners, and purge your hearts, ye double minded.

9 <sup>1</sup>Suffer afflictions, and sorrow ye, and weep: let your laughter be turned into mourning, and your joy into <sup>2</sup>heaviness.

10 <sup>1</sup>Cast down yourselves before the Lord, and he will lift you up.

11 <sup>1</sup>Speak not evil one of another, brethren. He that speaketh evil of his brother, or he that condemneth his brother, speaketh evil of the Law, and condemneth the Law: and if thou condemnest the Law, thou art not an observer of the Law, but a judge.

12 There is one Lawgiver, which is able to save, and to destroy, <sup>d</sup>Who art thou that judgest another man?

13 <sup>1</sup>Go to now, ye that say, Today or tomorrow we will go into such a city, and continue there a year, and buy and sell, and get gain,

14 (And yet ye cannot tell what shall be tomorrow. For what is your life? It is even a vapor that appeareth for a little time, and afterward vanisheth away.)

15 For that ye ought to say, <sup>1</sup>If the Lord will, and if we live, we will do this or that.

16 But now ye rejoice in your boastings: all such rejoicing is evil.

17 <sup>1</sup>Therefore to him that knoweth how to do well, and doeth it not, to him it is sin.

5 <sup>1</sup> He threateneth the rich with God's severe judgment, for their pride, <sup>7</sup> that the poor hearing the miserable end of the rich, <sup>8</sup> may patiently bear afflictions, <sup>11</sup> as Job did, <sup>14</sup> even in their distresses.

1 Go <sup>1</sup>to now, ye rich men: weep, and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you.

2 Your riches are corrupt, and your garments are moth eaten.

3 Your gold and silver is cankered, and the rust of them shall be a witness against you, and shall eat your flesh, as it were fire. Ye have heaped up treasure for the last days.

4 Behold, the hire of the laborers, which have reaped your fields (which is of you kept back by fraud) crieth, and the cries of them which have reaped, are entered into the <sup>1</sup>ears of the Lord of hosts.

5 Ye have lived in pleasure on the earth, and in 4:1 <sup>1</sup> He goeth on forward in the same argument, condemning certain other causes of wars and contentions, to wit, unbridled pleasures and immoderate lusts, by their effects, for so much as the Lord doth worthily make them void, so that they bring nothing else to them in whom they are but incurable torments.

4:2 <sup>1</sup> He reprehendeth them by name, which are not ashamed to go about to make God the minister and helper of their lusts and pleasures, in asking things which either are of themselves unlawful, or being lawful, ask them to wicked purposes and uses.

4:4 <sup>1</sup> Another reason why such unbridled lusts and pleasures are utterly to be condemned, to wit, because that he that giveth himself to the world, divorceth himself from God, and breaketh the band of that holy and spiritual marriage.

4:5 <sup>1</sup> The taking away of an objection: Indeed our minds run headlong into these vices, but we ought so much the more diligently take heed of them: which care and study shall not be in vain, seeing that God resists the stubborn, and giveth that grace to the modest and humble that surmounteth all those vices.

4:7 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion: We must set the contrary virtues against those vices, and therefore whereas we obeyed the suggestions of the devil, we must submit our minds to God, and resist the devil, with a certain and assured hope of victory: To be short, we must employ ourselves to come near unto God by purity and sincerity of life.

4:9 <sup>1</sup> He goeth on in the same comparison of contraries, and setteth against those profane joys with an earnest sorrow of mind, and against pride and arrogance, holy modesty.

<sup>2</sup> By this word the Greeks meant an heaviness joined with shamefastness, which is to be seen in a cast down countenance, and settled as it were upon the ground.

4:11 <sup>1</sup> He reprehended most sharply another double mischief of pride: the one is in that the proud and arrogant will have other men to live according to their will and pleasure and therefore they do most arrogantly condemn whatsoever pleaseth them not: which thing cannot be done without great injury to our only Lawmaker, for by this means his Laws are found fault withal, as not circumspectly enough written, and men challenge that unto themselves which properly belongeth to God alone, in that they lay a Law upon men's consciences.

4:13 <sup>1</sup> The other fault is this: that men do so confidently determine upon these and those matters and businesses, as though that every moment of their life did not depend of God.

4:17 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion of all the former treatise: The knowledge of the will of God doth not only nothing at all profit, unless the life be answerable unto it, but also maketh the sins far more grievous.

5:1 <sup>1</sup> He denounceth utter destruction to the wicked and profane rich men, and such as are drowned in their riotousness, mocking at their foolish confidence when as there is nothing indeed more vain than such things.

5:4 <sup>1</sup> The Lord who is more mighty than ye are, hath heard them.

wantonness. Ye have <sup>1</sup>nourished your hearts, as in a <sup>2</sup>day of slaughter.

6 Ye have condemned, and have killed the just, and he hath not resisted you.

7 <sup>1</sup>Be patient therefore, brethren, unto the coming of the Lord. <sup>2</sup>Behold, the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it, until he receive the former, and the latter rain.

8 Be ye also patient therefore, and settle your hearts: for the coming of the Lord draweth near.

9 <sup>1,2</sup>Grudge not one against another, brethren, lest ye be condemned: <sup>3</sup>behold, the judge standeth before the door.

10 <sup>1</sup>Take, my brethren, the Prophets for an example of suffering adversity, and of long patience, which have spoken in the name of the Lord.

11 Behold, we count them blessed which endure. Ye have heard of the patience of Job, and have known what <sup>1</sup>end the Lord made. For the Lord is very pitiful and merciful.

12 <sup>1</sup>But before all things, my brethren, <sup>4</sup>swear not, neither by heaven, nor by earth, nor by any other oath: but let <sup>2</sup>your yea, be yea, and your nay, nay, lest ye fall into condemnation.

CHAPTER 5

<sup>a</sup> Matt. 5:34<sup>b</sup> Mark 6:13<sup>c</sup> 1 Kings 17:1

1 Kings 18:45

13 <sup>1</sup>Is any among you afflicted? Let him pray. Is any merry? Let him sing.

14 <sup>1</sup>Is any sick among you? Let him call for the Elders of the Church, and let them pray for him, and anoint him with <sup>b,2</sup>oil in the <sup>3</sup>Name of the Lord.

15 And the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up: and if he have committed <sup>1</sup>sins, they shall be forgiven him.

16 <sup>1</sup>Acknowledge your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed: <sup>2</sup>for the prayer of a righteous man availeth much, if it be fervent.

17 <sup>1</sup>Elijah was a man subject to like passions as we are, and he prayed earnestly that it might not rain, and it rained not on the earth for three years and six months.

18 And he prayed again: and the heaven gave rain, and the earth brought forth her fruit.

19 <sup>1</sup>Brethren, <sup>4</sup>If any of you hath erred from the truth, and some man hath <sup>2</sup>converted him, 20 Let him know that he which hath converted the sinner from going astray out of his way, shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins.

5:5 <sup>1</sup> Ye have pampered up yourselves.

5:7 <sup>1</sup> He applieth that to the poor, which he spake against the rich, warning them to wait for the Lord's coming patiently, who will revenge the injuries which the rich men do them.

<sup>2</sup> The taking away of an objection: Although his coming serve to linger, yet at the least we must follow the husbandmen, who do patiently wait for the times that are proper for the fruits of the earth. And again, God will not defer the least iota of the time that he hath appointed.

5:9 <sup>1</sup> He commendeth Christian patience, so that whereas others through impatience use to accuse one another, the faithful on the contrary side complain not, although they receive injury.

<sup>3</sup> The conclusion: The Lord is at the door, who will defend his own, and revenge his enemies, and therefore we need not to trouble ourselves.

5:10 <sup>1</sup> Because most men are wont to object, that it is good to repel injuries by what means soever, he setteth against that, the examples of the Fathers, whose patience had a most happy end, because God as a most bountiful Father, never forsaketh his.

5:11 <sup>1</sup> What end the Lord gave.

5:12 <sup>1</sup> Because even the best men sometimes through impatience break out into oaths sometimes lesser, sometimes greater, the Apostle warneth us to detest such wickedness, and to accustom our tongues to simple and true talk.

<sup>2</sup> That that you have to say or affirm, speak or affirm it simply, and without an oath: and that that you will deny, deny it simply and flatly.

5:13 <sup>1</sup> He showeth the best remedy against all afflictions, to wit, prayers which have their place both in sorrow and joy.

5:14 <sup>1</sup> He showeth peculiarly, to what physicians especially we must go, when we are diseased, to wit, to the prayers of the Elders, which then also could cure the body, (for so much as the gift of healing was then in force) and take away the chiefest cause of sickness and diseases, by obtaining for the sick through their prayers and exhortations, remission of sins.

<sup>2</sup> This was a sign of the gift of healing: and now seeing we have the gift no more, the sign is no longer necessary.

5:15 <sup>1</sup> He hath reason in making mention of sins, for diseases are for the most part sent because of sins.

5:16 <sup>1</sup> Because God pardoneth their sins which confess and acknowledge them, and not theirs which justify themselves, therefore the Apostle addeth, that we ought freely to confer one with another touching those inward diseases, that we may help one another with our prayers.

<sup>2</sup> He commendeth prayers by the effects that come of them, that all men may understand that there is nothing more effectual than they are, so that they proceed from a pure mind.

5:19 <sup>1</sup> The taking away of an objection: All reprehensions are not condemned, seeing that on the contrary part there is nothing more acceptable to God, than to call into the way a brother that was wandering out of the way.

<sup>2</sup> Hath called him back from his way.

THE FIRST EPISTLE GENERAL OF PETER

1 1 He extolleth God's mercy showed in Christ, which we lay hold on by faith, and possess through hope: 10 whereof the Prophets foretold. 13 He exhorteth 15 to renounce the world, 23 and their former life, and so wholly yield themselves to God.

1 PETER an Apostle of JESUS CHRIST, to the strangers that dwell here and there throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia and Bithynia,

2 <sup>1</sup>Elect according to the <sup>2</sup>foreknowledge of God the Father unto <sup>3</sup>sanctification of the Spirit, through obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ: Grace and peace be multiplied unto you.

3 Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a <sup>1</sup>lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead,

4 To an inheritance immortal and undefiled, and that withereth not, reserved in heaven for us,

5 <sup>1</sup>Which are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation, which is prepared to be showed in the <sup>2</sup>last time.

6 Wherein ye rejoyce, though now for a season (if need require) ye are in heaviness, through manifold tentations,

7 That the trial of your faith, being much more precious than gold that perisheth (though it be tried with fire) might be found unto your praise, and honor and glory at the <sup>1</sup>appearing of Jesus Christ:

8 Whom ye have not seen, and yet love him, in whom now, though ye see him not, yet do you believe, and rejoyce with [joy] unspeakable and glorious,

9 Receiving the <sup>1</sup>end of your faith, even the salvation of your souls.

10 <sup>1</sup>Of the which salvation the Prophets have inquired and searched, which prophesied of the grace that should come unto you,

11 Searching when or what time the Spirit which testified before of Christ which was in them, should declare the sufferings that should come unto Christ, and the glory that should follow.

12 Unto whom it was revealed, that not unto themselves, but unto us they should minister the things, which are showed unto you by them which have preached unto you the Gospel by the holy Ghost <sup>1</sup>sent down from heaven, the which things the Angels desire to behold.

13 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore <sup>2</sup>gird up the loins of your mind:

1:2 <sup>1</sup> Peter purposing to speak of the duties of a Christian life, reasoneth first of the principles and beginning of all Christian actions, rising far higher than nature, and carrying us also far above the same. For he showeth that we which are otherwise of nature sinners, were through the free mercy of God the Father first chosen from everlasting: then according to that everlasting decree were by a certain second creation made his sons in Christ his only begotten, by whose Spirit we are inwardly changed, and by whose blood we also are reconciled, to the end, that as Christ himself rose again from the dead, we also might be received into that same heavenly and everlasting glory.

<sup>2</sup> Or according to the purpose of God, who never altereth nor changeth the same.

<sup>3</sup> That being set apart from the rest of the wicked world, through the working of the holy Ghost, they should be consecrate to God, Eph. 1:5.

1:3 <sup>1</sup> Everlasting hope.

1:5 <sup>1</sup> Now he showeth by what way we come unto that glory, to wit, through all kinds of afflictions, wherein notwithstanding faith maketh us so secure, that we are not only not overcome with sorrow, but also through the beholding of God himself (who otherwise is invisible) with the eyes of faith are unspeakably joyful: because all such things, as they are but for a time, so are they not applied unto us to destroy us, but as it were by fire to purge us, and to make us perfect, that at the length we may obtain salvation.

<sup>2</sup> This is that time which Daniel calleth the time of the end, when as that great restoring of all things shall be, which all creatures look for. Rom. 8:19.

1:7 <sup>1</sup> He speaketh of the second coming of Christ.

1:9 <sup>1</sup> Or, reward.

1:10 <sup>1</sup> He putteth a difference between true faith, that is to say, that faith which only hath an eye to the doctrine of the Prophets and Apostles, and false faith: Afterward he maketh two degrees of one and the selfsame faith, according to the manner of the divers revelations, when as indeed it is but one only faith: Thirdly, he saith, that the preaching of the Apostles is the fulfilling of the preaching of the Prophets, although the latter end of it be as yet looked for of the very Angels.

1:12 <sup>1</sup> He alludeth to the prophecy of Joel, which was exhibited upon the day of Pentecost, in the Apostles, as it were in the firstfruits of the holy Ghost, which this same our Peter declareth, Acts 2:6.

1:13 <sup>1</sup> He goeth from faith to hope, which is indeed a companion that cannot be sundered from faith: and he useth an argument taken of comparison: We ought not to be wearied in looking for so excellent a thing, which the very Angels wait for with great desire.

<sup>2</sup> This is a borrowed speech, taken of a common usage amongst them: for by reason that they wore long garments, they could not travel unless they girded up themselves: and hence it is that Christ said, Let your loins be girded up.

be sober, <sup>3</sup>and trust <sup>4</sup>perfectly on that grace <sup>5</sup>that is brought unto you, <sup>6</sup>in the revelation of Jesus Christ,

14 <sup>1</sup>As obedient children, not fashioned yourselves unto the former lusts of your ignorance:

15 But as he which hath called you, is holy, so be ye holy in <sup>a</sup>all manner of conversation, 16 <sup>1</sup>Because it is written, <sup>b</sup>Be ye holy, for I am holy.

17 <sup>1</sup>And if ye <sup>2</sup>call him Father, which without respect of person judgeth according to every man's work, pass the time of your dwelling here in fear.

18 <sup>1</sup>Knowing that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold, from your vain conversation, received by the traditions of the fathers,

19 <sup>d</sup>But with the precious blood of Christ, as of a Lamb undefiled, and without spot.

20 <sup>1</sup>Which was <sup>c</sup>ordained before the <sup>2</sup>foundation of the world, but was declared in the last times for your sakes,

<sup>a</sup> Rom. 6:4

Eph. 4:23

Col. 3:8

Heb. 12:1

your faith and hope might be in God.

22 <sup>1</sup>Having purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit, to <sup>1</sup>love brotherly without feigning, love one another with a pure heart fervently:

23 Being born anew, not of mortal seed, but of immortal, by the word of God, who liveth and endureth forever.

24 <sup>1</sup>For all <sup>2</sup>flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man is as the flower of grass. The grass withereth, and the flower falleth away.

25 <sup>1</sup>But the word of the Lord endureth forever: and this is the word which is preached among you.

2 He exhorteth the newborn in faith, to lead their lives answerable to the same: 6 and lest their faith should stagger, he bringeth in that which was foretold touching Christ. 11 Then he willeth them to be obedient to Magistrates. 21 and that they patiently bear adversity after Christ's example.

1 Wherefore, <sup>a</sup>laying aside all maliciousness, and all guile, and dissimulation, and envy, and all evil speaking,

2 <sup>1</sup>As <sup>2</sup>newborn babes desire that sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby,

<sup>3</sup> He setteth forth very briefly, what manner of hope ours ought to be, to wit, continual, until we enjoy the thing we hope for: then, what we have to hope for, to wit, grace (that is, free salvation) revealed to us in the Gospel, and not that, that men do rashly and fondly promise to themselves.

<sup>5</sup> An argument to stir up our minds, seeing that God doth not wait till we seek him, but causeth so great a benefit to be brought even unto us.

<sup>6</sup> He setteth out the end of faith, lest any man should promise himself, either sooner or later that full salvation, to wit, the later coming of Christ: and therewithal warneth us, not to measure the dignity of the Gospel according to the present state, seeing that that which we are now, is not yet revealed.

1:14 <sup>1</sup> He passeth from faith and hope, to the fruits of them both, which are understood in the name of obedience: And it consisteth in two things, in renouncing our lusts, and living godly: which lusts have their beginning of that blindness wherein all men are born: but holiness proceedeth from the grace and favor of GOD, which adopteth us, and therefore regenerateth us, that the father and the children may be of one disposition.

1:16 <sup>1</sup> He showeth that sanctification doth necessarily follow adoption.

1:17 <sup>1</sup> As before he distinguished true faith and hope from false, so doth he now obedience, setting the quick and sharp sight of God, against an outward mask, and earnest reverence against vain severity.

<sup>2</sup> If you will be called the sons of that Father.

1:18 <sup>1</sup> An exhortation, wherein he setteth forth the excellency and greatness of the benefit of God the Father, in sanctifying us by the death of his own Son. And he partly setteth the purifyings of the Law against the thing itself, that is, against the blood of Christ, and partly also men's traditions which he condemneth as utterly vain and superstitious, be they never so old and ancient.

1:20 <sup>1</sup> The taking away of an objection: what was done to the world before that Christ was sent into the world? was there no holiness before, and was there no Church? The Apostle answereth, that Christ was ordained and appointed to redeem and deliver mankind, before that mankind was: much less was there any Church without him before his coming into the flesh: yet we are happiest above the rest, to whom Christ was exhibited indeed, in this that he having suffered and overcome death for us, doth now most effectually work in us by the virtue of his Spirit, to create in us faith, hope, and charity.

1:22 <sup>1</sup> He commendeth the practice of obedience, that is, charity: earnestly beating into their heads again, that he speaketh not of any common charity, and such as proceedeth from that our corrupt nature, but of that whose beginning is the Spirit of God, which purifieth our souls through the word laid hold on by faith, and engendereth also in us a spiritually and everlasting life, as God is most pure and truly living.

1:24 <sup>1</sup> A reason why we have need of this heavenly generation, to wit, because that men, be their glory never so great, are of nature void of all true and sound goodness.

<sup>2</sup> The word (flesh) showeth the weakness of our nature, which is chiefly to be considered in the flesh itself.

1:25 <sup>1</sup> Again, lest any man should seek that spiritual force and virtue in fained imaginations, the Apostle calleth us back to the word of God: teaching us furthermore, that there is no other word of the Lord to be looked for, than this which is preached, in which only we must trust.

2:1 <sup>1</sup> Having laid for the foundation the Spirit of God effectually working by the word, and having built thereupon three virtues which are the grounds of all Christian actions, to wit, faith, hope, and charity: now he proceedeth to a general exhortation, the first member whereof is, that we flee all show, both of secret and also open malice.

2:2 <sup>1</sup> The second is, that being newly begotten and born of the new seed of the incorrupt word drawing and sucking greedily the same word as milk, we should more and more as it were grow up in that spiritual life. And he calleth it, Sincere, not only because it is a most pure thing, but also that we should take heed of them which corrupt it.

4 <sup>1</sup>To whom coming as unto a living stone, disallowed of men, but chosen of God and precious,

5 Ye also as lively stones, be made a spiritual house, <sup>1</sup>a holy <sup>b</sup>Priesthood to offer up spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God by Jesus Christ.

6 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore also it is contained in the Scripture, 'Behold, I put in Zion a chief cornerstone, elect and precious, and he that believeth therein, shall not be ashamed.

7 <sup>1</sup>Unto you therefore which believe, it is precious: but unto them which be disobedient, the <sup>a</sup>stone which the builders disallowed, the same is made the head of the corner,

8 And a <sup>a</sup>stone to stumble at, and a rock of offence, even to them which stumble at the word, being disobedient, unto the which thing they were even ordained.

9 <sup>1</sup>But ye are a chosen generation, a royal <sup>1</sup>Priesthood, a holy nation, a people set at liberty, that ye should show forth the virtues of him that hath called you out of darkness into his marvelous light,

10 <sup>a</sup>Which in time past were not a people, yet are now the people of God: which in time past were not under mercy, but now have obtained mercy.

11 <sup>1</sup>Dearly beloved, <sup>2</sup>I beseech you, as strangers and pilgrims, <sup>b,3</sup>abstain from fleshly lusts <sup>4</sup>which fight against the soul,

13 <sup>k,1</sup> Therefore submit yourselves unto <sup>2</sup>all manner ordinance of man <sup>3</sup>for the Lord's sake, <sup>4</sup>whether it be unto the King, as unto the superior,

2:3 <sup>1</sup> He commendeth that spiritual nourishment for the sweetness and profit of it.

2:4 <sup>1</sup> He goeth on forward in the same exhortation, and useth another kind of borrowed speech, alluding to the Temple. Therefore he saith, that the company of the faithful is as it were a certain holy and spiritual building, built of lively stones, the foundation whereof is Christ, as a lively stone sustaining all that are joined unto him with his living virtue, and knitting them together with himself, although this so great a treasure be neglected of men.

2:5 <sup>1</sup> Going forward in the same similitude, he compareth us now to Priests placed to this end in that spiritual temple, that we should serve him with spiritual worship, that is, with holiness and righteousness: but as the temple, so is the Priesthood built upon Christ, in whom only all our spiritual offerings are accepted.

2:6 <sup>1</sup> He proveth it by the testimony of the Prophet Isaiah.

2:7 <sup>1</sup> By setting the most blessed condition of the believers, and the most miserable of the rebellious one against another, he pricketh forward the believers, and triumpheth over the others: and also preventeth an offense which ariseth hereof, that none do more resist this doctrine of the Gospel, than they which are chiefest amongst the people of God, as were at that time that Peter wrote these things, the Priests and Elders, and Scribes. Therefore he answereth first of all that there is no cause why any man should be astonished at this their stubbornness, as though it were a strange matter, seeing that we have been forewarned so long before, that it should so come to pass: and moreover, that it pleased God to create and make certain to this selfsame purpose, that the Son of God might be glorified in their just condemnation. Thirdly, for that the glory of Christ is hereby set forth greatly, whereas notwithstanding Christ remaineth the sure head of his Church, and they that stumble at him, cast down and overthrow themselves, and not Christ. Fourthly, although they be created to this end and purpose, yet their fall and decay is not to be attributeth to God, but to their own obstinate stubbornness which cometh between God's decree, and the execution thereof or their condemnation, and is the true and proper cause of their destruction.

2:9 <sup>1</sup> The contrary member, to wit, he describeth the singular excellency of the elect: and also lest any man should doubt whether he be chosen or not, the Apostle calleth us back to the effectual calling, that is, to the voice of the Gospel sounding both in our ears and minds by the outward preaching and Sacraments, whereby we may certainly understand that everlasting decree of our salvation, (which otherwise is most secret and hidden) and that through the only mercy of God, who freely chooseth and calleth us. Therefore this only remaineth, sayeth he, that by all means possible we set forth so great goodness of the most mighty God.

2:11 <sup>1</sup> He returneth to that general exhortation.

<sup>2</sup> A reason why we ought to live holily, to wit, because we are citizens of heaven, and therefore we ought to live according to the Laws not of this world, which is most corrupt, but of the heavenly city, although we be strangers in the world.

<sup>3</sup> Another argument: The children of God live not according to the flesh, that is, according to that corrupt nature, but according to the spirit. Therefore fleshly motions ought not to bear rule in us.

<sup>4</sup> The third argument: for although those lusts flatter us, yet they cease not to fight against our salvation.

2:12 <sup>1</sup> The fourth argument, taken of the profit of so doing: for by this means also we provide for our good name and estimation, whilst we compel them at length to change their minds, which speak evil of us.

<sup>2</sup> The fifth argument, which also is of great force: Because the glory of God is greatly set forth by that means, whilst by example of our honest life, even the most profane men are brought unto God, and submit themselves unto him.

<sup>3</sup> When God shall also have mercy on them.

2:13 <sup>1</sup> That which he spoke generally, he now expoundeth by parts, describing severally every man's duty. And first of all he speaketh of obedience which is due both to the Laws, and also to the Magistrates both higher and lower.

<sup>2</sup> By ordinance, is meant the framing and ordering of civil government: which he calleth ordinance of man, not because man invented it, but because it is proper to men.

<sup>3</sup> The first argument: because the Lord is the author and revenger of this policy of men, that is, which is set amongst men: and therefore the true servants of the Lord must above all others be diligent observers of this order.

<sup>4</sup> He preventeth a cavil which is made by some, that say they will obey Kings and the higher magistrates, and yet contemn their ministers: as though their ministers were not armed with their authority which sent them.

14 Or unto governors, as unto them that are sent of him, <sup>1</sup>for the punishment of evil doers, and for the praise of them that do well.

15 <sup>1</sup>For so is the will of God, that by well doing ye may put to silence the ignorance of the foolish men.

16 As free, and not as having the liberty for a cloak of maliciousness, but as the servants of God.

17 <sup>1,2</sup>Honor all men: <sup>1</sup>love <sup>3</sup>brotherly fellowship: fear God: honor the King.

18 <sup>m,1</sup>Servants, be subject to your masters with all fear, not only to the good and courteous, but also to the froward.

19 <sup>n,1</sup>For this is thankworthy, if a man for <sup>2</sup>conscience toward God endure grief, suffering wrongly.

20 For what praise is it, if when ye be buffeted for your faults, ye take it patiently? but and if when ye do well, ye suffer wrong and take it patiently, this is acceptable to God.

21 <sup>1</sup>For hereunto ye are called: for Christ also suffered for you, leaving you an <sup>2</sup>example that ye should follow his steps, 22 <sup>o</sup>Who did no sin, neither was there guile found in his mouth.

23 Who when he was reviled, reviled not again: when he suffered, he threatened not, but <sup>1</sup>committed it to him <sup>2</sup>that judgeth righteously.

24 <sup>p,1</sup>Who his own self bare our sins in his body on the tree, that we being dead to sin, should live in righteousness: by whose stripes ye were healed.

25 For ye were as sheep going astray: but are now returned unto the Shepherd and Bishop of your souls.

1 Likewise <sup>a,1</sup>let the wives be subject to their husbands, <sup>2</sup>that even they which obey not the word, may without the word be won by the conversation of the wives.

2 While they behold your pure conversation which is with fear:

3 <sup>b,1</sup>Whose appareling let it not be that outward, with braided hair, and gold put about, or in putting on of apparel:

4 But let it be the <sup>1</sup>hidden man of the heart, which consisteth in the incorruption of a meek and quiet spirit, which is <sup>2</sup>before God a thing much set by.

5 <sup>1</sup>For even after this manner in time past did the holy women, which trusted in God, tire themselves, and were subject to their husbands.

2:14 <sup>1</sup> The second argument taken of the end of this order, which is not only most profitable, but also very necessary: seeing that by this means virtue is rewarded, and vice punished: wherein the quietness and happiness of this life consisteth.

2:15 <sup>1</sup> He declareth the first argument more amply, showing that Christian liberty doth amongst all things least, or not at all consist herein, to wit, to cast off the bridle of Laws, (as at that time some altogether unskillful in the kingdom of God reported) but rather in this, that living holly according to the will of God, we should make manifest to all men, that the Gospel is not a cloak for sin and wickedness, seeing we are in such sort free, that yet we are still the servants of God, and not of sin.

2:17 <sup>1</sup> He divideth the civil life of man, by occasion of those things of which he spake into two general parts: to wit, into those duties which private men owe to private men, and especially the faithful to the faithful, and into that subjection whereby inferiors are bound to their superiors: but so, that Kings be not made equal to God, seeing that fear is due to God, and honor to Kings.

2:18 <sup>1</sup> He goeth to the duty of servants towards their masters, which he describeth with these bounds, that servants submit themselves willingly and not by constraint, not only to the good and courteous, but also to the froward and sharp masters.

2:19 <sup>1</sup> The taking away of an objection: Indeed the condition of servants is hard, especially if they have froward masters: but this their subjection shall be so much the more acceptable to God, if his will prevails more with servants, than the masters' injuries.

<sup>2</sup> Because he maketh a conscience of it to offered God, by whose good will and appointment, he knoweth this burden is laid upon him.

2:21 <sup>1</sup> He mitigateth the grievousness of servitude, while he showeth plainly that Christ died also for servants, that they should bear so much the more patiently this inequality betwixt men which are of one selfsame nature, moreover setting before them Christ that Lord of Lords for an ensample, he signifieth that they cannot but seem too delicate, which show themselves more grieved in bearing of injuries, than Christ himself who was most just, and most sharply of all afflicted, and yet was most patient.

2:23 <sup>1</sup> He showeth them a remedy against injuries, to wit, that they commend their cause to God, by the ensample of Christ.

<sup>2</sup> He seemeth now to turn his speech to masters, which have also themselves a master and judge in heaven: who will justly revenge the injuries that are done to servants without any respect of persons.

2:24 <sup>1</sup> He calleth the servants back from the consideration of the injuries which they are constrained to bear, to think upon the greatness, and the end of the benefit received of Christ.

3:1 <sup>1</sup> In the third place he setteth forth the wives' duty to their husbands, commanding them to be obedient.

<sup>2</sup> He speaketh namely of them which had husbands that were not Christians, which ought so much the more be subject to their husbands, that by their honest and chaste conversation they may give them to the Lord.

3:3 <sup>1</sup> He condemneth the riot and excess of women and setteth forth their true appareling such as is precious before God: to wit, the inward and incorruptible which consisteth in a meek and quiet spirit.

3:4 <sup>1</sup> Who hath his seat fastened in the heart: so that the hid man is set against the outward decking of the body.

3:5 <sup>1</sup> An argument taken of the example of women, and especially of Sarah who was the mother of all believers.

6 As Sarah obeyed Abraham, and <sup>c</sup>called him Sir: whose daughters ye are, while ye do well, <sup>1</sup>not being afraid of any terror.

8 <sup>1</sup>Finally, be ye all of one mind: one suffer with another: love as brethren: be pitiful, be courteous.

9 <sup>e,1</sup>Not rendering evil for evil, neither rebuke for rebuke: but contrariwise bless, <sup>2</sup>knowing that ye are thereunto called, that ye should be heirs of blessing.

10 <sup>f,1</sup>For if any man long after life, and to <sup>2</sup>see good days, let him refrain his tongue from evil, and his lips that they speak no guile.

11 <sup>g</sup>Let him eschew evil and do good: let him seek peace and follow after it.

13 <sup>1</sup>And who is it that will harm you, if ye follow that which is good?

14 <sup>h</sup>Notwithstanding blessed are ye, if ye suffer for righteousness' sake. <sup>1</sup>Yea, <sup>2</sup>fear not their <sup>2</sup>fear, neither be troubled.

15 But <sup>1</sup>sanctify the Lord God in your hearts, <sup>2</sup>and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you, with meekness and reverence.

16 Having a good conscience, that when they speak evil of you as of evil doers, they may be ashamed which slander your good conversation in Christ.

17 <sup>1</sup>For it is better (if the will of God be so) that ye suffer for well doing, than for evil doing.

18 <sup>1</sup>For Christ also hath once suffered for sins,

3:6 <sup>1</sup> Because women are of nature fearful, he giveth them to understand, that he requireth of them that subjection, which is not wrung out of them either by force or fear.

3:7 <sup>1</sup> He teacheth husbands also their duties, to wit, that the more understanding and wisdom they have, the more wisely and circumspectly they behave themselves.

<sup>3</sup> The more wisdom the husband hath, the more circumspectly he must behave himself in bearing those commodities, which through the woman's weakness ofttimes cause trouble both to the husband and the wife.

<sup>4</sup> The second argument, because the wife notwithstanding that she is weaker by nature than the man, is an excellent instrument of the man made to far most excellent uses: whereupon it followeth that she is not therefore to be neglected because she is weak, but on the contrary part she ought to be so much the more cared for.

<sup>6</sup> The woman is called a vessel after the manner of the Hebrews, because the husband useth her as his fellow and helper to live faithfully before God.

<sup>7</sup> The third argument: for that they are equal in that which is the chiefest (that is to say, in the benefit of eternal life) which otherwise are unequal as touching the governance and conversation at home, and therefore they are not to be despised although they be weak.

<sup>8</sup> Of that gracious and free benefit whereby we have everlasting life given us.

<sup>9</sup> The fourth argument: All brawlings and chidings must be eschewed, because they hinder prayers and the whole service of God whereunto both the husband and wife are equally called.

3:8 <sup>1</sup> He returneth to common exhortations and commendeth concord and whatsoever things pertain to the maintenance of peace and mutual love.

3:9 <sup>1</sup> We must not only not recompense injury for injury, but we must also recompense them with benefits.

<sup>2</sup> An argument taken of comparison: Seeing that we ourselves are called of God whom we offend so often, to so great a benefit (so far is he from revenging the injuries which we do unto him) shall we rather make ourselves unworthy of so great bountifulness, than forgive one another's faults? And from this verse to the end of the chapter, there is a digression or going from the matter he is in hand with, to exhort us valiantly to bear afflictions.

3:10 <sup>1</sup> A secret objection: But this our patience shall be nothing else but a fleshing and hardening of the wicked in their wickedness, to make them to set upon us more boldly, and to destroy us. (Nay saith the Apostle by the words of David) to live without doing hurt, and to follow after peace when it fleeth away, is the way to the happy and quiet peace. And if so be any man be afflicted for doing justly, the Lord maketh all things, and will in his time deliver the godly, which cry unto him, and will destroy the wicked.

3:12 <sup>1</sup> This word (Face) after the manner of the Hebrews, is taken for (anger).

3:13 <sup>1</sup> The second argument: when the wicked are provoked, they are more wayward: therefore they must rather be overcome with good turns: And if they cannot be gotten by that means also, yet notwithstanding we shall be blessed, if we suffer for righteousness' sake.

3:14 <sup>1</sup> A most certain counsel in afflictions, be they never so terrible, to be of a constant mind, and to stand fast. But how shall we attain unto it? If we sanctify God in our minds and hearts, that is to say, if we rest upon him, as one that is Almighty, that loveth mankind, that is good and true indeed.

<sup>2</sup> Be not dismayed as they are.

3:15 <sup>1</sup> Give him all praise and glory, and hang only on him.

<sup>2</sup> He will have us when we are afflicted for righteousness' sake, to be careful not for redeeming of our life, either with denying, or renouncing the truth, or with like violence, or any such means: but rather to give an account of our faith boldly, and yet with a meek spirit, and full to godly reverence, that the enemies may not have anything justly to object, but may rather be ashamed of themselves.

3:17 <sup>1</sup> A reason which standeth upon two general rules of Christianity, which notwithstanding all men allow not of. The one is, if we must needs suffer afflictions, it is better to suffer wrongfully than rightfully: the other is this, because we are so afflicted, not by hap, but by the will of our God.

3:18 <sup>1</sup> A proof of either of the rules, by the example of Christ himself our chief pattern who was afflicted, not for his own sins (which were none) but for ours, and that according to his Father's decree.

<sup>2</sup>the just for the unjust, <sup>3</sup>that he might bring us to God, <sup>4</sup>and was put to death concerning the <sup>5</sup>flesh, but was quickened by the spirit.

19 <sup>1</sup>By <sup>2</sup>the which he also went, and preached unto the <sup>3</sup>spirits that are in prison.

20 Which were in time passed disobedient, when <sup>1</sup>once the long suffering of God abode in the days of <sup>k</sup>Noah, while the Ark was preparing, wherein few, that is, eight <sup>2</sup>souls were saved in the water.

21 <sup>1</sup>Whereof the baptism that now is, answering that figure, (which is not a putting away of the filth of the flesh, but a confident demanding with a good conscience maketh to <sup>2</sup>God) saveth us also <sup>3</sup>by the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

22 Which is at the right hand of God, gone into heaven, to whom the Angels, and Powers, and might are subject.

4 <sup>1</sup> He bringeth in Christ's example, and applieth it, 6 to the mortifying of the flesh, especially commending Charity: 12 And so treateth of patience. 19 That it is necessary that correction begin at the Church.

1 Forasmuch <sup>1</sup>then as Christ hath suffered for us in the flesh, arm yourselves likewise with the same mind, which is, that he which hath suffered in the flesh, hath ceased from sin,

2 That he hence forward should live (as much time as <sup>1</sup>remaineth in the flesh) not after the lusts of men, but after the will of God.

3 <sup>a1</sup>For it is sufficient for us that we have spent the time past of the life, after the lust <sup>2</sup>of the Gentiles walking in wantonness, lusts, drunkenness, in gluttony, drinkings, and in abominable idolatries.

4 <sup>1</sup>Wherein it seemeth to them <sup>2</sup>strange, that ye run not with them unto the same excess of riot: therefore speak they evil of you.

5 Which shall give account to him, that is ready to judge quick and dead.

6 <sup>1</sup>For unto this purpose was the Gospel preached also unto the dead, that they might be condemned according to men in the flesh, but might live according to God in the spirit.

<sup>2</sup> An argument taken of comparison: Christ the just suffered for us that are unjust, and shall it grieve us who are unjust to suffer for the just's cause?

<sup>3</sup> Another argument being partly taken of things coupled together, to wit, because Christ bringeth us to his Father that same way that he went himself, and partly from the cause efficient: to wit, because Christ is not only set before us for an example to follow, but also he holdeth us up by his virtue in all the difficulties of this life, until he bring us to his Father.

<sup>4</sup> Another argument taken of the happy end of these afflictions, wherein also Christ goeth before us both in example and virtues, as one who suffered most grievous torments even unto death, although but in one part only of him, to wit, in the flesh or man's nature, but yet became conqueror by virtue of his divinity.

<sup>5</sup> As touching his manhood, for his body was dead, and his soul felt the sorrows of death.

3:19 <sup>1</sup> A secret objection: Christ indeed might do this, but what is that to us? yet (saith the Apostle) for Christ hath showed forth this virtue in all ages both to the preservation of the godly, were they never so few and miserable, and to revenge the rebellion of his enemies, as it appeareth by the history of the flood: for Christ is he which in those days (when God through his patience appointed a time of repentance to the world) was present not in corporal presence, but by his divine virtue, preaching repentance even by the mouth of Noah himself who then prepared the Ark, to those disobedient spirits which are now in prison waiting for the full recompence of their rebellion, and saved those few (that is, eight only persons) in the water.

<sup>2</sup> By the virtue of which Spirit, that is to say of the divinity: therefore this word, Spirit, cannot in this place be taken for the soul, unless we say, that Christ was raised up again, and quickened by the virtue of his soul.

<sup>3</sup> He calleth them Spirits, in respect of his time, not in respect of the time that they were in the flesh.

3:20 <sup>1</sup> This word (once) showeth that there was a furthermost day appointed, and if that were once past, there should be no more.

<sup>2</sup> Men.

3:21 <sup>1</sup> A proportional applying of the former example to the times which followed the coming of Christ: for that preservation of Noah in the waters was a figure of our Baptism, not as though that material water of Baptism saveth us, as those waters which bare up the Ark saved Noah, but because Christ with his inward virtue, which the outward Baptism shadoweth, preserveth us being washed, so that we may call upon God with a good conscience.

<sup>3</sup> That selfsame virtue, whereby Christ rose again, and now being carried into heaven, hath received all power, doth at this day defend and preserve us.

4:1 <sup>1</sup> Having ended his digression and sliding from his matter, now he returneth to the exhortation which he brake off, taking occasion by that which he said touching the death, and resurrection of Christ, so defining our sanctification, that to be sanctified, is all one as to suffer in the flesh, that is to say: to leave off from our wickedness and viciousness: and to rise again to God, that is to say, to be renewed, by the virtue of the holy Ghost, that we may lead the rest of our life which remaineth, after the will of God.

4:2 <sup>1</sup> So much of this present life as remaineth yet to be passed over.

4:3 <sup>1</sup> By putting us in mind of the dishonesty of our former life led in the filth of sin, he calleth us to earnest repentance.

4:4 <sup>1</sup> That we be not moved with the enemies' perverse and slanderous judgments of us, we have to set against them that last judgment of God which remaineth for them, for none, whether they be then found living, or were dead before, shall escape it.

4:6 <sup>1</sup> A digression because he made mention of the last general judgement. And he preventeth an objection, that seeing Christ came very lately, they may seem to be excusable which died before. But this the Apostle denieth, for (saith he) this selfsame Gospel was preached unto them also: (for he speaketh unto the Jews) and that to the same end that I now preach it unto you, to wit, that the flesh being abolished and put away (that is to say, that wicked and naughty corruption which reigneth in men) they should suffer themselves to be governed by the virtue of the Spirit of God.

7 <sup>1</sup>Now the end of all things is at hand. Be ye therefore sober, and watching in prayer.

8 <sup>1</sup>But above all things have fervent love among you: <sup>6</sup>for love shall cover the multitude of sins.

9 <sup>1</sup>Be ye <sup>4</sup>harberous one to another, without grudging.

10 <sup>1,4</sup>Let every man as he hath received the gift, minister the same one to another, <sup>2</sup>as good disposers of the manifold grace of God.

11 <sup>1</sup>If any man speak, let him speak as the words of God. If any man minister, let him do it as of the ability which God ministereth, that God in all things may be glorified through Jesus Christ, to whom is praise and dominion forever, and ever, Amen.

12 <sup>1</sup>Dearly beloved, think it not <sup>2</sup>strange <sup>3</sup>concerning the fiery trial, which is among you to prove you as though some strange thing were come unto you.

13 <sup>1</sup>But rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings, that when his glory shall appear, ye may be glad and rejoice.

14 <sup>6,1</sup>If ye be railed upon for the Name of Christ, blessed are ye: for the <sup>2</sup>spirit of glory and of God resteth upon you: which on their part is evil spoken of, but on your part is glorified.

16 But if any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed: but let him glorify God in this behalf.

17 <sup>1</sup>For the time is come that judgment must begin at the house of God. <sup>2</sup>If it first begin at us, what shall the end be of them which obey not the Gospel of God?

18 <sup>f</sup>And if the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?

19 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore let them that suffer according to the will of God, commit their souls to him in well doing, as unto a faithful Creator.

5 <sup>1</sup> He warneth the Elders not to usurp authority over the Church, <sup>5</sup> willing the younger sort to be willing to be taught, and to be modest, <sup>8</sup> to be sober and watchful to resist the cruel adversary.

1 The <sup>1</sup>Elders which are among you, <sup>2</sup>I beseech which am also an Elder, and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, and also a partaker of the glory that shall be revealed,

4:7 <sup>1</sup> He returneth to his purpose, using an argument taken from the circumstance of the time, because the last end is at hand, and therefore we must so much the more diligently watch and pray with true sobriety of mind.

4:8 <sup>1</sup> He commendeth charity of one toward another, because it doth as it were bury a multitude of sins, and therefore preserveth and maintaineth peace and concord: for they that love one another, do easily forgive one another their offense.

4:9 <sup>1</sup> Of all the duties of charity, he commendeth one, namely, which was at that time most necessary, to wit, hospitality, which he will have to be voluntary and most courteous and bountiful.

4:10 <sup>1</sup> He showeth the use of charity, to wit, that every man bestow that gift which he hath received to the profit of his neighbor.

<sup>2</sup> A reason, because that what gift soever we have we have received it of God upon this condition, to be his disposers and stewards.

4:11 <sup>1</sup> He reckoneth up two kinds of these gifts as chief, to wit, the office of teaching in the Church, and the other Ecclesiastical functions, wherein two things specially are to be observed, to wit, that the pure word of God be taught, and whatsoever is done, be referred to the glory of God the Father, in Christ, as to the proper mark.

4:12 <sup>1</sup> Because the cross is joined with the sincere profession of Religion, the Apostle fitly repeateth that which he touched before, warning us not to be troubled at persecutions and afflictions, as a new and strange thing.

<sup>2</sup> As though some new thing had befallen you, which you never thought of before.

<sup>3</sup> The first reason: Because the Lord meaneth not to consume us with this fire (as it were) but to purge us of our dross, and make us perfect.

4:13 <sup>1</sup> Another reason: Because the afflictions of the godly and the wicked differ very much, and chiefly in three points. First, because the godly communicate with Christ in their afflictions, and therefore shall in their time be partakers also of his glory.

4:14 <sup>1</sup> Secondly, because that although the infidels think far otherwise, who in afflicting the godly, blaspheme God, yet the godly in that they are so railed upon, are honored of God with the true spiritual glory, and their adoption sealed in them by the Spirit of God.

4:15 <sup>1</sup> The third difference: for the godly are not afflicted for their evil doings, but for righteousness' sake as Christians: whereby it cometh to pass that the cross, seeing it is a testimony unto them of faith and righteousness, ministereth unto them not an occasion of sorrow, but of unspeakable joy: now the Apostle propoundeth the third difference under the form of an exhortation.

4:17 <sup>1</sup> The third reason because the Lord of all the world being especially careful for them of his household, doth therefore chastise them first of all, yet so that he keepeth a measure in his greatest severity: And as he hath always used to do heretofore, so doth he now specially when as he exhibited himself in person to his Church.

<sup>2</sup> Lest the godly should be offended and stumble at that vain shadow of felicity of the wicked, as though God were not the governor of the world, for that the wicked are in good case, and the godly in evil, the Apostle teacheth by an argument of a comparison of them together, that God who spareth not his own, but nurtureth them under the cross, will at length in his time handle the rebellious and wicked far otherwise, whom he hath appointed to utter destruction.

4:19 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion: Seeing the godly are not afflicted by chance, but by the will of God, they ought not to despair, but go forward, notwithstanding in the way of holiness and well doing, commending themselves to God their faithful Creator, that is to say, their Father.

5:1 <sup>1</sup> He describeth peculiarly the office of the Elders, that is to say, of them that have the care of the Church.

<sup>2</sup> He useth a preface touching the circumstance of his own person: to wit, that he as their companion, communeth with them not of matters which he knoweth not, but wherein he is as well experienced as any, and propoundeth unto them no other condition but that which he himself hath sustained before them, and doth still take the same pains, and also hath one selfsame hope together with them.

2 <sup>1,2</sup>Feed the <sup>3</sup>flock of God, <sup>4</sup>which dependeth upon you, <sup>5</sup>caring for it not by constraint, but willingly: not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind:

3 Not as though ye were Lords over God's <sup>1</sup>heritage, but that ye may be examples to the flock.

4 <sup>1</sup>And when that chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive an incorruptible crown of glory.

5 <sup>1</sup>Likewise ye younger submit yourselves unto the Elders, and submit yourselves every man, one to another: <sup>a</sup>deck yourselves inwardly in lowliness of mind: <sup>2</sup>for <sup>b</sup>God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble.

6 Humble <sup>c</sup>yourself therefore <sup>1</sup>under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time.

7 <sup>d</sup>Cast all your care on him: for he careth for you.

8 <sup>1</sup>Be sober, and watch: for <sup>c</sup>your adversary the devil as a roaring lion walketh about, seeking whom

10 <sup>1</sup>And the God of all grace, which hath called us unto his eternal glory by Christ Jesus, after that ye have suffered a little, make you perfect, confirm, strengthen, and establish you.

11 To him be glory and dominion forever and ever, Amen.

12 <sup>1</sup>By Silvanus a faithful brother unto you, as I suppose, have I written briefly, exhorting and testifying how that this is the true grace of God, wherein ye stand.

13 <sup>1</sup>The Church that is at <sup>2</sup>Babylon elected together with you, saluteth you, and Mark my son.

14 Greet ye one another with the <sup>1</sup>kiss of love. Peace be with you all which are in Christ Jesus, Amen.

5:2 <sup>1</sup> The first rule: He that is a shepherd, let him feed the flock.

<sup>3</sup> The second: Let the shepherd consider, that the flock is not his, but God's.

<sup>4</sup> The third: Let not the shepherds invade other men's flocks, but let them feed that which God hath committed unto them.

<sup>5</sup> Let the shepherds govern the Church with the word and example of godly and unblamable life, not by constraint but willingly, not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind, not as Lords over God's portion and heritage, but as his ministers.

5:3 <sup>1</sup> Which is the Christian people.

5:4 <sup>1</sup> That the shepherds' minds be not overcome either with the wickedness of men, or their cruelty, he warneth them to cast their eyes continually upon that chief Shepherd, and the crown which is laid up for them in heaven.

5:5 <sup>1</sup> He commendeth many peculiar Christian virtues, and especially modesty: which admonition all of us stand in need of, but especially the younger sort, by reason of the outwardness and pride of that age.

<sup>2</sup> Because pride seemeth to many, to be the way unto the glory of this life, the Apostle witnesseth on the contrary side, that ignominy and shame is the reward of pride, and glory the reward of modesty.

5:6 <sup>1</sup> Because those proud and lofty spirits threaten the modest and humble, the Apostle warneth us to set the power of God against the vanity of proud men, and to hang wholly upon his providence.

5:8 <sup>1</sup> The cruelty of Satan, who seeketh by all means to devour us, is overcome by watchfulness and faith.

5:9 <sup>1</sup> The persecutions which Satan stirreth up are neither new nor proper to any one man, but from old and ancient time common to the whole Church, and therefore we must suffer that patiently wherein we have such and so many fellows of our conflicts and combats.

5:10 <sup>1</sup> He sealeth up as it were with a seal the former exhortation with a solemn prayer, again willing them to ask increase of strength at his hands of whom they had the beginning, and hope to have the accomplishment, to wit, of God the Father in Jesus Christ in whom we are sure of the glory of eternal life.

5:12 <sup>1</sup> Continuance and perseverance in the doctrine of the Apostles, is the only ground and foundation of Christian strength: Now the sum of the Apostles' doctrine, is salvation freely given of God.

5:13 <sup>1</sup> Familiar salutations.

THE SECOND EPISTLE GENERAL OF PETER

1 <sup>3</sup> Having spoken of the bountifulness of God, <sup>5</sup> and of the virtues of faith. <sup>6</sup> He exhorteth them to holiness of life. <sup>12</sup> And that his counsel may be the more effectual. <sup>14</sup> He showeth that his death is at hand, <sup>16</sup> and that himself did see the power of Christ, which he opened unto them.

1 Simon <sup>1</sup> Peter a servant and an Apostle of Jesus Christ, to you which have obtained like precious faith with us by the <sup>2</sup> righteousness of our God and Savior Jesus Christ.

2 Grace and peace be multiplied to you, <sup>1</sup> through the acknowledging of God, and of Jesus Christ our Lord,

3 <sup>1</sup> According as his <sup>2</sup> divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto <sup>3</sup> life and godliness, through the <sup>4</sup> acknowledging of him that hath called us unto glory and virtue.

5 <sup>1</sup> Therefore give even all diligence thereunto: <sup>2</sup> join moreover virtue with your faith: and with virtue, knowledge:

6 <sup>1</sup> And with knowledge, temperance: and with temperance, patience: and with patience, godliness:

7 And with godliness, brotherly kindness: and with brotherly kindness, love.

8 <sup>1</sup> For if these things be among you, and abound, they will make you that ye neither shall be idle, nor unfruitful in the acknowledging of our Lord Jesus Christ:

9 For he that hath not these things, is blind, and <sup>1</sup> cannot see far off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old sins.

10 <sup>1</sup> Wherefore, brethren, give rather diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall.

11 For by this means an entering shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

12 <sup>1</sup> Wherefore, I will not be negligent to put you always in remembrance of these things, though that ye have knowledge, and be established in the present truth.

1:1 <sup>1</sup> A salutation wherein he giveth them to understand that he dealeth with them as Christ's ambassador, and otherwise agreeth with them in one selfsame faith which is grounded upon the righteousness of Jesus Christ our God and Savior.

<sup>2</sup> In that God standing to his promises, showed himself faithful, and therefore just unto us.

1:2 <sup>1</sup> Faith is the acknowledging of God and Christ, from whence all our blessedness issueth and showed.

1:3 <sup>1</sup> Christ setteth forth himself to us plainly in the Gospel, and that by his only power, and giveth us all things which are requisite both to eternal life, wherein he hath appointed to glorify us, and also to godliness, in that he doth furnish us with true virtue.

<sup>4</sup> This is the sum of true Religion, to be led by Christ to the Father, as it were by the hand.

1:4 <sup>1</sup> An explication of the former sentence, declaring the causes of so great benefits, to wit, God and his free promise, from whence all these benefits proceed, I say, these most excellent benefits, whereby we are delivered from the corruption of the world, (that is, from the wicked lusts which we carry about us) and are made, after a sort, like unto God himself.

<sup>2</sup> By the divine nature, he meaneth not the substance of the God-head, but the partaking of these qualities whereby the image of God is restored in us.

<sup>4</sup> For lust is the fear of corruption, and hath his fear even in our very bowels and inmost parts.

1:5 <sup>1</sup> Having laid the foundation (that is, having declared the causes of our salvation and especially of our sanctification) now he beginneth to exhort us to give our minds wholly to the true use of this grace. And he beginneth with faith without which nothing can please God, and he warneth us to have it full fraught with virtue (that is to say) with good and godly manners, being joined with the knowledge of God's will, without which there is neither faith neither any true virtue.

<sup>2</sup> Supply also, and support or aid.

1:6 <sup>1</sup> He reckoneth up certain and other principal virtues, whereof some pertain to the first Table of the Law, others to the last.

1:8 <sup>1</sup> As those fruits do spring from the true knowledge of Christ, so in like sort the knowledge itself is fostered, and groweth by bringing forth such fruits, insomuch that he that is unfruitful did either never know the true light, or hath forgotten the gift of sanctification which he hath received.

1:9 <sup>1</sup> He that hath not an effectual knowledge of God in him, is blind as touching the kingdom of God, for he cannot see things that are afar off, that is to say, heavenly things.

1:10 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion: Therefore seeing our calling and election is approved by those fruits, and is confirmed in us, and moreover seeing this is the only way to the everlasting kingdom of Christ, it remaineth that we cast our minds wholly that way.

1:12 <sup>1</sup> An amplifying of the conclusion joined with a modest excuse, wherein he declareth his love towards them, and foretelleth them of his death, which is at hand.

13 For I think it meet as long as I am in this <sup>1</sup>tabernacle, to stir you up by putting you in remembrance, 14 Seeing I know that the time is at hand that I must lay down this my tabernacle, even as our Lord Jesus Christ hath <sup>a</sup>showed me.

15 <sup>b</sup>I will endeavor therefore always, that ye also may be able to have remembrance of these things after my departing.

16 <sup>c1</sup>For we followed not deceivable fables, when we opened unto you the power, and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but with our eyes we saw his majesty:

17 For he received of God the Father honor and glory, when there came such a voice to him from that excellent Glory, <sup>d</sup>This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

18 And this voice we heard when it came from heaven being with him in the holy mount.

19 <sup>1</sup>We have also a most sure word of the Prophets, <sup>2</sup>to the which ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the <sup>3</sup>day dawns, and the <sup>4</sup>day star arise in your hearts.

20 <sup>c1</sup>So that ye first know this, that no prophecy of the <sup>2</sup>Scripture is of any <sup>3</sup>private interpretation:

21 For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but <sup>1</sup>holy men of God spake as they were <sup>2</sup>moved by the holy Ghost.

2 <sup>1</sup>He foretelleth them of false teachers, <sup>13</sup> whose wicked sleights and destruction he declareth. <sup>12</sup> He compareth them to bruit beasts, <sup>17</sup> and to wells without water, <sup>20</sup> because they seek to withdraw men from God to their old filthiness.

1 But <sup>1</sup>there were false prophets also among the <sup>2</sup>people, even as there shall be false teachers among you: which privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that hath bought them, and bring upon themselves swift damnation.

2 <sup>1</sup>And many shall follow their destructions, by whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of.

3 <sup>1</sup>And through covetousness shall they with feigned words make <sup>2</sup>merchandise of you, <sup>3</sup>whose condemnation long since resteth not, and their destruction slumbereth not.

4 For if God spared not the <sup>a</sup>Angels that had sinned, but cast them down into <sup>1</sup>hell, and delivered them into <sup>2</sup>chains of darkness, to be kept unto damnation:

5 Neither hath spared the <sup>1</sup>old world, but saved <sup>b</sup>Noah the eighth person a <sup>2</sup>preacher of righteousness, and brought in the Flood upon the world of the ungodly,

6 And <sup>c</sup>turned the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah into ashes, condemned them and overthrew them, and made them an ensample unto them that after should live ungodly,

7 And delivered just Lot vexed with the uncleanly conversation of the wicked:

8 (For he being righteous, and dwelling among them, in <sup>1</sup>seeing and hearing, <sup>2</sup>vexed his righteous soul from day to day with their unlawful deeds.)

1:13 <sup>1</sup> In this body.

1:16 <sup>1</sup> Another amplification taken both of the great certainty and also excellency of this doctrine, as whereof our Lord Jesus Christ the Son of God is author, whose glory the Apostle himself both saw and heard.

1:19 <sup>1</sup> The truth of the Gospel is hereby also manifest, in that it agreeth wholly with the foretellings of the Prophets.

<sup>2</sup> The doctrine of the Apostles doth not shut out the doctrine of the Prophets, for they confirm each other by each other's testimonies, but the Prophets were as candles which gave light unto the blind, until the brightness of the Gospel began to shine.

<sup>3</sup> A more full and open knowledge than was under the shadows of the Law.

1:20 <sup>1</sup> The Prophets are to be read, but so that we ask of God the gift of interpretation: for he that is the author of the writings of the Prophets, is also the interpreter of them.

<sup>2</sup> He joineth the Scripture and prophecy together to distinguish true prophecies from false.

<sup>3</sup> For all interpretation cometh from God.

1:21 <sup>1</sup> The godly interpreters and messengers.

<sup>2</sup> Inspired of God: and these their motions were in very good order, and not such as were the motions of the profane soothsayers, and foretellers of things to come.

2:1 <sup>1</sup> As in times past there were two kinds of Prophets, the one true, the other false, so Peter foretelleth them that there shall be some true and some false teachers in the Church, insomuch that Christ himself shall be denied by some, who notwithstanding shall call him redeemer.

<sup>2</sup> Under the Law, while the state and policy of the Jews was yet standing.

2:2 <sup>1</sup> There shall not only be heresies, but also many followers of them.

2:3 <sup>1</sup> Covetousness for the most part is a companion of heresy, and maketh merchandise even of souls.

<sup>2</sup> They will abuse you, and sell you as they sell cattle in a Fair.

<sup>3</sup> A comfort for the godly: God who cast the Angels that fell away from him headlong into the darkness of hell, at length to be judged, and who destroyed the old world with the flood, and preserved Noah the eight person, and who burned Sodom, and saved Lot, will deliver his elect from these errors, and will utterly destroy those unrighteous.

2:4 <sup>1</sup> So the Greeks called the deep dungeon under the earth, which should be appointed to torment the souls of the wicked in.

<sup>2</sup> Bound them with darkness as it were with chains: and by darkness, he meaneth that most miserable state of life, that is full of horror.

2:5 <sup>1</sup> Which was before the Flood: not that God made a new world, but because the world seemed new.

<sup>2</sup> For he ceased not for the space of an hundred and twenty years to warn the wicked both by word and deed, what wrath of God hanged over their heads.

2:8 <sup>1</sup> Which way soever he looked and turned his ears.

<sup>2</sup> He had a troubled soul, and being vehemently grieved, lived a painful life.

9 The Lord <sup>1</sup>knoweth to deliver the godly out of tentation, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment under punishment:

10 <sup>1</sup>And chiefly them that walk after the flesh, in the lust of uncleanness, and despise government, which are bold, and stand in their own conceit, and fear not to speak evil of them that are in <sup>2</sup>dignity.

11 Whereas the Angels which are greater both in power and might, give not railing judgment against them before the Lord.

12 <sup>1</sup>But these as natural brute beasts, led with sensuality and <sup>2</sup>made to be taken, and destroyed, speak evil of those things which they know not, and shall perish through their own <sup>3</sup>corruption.

13 And shall receive the wages of unrighteousness, as they which count it pleasure daily to live deliciously. <sup>1</sup>Spots they are and blots, delighting themselves in their deceivings, <sup>2</sup>in feasting with you.

14 <sup>1</sup>Having eyes full of adultery, and that cannot cease to sin, beguiling unstable souls, they have hearts exercised with covetousness, they are the children of curse:

15 Which forsaking the right way, have gone astray following the way of <sup>4</sup>Balaam, the son of Beor, which loved the wages of unrighteousness.

16 But he was rebuked for his iniquity: for the dumb beast speaking with man's voice forbade the foolishness of the Prophet.

17 <sup>6</sup><sup>1</sup>These are <sup>2</sup>wells without water, and clouds carried about with a tempest, to whom the <sup>3</sup>black darkness is reserved forever.

18 For in speaking <sup>1</sup>swelling words of vanity, they <sup>2</sup>beguile with wantonness through the lusts of the flesh them that were <sup>3</sup>clean escaped from them which are wrapped in error, 19 Promising unto them liberty, and are themselves the <sup>f</sup>servants of corruption: for of whomsoever a man is overcome, even unto the same is he in bondage.

20 <sup>g</sup><sup>1</sup> For if they, after they have escaped from the filthiness of the world, through the acknowledging of the Lord, and of the Savior Jesus Christ, are yet tangled again therein, and overcome, the latter end is worse with them than the beginning.

21 For it had been better for them not to have acknowledged the way of righteousness, than after they have acknowledged it, to turn from the holy commandment given unto them.

22 But it is come unto them according to the true proverb, <sup>h</sup>The dog is returned to his own vomit: and the sow that was washed, to the wallowing in the mire.

1 This <sup>1</sup>second Epistle I now write unto you, beloved, wherewith I stir up, and warn your pure minds,

2 To call to remembrance the words, which were told before of the holy Prophets, and also the commandment of us the Apostles of the Lord and Savior.

2:9 <sup>1</sup>Hath been long practiced in saving and delivering the righteous.

2:10 <sup>1</sup>He goeth to another sort of corrupt men, which notwithstanding are within the bosom of the Church, which are wickedly given, and do seditiously speak evil of the authority of Magistrates, (which the Angels themselves that minister before God, do not dispraise) A true and lively description of the Romish Clergy (as they call it.)

<sup>2</sup>Princes and great men, be they never so high in authority.

2:12 <sup>1</sup>A lively painting out of the same persons, wherein they are compared to beasts, which are made to snare themselves to destruction, while they give themselves to fill their bellies: For there is no greater ignorance than is in these men, although they most impudently find fault with those things which they know not: and it shall come to pass that they shall destroy themselves as beasts, with those pleasures wherewith they are delighted, and dishonor and defile the company of the godly.

2:13 <sup>1</sup>Or, little rocks.

<sup>2</sup>When as by being amongst the Christians in the holy banquets which the Church keepeth, they would seem by that means to be true members of the Church, yet they are indeed but blots on the Church.

2:14 <sup>1</sup>He condemneeth those men, as showing even in their behavior and countenance an immeasurable lust, as making merchandise of the souls of light persons, as men exercised in all the crafts of covetousness, to be short, as men that sell themselves for money to curse the Sons of God after Balaam's example, whom the dumb beast reproved.

2:17 <sup>1</sup>Another note whereby they may be well known what manner of men they are, because they have inwardly nothing but either utterly vain or very hurtful, although they make a show of some great goodness: but they shall not escape unpunished for it, because under pretence of false liberty, they draw men into most miserable slavery of sin.

2:18 <sup>1</sup>They deceive men with vain and swelling words.

2:20 <sup>1</sup>It were better never to have known the way of righteousness, than to turn back from it to the old filthiness: and men that do so are compared to dogs and swine.

3:1 <sup>1</sup>The remedy against those wicked enemies both of true doctrine and holiness, is to be sought for by the continual meditation of the writings of the Prophets and Apostles.

3 <sup>a1</sup>This first understand, that there shall come in the last days, <sup>2</sup>mockers, which will walk after their lusts,

4 <sup>1</sup>And say, Where is the promise of his coming? for since the Fathers died, all things continue alike from the beginning of the creation.

5 <sup>1</sup>For this they willingly know not, that the heavens were of old, and the <sup>2</sup>earth that was of the water, and by the water, by the word of God.

6 <sup>1</sup>Wherefore the world that then was, perished, overflowed with the <sup>2</sup>water.

7 <sup>1</sup>But the heavens and earth, which are now, are kept by the same word in store, and reserved unto fire against the day of condemnation, and of the destruction of ungodly men.

8 <sup>1</sup>Dearly beloved, be not ignorant of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord, <sup>b</sup>as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day.

9 <sup>1</sup>The Lord of that promise is not slack (as some men count slackness) <sup>2</sup>but is patient toward us, and 'would have no man to perish, but would all men to come to repentance.

10 <sup>1</sup>But the day <sup>d</sup>of the Lord will come as a thief in the night, in the which the heavens shall pass away with a <sup>2</sup>noise, and the elements shall melt with heat, and the earth with the works that are therein shall be burnt up.

11 <sup>1</sup>Seeing therefore that all these things must be dissolved, what manner persons ought ye to be in holy conversation and godliness, 12 Looking for, and <sup>1</sup>hasting unto the coming of that day of God, by the which the heavens being on fire, shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt with heat?

13 But we look for 'new heavens, and a new earth, according to his promise, <sup>1</sup>wherein dwelleth righteousness.

14 Wherefore, beloved, seeing that ye look for such things, be diligent that ye may be found of him in <sup>1</sup>peace, without spot and blameless.

15 <sup>1</sup>And suppose that the long suffering of our Lord is salvation, <sup>1</sup>even as our beloved brother Paul according to the wisdom given unto him wrote to you.

16 As one that in all his Epistles speaketh of these things: <sup>1</sup>among the <sup>2</sup>which, some things are hard to be understood, which they that are unlearned and unstable, wrest, as they do also other Scriptures unto their own destruction.

17 Ye therefore beloved, seeing ye know these things before, beware, lest ye be also plucked away with the error of the wicked, and fall from your own steadfastness.

18 But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ: to him be glory both now and for evermore. Amen.

3:3 <sup>1</sup> He voucheth the second coming of Christ against the Epicureans by name.

<sup>2</sup> Monstrous men, who will seem wise by their contempt of God, and wicked boldness.

3:4 <sup>1</sup> The reason which these mockers pretend because the course of nature is all one as it was from the beginning: therefore the world is from everlasting, and shall be forever.

3:5 <sup>1</sup> He setteth against them the creation of heaven and earth by the word of God, which these men are willingly ignorant of.

3:6 <sup>1</sup> Secondly, he setteth against them the universal flood which was the destruction, as it were of the whole world.

<sup>2</sup> For the waters returning into their former place this world, that is to say, this beauty of the earth which we see, and all living creatures which live upon the earth perished.

3:7 <sup>1</sup> Thirdly, he pronounceth that it shall not be harder for God to burn heaven and earth with fire in that day which is appointed for the destruction of the wicked, (which thing he will also do) than it was for him in times past to make them with his only word and afterward to overwhelm them with water.

3:8 <sup>1</sup> The taking away of an objection: in that he seemeth to defer this judgment a long season, in respect of us it is true, but not before God with whom there is no time either long or short.

3:9 <sup>1</sup> The Lord will surely come, because he hath promised: and that neither sooner nor later than he hath promised.

<sup>2</sup> A reason why the latter day cometh not out of hand, because God doth patiently wait till the elect are brought to repentance, that none of them may perish.

3:10 <sup>1</sup> A very short description of the least distinction of the world, but in such sort as nothing could be spoken more gravely.

<sup>2</sup> With the violence as it were of a hissing storm.

3:11 <sup>1</sup> An exhortation to purity of life, setting before us that horrible judgment of God both to bridle our wantonness, and also to comfort us, so that we be found watching and ready to meet him at his coming.

3:12 <sup>1</sup> He requireth patience of us, yet such patience as is not slothful.

3:13 <sup>1</sup> In which heavens.

3:14 <sup>1</sup> That you may try to your profit, how gentle and peaceable he is.

3:15 <sup>1</sup> Paul's Epistles are allowed by the express testimony of Peter.

3:16 <sup>1</sup> There be certain of these things obscure and dark, whereof the unlearned take occasion to overthrow some men that stand not fast, wresting the testimonies of the Scripture to their own destruction. But this is the remedy against such deceit, to labor that we may daily more and more grow up and increase in the knowledge of Christ.

<sup>2</sup> That is to say, among the which things: for he disputeth not here whether Paul's Epistles be plain or dark, but saith, that amongst those things which Paul hath written of his Epistles, and Peter himself in these two of his own, there are some things which cannot be easily understood, and therefore are of some drawn to their own destruction: and this he saith to make us more attentive and diligent, and not remove us from the reading of holy things, for to what end should they have written vain speculations?

THE FIRST EPISTLE GENERAL OF JOHN

1 1 He testifieth that he bringeth the eternal word, wherein is life, 5 and light. 9 God will be merciful unto the faithful, if groaning under the burden of their sins, they learn to flee unto his mercy.

1 That <sup>1</sup>which was from the beginning, which we have <sup>2</sup>heard, which we have seen with these our eyes, which we have looked upon, and these hands of ours have handled of that <sup>3</sup>word of life,

2 (For that life was made manifest, and we have seen it, and bear witness, and <sup>1</sup>show unto you that eternal life, which was with the Father, and was made manifest unto us.)

3 That I say, which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, <sup>1</sup>that ye may also have fellowship with us, and that our fellowship also may be with the Father and with his Son Jesus Christ.

4 And these things write I unto you, that your joy may be full.

5 <sup>1</sup>This then is the message, which we have heard of him, and declare unto you, that God <sup>4</sup>is light, and in him is no darkness.

CHAPTER 1

<sup>a</sup> John 8:12

<sup>b</sup> Heb. 9:28

<sup>1</sup> Pet. 1:19

Rev. 1:5

<sup>c</sup> 1 Kings 8:46

Prov. 20:9

6 If we say that we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, we lie, and do not truly.

7 But if we walk in the <sup>1</sup>light as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, <sup>2</sup>and the <sup>4</sup>blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin.

8 <sup>61</sup> If we say that we have no sin, we <sup>2</sup>deceive ourselves, and <sup>3</sup>truth is not in us.

9 <sup>1</sup>If we acknowledge our sins, he is <sup>2</sup>faithful and just, to <sup>3</sup>forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.

10 <sup>1</sup>If we say, we have not sinned, we make him <sup>2</sup>a liar, and his <sup>3</sup>word is not in us.

2 1 He declareth that Christ is our mediator and advocate, 3 and showeth that the knowledge of God consisteth in holiness of life, 12 which appertaineth to all sorts, 14 that depend on Christ alone: 15 Then having exhorted them to condemn the world, 18 he giveth warning that Antichrists be avoided, 24 and that the known truth be stood unto.

1 My <sup>1</sup>little children, these things write I unto you, that ye sin not: and if any man sin, we have an

1:1 <sup>1</sup> He beginneth with the description of the person of Christ, whom he maketh one and not two: and him both God from everlasting (for he was with the Father from the beginning, and is that eternal life) and also made true man, whom John himself and his companions, both heard and beheld, and handled.

<sup>2</sup> I heard him speak, I saw him myself with mine eyes, I handled with mine hands him that is very God, being made very man, and not I alone, but others also that were with me.

<sup>3</sup> That same everlasting word, by whom all things are made, and in whom only there is life.

1:2 <sup>1</sup> Being sent by him: and that doctrine is rightly said to be showed, for no man could so much as have thought of it, if it had not been thus showed.

1:3 <sup>1</sup> The use of this doctrine is this, that all of us being coupled and joined together with Christ by faith, might become the Sons of God, in which thing only consisteth all happiness.

1:5 <sup>1</sup> Now he entereth into a question, whereby we may understand that we are joined together with Christ, to wit, if we be governed with his light, which is perceived by the ordering of our life. And thus he reasoneth, God is in himself most pure light, therefore he agreeth with them, which are light-some, but with them which are of the darksome he hath no fellowship.

1:7 <sup>1</sup> God is said to be light of his own nature, and to be in light, that is to say, in that everlasting infinite blessedness: and we are said to walk in light, in that the beams of that light do shine unto us in the world.

<sup>2</sup> A digression or going from the matter he is in with, to the remission of sins: for this our sanctification which walk in the light, is a testimony of our joining and knitting together, with Christ: but because this our light is very dark, we must needs obtain another benefit in Christ, to wit, that our sins may be forgiven us being sprinkled with his blood: and this in conclusion is the prop and stay of our salvation.

1:8 <sup>1</sup> There is none but needeth this benefit, because there is none that is not a sinner.

<sup>3</sup> So then John speaketh not thus for modesty's sake, as some say, but because it is so indeed.

1:9 <sup>1</sup> Therefore the beginning of salvation is to acknowledge our wickedness, and to require pardon from him who freely forgiveth all sins, because he hath promised so to do, and he is faithful and just.

<sup>2</sup> So then our salvation hangeth upon the free promise of God, who because he is faithful and just, will perform that which he hath promised.

<sup>3</sup> Where are then our merits? for this is our true felicity.

1:10 <sup>1</sup> A rehearsal of the former sentence: wherein he condemned all of sin without exception, insomuch that if any man persuade himself otherwise, he doth as much as in him lieth, make the word of God himself vain and to no purpose, yea he maketh God a liar, for to what end either in times past needed sacrifices or now Christ and the Gospel, if we be not sinners?

<sup>2</sup> They do not only deceive themselves, but also are blasphemous against God.

<sup>3</sup> His doctrine shall have no place in us, that is, in our hearts.

2:1 <sup>1</sup> It followeth not hereof that we must give our wicked nature the bride, or sin so much the more freely, because our sins are cleansed away by the blood of Christ but we must rather so much more diligently resist sin. And yet we must not despair because of our weakness, for we have an Advocate and a purger, Christ Jesus the just, and therefore acceptable unto his father.

2 And he is the <sup>1</sup>reconciliation for our sins: and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the <sup>2</sup>whole world.

3 <sup>1</sup>And hereby we are sure that we <sup>2</sup>know him, <sup>3</sup>if we keep his commandments.

4 <sup>1</sup>He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him.

5 <sup>1</sup>But he that keepeth his word, in him is the <sup>2</sup>love of God perfect indeed: hereby we know that we are in <sup>3</sup>him.

6 <sup>1</sup>He that saith he remaineth in him, ought even so to walk as he hath walked.

7 <sup>1</sup>Brethren, I write no new commandment unto you, but an old commandment, which ye have had from the beginning: this old commandment is that word, which ye have heard from the beginning.

8 <sup>1</sup>Again, a new commandment I write unto you, that <sup>2</sup>which is true in him: and also in you: for the darkness is past, and that true light now shineth.

9 <sup>1</sup>He that saith that he is in that light, and hateth his brother, is in darkness, until this time.

10 <sup>a</sup>He that loveth his brother, abideth in that light, and there is no occasion of evil in him.

11 But he that hateth his brother, is in darkness, and walketh in darkness, and knoweth not whither he goeth, because that darkness hath blinded his eyes.

12 <sup>1</sup>Little children, <sup>2</sup>I write unto you, because your sins are forgiven you for his <sup>3</sup>Name's sake.

13 <sup>1</sup>I write unto you, fathers, because ye have known him that is from the beginning. <sup>2</sup>I write unto you, young men, because ye have overcome that wicked one. <sup>3</sup>I write unto you, little children, because ye have known the Father.

14 <sup>1</sup>I have written unto you fathers, because ye have known him that is from the beginning. I have written unto you, young men, because ye are strong, and the word of God abideth in you, and ye have overcome that wicked one.

15 <sup>1</sup>Love not this <sup>2</sup>world, neither the things that are in this world. If any man love this world, the <sup>3</sup>love of the Father is not in him.

16 For all that is in this world, (as the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life) is not <sup>2</sup> In that he nameth Christ he shutteth forth all other.

2:2 <sup>1</sup> Reconciliation and intercession go together, to give us to understand that he is both advocate and high Priest.

<sup>2</sup> For men of all sorts, of all ages and all places, so that this benefit belongeth not to the Jews only, of whom he speaketh, as appeareth 1 John 2:7, but also to other nations.

2:3 <sup>1</sup> He returneth to the testimony of our conjunction with God, to wit, to sanctification, declaring what it is to walk in the light, to wit, to keep God's commandments whereby it followeth that holiness doth not consist in those things which men have devised, neither in a vain profession of the Gospel.

<sup>2</sup> This must be understood of such a knowledge, as hath faith with it, and not of a common knowledge.

2:4 <sup>1</sup> Holiness, that is, a life ordered according to the prescript of God's commandments how weak soever they be, is of necessity joined with faith, that is, with the true knowledge of the Father in the Son.

2:5 <sup>1</sup> He that keepeth God's commandments loveth God indeed. He that loveth God, is in God, or is joined together with God. Therefore he that keepeth his commandments, is in him.

<sup>2</sup> Wherewith we love God.

2:6 <sup>1</sup> He that is one with Christ must needs live his life, that is, must walk in his steps.

2:7 <sup>1</sup> The Apostle going about to expound the commandment of charity one toward another, telleth first, that when he urgeth holiness bringeth no new trade of life (as they use to do which devise traditions, one after another) but putteth them in mind of the same Law which God gave in the beginning, to wit, by Moses, at that time that God began to give Laws to his people.

2:8 <sup>1</sup> He addeth that the doctrine indeed is old, but it is now after a sort new both in respect of Christ, and also of us: in whom he through the Gospel, engraveth his Law effectually, not in tables of stone, but in our minds.

<sup>2</sup> Which thing (to wit, that the doctrine is new of which I write unto you) is true in him and in you.

2:9 <sup>1</sup> Now he cometh to the second Table, that is, to charity one towards another, and denieth that that man hath true light in him, or is indeed regenerate and the son of God, which hateth his brother: and such an one wandereth miserably in darkness, brag he of never so great knowledge of God, for that wittingly and willingly he casteth himself headlong into hell.

2:12 <sup>1</sup> He returneth again from sanctification to remission of sins, because that free reconciliation in Christ is the ground of our salvation, whereupon afterwards sanctification must be built as upon a foundation.

<sup>2</sup> Therefore I write unto you, because you are of their number whom God hath reconciled to himself.

<sup>3</sup> For his own sake: And in that he nameth Christ, he shutteth out all others, whether they be in heaven or earth.

2:13 <sup>1</sup> He showeth that this doctrine agreeth to all ages, and first of all speaking to old men, he showeth that Christ and his doctrine are passing ancient, and therefore they be delighted with old things, nothing ought to be more acceptable unto them.

<sup>2</sup> He adviseth young men, if they be desirous to show their strength that they have a most glorious combat set here before them, to wit, Satan the worst enemies, who must be overcome: willing them to be as sure of the victory as if they had already gotten it.

<sup>3</sup> Finally, he showeth to children, that true Father, from whom they have to look for all good things, is set forth unto them in the Gospel.

2:14 <sup>1</sup> He addeth afterward in like order, as many exhortations, as if he should say, Remember your fathers: as I wrote even now, that the everlasting Son of God is revealed to us. Remember ye young men, that that strength whereby I said that you put Satan to flight, is given you by the word of God, which dwelleth in you.

2:15 <sup>1</sup> The world which is full of wicked desires, lusts or pleasures, and pride, is utterly hated of our heavenly Father. Therefore the Father and the world cannot be loved together: and this admonition is very necessary for green and flourishing youth.

<sup>2</sup> He speaketh of the world, as it agreeth not with the will of God, for otherwise God is said to love the world with an infinite love, John 3:16, that is to say, those whom he chose out of the world.

<sup>3</sup> Wherewith the Father is loved.

of the Father, but is of this world.

17 <sup>1</sup>And this world passeth away, and the lust thereof: but he that fulfilleth the will of God, abideth ever.

18 <sup>1,2</sup>Little children, <sup>3</sup>it is the last time, <sup>4</sup>and as ye have heard that Antichrist shall come, even now there are many Antichrists: whereby we know that it is the last time.

19 <sup>1</sup>They went out from us, but they were not of us: for if they had been of us, <sup>2</sup>they should have continued with us. <sup>3</sup>But this cometh to pass, that it might appear, that they are not all of us.

20 <sup>1</sup>But ye have an <sup>2</sup>ointment from that <sup>3</sup>Holy one, and know all things.

21 <sup>1</sup>I have not written unto you, because ye know not the truth: but because ye know it, and that no lie is of the truth.

22 <sup>1</sup>Who is a liar, but he that denieth that Jesus is <sup>2</sup>that Christ? the same is that Antichrist that denieth the Father and the Son.

23 <sup>1</sup>Whosoever denieth the Son, the same hath not the Father.

24 <sup>1</sup>Let therefore abide in you that same which ye have heard from the beginning. If that which ye have heard from the beginning, shall remain in you, ye shall also continue in the Son, and in the Father.

25 And this is the promise that he hath promised us, even that eternal life.

26 <sup>1</sup>These things have I written unto you, concerning them that deceive you.

27 But that <sup>1</sup>anointing which ye received of him, dwelleth in you: and ye <sup>2</sup>need not that any man teach you: but as the same <sup>3</sup>anointing teacheth you of all things, and it is true and is not lying, and as it taught you, ye shall abide in him.

28 <sup>1</sup>And now, little children, abide in him, that when he shall appear, we may be bold, and not be ashamed before him, at his coming.

29 <sup>1</sup>If ye know that he is righteous, know ye that he which doeth righteously, is born of him.

3 <sup>1</sup> Setting down the inestimable glory of this that we are God's sons, 7 he showeth that newness of life must be testified by good works, whereof charity is a manifest token. 19 Of faith, 22 and praying unto God.

1 Behold, <sup>1,2</sup>what love the Father hath given to

2:17 <sup>1</sup> He showeth how much better it is to obey the Father's will, than the lusts of the world, by both their natures and unlike event.

2:18 <sup>1</sup> Now he turneth himself to little children, which notwithstanding are well instructed in the sum of religion, and willeth them by divers reasons to shake off slothfulness, which is too too familiar with that age.

<sup>2</sup> He useth this word (little) not because he speaketh to children, but to allure them the more by using such sweet words.

<sup>3</sup> First, because the last time is at hand, so that the matter suffereth no delay.

<sup>4</sup> Secondly because Antichrists, that is, such as fall from God, are already come, even as they heard that they should come. And it was very requisite to warn that unheedy and wariless age of that danger.

2:19 <sup>1</sup> A digression against certain offenses and stumbling blocks, whereat that rude age especially might stumble and be shaken. Therefore that they should not be terrified with the soul falling back of certain, first he maketh plain unto them, that although such as fall from God and his religion, had place in the Church, yet they were never of the Church, because the Church is the company of the elect which cannot perish, and therefore cannot fall from Christ.

<sup>3</sup> Secondly, he showeth that these things fall out to the profit of the Church, that hypocrites may be plainly known.

2:20 <sup>1</sup> Thirdly, he comforteth them to make them stand fast, inso-much as they are anointed by the holy Ghost with the true knowledge of salvation.

<sup>2</sup> The grace of the holy Ghost, and this is a borrowed kind of speech taken from the anointings used in the Law.

2:21 <sup>1</sup> The taking away of an objection. He wrote not these things as to men which are ignorant of religion, but rather as to them which do well know the truth, yet so far forth that they are able to discern truth from falsehood.

2:22 <sup>1</sup> He showeth now plainly the false doctrine of the Antichrists, to wit, that either they fight against the person of Christ, or his office or both together, and at once. And they that do so do in vain boast and brag of God, for that in denying the Son the Father also is denied.

2:23 <sup>1</sup> They then are deceived themselves, and also do deceive others, which say that the Turks and other infidels worship the same God that we do.

2:24 <sup>1</sup> The whole preaching of the Prophets and Apostles is contrary to that doctrine: Therefore it is utterly to be cast away and this wholly to be holden and kept, which leadeth us to seek eternal life in the free promise, that is to say, in Christ alone, who is given to us of the Father.

2:26 <sup>1</sup> The same Spirit which endueth the elect with the knowledge of the truth, and sanctifieth them, giveth them therewithal the gift of perseverance, to continue to the end.

2:27 <sup>1</sup> The Spirit which you have received of Christ, and which hath led you into all truth.

<sup>2</sup> You are not ignorant of these things, and therefore I teach them not as things that were never heard of, but call them to your remembrance as things which you do know.

<sup>3</sup> He commendeth both the doctrine which they had embraced, and also highly praiseth their faith and the diligence of such as taught them, yet so, that he taketh nothing from the honor due to the holy Ghost.

2:28 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion both of the whole exhortation, and also of the former treatise.

2:29 <sup>1</sup> A passing over to the treatise following, which tendeth to the same purpose, but yet is more ample, and handleth the same matter after another order: for before he taught us to go up from the effects to the cause, and in this that followeth, he goeth down from the causes to the effects. And this is the sum of the argument: God is the fountain of all righteousness: and therefore they that give themselves to righteousness, are known to be born of him, because they resemble God the Father.

3:1 <sup>1</sup> He beginneth to declare this agreement between the Father and the Son at the highest cause, to wit, at that free love of God towards us, wherewith he so loveth us, that he also adopteth us to be his children.

us, that we should be <sup>3</sup>called the sons of God: <sup>4</sup>For this cause this world knoweth you not, because it knoweth not him.

2 <sup>1</sup>Dearly beloved, now are we the sons of God, but yet it is not made manifest what we shall be: and we know that when he shall be made manifest: we shall be <sup>2</sup>like him: for we shall see him <sup>3</sup>as he is.

3 <sup>1</sup>And every man that hath this hope in him purgeth himself, even <sup>2</sup>as he is pure.

4 <sup>1</sup>Whosoever <sup>2</sup>commiteth sin, transgresseth also the Law: for <sup>3</sup>sin is the transgression of the Law.

5 <sup>1</sup>And ye know that he was made manifest, that he might <sup>2</sup>take away our sins, and in him is no sin.

6 Whosoever abideth in him, sinneth not: whosoever <sup>1</sup>sinneth, hath not seen him, neither hath known him.

7 <sup>1</sup>Little children, let no man deceive you, he that doeth righteousness, is righteous, as he is righteous.

8 <sup>1</sup>He that <sup>2</sup>commiteth sin, is of the <sup>3</sup>devil: for the devil <sup>3</sup>sinneth from the <sup>4</sup>beginning: for this purpose was made manifest that Son of God, that he might loose the works of the devil.

9 Whosoever is born of God sinneth not: for his <sup>1</sup>seed remaineth in him, neither can he sin, because he is born of God.

10 <sup>1</sup>In this are the children of God known, and the children of the devil: whosoever doeth not righteousness, is not of God, <sup>2</sup>neither he that loveth not his brother.

11 <sup>1</sup>For this is the message that ye heard from the beginning, that <sup>2</sup>'we should love one another, 12 <sup>1</sup>Not as <sup>d,2</sup>Cain which was of that wicked one, and slew his brother: <sup>3</sup>and wherefore slew he him? because his own works were evil, and his brother's good.

13 Marvel not my brethren, though this world hate you.

14 <sup>1</sup>We know that we are <sup>2</sup>translated from death unto life, because we love the brethren: <sup>3</sup>he that loveth not his brother, abideth in death.

15 <sup>1</sup>Whosoever hateth his brother, is a manslayer: and ye know that no manslayer hath eternal life abiding in him.

<sup>3</sup> That we should be the sons of God, and so that all the world may perceive we are so.

<sup>4</sup> Before he declareth this adoption, he saith two things: the one, that this so great a dignity is not to be esteemed, according to the judgment of the flesh, because it is unknown to the world, for the world knoweth not God the Father himself.

3:2 <sup>1</sup> The other: This dignity is not fully made manifest to ourselves, much less to strangers, but we are sure of the accomplishment of it, insomuch that we shall be like to the Son of God himself, and shall enjoy his sight indeed, such as he is now: but yet notwithstanding this is deferred until his next coming.

<sup>2</sup> Like, but not equal.

<sup>3</sup> For now we see as in a glass, 1 Cor. 13:12.

3:3 <sup>1</sup> Now he describeth this adoption, (the glory whereof as yet consisteth in hope) by the effect, to wit, because that whosoever is made the Son of God, endeavoreth to resemble the Father in purity.

3:4 <sup>1</sup> The rule of this purity can from no whence else be taken but from the Law of God, the transgression whereof is that which is called sin.

<sup>2</sup> Giveth not himself to pureness.

3:5 <sup>1</sup> An argument taken from the material cause of our salvation: Christ in himself is most pure, and he came to take away our sins, by sanctifying us with the holy Ghost. Therefore, whosoever is truly partaker of Christ doth not give himself to sin: and so contrariwise he that giveth himself to sin knoweth not Christ.

3:6 <sup>1</sup> He is said to sin, that giveth not himself to pureness, and in him sin reigneth, but sin is said to dwell in the faithful, and not to reign in them.

3:7 <sup>1</sup> Another argument of things coupled together: He that liveth justly, is just, and resembleth Christ that is just, and by that is known to be the son of God.

3:8 <sup>1</sup> An argument taken of contraries: the devil is the author of sin, and therefore he is of the devil, or is ruled by the inspiration of the devil that serve sin: and if he be the devil's son, then is he not God's son: for the devil and God are so contrary the one to the other, that even the Son of God was sent to destroy the works of the devil. Therefore on the contrary side, whosoever resists sin, is the Son of God, being born again of his spirit as of new seed, insomuch that of necessity he is now delivered from the slavery of sin.

<sup>3</sup> He saith not sinned, but sinneth, for he did nothing else but sin.

3:9 <sup>1</sup> The holy Ghost is so called of the effect he worketh, because by his virtue and mighty working, as it were by seed, we are made new men.

3:10 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion, by a wicked life they are known which are governed by the spirit of the Devil, and by a pure life, which are God's children.

<sup>2</sup> He beginneth to commend charity towards the brethren, as another mark of the Sons of God.

3:11 <sup>1</sup> The first reason, taken of the authority of God, which giveth the commandment.

3:12 <sup>1</sup> An amplification, taken of the contrary example of Cain, which slew his brother.

<sup>2</sup> He bringeth forth a very fit and very old example, wherein we may behold both the nature of the sons of God, and of the sons of the devil, and what state and condition remaineth for us in this world: and what shall be the end of both at length.

<sup>3</sup> A short digression: Let us not marvel that we are hated by the world for doing our duty, for such was the condition of Abel who was a just person: and who would not rather be like him than Cain?

3:14 <sup>1</sup> The second reason: Because charity is a testimony that we are translated from death to life: and therefore hatred towards the brethren is a testimony of death, and whosoever nourished it, doth as it were foster death in his bosom.

<sup>2</sup> Love is a token that we are translated from death to life, for as such as by the effects the cause is known.

3:15 <sup>1</sup> A confirmation: Whosoever is a murderer, is in eternal death, who so hateth his brother, is a murderer, therefore he is in death. And thereupon followeth the contrary. He that loveth his brother, hath passed to life, for indeed we are born dead.

16 <sup>f1</sup>Hereby have we perceived love, that he laid down his life for us: therefore we ought also to lay down our lives for the brethren.

17 <sup>g1</sup>And whosoever hath this <sup>2</sup>world's good, and seeth his brother have need, and <sup>3</sup>shutteth up his compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?

18 <sup>1</sup>My little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue only, but in deed and in truth.

19 <sup>1</sup>For thereby we know that we are of the truth, <sup>2</sup>and shall before him assure our hearts.

20 For <sup>1</sup>if our hearts condemn us, God is greater than our heart, and knoweth all things.

21 <sup>1</sup>Beloved, if our heart condemn us not, then have we boldness toward God.

22 <sup>h1</sup>And whatsoever we ask, we receive of him, because we keep his commandments, and do those things which are pleasing in his sight.

23 <sup>1</sup>This is then his commandment, that we believe in the Name of his Son Jesus Christ, and love one another, as he gave commandment.

24 <sup>1</sup>For he that keepeth his commandments, dwelleth in him, and he in him: and hereby we know that he abideth in us, even by that <sup>1</sup>Spirit which he hath given us.

1 Dearly <sup>1</sup>beloved, believe not every <sup>2</sup>spirit, but try the spirits whether they are of God: for many false Prophets are gone out into the world.

2 <sup>1</sup>Hereby shall ye know the Spirit of God, <sup>2</sup>Every spirit which confesseth that <sup>3</sup>Jesus Christ is come in the <sup>4</sup>flesh is of God.

3 And every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh, is not of God: but this is the spirit of Antichrist, of whom ye have heard, how that he should come, and now already he is in this world.

4 <sup>1</sup>Little children, ye are of God, and have overcome them: for greater is he that is in you, than he that is in this world.

5 <sup>1</sup>They are of this world, therefore spake they of this world, and this world heareth them.

6 <sup>1</sup>We are of God, <sup>4</sup>he that knoweth God, heareth us: he that is not of God heareth us not. Hereby know we the <sup>2</sup>Spirit of truth, and the spirit of error.

7 <sup>1</sup>Beloved, let us love one another: <sup>2</sup>for love

3:16 <sup>1</sup> Now he showeth how far Christian charity extendeth, even so far, that according to the example of Christ, every man forget himself, to provide for and help his brethren.

3:17 <sup>1</sup> He reasoneth by comparison: For if we are bound even to give our life for our neighbors, how much more are we bound to help our brothers' necessity with our goods and substance?

3:18 <sup>1</sup> Christian charity standeth not in words, but in deed, and proceedeth from a sincere affection.

3:19 <sup>1</sup> He commendeth charity by a triple effect: for first of all, by it we know that we are indeed the sons of God, as he showeth before.

<sup>2</sup> Therefore it cometh that we have a quiet conscience, as on the contrary side he that thinketh that he hath God for a judge, because he is guilty to himself, either he is never or else very rare quiet: for God hath a far quicker sight than we, and judgeth more severely.

3:20 <sup>1</sup> If an evil conscience convinceth us, much more ought the judgments of God condemn us, who knoweth our hearts better than we ourselves do.

3:21 <sup>1</sup> A third effect also riseth out of the former, that in these miseries we are sure to be heard, because we are the sons of God, as we understand by the grace of sanctification which is proper to the elect.

3:22 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion: That faith in Christ, and love one towards another, are things joined together, and therefore the outward testimonies of sanctification must and do answer that inward testimony of the Spirit given unto us.

3:24 <sup>1</sup> He meaneth the Spirit of sanctification whereby we are born anew, and live unto God.

4:1 <sup>1</sup> Taking occasion by the name of the Spirit, lest love and charity should be separated from the worship of God, which chiefly dependeth of his true knowledge, he returneth to that which he spake in the second Chapter touching the taking heed of Antichrists. And he will have us here to take heed of two things, the one is, that seeing there be many false prophets, we do not lightly give credit to every man: the other is, that because many men teach false things, we should not therefore believe any. We must then observe a mean, that we may be able to discern the Spirit of God, which are altogether to be followed from impure spirits which are to be eschewed.

<sup>2</sup> This is spoken by the figure Metonymy, and it is as if he had said, Believe not everyone that saith that he hath a gift of the holy Ghost to do the office of a Prophet.

4:2 <sup>1</sup> He giveth a certain and perpetual rule to know the doctrine of Antichrist by, to wit, if either the divine or human nature of Christ, or the true uniting of them together be denied: or if the least jot that may be, be derogate from his office who is our only King, Prophet, and everlasting high Priest.

4:4 <sup>1</sup> He comforteth the elect with a most sure hope of victory: but yet so, that he teacheth them that they fight not with their own virtue, but with the virtue and power of God.

4:5 <sup>1</sup> He bringeth a reason: why the world receiveth these teachers more willingly than the true: to wit, because they breathe out nothing but that which is worldly: which is another note also to know the doctrine of Antichrist by.

4:6 <sup>1</sup> He testifieth unto them that his doctrine and the doctrine of his fellows, is the assured word of God, which of necessity we have boldly to set against all the mouths of the whole world, and thereby discern the truth from falsehood.

<sup>2</sup> True Prophets against whom are set false Prophets, that is, such as err themselves, and lead others into error.

4:7 <sup>1</sup> He returneth to the commending of brotherly love and charity.

<sup>2</sup> The first reason: Because it is a very divine thing: and therefore very meet for the sons of God: so that whosoever is void of it, cannot be said to know God aright.

cometh of God, and everyone that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God.

8 He that loveth not, knoweth not God, <sup>1</sup>for God is <sup>2</sup>love.

9 <sup>b</sup>Herein was that love of God made manifest amongst us, because God sent that his only begotten Son into this world, that we might live through him.

10 Herein is that love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be a reconciliation for our sins.

11 <sup>1</sup>Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another.

12 <sup>c1</sup>No man hath seen God at any time. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is <sup>2</sup>perfect in us.

13 Hereby know we, that we dwell in him, and he in us: because he hath given us of his Spirit.

14 <sup>1</sup>And we have seen, and do testify, that the Father sent the Son to be the Savior of the world.

15 Whosoever <sup>1</sup>confesseth that Jesus is the Son of God, in him dwelleth God, and he in God.

16 And we have known, and believed the love that God hath in us, <sup>1</sup>God is love, and he that dwelleth in love, dwelleth in God, and God in him.

<sup>b</sup>John 3:16

<sup>1</sup>Tim. 6:16

<sup>d</sup>John 13:34
John 15:12

17 <sup>1</sup>Herein is that love perfect in us, that we should have boldness in the day of judgment: for <sup>2</sup>as he is, even so are we in this world.

18 There is no <sup>1</sup>fear in love, but perfect love casteth out fear: for fear hath painfulness: and he that feareth, is not perfect in love.

19 <sup>1</sup>We love him, because he loved us first.

20 <sup>1</sup>If any man say, I love God, and hate his brother, he is a liar: <sup>2</sup>for how can he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, love God whom he hath not seen?

21 <sup>d1</sup>And this commandment have we of him, that he that loveth God, should love his brother also.

5 <sup>1</sup>He showeth that brotherly love and faith are things inseparable: <sup>10</sup>And that there is no faith towards God, but by believing in Christ: <sup>14</sup>Hence proceedeth calling upon God with assurance: <sup>16</sup>and also that our prayers be available for our brethren.

1 Whosoever <sup>1</sup>believeth that Jesus is that <sup>2</sup>Christ, is born of God: and everyone that loveth him, which began, loveth <sup>3</sup>him also which is begotten of him.

2 <sup>1</sup>In this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God, and keep his <sup>2</sup>commandments.

4:8 <sup>1</sup>A confirmation: For it is the nature of God to love men, whereof we have a most manifest proof above all others: in that that of his only free and infinite goodwill towards us his enemies, he delivered unto death not a common man, but his own Son, yea, his only begotten Son, to the end that we being reconciled through his blood, might be made partakers of his everlasting glory.

<sup>2</sup>In that he called God, Love he saith more than if he had said that he loveth us infinitely.

4:11 <sup>1</sup>Another reason by comparison: if God so loved us, shall not we his children love one another.

4:12 <sup>1</sup>A third reason: Because God is invisible, therefore by this effect of his Spirit, to wit, by charity, he is understood, yea, and to be not out of us, but joined with us, and in us, in whom he is so effectually working.

<sup>2</sup>Is surely in us, in deed and in truth.

4:14 <sup>1</sup>He underlayeth this charity with another foundation, to wit, faith in Jesus, which joineth us indeed with him, even as charity witnesseth that we are joined with him. Furthermore he testifieth of Christ, as who had seen him with his eyes.

4:15 <sup>1</sup>With such a confession as cometh from true faith and is accompanied with love, so that there be an agreement of all things.

4:16 <sup>1</sup>A fourth reason: God is the fountain and wellspring of charity, yea, charity itself: therefore whosoever abideth in it, hath God with him.

4:17 <sup>1</sup>Again (as a little before) he commendeth love, for that seeing that by our agreement with God in this thing, we have a certain testimony of our adoption, it cometh thereby to pass, that without fear we look for that latter day of judgment, so that trembling and that torment of conscience is cast out by this love.

<sup>2</sup>This signifyeth all likeness, not equality.

4:18 <sup>1</sup>If we understand by love, that we are in God, and God in us, that we are sons, and that we know God, and that everlasting life is in us: he concludeth aright that we may well gather peace and quietness thereby.

4:19 <sup>1</sup>Lest any man should think that that peace of conscience proceedeth from our love as from the cause, he goeth back to the fountain, to wit, to the free love, wherewith God loveth us although we deserved and do deserve his wrath. And hereof springeth another double charity, which both are tokens and witnesses of that first, to wit, that, wherewith we love God who loved us first, and then for his sake our neighbors also.

4:20 <sup>1</sup>As he showed that the love of our neighbor cannot be separate from the love wherewith God loveth us, because this last engendereth the other: so he denieth that the other kind of love wherewith we love God, can be separate from the love of our neighbor: whereof it followeth, that they lie impudently which say they worship God, and yet regard not their neighbor.

<sup>2</sup>The first reason taken of comparison, why we cannot hate our neighbor and love God, to wit, because that he that cannot love his brother, whom he seeth, how can he love God whom he seeth not?

4:21 <sup>1</sup>A second reason, why God cannot be hated and our neighbor loved, because the selfsame Lawmaker commanded both to love him and our neighbor.

5:1 <sup>1</sup>He goeth on forward in the same argument, showing how both those loves come into us from the love wherewith God loveth us, to wit, by Jesus our Mediator laid hold on by faith, in whom we are made the children of God, and do love the Father of whom we are so begotten and also our brethren which are begotten with us.

5:2 <sup>1</sup>The love of our neighbor doth so hang upon the love wherewith we love God, that this last must needs go before the first, whereof it followeth, that that is not to be called love when men agree together to do evil, neither that, when as in loving our neighbors, we respect not God's commandments.

3 <sup>1</sup>For this is the love of God, that we keep his commandments: <sup>2</sup>and his <sup>4</sup>commandments are not <sup>3</sup>burdenous.

4 <sup>1</sup>For all that is born of God, overcometh this world: <sup>2</sup>and this is that victory that <sup>3</sup>hath overcome this world even our <sup>4</sup>faith.

5 <sup>b1</sup>Who is it that overcometh this world, but he which believeth that Jesus is that Son of God?

6 <sup>1</sup>This is that Jesus Christ that came by water and blood: <sup>2</sup>not by water only, but by water and blood: and it is that <sup>3</sup>Spirit that beareth witness: for that Spirit is truth.

7 For there are three, which bear record in heaven, the Father, the <sup>1</sup>Word, and the holy Ghost: and these three are <sup>2</sup>one.

8 And there are three, which bear record in the earth, the Spirit, and the Water and the Blood: and these three agree in one.

9 <sup>1</sup>If we receive the witness of men, the witness of God is greater: for <sup>2</sup>this is the witness of God, which he testified of his Son.

CHAPTER 5

10 <sup>c1</sup>He that believeth in that Son of God, hath the witness in himself: he that believeth not God, hath made him a liar, because he believed not the record, that God witnessed of that his Son.

11 <sup>1</sup>And this is that record, to wit, that God hath given unto us eternal life, and this life is in that his Son.

12 He that hath that Son, hath that life: and he that hath not that Son of God, hath not that life.

13 <sup>1</sup>These things have I written unto you, that believe in the name of that Son of God, that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that ye may believe in the Name of that Son of God.

14 <sup>1</sup>And this is that assurance that we have in him, <sup>4</sup>that if we ask anything according to his will, he heareth us.

15 And if we know that he heareth us, whatsoever we ask, we know that we have the petitions, that we have desired of him.

5:3 <sup>1</sup> The reason: for to love God is to keep his commandments, which being so, and seeing that both the loves are commanded of one and the selfsame lawmaker (as he taught before) it followeth also that we do not love our neighbor, when we break God's commandments.

<sup>2</sup> Because experience teacheth us that there is no ability in our flesh, neither yet will to perform God's commandments, therefore lest the Apostle should seem, by so often putting them in mind of the keeping of the commandments of God, to require things that are impossible, he pronounceth that the commandments of God are not in such sort grievous or burdensome, that we can be oppressed with the burden of them.

<sup>3</sup> To them that are regenerate, that is to say, born anew, which are led by the Spirit of God, and are through grace delivered from the curse of the Law.

5:4 <sup>1</sup> A reason: Because by regeneration we have gotten strength to overcome the world, that is to say, whatsoever striveth against the commandments of God.

<sup>3</sup> He useth the time that is past to give us to understanding, that although we be in the battle, yet undoubtedly we shall be conquerors, and are most certain of the victory.

<sup>4</sup> Which is the instrumental cause, and as a mean and hand whereby we lay hold on him who indeed doth perform this, that is, hath and doth overcome the world, Even Christ Jesus.

5:5 <sup>1</sup> Moreover he declareth two things, the one what true faith is, to wit, that which resteth upon Jesus Christ the Son of God alone: whereupon followeth the other, to wit, that this strength is not proper to faith, but by faith as an instrument is drawn from Jesus Christ the Son of God.

5:6 <sup>1</sup> He proveth the excellency of Christ, in whom only all things are given us by six witnesses, three heavenly, and three earthly, which wholly and fully agree together. The heavenly witnesses are: the Father who sent the Son, the word itself which became flesh, and the holy Ghost. The earthly witnesses are, water, (that is, our sanctification) blood, (that is, our justification) the Spirit, (that is, acknowledge of God the Father in Christ by faith through the testimony of the holy Ghost.)

<sup>2</sup> He warneth us not to separate water from blood, (that is, sanctification from justification, or righteousness begun, from righteousness imputed) for we stand not upon sanctification but so far forth as it is a witness of Christ's righteousness imputed unto us: and although this imputation of Christ's righteousness be never separated from sanctification, yet it is only the matter of our salvation.

<sup>3</sup> Our spirit, which is the third witness, testifies that the holy Ghost is truth; that is to say, that that is true which he telleth us, to wit, that we are the sons of God.

5:9 <sup>1</sup> He showeth by an Argument of comparison, of what great weight the heavenly testimony is, that the Father hath given of the Son, unto whom agreeth both the Son himself and the holy Ghost.

<sup>2</sup> I conclude this aright: for that testimony which I said is given in heaven, cometh from God, who so setteth forth his Son.

5:10 <sup>1</sup> He proveth the sureness of the earthly witnesses by every man's conscience, having that testimony in itself, which conscience he saith cannot be deceived, because it consenteth the heavenly testimony, which the Father giveth of the Son: For otherwise the Father must needs be a liar, if the conscience, which accordeth and assenteth to the Father should lie.

5:11 <sup>1</sup> Now at length he showeth what this testimony is, that is confirmed with so many witnesses: to wit, that life or everlasting felicity, is the mere, and only gift of God, which is in the Son, and proceedeth from him unto us, which by faith are joined with him, so that without him life is nowhere to be found.

5:13 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion of the Epistle wherein he showeth first of all, that even they which already believe, do stand in deed of this doctrine, to the end that they may grow more and more in faith, that is to say, to the end that they may be daily more and more certified of their salvation in Christ through faith.

5:14 <sup>1</sup> Because we do not yet in effect obtain that which we hope for, the Apostle joineth invocation or prayer with faith, which he will have to proceed from faith, and moreover to be conceived in such sort, that nothing be asked but that which is agreeable to the will of God: and such prayers cannot be vain.

16 <sup>1</sup>If any man see his brother sin a sin that is not unto death, let him <sup>2</sup>ask, and he shall give him life for them that sin not unto death. <sup>4</sup>There is a sin unto death, I say not that thou shouldest pray for it.

17 <sup>1</sup>All unrighteousness is sin, but there is a sin not unto death.

18 <sup>1</sup>We know that whosoever is born of God, sinneth not: but he that is begotten of God keepeth himself, and that wicked one toucheth him not.

<sup>4</sup> Matt. 12:31

19 <sup>1</sup>We know that we are of God, and this whole world lieth in wickedness.

20 But we know that that Son of God is <sup>f</sup>come, and hath given us a mind to know him, which is true, and we are in him that is true, that is, in that his Son Jesus Christ, the same is that very <sup>1</sup>God, and that eternal life.

5:16 <sup>1</sup> We have to make prayers not only for ourselves, but also for our brethren which do sin, that their sins be not unto them, to death: and yet he excepteth that sin, which is never forgiven, or the sin against the holy Ghost, that is to say, an universal and willful falling away from the known truth of the Gospel.

<sup>2</sup> This is as much as if he said, Let him desire the Lord to forgive him, and he will forgive him being so desired.

5:17 <sup>1</sup> The taking away of an objection: Indeed all iniquity is comprehended under the name of sin, but yet we must not despair therefore, because every sin is not deadly, and without hope of remedy.

5:18 <sup>1</sup> A reason why not all, nay rather why no sin is mortal to some: to wit, because they be born of God, that is to say, made the sons of God in Christ, and being endued with his Spirit, they do not serve sin, neither are deadly wounded of Satan.

5:19 <sup>1</sup> Every man must particularly apply to himself the general promises, that we may certainly persuade ourselves, that whereas all the world is by nature lost, we are freely made the sons of God, by the sending of Jesus Christ his Son unto us, of whom we are lightened with the knowledge of the true God, and everlasting life.

5:20 <sup>1</sup> The divinity of Christ is most plainly proved by this place.

5:21 <sup>1</sup> He expresseth a plain precept of taking heed of idols: which he setteth against the only true God, that with this seal as it were he might seal up all the former doctrine.

THE SECOND EPISTLE OF JOHN

1 *This Epistle is written to a woman of great renown,
4 who brought up her children in the fear of God:
6 she exhorteth her to continue in Christian charity, 7 that she accompany not with Antichrists, 10 but avoid them.*

1 The Elder to the <sup>1</sup>elect <sup>2</sup>Lady, and her children, <sup>3</sup>whom I love in the truth: and not I only, but also all that have known the truth,

2 For the truth's sake which dwelleth in us, and shall be with us forever:

3 Grace be with you, mercy and peace from God the Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ the Son of the Father, with <sup>1</sup>truth and love.

4 <sup>1</sup>I rejoiced greatly, that I found of thy children walking in <sup>2</sup>truth, as we have received a commandment of the Father.

5 And now beseech I thee, Lady, (not as writing a new commandment unto thee, but the same which we had from the beginning) that we <sup>a</sup>love one another.

6 And this is that love that we should walk after his commandments. This commandment is, that as ye have heard from the beginning, ye should walk in it.

CHAPTER 1

<sup>a</sup> John 15:12
<sup>b</sup> Rom. 16:17

7 <sup>1</sup>For many deceivers are entered into this world, which confess not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh. He that is such one, is a deceiver and an Antichrist.

8 <sup>1,2</sup>Look to yourselves, that we lose not the things, which we have done, but that we may receive a full reward.

9 Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that continueth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son.

10 <sup>1</sup>If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, <sup>b</sup>receive him not to house, neither bid him Godspeed.

11 For he that biddeth him Godspeed, is partaker of his evil deeds. Although I had many things to write unto you, yet would I not write with paper and ink:
but I trust to come unto you, and speak mouth to mouth, that our joy may be full.

12 The sons of thine elect sister greet thee,
Amen.

1:1 <sup>1</sup> This is no proper name, but to be taken as the word soundeth, that is to say to the worthy and noble Lady.

<sup>3</sup> The bond of Christian conjunction or linking together, is the true and constant profession of the truth.

1:3 <sup>1</sup> With true knowledge, which hath always love joined with it, and following it.

1:4 <sup>1</sup> This true profession consisteth both in love one toward another which the Lord hath commanded, and also especially in wholesome and sound doctrine, which also is delivered unto us: for the commandment of God is a sound and sure foundation both of the rule of manners and of doctrine, and these cannot be separated the one from the other.

<sup>2</sup> According as the truth directeth them.

1:7 <sup>1</sup> Antichrists fighting against the person and office of Christ, were already crept into the Church in the time of the Apostles.

1:8 <sup>1</sup> He that maketh shipwreck of doctrine, loseth all.

<sup>2</sup> Beware and take good heed.

1:10 <sup>1</sup> We ought to have nothing to do with them that defend perverse doctrine.

THE THIRD EPISTLE OF JOHN

1 He commendeth Gaius for hospitality, 9 and reprehendeth Diotrefes for vainglory: 10 he exhorteth Gaius to continue in well doing: 12 and in the end commendeth Demetrius.

1 The <sup>1</sup>Elder unto the beloved Gaius whom I love in the truth.

2 Beloved, I wish chiefly that thou prosperedst and faredst well as thy soul prospereth.

3 For I rejoiceth greatly when the brethren came and testified of the truth that is in thee, how thou walkest in the truth.

4 I have no greater joy than <sup>1</sup>these, that is, to hear that my sons walk in verity.

5 Beloved, thou doest <sup>1</sup>faithfully, whatsoever thou doest to the brethren, and to strangers,

6 Which bore witness of thy love before the Churches, Whom if thou <sup>1</sup>bringest on their journey as it seemeth according to God, thou shalt do well,

7 Because that for his Name's sake they went forth, and took nothing of the Gentiles.

8 We therefore ought to receive such, that we might be <sup>1</sup>helpers to the truth.

9 <sup>1</sup>I wrote unto the Church, but Diotrefes which loveth to have the preeminence among them, receiveth us not.

10 Wherefore if I come, I will call to your remembrance his deeds which he doeth, prattling against us with malicious words, and not therewith content, neither he himself receiveth the brethren, but forbideth them that would, and thrusteth them out of the Church.

11 Beloved, follow not that which is evil, but that which is good: he that doeth well is of God: but he that doeth evil, hath not <sup>1</sup>seen God.

12 Demetrius hath good report of all men, and of the truth itself: yea, and we ourselves bear record, and ye know that our record is true.

13 I have many things to write: but I will not with ink and pen write unto thee:

14 For I trust I shall shortly see thee, and we shall speak mouth to mouth. Peace be with thee. The friends salute thee. Greet thy friends by name.

1:1 <sup>1</sup> An example of a Christian gratulation.

1:4 <sup>1</sup> Than these joys.

1:5 <sup>1</sup> As becometh a believer and a Christian.

1:6 <sup>1</sup> He commendeth to Gaius either those selfsame men whom he had entertained before, returning now again to him about the affairs of the Church, or else some other which had like business.

1:8 <sup>1</sup> That we ourselves may help somewhat to the preaching of the truth.

1:9 <sup>1</sup> Ambition and covetousness, two pestilent plagues (especially in them which have any Ecclesiastical function) are condemned in Diotrefes' person.

1:11 <sup>1</sup> Hath not known God.

THE GENERAL EPISTLE OF JUDE

1 <sup>3</sup> He warneth the godly to take heed of such men, <sup>4</sup> that make the grace of God a cloak for their wantonness: <sup>5</sup> and that they shall not escape unpunished, for the contempt of that grace, <sup>6, 7</sup> he proveth by three examples: <sup>14</sup> and allegeth the prophecy of Enoch: <sup>20</sup> Finally he showeth the godly a means to overthrow all the snares of those deceivers.

1 Jude a servant of Jesus Christ, and <sup>1</sup>brother of James, to them which are called and sanctified <sup>2</sup>of God the Father, and <sup>3</sup>reserved to Jesus Christ:

2 Mercy unto you, and peace and love be multiplied.

3 <sup>1</sup>Beloved, when I gave all diligence to write unto you of the <sup>2</sup>common salvation, it was needful for me to write unto you, to exhort you, that ye should earnestly <sup>3</sup>contend for the maintenance of the faith, which was <sup>4</sup>once given unto the Saints.

4 <sup>1</sup>For there are certain men crept in, which were before of old ordained to this condemnation: <sup>2</sup>ungodly men they are, which turn the grace of our God into wantonness, and <sup>4</sup>deny God the only Lord, and our Lord Jesus Christ.

5 <sup>1</sup>I will therefore put you in remembrance, forasmuch as ye once knew this, how that the Lord, after that he had delivered the people out of Egypt,

6 <sup>1</sup>The ‘Angels also which kept not their first estate, but left their own habitation, he hath reserved in everlasting chains under darkness unto the judgment of the great day.

7 As <sup>4</sup>Sodom and Gomorrah, and the cities about them, which in like manner as they did, <sup>1</sup>committed fornication, and followed <sup>2</sup>strange flesh, are set forth for an example, and suffer the vengeance of eternal fire.

8 Likewise notwithstanding these <sup>1</sup>sleepers also defile the flesh, <sup>2</sup>and despise <sup>3</sup>government, and speak evil of them that are in authority.

9 <sup>1</sup>Yet Michael the Archangel, when he strove against the devil, and disputed about the body of Moses, durst not blame him with cursed speaking, but said, The Lord rebuke thee.

10 <sup>1</sup>But these speak evil of those things, which they know not: and whatsoever things they know naturally as beasts, which are without reason, in those things they corrupt themselves.

1:1 <sup>1</sup> This is put to make a difference between him and Judas Iscariot.

<sup>3</sup> Set apart by the everlasting counsel of God, to be delivered to Christ to be kept.

1:3 <sup>1</sup> The end and mark whereat he shooteth in this Epistle is that he confirmeth the godly against certain wicked men, both in wholesome doctrine and good manners.

<sup>2</sup> Of those things that pertain to the salvation of all of us.

<sup>3</sup> That ye should defend the faith by all the might you can, both by true doctrine and good example of life.

<sup>4</sup> Which was once so given, that it may never be changed.

1:4 <sup>1</sup> It is by God’s providence and not by chance, that many wicked men creep into the Church.

<sup>2</sup> He condemneth this first in them, that they take a pretense or occasion to wax wanton, by the grace of God: which cannot be, but the chief empire of Christ must be abrogated, in that such men give up themselves to Satan: as at this time the sect of the Anabaptists doth, which they call Libertines.

1:5 <sup>1</sup> He setteth forth the horrible punishment of them which have abuseth the grace of God to follow their own lusts.

1:6 <sup>1</sup> The fall of the Angels was most sincerely punished, how much more then will the Lord punish wicked and faithless men?

1:7 <sup>1</sup> Following the steps of Sodom and Gomorrah.

1:8 <sup>1</sup> Which are so blockish and void of reason as if all their senses and wits were in a most dead sleep.

<sup>2</sup> Another most pernicious doctrine of theirs, in that they take away the authority of Magistrates, and speak evil of them, as at this day the Anabaptists do.

<sup>3</sup> It is a greater matter to despise government, than the governors, that is to say, the matter itself, than the persons.

1:9 <sup>1</sup> An argument of comparison, Michael one of the chiefest Angels, was content to deliver Satan, although as most cursed enemy, to the judgment of God to be punished: and these perverse men are not ashamed to speak evil of the powers which are ordained of God.

1:10 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion. These men are in a double fault, to wit, both for their rash folly in condemning some, and for their impudent and shameless contempt of that knowledge, which when they had gotten, yet notwithstanding they lived as brute beasts, serving their bellies.

1:11 <sup>1</sup> He foretelleth their destruction, because they resemble or show forth Cain’s shameless malice, Balaam’s filthy covetousness, and to be short, Korah’s seditious and ambitious head.

1:12 <sup>1</sup> He rebuketh most sharply with many other notes and marks, both their dishonesty or filthiness, and their sauciness, but especially their vain bravery of words, and most vain pride, joining herewithal a most grave and heavy threatening out of a most ancient prophecy of Enoch touching the judgment to come.

<sup>2</sup> The feasts of charity were certain banquets, which the brethren that were members of the Church kept altogether, as Tertullian setteth them forth in his Apology, Chap. 3.9.

when they feast with you, without <sup>3</sup>all fear, feeding themselves: <sup>b</sup>clouds they are without water, carried about of winds, corrupt trees and without fruit, twice dead, and plucked up by the roots.

13 They are the raging waves of the sea, foaming out their own shames: they are wandering stars, to whom is reserved the <sup>1</sup>blackness of darkness forever.

14 And Enoch also the seventh from Adam, prophesied of such, saying, <sup>1</sup>Behold, the Lord <sup>1</sup>cometh with thousands of his Saints, 15 To give judgment against all men, and to rebuke all the ungodly among them of all their wicked deeds, which they have ungodly committed, and of all their cruel speakings, which wicked sinners have spoken against him.

16 These are murmurers, complainers, walking after their own lusts: <sup>4</sup>whose mouths speak proud things, having men's persons in admiration, because of advantage.

17 <sup>1</sup>But, ye beloved, remember the words which were spoken before of the Apostles of our Lord

<sup>b</sup> 2 Pet. 2:17

<sup>j</sup> Ps. 17:10

2 Pet. 3:3

Jesus Christ:

18 How that they told you that there should be mockers <sup>k</sup>in the last time, which should walk after their own ungodly lusts.

19 <sup>1</sup>These are they that separate themselves from others, natural, having not the Spirit.

20 But, ye beloved, edify yourselves in your most holy faith, praying in the holy Ghost.

21 And keep yourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ, unto eternal life.

22 <sup>1</sup>And have compassion of some, in putting difference:

23 And others save with <sup>1</sup>fear, pulling them out of the fire, and hate even that <sup>2</sup>garment which is spotted by the flesh.

24 <sup>1</sup>Now unto him that is able to keep you that ye fall not, and to present you faultless before the presence of his glory with joy,

25 That is, to God only wise, our Savior be glory, and majesty, and dominion, and power, both now and forever, Amen.

1:12 <sup>3</sup> Impudently, without all reverence either to God or man.

1:13 <sup>1</sup> Most gross darkness.

1:14 <sup>1</sup> The present time for the time to come.

1:17 <sup>1</sup> The rising up of such monsters was spoken of before, that we should not be troubled at the newness of the matter.

1:19 <sup>1</sup> It is the property of Antichrists to separate themselves from the godly, because they are not governed by the Spirit of God: and contrariwise it is the property of Christians to edify one another through godly prayers both in faith and also in love until the mercy of Christ appears to their full salvation.

1:22 <sup>1</sup> Among them which wander and go astray, the godly have to use this choice, that they handle some of them gently, and that others some being even in the very flame, they endeavor to save with severe and sharp instruction of the present danger: yet so, that they do in such sort abhor the wicked and dishonest, that they eschew even the least contagion that may be.

1:23 <sup>1</sup> By fearing them, and holding them back with godly severity.

1:24 <sup>1</sup> He commendeth them to the grace of God, declaring sufficiently that it is God only that can give us that constancy which he requireth of us.

8 <sup>1</sup>I <sup>2</sup>am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, saith the Lord, Which is, and Which

1:1 <sup>1</sup> This Chapter hath two principal parts, the title or inscription, which standeth instead of an exordium: and a narration going before the whole prophecy of this book: The inscription is double, general and particular. The general containeth the kind of prophecy, the author, and, matter, instruments, and manner of communicating the same, in the first verse: the most religious faithfulness of the Apostle as public witness, verse 2. And the use of communicating the same taken from the promise of God, and from the circumstance of the time, the third verse.

<sup>2</sup> An opening of a secret and hid thing.

1:4 <sup>1</sup> This is the particular or singular inscription wherein salutation is written unto certain Churches by name, which represent the Church Catholic: and the certainty and the truth of the same is declared, from the Author thereof, unto the eighth verse.

<sup>2</sup> That is, from God the Father, eternal, immortal, immutable: whose unchangeableness S. John declareth by a form of speech which is undeclined. For there is no incongruity in this place, where, of necessity the words must be attempted unto the mysteries, not the mysteries corrupted or impaired by the word.

<sup>3</sup> By these three times, Is, Was and shall be, is signified this word Jehovah, which is the proper name of God.

<sup>4</sup> That is, from the holy Ghost which proceedeth from the Father and the Son. This Spirit is one in person according to his subsistence: but in communication of his virtue, and in demonstration of his divine works in those seven Churches, doth so perfectly manifest himself, as if there were many Spirits, every one perfectly working in his own Church, wherefore after Rev. 5:6, they are called the seven horns and seven eyes of the Lamb, as much to say, as his most absolute power and wisdom: and Rev. 3:1. Christ is said to have there seven Spirits of God, and Rev. 4:5, it is said, that seven lamps do burn before his throne, which also are those seven Spirits of God. That this place ought to be so understood, it is thus proved. For first grace and peace is asked by prayer of this Spirit, which is a divine work, and an action incommunicable, in respect of the most high Deity. Secondly, he is placed between the Father and the Son, as set in the same degree of dignity and operation with them. Besides he is before the throne as of the same substance with the Father and the Son: as the seven eyes and seven horns of the Lamb. Moreover, these spirits are never said to adore God, as all other things are. Finally, that is the power whereby the Lamb opened the book, and loosed the seven seals thereof when none could be found amongst all creatures by whom the book might be opened, Rev. 5. Of these things long ago, Master John Luide of Oxford wrote learnedly unto me. Now the holy Ghost is set in order of words before Christ, because there was in that which followeth, a long process of speech to be used concerning Christ.

<sup>5</sup> These are the seven spirits, which are, afterward, Rev. 5:6, called the horns and eyes of the Lamb, and are now made as a guard waiting upon God.

1:5 <sup>1</sup> A most ample and grave commendation of Christ, first from his offices the Priesthood and kingdoms, secondly from his benefits, as his love toward us, and washing us with his blood, in this verse, and communication of his kingdom and Priesthood with us: thirdly from his eternal glory and power, which always is to be celebrated of us, verse 6. Finally from the accomplishment of all things once to be effected by him, at his second coming, what time he shall openly destroy the wicked, and comfort the godly in the truth, verse 7.

1:7 <sup>1</sup> All men.

1:8 <sup>1</sup> A confirmation of the salutation aforegoing, taken from the words of God himself: in which he avoucheth his operation in every single creature, the immutable eternity that is in himself, and his omnipotence in all things: and concludeth in the unity of his own essence, that Trinity of persons, which was before spoken of.

<sup>2</sup> I am he before whom there is nothing, yea, by whom everything that is made, was made and shall remain though all they should perish.

was, and Which is to come, even the Almighty.

9 <sup>1</sup>I John even your brother and companion in tribulation, and in the kingdom and patience of Jesus Christ, was in the <sup>2</sup>Isle called Patmos, for the word of God, and for the witnessing of Jesus Christ.

10 And I was ravished in <sup>1</sup>spirit on the <sup>2</sup>Lord's day, and heard behind me a great voice, as it had been of a trumpet, 11 Saying, I am Alpha and Omega, that first and that last: and that which thou seest write in a book, and send it unto the seven Churches which are in Asia, unto Ephesus, and unto Smyrna, and unto Pergamos, and unto Thyatira, and unto Sardis, and unto Philadelphia, and unto Laodicea.

12 <sup>1</sup>Then I turned back to <sup>2</sup>see the voice that spake with me: <sup>3</sup>and when I was turned, I saw seven golden candlesticks, 13 And in the midst of the seven candlesticks, one like unto the son of man, clothed with a garment down to the feet, and girded about the paps with a golden girdle.

14 His head and hairs were white as white wool, and as snow, and his eyes were as a flame of fire,

15 And his feet like unto fine brass burning as in a furnace: and his voice as the sound of many waters.

16 And he had in his right hand seven stars: and out of his mouth went a sharp two edged sword, and his face shone as the sun shineth in his strength.

17 <sup>1</sup>And when I saw him, I fell at his feet as dead: <sup>2</sup>then he laid his right hand upon me, saying unto me, Fear not: <sup>3</sup>I am that <sup>b</sup>first and that last,

18 And am alive, but I was dead: and behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen: and I have the keys of hell and of death.

19 <sup>1</sup>Write these things which thou hast seen, and the things which are, and the things which shall come hereafter.

20 <sup>1</sup>The mystery of the seven stars which thou sawest in my right hand, and the seven golden candlesticks, is this. The seven stars are the <sup>2</sup>Angels of the seven Churches: and the seven candlesticks which thou sawest, are the seven Churches.

2 <sup>1</sup>John is commanded to write those things which the Lord knew necessary to the Churches of Ephesus. <sup>8</sup> Of the Smyrnians, <sup>12</sup> of Pergamos, <sup>18</sup> and of Thyatira, as that they keep those things which they received of the Apostles.

1 <sup>1</sup>Unto the Angel of the Church of Ephesus

19 <sup>1</sup> The narration opening the way to the declaring of the authority and calling of Saint John the Evangelist in this singular Revelation, and to procure faith, and credit unto this prophecy. This is the second part of this Chapter consisting of a proposition and an exposition. The proposition showeth, first who was called unto this Revelation, in what place, and how occupied, verse 9. Then at what time and by what means, namely, by the spirit and the word, and that on the Lord's day, which day ever since the resurrection of Christ, was consecrated for Christians unto the religion of the Sabbath: that is to say, to be a day of rest, verse 10. Thirdly, who is the author that calleth him, and what is the sum of his calling.

1:10 <sup>1</sup> This is that holy ravishment expressed, wherewith the prophets were ravished, and being as it were carried out of the world were conversant with God, and so Ezekiel saith often that he was carried from place to place of the Lord's Spirit and that the Spirit of the Lord fell upon him.

1:12 <sup>1</sup> The exposition, declaring the third and last point of the proposition (for the other points are evident of themselves) wherein is spoken first of the author of his calling unto verse 17. Secondly of the calling itself unto the end of the Chap. And first of all the occasion is noted in this verse, in that S. John turned himself towards the vision: after is set down the description of the author in the verses following, Rev. 1:13–16.

<sup>2</sup> To see him whose voice I had heard.

<sup>3</sup> The description of the Author, which is Christ: by the candlesticks that standeth about him, that is the Churches that stand before him, and depend upon his direction, in this verse: by his properties, that he is one furnished with wisdom and dexterity to the achieving of great things, verse 13, and ancient gravity and most excellent sight of the eye, verse 14, with strength invincible and with a mighty word, verse 15. By his operations, that he ruleth the ministry of his servants in the Church, giveth the effect thereunto by the sword of his word, and enlightening all things with his countenance, doth most mightily provide for everyone by his divine providence, verse 16.

1:17 <sup>1</sup> A religious fear that goeth before the calling of the Saints, and their full confirmation to take upon them the vocation of God.

<sup>3</sup> A most elegant description of this calling contained in three things, which are necessary unto a just vocation: first the authority of him that calleth, for that he is the beginning and end of all things, in this verse, for that he is eternal and omnipotent, verse 18. Secondly, the sum of this prophetic calling, and revelation, verse 19. Lastly a declaration of those persons unto whom this prophecy is by the commandment of God directed in the description thereof, verse 20.

1:19 <sup>1</sup> The sum of this prophecy, that the Apostle must write whatsoever he should see, adding nothing, nor taking away anything, as verse 2. Hereof there are two parts: one is a narration of those things which are, that is, which then were at that time contained in the second and third Chapters, the other part is of those things which were to come, contained in the rest of this book.

1:20 <sup>1</sup> That is, the things which [were] mystical, signified by the particulars of the vision beforegoing.

2:1 <sup>1</sup> The former part of this book is comprised in a narration of those things which then were as S. John taught us, Rev. 1:19, it belongeth wholly to instruction and in these next two Chapters, containeth seven places according to the number and condition of those Churches which were named before, Rev. 1:11, figured verse 12, distributed most aptly into their Pastors and flocks, verse 20, which verse of that Chap. is as it were a passage unto the first part. Every one of the seven places hath three principal members, an Exordium taken from the person of the Author: a Proposition, in which is praise and commendation of that which is good, reprehension of that which is evil: an instruction containing either an exhortation alone, or withal a dissuasion opposite unto it, and a conclusion stirring unto attention by divine promises. And this first place is unto the Pastors of the Church of Ephesus.

write,<sup>2</sup>These things saith he that holdeth the seven stars in his right hand, and walketh in the midst of the seven golden candlesticks.

2 <sup>1</sup>I know thy works, and thy labor, and thy patience, and how thou canst not bear with them which are evil, and hast examined them which say they are Apostles, and are not, and hast found them liars.

3 And thou wast burdened, and hast patience, and for my Name's sake hast labored, and hast not fainted.

4 Nevertheless, I have somewhat <sup>1</sup>against thee, because thou hast left thy first love.

5 Remember therefore from whence thou art fallen, and repent and do the first works: or else I will come against thee shortly, and will remove thy candlestick out of his place, except thou amend.

6 But this thou hast that thou hatest the works of the Nicolaitans, which I also hate.

7 <sup>1</sup>Let him that hath an ear hear what the Spirit saith unto the Churches: To him that overcometh, will I give to eat of the tree of life which is in <sup>2</sup>the midst of the <sup>3</sup>Paradise of God.

8 ¶ <sup>1</sup>And unto the Angel of the Church of the <sup>2</sup>Smyrnians write, These things saith he that is first and last, which was dead and is alive.

9 <sup>1</sup>I know thy works and tribulation, and poverty (but thou art rich) and I know the blasphemy of them, which say they are Jews, and are not, but are the Synagogue of Satan.

10 Fear none of those things, which thou shalt suffer: behold, it shall come to pass, that the devil shall cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tried, and ye shall have <sup>1</sup>tribulation ten days: be thou faithful unto the death, and I will give thee the crown of life.

11 <sup>1</sup>Let him that hath an ear hear what the Spirit saith unto the Churches. He that overcometh shall not be hurt <sup>2</sup>of the second death.

12 <sup>1</sup>And to the Angel of the Church, which is at <sup>2</sup>Pergamos write, Thus saith he which hath that sharp sword with two edges.

13 <sup>1</sup>I know thy works, and where thou dwellest, even where Satan's throne is, and thou keepest my Name, and hast not denied my faith, even in <sup>2</sup>those days when Antipas my faithful martyr was slain among you, where Satan dwelleth.

14 But I have a few things against thee, because thou hast there them that maintain the doctrine of "Balaam, which taught Balak to put a stumbling block before the children of Israel, that they should <sup>1</sup>eat of things sacrificed unto idols, and commit fornication.

15 Even so hast thou them that maintain the doctrine of the <sup>1</sup>Nicolaitans, which thing I hate.

16 Repent thyself, or else I will come unto thee shortly, and will fight against them with the sword of my mouth.

17 <sup>1</sup>Let him that hath an ear, hear what the spirit saith unto the Churches. To him that overcometh, will I give to eat <sup>2</sup>of the <sup>3</sup>Manna that is hid, and will give him

2:1 <sup>2</sup>The exordium wherein are contained the special praises of Christ Jesus the Author of this prophecy, out of verses 16 and 13 of the first Chapter.

2:2 <sup>1</sup>The proposition, first condemning the Pastor of this Church, verses 2, 3, then reproving him, verse 4, after informing him and withal threatening that he will translate the Church to another place, verse 5. This commutation or threat Christ mitigateth by a kind of correction, calling to mind the particular virtue and piety of the Church, which God never leaveth without recompense, verse 6. Concerning the Nicolaitans see after upon verse 11.

2:4 <sup>1</sup>To deal with thee for.

2:7 <sup>1</sup>The conclusion, containing a commandment of attention and a promise of everlasting life, shadowed out in a figure of which, Gen. 2:9.

2:8 <sup>1</sup>The second place is unto the Pastors of the Church of the Smyrnians. The exordium is taken out of verses 17 and 18 of the first Chap.

2:9 <sup>1</sup>The proposition of praise is in this verse and of exhortation joined with promise, is in the next verse.

2:10 <sup>1</sup>That is, of ten years. For so commonly both in this book and in Daniel, years are signified by the name of days: that God thereby might declare, that the space of time is appointed by him, and the same very short. Now because Saint John wrote this book in the end of Domitian the Emperor his reign, as Justin and Ireneus do witness, it is altogether necessary that this should be referred unto that persecution which was done by the authority of the Emperor Trajan: who began to make havoc of the Christian Church in the tenth year of his reign, as the Historigraphers do write: and his bloody persecution continued until Adrian the Emperor had succeeded in his place: the space of which time is precisely ten years, which are here mentioned.

2:11 <sup>1</sup>The conclusions as verse 7.

2:12 <sup>1</sup>The third place is unto the Pastors of Pergamos. The Exordium is taken out of verse 16 of the first Chapter.

<sup>2</sup> Pergamos was the name of a famous city in old time in Asia, where the Kings of the Attalians were always resident.

2:13 <sup>1</sup>The proposition of praise is in this verse, of reprehension in the two following, and of exhortation joined with a conditional threat, verse 16. Now this Antipas was the Angel or minister of the Church of Pergamos, as Aretas writeth.

<sup>2</sup> The faith of them of Pergamos is so much the more highly commended because they remained constant even in the very heat of persecution.

2:14 <sup>1</sup>That which is here spoken of things offered to idols, is meant of the same kind which Paul speaketh of, 1 Cor. 10:13.

2:15 <sup>1</sup>Which follow the footsteps of Balaam, and such as are abandoned unto all filthiness, as he showed in the verse foregoing, and is here signified by a note of similitude. And thus also must the next verse be understood. For this matter especially Ireneus must be consulted withal.

2:17 <sup>1</sup>The conclusion, standing of exhortation as before, and of promise.

<sup>2</sup> He alludeth to that sermon which we read of John 6, and to the place we find, Ps. 105:40.

<sup>3</sup> Aretas writeth, that such a stone was wont to be given to wrestlers at games, or else that such stones did in old times witness the quitting of a man.

a <sup>4,5</sup>white stone, and in the stone a new <sup>6</sup>name written, which no man knoweth, saving he that receiveth it.

18 ¶ And unto <sup>1</sup>the Angel of the Church which is at Thyatira write, These things saith the Son of God, which hath his eyes like unto a flame of fire, and his feet like fine brass.

19 I know <sup>1</sup>thy works and thy love, and <sup>2</sup>service and faith, and thy patience, and thy works, and that they are more at the last, than at the first.

20 Notwithstanding, I have a few things against thee, that thou sufferest the woman Jezebel which calleth herself a prophetess, to teach and to deceive my servants, to make them commit <sup>1</sup>fornication and to eat meat sacrificed unto idols.

21 And I gave her space to repent of her fornication, and she repented not.

22 Behold, I will cast her into a bed, and them that commit fornication with her, into great affliction, except they repent them of their works.

23 And I will kill her children with death, and all the Churches shall know that I am he which <sup>b</sup>search the reins and hearts: and I will give unto every one of you according unto your works.

24 And unto you I say, the rest of them of Thyatira, As many as have not this learning, neither have known the <sup>1</sup>deepness of Satan (as they speak) I will <sup>2</sup>put upon you none other burden, 25 But that which ye have already, hold fast till I come.

unto the end, to him will I give <sup>2</sup>power over nations.

28 Even as I received of my Father, so will I give him <sup>1</sup>the morning Star.

29 Let him that hath an ear, hear what the Spirit saith to the Churches.

3 1 The first Epistle sent to the Pastors of the Church of Sardis, 7 of Philadelphia, 14 And of the Laodiceans, 16 that they be not lukewarm, 20 but endeavor to further God's glory.

1 <sup>1</sup>And write unto the Angel of the Church which is at <sup>2</sup>Sardis, These things saith he that hath the seven Spirits of God, and the seven stars, <sup>3</sup>I know thy works: for thou hast a <sup>4</sup>name that thou livest, but thou art dead.

2 Be awake, and strengthen the things which remain, that are <sup>1</sup>ready to die: for I have not found thy work perfect before God.

3 Remember therefore, how thou hast received and heard, and hold fast and repent. <sup>4</sup>If therefore thou wilt not watch, I will come on thee as a thief, and thou shalt not know what hour I will come upon thee.

4 Notwithstanding thou hast a few names yet in Sardis, <sup>1</sup>which have not defiled their garments: and they shall walk with me in <sup>2</sup>white: for they are <sup>3</sup>worthy.

5 He <sup>1</sup>that overcometh, shall be clothed in white array, and I will not put out his Name out of the <sup>b</sup>book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before his Angels.

6 Let him that hath an ear, hear what the Spirit

2:17 <sup>a</sup> The bread of life, invisible, spiritual, and heavenly, which is kept secretly with God, from before all eternity.

<sup>b</sup> Which is a sign and witness of forgiveness and remission of sins, of righteousness and true holiness, and of purity uncorrupted, after that the old man is killed.

<sup>c</sup> A sign and testimony of newness of life in righteousness and true holiness, by putting on the new man, whom none doth inwardly know, save the spirit of man which is in himself, the praise whereof is not of man, but of God, Rom. 2:28.

2:18 <sup>1</sup> The fourth place is unto the Pastors of Thyatira. The exordium is taken out of verses 14 and 15 of the first Chapter.

2:19 <sup>1</sup> The proposition of praise is in this verse: of reprehension, for they tolerated with them, the doctrine of ungodliness and unrighteousness, is verse 20, the authors whereof though they were called back of God, yet repented not verse 21, whereunto is added a most heavy threatening, verses 22 and 23, of a conditional promise, and of exhortation to hold fast the truth, is in the two verses following.

<sup>2</sup> So he calleth those offices of charity which are done to the saints.

2:20 <sup>1</sup> By Fornication, is often in the Scripture idolatry meant.

2:24 <sup>1</sup> He pointeth out the bragging of certain men, which boasted of their deep, that is, plentiful and common knowledge, which notwithstanding is devilish.

<sup>2</sup> I will speak no worse thing against you, being content to have showed you what I require to be in you.

2:26 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion, wherein Christ assureth unto his servants the communion of his Kingdom and glory, in this verse and the next following, and commandeth an holy attention in the last verse.

<sup>2</sup> That is, I will make him a King by communion with me, and my fellow heir, as it is promised, Matt. 19:28 and 25:34; Rom. 8:17 and 1 Cor. 6:3; Eph. 2:6 and 1 Tim. 2:12.

2:28 <sup>1</sup> The brightness of greatest glory and honor nearest approaching unto the light of Christ, who is the Son of righteousness, and our head, Matt. 4.

3:1 <sup>1</sup> The fifth place is unto the Pastors of Sardis. The exordium is taken out of verses 4 and 16 of the first Chap.

<sup>2</sup> Sardis is the name of a most flourishing and famous City, where the Kings of Lydia kept their courts.

<sup>3</sup> The proposition of reproof is in this verse: of exhortation joined with a threatening in the two verses that follow, and of qualification by way of correction unto the comfort of the good which yet remained there, verse 4.

<sup>4</sup> Thou art said to live, but art dead indeed.

3:2 <sup>1</sup> Other things, whose state is such, that they are now going, and unless they be confirmed, will perish forthwith.

3:4 <sup>1</sup> That is, who have with all religion guarded themselves from sin and moral contagion, even from the very show of evil, as S. Jude exhorteth, verse 23.

<sup>2</sup> Pure from all spot and shining with glory. So it is to be understood always hereafter as in the next verse.

<sup>3</sup> They are meet and fit, to wit, because they are justified in Christ, as they have truly showed it: for he is righteous that worketh righteousness: but so, as the tree bringeth forth fruit. See Rom. 8:18.

3:5 <sup>1</sup> The conclusion standing upon a promise and a commandment as before.

saith unto the Churches.

7 ¶ <sup>1</sup>And write unto the Angel of the Church which is of Philadelphia, These things saith he that is Holy, and True, which hath the <sup>2</sup>key of David, which openeth and no man shutteth, and shutteth and no man openeth.

8 <sup>1</sup>I know thy works: behold I have set before thee an open door, and no man can shut it: for thou hast a little strength and hast kept my word, and hast not denied my Name.

9 Behold, I will make them <sup>1</sup>of the Synagogue of Satan, which call themselves Jews, and are not, but do lie: behold, I say, I will make them that they shall come <sup>2</sup>and worship before thy feet, and shall know that I have loved thee.

10 Because thou hast <sup>1</sup>kept the word of my patience, therefore I will deliver thee from the hour of temptation, which will come upon all the world, to try them that dwell upon the earth.

11 Behold, I come shortly: hold that which thou hast, that no man take thy crown.

12 <sup>1</sup>Him that overcometh, will I make a pillar in the Temple of my God, and he shall go no more out: <sup>2</sup>and I will write upon him the Name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, which is the new Jerusalem, which cometh down out of heaven from my God, and I will write upon him my new Name.

13 Let him that hath an ear, hear what the Spirit saith unto the Churches.

14 <sup>1</sup>And unto the Angel of the Church of the Laodiceans write, These things saith <sup>2</sup>Amen, the faithful and true witness, that <sup>3</sup>beginning of the creatures of God.

15 <sup>1</sup>I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot: I would thou werest cold or hot.

16 Therefore because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, it will come to pass, that I shall spew thee out of my mouth.

17 For thou sayest, I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing, and knowest not how thou art wretched and miserable, <sup>1</sup>and poor, and blind, and naked.

18 I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried by the fire, that thou mayest be made rich: and white raiment, that thou mayest be clothed, and that thy filthy nakedness do not appear: and anoint thine eyes with eye salve, that thou mayest see.

19 As many as I love, <sup>1</sup>I rebuke and chasten: be <sup>1</sup>zealous therefore and amend.

20 Behold, I stand at the door, and knock, <sup>1</sup>If any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in unto him, and will sup with him, and he with me.

21 <sup>1</sup>To him that overcometh, will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I overcame, and sit with my Father in his throne.

22 Let him that hath an ear, hear what the Spirit saith unto the Churches.

4 <sup>1</sup>Another vision containing the glory of God's Majesty: <sup>3</sup>which is magnified of the four beasts, 10 and the four and twenty Elders.

1 After <sup>1</sup>this I looked, and behold, a door was 3:7 <sup>1</sup>The sixth place is unto the Pastors of Philadelphia. The exordium is taken out of verse 18 of the first chapter.

<sup>2</sup>All power of rule in commanding and forbidding, delivering and punishing. And the house of David is the Church, and the continual promise of David's Kingdom belongeth to Christ.

3:8 <sup>1</sup>The proposition of praise is in this verse, of promises, to bring home again them that wander, verse 9, and to preserve the godly, verse 10, and of exhortation, verse 11.

3:9 <sup>1</sup>I will bring them to that case.

<sup>2</sup>That is, fall down and worship either thee civilly, or Christ religiously at thy feet (and thus I had rather take it) whether here in the Church (which seemeth more proper to the argument of this place) or there in the world to come. For Christ verily shall fulfill his word.

3:10 <sup>1</sup>Because thou hast been patient and constant, as I would my servants should be.

3:12 <sup>1</sup>The conclusion, which containeth a promise and a commandment.

<sup>2</sup>That is, the new man shall be turned after his Father, Mother, and head Christ.

3:14 <sup>1</sup>The seventh place is unto the pastors of the Church of Laodicea. The exordium is taken out of verse 15 of the first chapter.

<sup>2</sup>Amen soundeth as much in the Hebrew tongue, as Truly, or Truth itself.

3:15 <sup>1</sup>The proposition of reproof is in this verse, whereunto is adjoined a threatening, verse 16, with a confirmation declaring the same, verse 17, and of exhortation unto faith and repentance, verses

18, 19, whereunto is added a conditional promise, verse 20.

3:17 <sup>1</sup>The spiritual misery of men is metaphorically expressed in three points: unto which are matched as correspondent those remedies which are offered, verse 18.

3:19 <sup>1</sup>Zeal is set against them which are neither hot nor cold.

3:20 <sup>1</sup>This must be taken after the manner of an allegory, as John 14:23.

3:21 <sup>1</sup>The conclusion, consisting of a promise, as Rev. 2:26, and of an exhortation. Hitherto hath been the first part of the book of the Apocalypse.

4:1 <sup>1</sup>Hereafter followeth the second part of this book, altogether propheticall, foretelling those things which were to come, as was said before, Rev. 1:19. This is divided into two histories: one common unto the whole world, unto Chapter 9: and another singular of the Church of God, thence unto chapter 22. And these histories are said to be described in several books, Rev. 5:1 and 10:2. Now this verse is as it were a passage from the former part unto this second: where it is said, that the heaven was opened, that is, that heavenly things were unlocked, and that a voice as of a trumpet sounded in heaven to stir up the Apostle, and call him to the understanding of things to come. The first history hath two parts: one the causes of things done, and of this whole Revelation, in that and the next chapter. Another of the acts done, in the next 4 chapters. The principal causes according to the distinction of persons in the vanity of divine essence, and according to the economy or dispensation thereof, are two. One the beginning, which none can approach unto, that is, God the Father, of whom is spoken in this chapter. The other, the Son, who is the mean cause, easy to be approached unto us, in respect that he is God and man in one person: of whom, Rev. 5.

open in heaven, and the first voice which I heard, was as it were of a trumpet talking with me, saying, Come up hither, and I will show thee things which must be done hereafter.

2 And <sup>1</sup>immediately I was ravished <sup>2</sup>in the spirit, <sup>3</sup>and behold, a throne was set in heaven, and one sat upon the throne.

3 <sup>1</sup>And he that sat, was to look upon, like unto a Jasper stone, and a sardine, and there was a rainbow round about the throne, in sight like to an emerald.

4 <sup>1</sup>And round about the throne were four and twenty seats, and upon the seats I saw four and twenty Elders sitting, clothed in white raiment, and had on their heads crowns of gold.

5 <sup>1</sup>And out of the throne proceeded lightnings, and thunderings and voices, and there were seven lamps of fire burning before the throne, which are the seven spirits of God.

6 <sup>1</sup>And before the throne there was a Sea of glass like unto crystal: and in the midst of the throne, and round about the throne were four beasts, full of eyes before and behind.

7 And the first beast was like a lion, and the second beast like a calf, and the third beast had a face as a man, and the fourth beast was like a flying Eagle.

8 And the <sup>1</sup>four beasts had each one of them six wings about him, and they were full of eyes within, and they ceased not <sup>2</sup>day nor night, saying, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, Which was, and which is, and which is to come.

9 And when those beasts <sup>1</sup>gave glory, and honor, and thanks to him that sat on the throne, which liveth forever and ever,

10 <sup>1</sup>The four and twenty Elders fell down before him that sat on the throne, and worshipped him that liveth for evermore, and cast their crowns before the throne, saying,

11 <sup>1</sup>Thou art <sup>a</sup>worthy, O Lord, <sup>2</sup>to receive glory, and honor, and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy will's sake they are, and have been created.

1 <sup>1</sup>And I saw in the <sup>2</sup>right hand of him that sat upon the throne, <sup>3</sup>a book written within, and on the

<sup>3</sup> A description of God the Father, and of his glory in the heavens, framed unto the manner of men, by his office, nature, company, attending, effect, instruments and events that follow afterwards. In this verse, he is presented in office a judge, as Abraham said, Gen. 18, which is declared by his throne, as an ensign of judgment, and his sitting thereupon.

4:3 <sup>1</sup> By his nature, in that he is the Father, most glorious in his own person, and with his glory overshadowing all other things.

4:4 <sup>1</sup> By the company attending about him in that, as that most high Judge, he is accompanied with the most honorable attendance of Prophets and Apostles, both of the old and new Church, whom Christ hath made to be Priests and Kings, Rev. 1:6 and 5:10.

4:5 <sup>1</sup> By effects, in that most mightily he speaketh all things by his voice and word, as Ps. 29:3, and with the light of his spirit and providence peruseth and passes through all.

4:6 <sup>1</sup> By instruments used, in that he both hath a most ready treasury, and as it were a workhouse excellently furnished with all things, unto the executing of his will, which things flow from his commandment, as is repeated, Rev. 15:2. And hath also the Angels most ready administrators of his counsels and pleasure unto all parts of the world, continually watching (in this verse) working by reason otherwise than the instruments, without life last mentioned, courageous as lions, mighty as bulls, wise as men, swift as eagles, verse 7, most apt unto all purposes, as furnished with wings on every part, most piercing of sight, and finally pure and perfect Spirits, always in continual motion, verse 8.

4:8 <sup>1</sup> Every beast had six wings.

<sup>2</sup> By events, in that for all the causes before mentioned God is glorified both of Angels, as holy, Judge, omnipotent, eternal and immutable, verse 8, and also after their example he is glorified of holy men (verse 9) in sign and in speech, verses 10, 11.

4:9 <sup>1</sup> God is said to have glory, honor, kingdom, and such like given unto him, when we godly and reverently set forth that which is properly and only his.

4:10 <sup>1</sup> Three signs of divine honor given unto God, prostration or falling down, adoration and casting their crowns before God, in which the godly, though made kings by Christ, do willingly empty themselves of all glory, moved with a religious respect for the majesty of God.

4:11 <sup>1</sup> The sum of their speech: that all glory must be given unto God: the reason, because he is the eternal beginning of all things, from whose only will they have their being and are governed: and finally in all respects are that which they are.

<sup>2</sup> That is, that thou shouldst challenge the same to thyself alone. But as for us, we are unworthy, that even by thy goodness we should be made partakers of this glory. And hitherto hath been handled the principal cause unapproachable, which is God.

5:1 <sup>1</sup> A passing unto the second principal cause, which is the Son of God, God and man, the mediator of all, as the eternal word of God the Father manifested in the flesh. This chapter hath two parts: one that prepareth the way unto the Revelation, by rehearsal of the occasions that did occur in the first four verses. Another, the history of the Revelation of Christ, thence unto the end of the chapter.

<sup>3</sup> Here are showed the occasions for which this principal cause, and this Revelation was also necessary: the same are three, the first a present vision of the book of the counsels of God, concerning the government of this whole world, which book is said to be laid up with the Father as it were in his hand: but shut and unknown unto all creatures, in this verse. The second is a religious desire of the Angels of God to understand the mysteries of this book, verse 2, whereof see 1 Pet. 1:12. The third is a lamentation of Saint John and all the godly, moved by the same desire, verse 4, when they saw that it was a thing impossible for any creature to effect: which is declared in the third verse.

backside sealed with seven seals.

2 And I saw a strong Angel which preached with a loud voice, Who is worthy to open the book, and to loose the seals thereof?

3 <sup>1</sup>And no man in heaven nor in earth, neither under the earth, was able to open the book, neither to look thereon.

4 Then I wept much, because no man was found worthy to open, and to read the book, neither to look thereon.

5 <sup>1</sup>And one of the Elders said unto me, Weep not: behold, that <sup>a2</sup>Lion which is of the tribe of Judah, that root of David, hath obtained to open the book, and to loose the seven seals thereof.

6 Then I beheld, and lo, <sup>1</sup>in the midst of the throne, and of the four beasts, and in the midst of the Elders stood a Lamb, as though he had been killed, which had seven horns, and seven eyes, which are the seven spirits of God, sent into all the world.

7 <sup>1</sup>And he came, and took the book out of the right hand of him that sat upon the throne.

8 <sup>1</sup>And when he hath taken the book, the four beasts, and the four and twenty Elders fell down before the Lamb, having every one <sup>2</sup>harps and golden vials full of odors, which are the <sup>3</sup>prayers of the Saints,

9 And they sung a <sup>1</sup>new <sup>2</sup>song, saying, <sup>3</sup>Thou

<sup>a</sup> Gen. 49:6

art worthy to take the book, and to open the seals thereof, because thou wast killed, and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred, and tongue, and people, and nation.

10 And hast made us unto our God <sup>b</sup>Kings, and Priests, and we shall reign on the earth.

11 <sup>1</sup>Then I beheld, and I heard the voice of many Angels round about the throne, and about the beasts and the Elders, <sup>2</sup>and there were <sup>63</sup>ten thousand times ten thousand, and thousand thousands, 12 Saying with a loud voice, Worthy is the Lamb that was killed, to <sup>1</sup>receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honor, and glory, and praise.

13 <sup>1</sup>And all the creatures which are in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and in the sea, and all that are in them, heard I saying, Praise, and honor, and glory, and power be unto him, that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for evermore.

14 <sup>1</sup>And the four beasts said, Amen, and the four and twenty Elders fell down and worshipped him that liveth for evermore.

5:3 <sup>1</sup> Thus neither of them that are in heaven, nor of them which are in the earth, etc. And this I like better. Now this enumeration of parts is sufficient to the denying of the whole. For of the creatures one sort is in heaven above the earth: another in the earth: and another under the earth in the sea, as is after declared, verse 13.

5:5 <sup>1</sup> The second part of this chapter, in which is set down the Revelation of the Son, as before was said. This part containeth first an history of the manner how God prepared S. John to understand this Revelation in this verse. Secondly, the Revelation of the Son himself unto verse 7. Thirdly, the accidents of this Revelation, in the rest of the chapter. The manner now, is here described in two sorts, one from without him, by speech in this verse. Another within, by opening the eyes of S. John (which before were held) that he might see, in the verse following.

<sup>2</sup> That is, the most mighty and most approved Prince: according to the use of the Hebrew speech.

5:6 <sup>1</sup> The sum of this Revelation: Christ the mediator taketh and openeth the book, verses 6, 7. Therefore in his Revelation is described the person of Christ, in this verse. His fact, in the next verse. The person is thus described, Christ, the mediator between God, Angels and men, as the eternal word of God, and our redeemer: as the Lamb of God, standing as slain, and making intercession for us by the virtue and merit of his everlasting sacrifice, is armed with the Spirit of God, in his own person, that is, with the power and wisdom of God essentially unto the government of this whole world.

5:7 <sup>1</sup> The fact of Christ the Mediator, that he cometh unto the throne of the Father, of which Rev. 4, and taketh the book out of his hand to open it. For that he opened it, it is first expressed, Rev. 6:1, etc.

5:8 <sup>1</sup> Now follow in the end the accidents of the Revelation last spoken of that all the holy Angels, and men did sing unto him: both the chief, verses 9, 10, and common order of Angels, verses 11, 12, and of all things created, verse 13, the princes of both sorts agreeing thereunto, verse 14.

5:9 <sup>1</sup> No common song.

<sup>2</sup> That is composed according to the present matter: the Lamb having received the book, as it were with his feet, and opened it with his horns, as is said in the Canticles.

<sup>3</sup> The song of the Nobles or Princes standing by the throne, consisting of a publication of the praise of Christ, and a confirmation of the same from his benefits, both which we have received of himself (as are the suffering of his death, our redemption upon the cross by his blood in this verse: and our communion with him in Kingdom and Priesthood, which long ago he hath granted unto us with himself) and which we hereafter hope to obtain, as our kingdom to come in Christ, in the verse following.

5:11 <sup>1</sup> The consent of the common order of Angels, answering in melody unto their Princes that stood by the throne.

<sup>2</sup> A number finite, but almost infinite for one infinite indeed, as Dan. 7:10.

5:12 <sup>1</sup> To have all praise given to him, as to the mightiest and wisest, etc.

5:13 <sup>1</sup> The consent of all the common multitude of the creatures.

5:14 <sup>1</sup> A confirmation of the praise foregoing, from the contestation of the Nobles, expressed in word and signs, as once or twice before this.

1 <sup>1</sup>After I beheld when the Lamb had opened one of the seals, and I heard one of the four beasts say, as it were the noise of thunder, Come and see.

2 Therefore <sup>1</sup>I beheld, and lo, there was a white horse, and he that sat on him, had a bow, and a crown was given unto him, and he went forth conquering that he might overcome.

3 And <sup>1</sup>when he had opened the second seal, I heard the second beast say, Come and see.

4 And there went out another horse, that was red, and power was given to him that sat thereon to take peace from the earth, and that they should kill one another, and there was given unto him a great sword.

5 <sup>1</sup>And when he had opened the third seal, I heard the third beast say, Come and see. Then I beheld, and lo, a black horse, and he that sat on him, had balances in his hand.

6 And I heard a voice in the midst of the four beasts say, A <sup>1</sup>measure of wheat for a penny, and three measures of barley for a penny, <sup>2</sup>and oil, and wine hurt thou not.

7 <sup>1</sup>And when he had opened the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth beast say, Come and see.

8 And I looked, and behold, a pale horse, and his name that sat on him was Death, and Hell followed after him, and power was given unto them over the fourth part of the earth, to kill with sword, and with hunger, and with death, and with beasts of the earth.

9 <sup>1</sup>And when he had opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the souls of them that were killed for the word of God, and for the testimony which they maintained.

10 And they cried with a loud voice, saying, How long, Lord, which art holy and true! dost not thou judge and avenge our blood on them, that dwell on the earth?

11 And long <sup>1</sup>white robes were given unto every one, and it was said unto them, that they should rest for a little season until their fellow servants, and their brethren that should be killed even as they were, were <sup>2</sup>fulfilled.

12 <sup>1</sup>And I beheld when he had opened the sixth seal, and lo, there was a great earthquake, and the Sun was as black as <sup>2</sup>sackcloth of hair, and the Moon was like blood.

13 And the stars of heaven fell unto the earth, as a fig-tree casteth her green figs, when it is shaken of a mighty wind.

14 And heaven departed away, as a scroll, when it

6:1 <sup>1</sup> This is the second part of this first history (which I said was common and of the whole world) of the works of God in the government of all things. Of this part there are generally 3 members, the foresignifying, the caution, and the execution of all the evils which God poureth out upon this world, which hath most hardly deserved of him. The foresignifying is set down in this chapter, the caution for preserving the Church, is in the next chapter, and the execution is described, Rev. 8:9. In every part of the foresignifying, there are three branches: the several and express calling of S. John, to prepare himself to take knowledge of the things that were to be showed unto him in the opening of the seals: the sign and the word expounding the sign: And albeit the express calling of S. John, be used only in four of the signs, yet the same is also to be understood in the rest that follow. The author of the foresignifying is the Lamb, as that word of the Father made the Mediator, opening the seals of the book. The instruments are the Angels in most of the visions, who expound the sign and words thereof. Now this first verse containeth an express calling of S. John to mark the opinion of the first seal.

6:2 <sup>1</sup> The first sign joined with declaration, is that God for the sins, and horrible rebellion of the world, will invade the same: and first of all as afar off, with his darts of pestilence most suddenly, mightily, and gloriously, bear down the same as judge, and triumph over it as conqueror.

6:3 <sup>1</sup> The second sign joined with words of declaration (after the express calling of S. John as before) is that God being provoked unto wrath by the obstinacy and hardheartedness of the world not repenting for the former plague, as setting upon the same hand, will kindle the fire of debate amongst men, and will destroy the inhabitants of this world, one by the sword of another.

6:5 <sup>1</sup> The third sign with declaration, is that God will destroy the world with famine, withdrawing all provision: which is by the figure Synecdoche comprehended in wheat, barley, wine and oil.

6:6 <sup>1</sup> Hereby is signified what great scarcity of corn there was, for the word here used is a kind of measure of dry things, which is in quantity but the eighth part of a bushel, which was an ordinary portion to be given servants for their stint of meat for one day.

<sup>2</sup> I had rather distinguish and read the words thus, and the wine and the oil thou shalt not deal unjustly. In this sense likewise the wine and the oil shall be sold a very little for a penny. Thou shalt not deal unjustly, namely, when thou shalt measure out a very little for a great price: so is the place evident: otherwise that is most true, which the wise man saith, that whoso withholdeth the corn shall be cursed of the people, Prov. 11:26.

6:7 <sup>1</sup> The fourth sign joined with words of declaration, is, that God will addict the fourth part of the world indifferently, unto death and hell, or the grave by all those means at once, by which before severally and in order he had recalled their minds unto amendment. Unto these are also added the wild and cruel beasts of the earth, out of Lev. 26:22. Thus doth God according to his wisdom dispense the treasures of his power, justly towards all, mercifully towards the good, and with patience or longsufferance towards his enemies.

6:9 <sup>1</sup> The fifth sign is that the holy martyrs which are under the altar, whereby they are sanctified, that is, received into the trust and tuition of Christ (into whose hands they are committed) shall cry out for the justice of God, in an holy zeal to advance his kingdom and not of any private perturbation of the mind, in this and the next verse, and that God will, in deed, sign and word comfort them, verse 11.

6:12 <sup>1</sup> The sixth sign, the narration whereof hath two parts, the sign, and the event. The sign is, that the earth, heaven, and the things that are in them for the horror of the sins of the world upon those most heavy foretellings of God, and complaints of the Saints shall be shaken most vehemently, trembling in horrible manner, and losing their light in this verse: falling from on high, verse 13, withdrawing themselves and flying away for the greatness of the trouble, verse 14. So boldly do all creatures depend upon the will of God, and content themselves in his glory.

<sup>2</sup> So they called in old time those woven works that were of hair.

is rolled, and every mountain and isle were moved out of their places.

15 <sup>1</sup>And the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, and every bondman, and every free man, hid themselves in dens, and among the rocks of the mountains,

16 And said to the mountains and rocks, <sup>1a</sup>Fall on us, and hide us from the presence of him that sitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb.

17 For the great day of his wrath is come, and who can stand?

1 And <sup>1</sup>after that, I saw four Angels stand on the <sup>2</sup>four corners of the earth, holding the four winds of the earth, that the winds should not blow on the earth, neither on the sea, <sup>3</sup>neither on any tree.

2 <sup>1</sup>And I saw <sup>2</sup>another Angel come up from the East, which had the seal of the living God, and he cried with a loud voice to the four Angels to whom power was given to hurt the earth, and the sea, saying,

3 Hurt ye not the earth, neither the sea, neither the trees, till we have sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads.

4 And I heard the number of them, which were sealed, and there were sealed <sup>1a</sup>an hundred and four and forty thousand of all the tribes of the children of Israel.

5 Out of the tribe of Judah were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Reuben were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Gad were sealed twelve thousand.

6 Of the tribe of Asher were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Naphtali were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Manasseh were sealed twelve thousand.

7 Of the tribe of Simeon were sealed twelve thousand. <sup>1</sup>Of the tribe of <sup>2</sup>Levi were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Issachar were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Zebulun were sealed twelve thousand.

8 Of the tribe of <sup>1</sup>Joseph were sealed twelve thousand. Of the tribe of Benjamin were sealed twelve thousand.

9 After these things I beheld, and lo, a great multitude, <sup>1</sup>which no man could number, of all nations and kindreds, and people, and tongues <sup>2</sup>stood before the throne, and before the Lamb, clothed with 6:15 <sup>1</sup>The event of the sign foregoing: that there is no man that shall not be astonished at that general commotion, fly away for fear and hide himself in this verse, and wish unto himself most bitter death for exceeding horror of the wrath of God, and of the Lamb, at which before he was astonished. Now this perplexity is not of the godly, but of the wicked, whose portion is in this life, as the Psalmist speaketh, Ps. 17:14. Not that sorrow which is according unto God, which worketh repentance unto salvation, whereof a man shall never repent him, but that worldly sorrow that bringeth death, 2 Cor. 7:9; as their wishings do declare: for this history is of the whole world, severed from the history of the Church, as I have showed before, Rev. 4:1.

6:16 <sup>1</sup>These are words of such as despair of their escape: of which despair there are two arguments, the presence of God and the Lamb provoked to wrath against the world in this verse, and the conscience of their own weakness, whereby men feel that they are no way able to stand in the day of the wrath of God, verse 17, as it is said, Isa. 14:27.

7:1 <sup>1</sup>The second member of this part, is a preventing of danger as we distinguished the same before, Chap. 6:1, that is of the caution whereby God took care before hand and provided for his that after the example of the Israelites of old, Exod. 8:13, the faithful might be exempted from the plagues of this wicked world. This whole place is a certain interlocution and bringing in for this whole chapter by occasion of the prediction and argument of the sixth seal. For first that evil is prevented in the elect unto verse 9. Then thanks are given by the elect for that cause, verses 10, 11, 12. Lastly, the accomplishment of the thing is set forth unto the end of the chapter. The first verse is a transition speaking of the Angels which keep these inferior parts from all evil, until God do command. For (as it is excellently figured by Ezek. 11:12) their faces and their wings are reached upwards, continually waiting upon and beholding the countenance of God for their direction: and every [one] of them goeth into that part that is right before his face, whithsoever the Spirit shall go, they go, they step not out of the way, that is, they depart not so much as a foot breadth from the path commanded them of God.

<sup>3</sup>That is, neither into the air, into which the tops of trees are advanced.

7:2 <sup>1</sup>Now God provideth against the danger of his elect by commandment, verses 2 and 3, and by sign or figure, both for those of the nation of the Jews, thence unto verse 8, and also of the Gentiles, verse 9.

<sup>2</sup>Not only another, or differing in number from the common Angels of God, but also in essence, office, and operation excelling all Angels: that is, Christ Jesus the eternal Angel or word of God, and mediator of the covenant. So hereafter Rev. 8:3 and 10:1, 5.

7:4 <sup>1</sup>That is, of the Jews a number certain in itself before God, and such as may be numbered of us: for which cause also the same is here set down as certain. But of the elect which are of the Gentiles, the number indeed is in itself certain with God, but of us not possibly to be numbered, as God, Gen. 15:5, and often elsewhere, and Isaiah figured most excellently, Isa. 49 and 60. This therefore is spoken with respect, when a certain number is put for one uncertain. Confer this with verse 6.

7:7 <sup>1</sup>Here the tribe of Levi is reckoned up in common with the rest, because all the Israelites were equally made Priests with them in Christ by his Priesthood, Rev. 1:6, and 5:10, and Rom. 12:1, and 1 Pet. 2:9. The name of Dan is not mentioned because the Danites long before forsaking the worship of God, were fallen away from the fellowship of God's people unto the part of the Gentiles, which evil many ages before Jacob foresaw, Gen. 49:18, for which cause also there is no mention made of this tribe in the first book of the Chronicles.

7:8 <sup>1</sup>Of Ephraim, who was Joseph's other son, and had the birth-right given him, whereof he is called Joseph.

7:9 <sup>1</sup>See before upon verse 4.

long white robes, and palms in their hands.

10 <sup>1</sup>And they cried with a loud voice, saying, Salvation cometh of our God, that sitteth upon the throne, and of the Lamb.

11 And all the Angels stood round about the throne, and about the Elders, and the four beasts, and they fell before the throne on their faces, and worshipped God, 12 Saying, Amen, Praise and glory, and wisdom, and thanks, and honor, and power, and might, be unto our God for evermore, Amen.

13 <sup>1</sup>And one of the Elders spake, saying unto me, What are these which are arrayed in long white robes? and whence came they?

14 And I said unto him, Lord, thou knowest. And he said unto me, These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their long robes, and have made their long robes white in the blood of the Lamb.

15 Therefore are they in the presence of the throne of God, and serve him <sup>1</sup>day and night in his Temple, and he that sitteth on the throne will dwell <sup>2</sup>among them.

16 <sup>4</sup>They shall hunger no more, neither thirst anymore, neither shall the sun light on them, neither any heat.

17 For the Lamb, which is in the midst of the throne, shall govern them, and shall lead them unto the lively fountains of waters, and <sup>6</sup>God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes.

1 <sup>1</sup>And when he had opened the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven about half an hour.

2 <sup>1</sup>And I saw the seven Angels, which <sup>2</sup>stood before God, and to them were given seven trumpets.

3 <sup>1</sup>Then another Angel came and stood before the Altar, having a golden censer, and much odors was given unto him, that he should offer with the prayers of all Saints upon the golden Altar, which is before the throne.

4 And the smoke of the odors with the prayers of the Saints, <sup>1</sup>went up before God, out of the Angel's hand.

5 And the Angel took the censer, and filled it with fire of the Altar, and cast it into the earth, and 7:10 <sup>1</sup>The praise of God celebrated first by the holy men, in this verse, then by the heavenly Angels in the two verses following.

7:13 <sup>1</sup>A passage over unto the expounding of the vision, of which the Angel inquireth of S. John to stir him up withal, in this verse and John in the form of speech, both acknowledgeth his own ignorance, attributing knowledge unto the Angel, and also in most modest manner requesteth the expounding of the vision.

7:14 <sup>1</sup>The exposition of the vision, wherein the Angel telleth first the acts of the Saints, that is, their sufferings and work of faith in Christ Jesus, in this verse. Secondly their glory, both present, which consisteth in two things, that they minister unto God, and that God protecteth them, verse 15, and to come, in their perfect deliverance from all annoyances, verse 16, and in participation of all good things which even the memory of former evils shall never be able to diminish, verse 17. The cause efficient, and which containeth all these things is only one, the Lamb of God, the Lord, the Mediator, and the Savior Christ Jesus.

7:15 <sup>1</sup>He alludeth to the Levites, which served day and night, for else there is no night in heaven.

<sup>2</sup>Or, upon them, whereby is meant God's defense and protection, as it were towards them, who are as safe, as men in the Lord's tent.

8:1 <sup>1</sup>He returneth to the history of the seals of the book, which the Lamb openeth. The seventh seal is the next foresignification, and a precise commandment of the execution of the most heavy judgments of God upon this wicked world: which foresignification being understood by the seal, all things in heaven are silent, and in horror thorough admiration until commandment of execution be severally given of God unto the ministers of his wrath. So he passeth unto the third member of which I spake before in Rev. 6:1, which is of the execution of those evils wherewith God most justly determined to afflict the world.

8:2 <sup>1</sup>Now followeth the third branch of the common history, as even now I said: which is the execution of the judgments of God upon the world. This is first generally prepared unto verse 6, then by several parts expoundeth according to the order of those that administered the same unto the end of the Chap. following. Unto the preparation of this execution are declared these things: first, who were the administrators and instruments thereof in this verse. Secondly, what is the work both of the Prince of Angels giving order for this execution, thence unto verse 5, and of his administrators in verse 6. The administrators of the execution are said to be seven Angels: their instruments, trumpets, whereby they should as it were sound the alarm at the commandment of God. They are propounded seven in number, because it pleased God not at once to pour out his wrath upon the rebellious world, but at divers times, and by piecemeal, and in slow order, and as with an unwilling mind to exercise his judgments upon his creatures, so long called upon both by word and signs if happily they had learned to repent.

8:3 <sup>1</sup>This is the great Emperor, the Lord Jesus Christ our King and Savior: who both maketh intercession to God the Father for the Saints, filling the heavenly Sanctuary with most sweet odor, and offering up their prayers, as the Calves and burnt sacrifices of their lips, in this verse: in such sort as every one of them (so powerful is that sweet savor of Christ, and the efficacy of his sacrifice) are held in reconciliation with God and themselves made most acceptable unto him, verse 4. And then also out of his treasury, and from the same sanctuary poureth forth upon the world the fire of his wrath, adding also divine tokens thereto: and by that means (as of old the Heralds of Rome were wont to do) he proclaimeth war against the rebellious world.

8:4 <sup>1</sup>Our prayers are nothing worth, unless that true and sweet savor of that only oblation be especially and before all things with them, that is to say, unless we being first of all justified through faith in his Son, be acceptable unto him.

there were voices, and thunderings, and lightnings, and earthquake.

6 <sup>1</sup>Then the seven Angels, which had the seven trumpets, prepared themselves to blow the trumpets.

7 <sup>1</sup>So the first Angel blew the trumpet, and there was hail and fire mingled with blood, and they were cast into the earth, and the third part of trees was burnt, and all green grass was burnt.

8 <sup>1</sup>And the second Angel blew the trumpet, and as it were a great mountain, burning with fire, was cast into the sea, and the third part of the sea became blood.

9 And the third part of the creatures, which were in the sea, and had life, died, and the third part of ships were destroyed.

10 <sup>1</sup>Then the third Angel blew the trumpet, and there fell a great star from heaven, burning like a torch, and it fell into the third part of the rivers, and into the fountains of waters.

11 And the name of the star is called <sup>1</sup>wormwood: therefore the third part of the waters became wormwood, and many men died of the waters, because they were made bitter.

12 <sup>1</sup>And the fourth Angel blew the trumpet, and the third part of the sun was smitten, and the third part of the moon, and the third part of the stars, so that the third part of them was darkened: and the day was smitten, that the third part of it could not shine, and likewise the night.

13 <sup>1</sup>And I beheld, and heard one Angel flying through the midst of heaven, saying with a loud voice, Woe, woe, woe to the inhabitants of the earth, because of the sounds to come of the trumpet of the three Angels, which were yet to blow the trumpets.

1 And the <sup>1</sup>fifth Angel blew the trumpet, and I saw a <sup>2</sup>star fall from heaven unto the earth, <sup>3</sup>and to him was given the key of the <sup>4</sup>bottomless pit.

2 <sup>1</sup>And he opened the bottomless pit, and there arose the smoke of the pit, the smoke of a great furnace, and the sun, and the air were darkened by the smoke of the pit.

3 <sup>1</sup>And there came out of the smoke Locusts upon the earth, and unto them was given power, as the scorpions of the earth have power.

8:6 <sup>1</sup> This is the work of the administrators. The Angels the administrators of Christ, only by sounding trumpet and voice (for they are only as Heralds) do effectual call forth the instruments of the wrath of God, through his power. Hitherto have been things general. Now followeth the narration of things particular, which the Angels fix in number wrought in their order set out in verse 19 of the next chap., and is concluded with the declaration of the event which followed upon these things done in the world, and in chapters 10 and 11.

8:7 <sup>1</sup> The first execution at the sound of the first Angel upon the earth, that is, the inhabitants of the earth (by Metonymy) and upon all the fruits thereof: as the comparing of this verse with the second member of verse 9 doth not obscurely declare.

8:8 <sup>1</sup> The second execution, upon the sea in this verse and all things that are there in the next verse.

8:10 <sup>1</sup> The third execution upon the floods and fountains, that is, upon all fresh waters, in this verse: the effect whereof is, that many are destroyed with the bitterness of waters, in the verse following.

8:11 <sup>1</sup> This is spoken by Metaphor of the name of a most bitter herb, and commonly known, unless perhaps a man following those that note the derivation of words had rather expound it adjectively, for that which by reason or bitterness cannot be drunk, or which maketh the liquor into which is poured more bitter than that any man can drink the same.

8:12 <sup>1</sup> The fourth execution upon these lightsome bodies of heaven, which minister unto this inferior world.

8:13 <sup>1</sup> A lamentable prediction or foretelling of those parts of the divine execution which are yet behind: which also is a passage unto the argument of the next Chapter. Of all these things in a manner Christ himself expressly foretold in Luke 12:24, and they are common plagues generally denounced, without particular note of time.

9:1 <sup>1</sup> The first execution upon the wicked men inhabiting the earth (as a little before the Angel said) wrought by the infernal powers, is declared in this place unto the eleventh verse. And after the sixth execution thence unto the nineteenth verse. And lastly is showed the common event that followed the former execution in the world, in the two last verses.

<sup>2</sup> That is, that the Angel of God glittering with glory, as a star fell down from heaven. Whether thou take him for Christ, who hath the keys of hell himself, and by Princely authority, Rev. 1:18, or whether for some inferior Angel, who hath the same key permitted unto him, and occupieth it ministerially, or by office of his ministry, here, and Rev. 21, so the word falling, is taken, Gen. 14:10, and 24:64, and Heb. 6:6.

<sup>3</sup> The key was given to his star. For those powers of wickedness are thrust down into hell, and bound with chains of darkness: and are there kept unto damnation, unless God for a time do let them loose, 2 Pet. 2:4; Jude 1:6, and of this book, Rev. 20:20, the history of which chapter hath agreement of time with this present chapter.

9:2 <sup>1</sup> Unto this is added, the smoke of the hellish and infernal spirits, all dark, and darkening all things in heaven and in earth. The spiritual darkneses are the causes of all disorder and confusion. For the devil at a time certain (whereof the fifth verse) sent these darkneses into his kingdom, that he might at once and with one impression overthrow all things, and pervert if it were possible the elect themselves. By this darkness all spiritual light, both active as of the Sun, and passive, as of the air which is lightened by the Sun, is taken away: and this is that which goeth before the spirits: it followeth of the spirits themselves.

9:3 <sup>1</sup> A description of the malignant spirits invading the world, taken from their nature, power, form and order. From their nature, for that they are like unto certain locusts, in quickness, subtlety, hurtfulness, number, and such like in this verse. From their power, for that they are as the scorpions of the earth, of a secret force to do hurt. For our battle is not here with flesh and blood, but with powers, etc., Eph. 6:12. This place of the power of the Devils generally noted in this verse, is particularly declared afterwards in the three next verses.

4 <sup>1</sup>And it was commanded them that they should not hurt the grass of the earth, neither any green thing, neither any tree: but only those men which have not the seal of God in their foreheads.

5 And to them was commanded that they should not kill them, but that they should be vexed five months, and that their pain should be as the pain that cometh of a scorpion, when he hath stung a man.

6 <sup>a</sup>Therefore in those days shall men seek death, and shall not find it, and shall desire to die, and death shall flee from them.

7 <sup>1</sup>And the form of the locusts was like unto horses prepared unto the battle, and on their heads were as it were crowns, like unto gold, and their faces were like the faces of men.

8 And they had hair as the hair of women, and their teeth were as the teeth of lions.

CHAPTER 9

<sup>a</sup> Rev. 6:16
Isa. 2:19
Hos. 10:8

9 And they had habergeons, like unto habergeons of iron, and the sound of their wings was like the sound of chariots when many horses run unto battle.

10 And they had tails like unto scorpions, and there were stings in their tails, and their power was to hurt men five months.

11 <sup>1</sup>And they have a king over them, which is the Angel of the bottomless pit, whose name in Hebrew is Abaddon, and in Greek he is named Apollyon, that is, destroying.

12 <sup>1</sup>One woe is past, and behold, yet two woes come after this.

13 ¶ <sup>1</sup>Then the sixth Angel blew the trumpet, <sup>2</sup>and I heard a voice from the <sup>3</sup>four horns of the golden altar, which is before God,

14 Saying to the sixth Angel, which had the 9:4 <sup>1</sup> Here that power of the devils is particularly described according to their actions and effects of the same. Their actions are said to be bounded by the counsel of God: both because they hurt not all men, but only the reprobate (for the godly and elect, in whom there is any part of a better life, God guardeth by his decree) whom Christ shall not have sealed, in this verse: and also because they neither had all power not at all times, no not over those that are their own, but limited in manner and time, by the prescript of God, verse 5. So their power to afflict the godly, is none, and for the wicked is limited in act and in effect by the will of God: for the manner was prescribed unto them that they should not slay, but torment the wretched world. The time is for five months or for an hundred and fifty days, that is, for so many years in which the devils have indeed mightily perverted all things in the world: and yet without that public and unpunished license of killing, which afterward they usurped when the sixth Angel had blown his trumpet, as shall be said upon verse 13. Now this space is to be accounted from the end of that thousand years mentioned, Rev. 20:3, and that is from the Popedom of that Gregory the seventh, a most monstrous Necromancer, who before was called Hildebrandus Senensis: for this man being made altogether of impiety and wickedness, as a slave of the devil, whom he served, was the most wicked firebrand of the world: he excommunicated the Emperor Henry the fourth: went about by all manner of treachery to set up and put down empires and kingdoms as liked himself: and doubted not to set Rodolph the Swedon over the Empire instead of Henry before named, sending unto him a Crown with this verse annexed unto it: Petra dedit Petro, Petrus diadema Rodolpho: that is, The Rock to Peter gave the crown, and Peter Rodolph doth renown. Finally, he so finely bestirred himself in his affairs, as he miserably set all Christendom on fire, and conveyed over unto his successors the burning brand of the same: who enraged with like ambition, never ceased to nourish that flame, and to enkindle it more and more: whereby Cities, Commonwealths, and whole kingdoms set together by the ears amongst themselves by most expert cut-throats, came to ruin, whiles they miserably wounded one another. This term of an hundred and fifty years, taketh end in the time of Gregory the ninth, or Hugolinus Anagniensis (as he was before called) who caused to be compiled by one Raimond his chaplain and confessor, the body of Decretals, and by sufferance of the Kings and Princes to be published in the Christian world, and established for a law. For by this sleight at length the Popes arrogated unto themselves license to kill whom they would, whiles others were unawares: and without fear established a butchery out of many of the wicked Canons of the Decretals, which the trumpet of the fifth Angel had expressly forbidden, and had hindered until this time. The effects of the bloody actions are declared upon the sixth verse: that the miserable world languishing in so great calamities, should willingly run together unto death, and prefer the same before life, by reason of the grievousness of the miseries that oppressed them.

9:7 <sup>1</sup> The form of these hellish spirits and administers, is shadowed out by signs and visible figures in this sort: that they are very expert and swift: that wheresoever they are in the world, the kingdom of theirs: that they manage all their affairs with cunning and skill, in this verse, that making show of mildness and tender affection to draw on men withal, they most impudently rage in all mischief: that they are most mighty to do hurt, Verse 8, that they are freed from being hurt of any man, as armed with the color of religion, and sacred authority of privilege, that they fill all things with horror, Verse 9, that they are fraudulent: that they are venomous and extremely noisome, though their power be limited, Verse 10. All which things are properly in the infernal powers, and communicated by them unto their ministers and vassals.

9:11 <sup>1</sup> The order of the powers of maliciousness: that they are subject to one infernal King, whom thou mayest call in English, The Destroyer: who driveth the whole world both Jews and Gentiles into the destruction that belongeth unto himself. And I cannot tell whether this name belongeth unto the Etymological interpretation of Hildebrand, by a figure often used in the holy Scripture: which albeit it may otherwise be turned of the Germans (as the sense of compound words is commonly ambiguous) yet in very deed it signifieth as much as if thou shouldst call him the firebrand, that is, he that setteth on fire those that be faithful unto him.

9:12 <sup>1</sup> A passage unto the next point, and the history of the time following.

9:13 <sup>1</sup> The sixth execution done upon the world by the tyrannical powers thereof working in the four parts of the earth, that is in most cruel manner executing their tyrannous dominion through the whole world, and killing the miserable people without punishment, which before was not lawful for them to do in that sort, as I showed upon the fourth verse. This narration has two parts: a commandment from God, in verse 14, and execution of the commandment, in the verse following.

trumpet, <sup>1</sup>Loose the four Angels, which are bound in the great river Euphrates.

15 <sup>1</sup>And the four Angels were loosed, which were prepared at an hour, at a day, at a month, and at a year to slay the third part of men.

16 And the number of horsemen of war were twenty thousand times ten thousand: for I heard the number of them.

17 And thus I saw the horses in a vision, and them that sat on them, having fiery habergeons, and of hyacinth, and of brimstone, and the heads of the horses were as the heads of lions, and out of their mouths went forth fire, and smoke, and brimstone.

18 Of these three was the third part of men killed, that is, of the fire, and of the smoke, and of the brimstone, which came out of their mouths.

19 For their power is in their mouths, and in their tails: <sup>1</sup>for their tails were like unto serpents, and had heads wherewith they hurt.

20 <sup>1</sup>And the remnant of the men which were not killed by these plagues, repented not of the works of their hands that they should not worship devils, and <sup>1</sup>idols of gold, and of silver, and of brass, and of stone, and of wood, which neither can see, neither hear, nor go.

Ps. 135:25

21 Also they repented not of their murder, and of their sorcery, neither of their fornication, nor of their theft.

1 And <sup>1</sup>I saw <sup>2</sup>another mighty Angel come down from heaven, clothed with a cloud, and the rainbow upon his head, and his face was as the sun, and his feet as pillars of fire.

2 And he had in his hand a <sup>1</sup>little book open, and he put his right foot upon the sea, and his left on the earth,

3 And cried with a loud voice, as when a lion roareth: and when he had cried, seven thunders uttered their voices.

9:14 <sup>1</sup> As if he should have said, These hitherto have been so bound by the power of God, that they could not freely run upon all men as themselves lusted, but were stayed and restrained at that great flood of Euphrates, that is, in their spiritual Babylon (for this is a Paraphrase of the spiritual Babylon by the limits of the spiritual Babylon long since overthrown) that they might not commit those horrible slaughters which they long breathed after. Now go to: let loose those four Angels, that is, ministers of the wrath of God, in that number that is convenient to the slaughtering of the four quarters of the world: stir them up and give them the bridle, that rushing of that Babylon of theirs, which is the seat of the wicked ones, they may fly upon all the world, therein to rage, and most licentiously to exercise their tyranny, as God hath ordained. This was done when Gregory the ninth by public authority established for law his own Decretals, by which he might freely lay trains for the life of simple men. For who is it that seeth not that the laws Decretal most of them are as snares to catch souls withal? Since that time (O good God!) how great slaughters have there been? how great massacres? All histories are full of them: and this our age aboundeth with most horrible and monstrous examples of the same.

9:15 <sup>1</sup> The execution of the commandment is in two points: one, that those butchers are let loose, that out of their tower of the spiritual Babylon they might with fury run abroad through all the world, as well the thief of that crew which are most prompt unto all assays, in this verse: as their multitudes, both most copious, of which a number certain is named for a number infinite, Verse 16, and in themselves by all means fully furnished to hide and to hurt, Verse 17, as being armed with fire, smoke and brimstone, as appeareth in the color of their armor, which dazzleth the eyes of all men: and have the strength of Lions to hurt withal, from which (as out of their mouth) the fiery, smoky, and stinking darts of the Pope are shot out, Verse 18. The other point is, that these butchers have effected the commandment of God by fraud and violence, in the two verses following.

9:19 <sup>1</sup> That is, they [are] harmful every way: on what part soever thou put thine hand unto them or they touch thee, they do hurt. So the former are called Scorpions, Verse 3.

9:20 <sup>1</sup> Now remaineth the event (as I said upon the first verse) which followed of so many and so grievous judgments in the most wicked world: namely an impenitent affirmation of the ungodly in their impiety and unrighteousness, though they feel themselves most vehemently pressed with the hand of God: for their obstinate ungodliness is showed in this verse: and their unrighteousness in the verse following. Hitherto hath been the general history of things to be done universal in the whole world: which because it doth not so much belong to the Church of Christ, is therefore not so expressly distinguished by certainty of time and other circumstances, but is woven, as they say with a slight hand. Also there is none other cause why the history of the seventh Angel is passed over in this place, than for that the same more properly appertaineth unto the history of the Church. But this is more diligently set out according to the time thereof, Rev. 11 and 16, as shall appear upon those places.

10:1 <sup>1</sup> Now Saint John passeth unto the other Prophetic history, which is of the Church of God, as I showed that this book should be distinguished, Rev. 4:1. This story reacheth hence unto the two and twentieth Chapter. And this whole Chapter is but a transition from the common history of the world unto that which is particular of the Church. There are in this transition or passage, two preparatives as it were, unto this Church story comprised in this whole Chapter. One is the authority of Christ revealing his mysteries, and calling his servants unto the seventh verse. The other is Saint John's calling, proper unto this place, and prepared from before unto the end of this chapter. Authority is given unto this Revelation by these things: First, by the appearing from heaven in this habit and countenance, strong, ready, glorious, surveying all things by his providence and governing them by his omnipotence, the first verse. Secondly, that he brought not by chance, but out of a book, this open Revelation, set forth unto the eye, to signify the same unto the sea, and land, as the Lord over all, the second Verse. Thirdly, that he offered the same not whispering or muttering in a corner (as false prophets do) but crying out with a loud voice unto them which sleep, and with a lionish and terrible noise roused the secure: the very thunders themselves giving testimony thereunto, the third Verse. Lastly, for that he confirmed all by an oath, Verses 5, 6, 7.

10:2 <sup>1</sup> Namely, a special book of the affairs of God's Church. For the book that containeth things belonging [unto] the whole world, is said to be kept with the Creator, the fifth Chapter and the first verse, but the book of the Church, with the Redeemer: and out of this book is taken the rest of the history of this Apocalypse.

4 <sup>1</sup>And when the seven thunders had uttered their voices, I was about to write: but I heard a voice from heaven, saying unto me, <sup>2</sup>Seal up those things which the seven thunders have spoken, and write them not.

5 And the Angel which I saw stand upon the sea, and upon the earth, <sup>1</sup>lift up his hand to heaven,

6 And swear by him that liveth for evermore, which created heaven, and the things that therein are, and the earth, and the things that therein are, and the sea, and the things that therein are, <sup>1</sup>that <sup>2</sup>time should be no more.

7 But in the days of the <sup>1</sup>voice of the seventh Angel, when he shall begin to blow the trumpet, even the mystery of God shall be finished, as he hath declared to his servants the Prophets.

8 <sup>1</sup>And the voice which I heard from heaven, spake unto me again, and said, Go, and take the little book which is open in the hand of the Angel, which standeth upon the sea, and upon the earth.

9 So I went unto the Angel, and said to him,

Give me the little book. And he said unto me, Take it, and eat it up, and it shall make thy belly bitter, but it shall be in thy mouth as sweet as honey.

10 Then I took the little book out of the Angel's hand, and ate it up, and it was in my mouth as sweet as honey: but when I had eaten it, my belly was bitter.

11 <sup>1</sup>And he said unto me, Thou must prophesy again among the people and nations, and tongues, and to many Kings.

1 <sup>1</sup>Then was given me a reed like unto a rod, and the Angel stood by, saying, Rise and <sup>2</sup>mete the Temple of God, and the Altar, and them that worship therein.

10:4 <sup>1</sup>A godly care is laudable, but must be joined with knowledge. Therefore nothing is to be taken in hand, but by calling: which must be expected and waiting for of the godly.

10:5 <sup>1</sup>This was a gesture used of one that sweareth, which men do nowadays use.

10:6 <sup>1</sup>Neither time itself, nor the things that are in time: but that the world to come is at hand which is altogether of eternity and beyond all times.

10:7 <sup>1</sup>Whereof Rev. 11:15 and 16:17.

10:8 <sup>1</sup>The other part of this Chapter, concerning the particular calling of Saint John to the receiving of the prophecy following which is enjoined him, first by sign in three verses, then in plain words in the last verse. Unto the setting forth of the sign belong these things: That Saint John is taught from heaven to demand the book of the Prophecy in this verse: for these motions and desires God doth inspire: that demanding the book, he is charged to take it in a figurative manner, the use whereof also is expounded, the ninth verse, (as in the second Chapter of Ezekiel and the ninth verse) whence this similitude is borrowed: lastly, for that Saint John at the commandment of Christ took the book, and found by experience that the same as proceeding from Christ was most sweet, but in that it foretelleth the afflictions of the Church it was most bitter unto his spirit.

10:11 <sup>1</sup>A simple and plain declaration of the sign before going, witnessing the divine calling of S. John, and laying upon him the necessity thereof.

11:1 <sup>1</sup>The authority of the intended revelation being declared, together with the necessity of that calling, which was particularly imposed upon Saint John: hereafter followeth the history of the estate of Christ's Church both conflicting or warfaring, and overcoming in Christ. For both the true Church of Christ is said to fight against that which is falsely so called over the which Antichrist ruleth. Christ Jesus overthrowing Antichrist by the spirit of his mouth: and Christ is said to overcome most gloriously until he shall slay the Antichrist by the appearance of his coming, as the Apostle excellently teacheth, 2 Thess. 2:8. So this history hath two parts. One of the state of the Church conflicting with temptations, until Chapter 16. The other of the state of the same Church obtaining victory, thence unto Chapter 20. The first part hath two members most conveniently distributed into their times, whereof the first containeth an history of the Christian Church for 1260 years, what time the Gospel of Christ was as it were taken up from amongst men into heaven: the second containeth an history of the same Church unto the victory perfected. And these two members are briefly, though distinctly propounded in this Chapter, but are both of them more at large discussed after in due order. For we understand the state of the Church conflicting out of Chapters 12 and 13 and of the same growing out of afflictions out of Chapters 14, 15 and 16. Neither did Saint John at unawares join together the history of these two times in this Chapter, because here is spoken of prophecy, which all confess to be one just and innumerable in the Church, and which Christ commanded to be continual. The history of the former time reacheth unto verse 14: the latter is set down in the rest of this Chapter. In the former are showed these things: the calling of the servants of God in 4 verses: the conflicts which the faithful must undergo in their calling, for Christ and his Church, thence unto verse 10, and their resurrection and receiving up into heaven unto verse 14. In the calling of the servants of God are mentioned two things: the begetting and setting of the Church in two verses, and the education thereof in two verses. The begetting of the Church is here commended unto S. John by sign and by speech: the sign is a measuring rod, and the speech a commandment to measure the Temple of God, that is, to reduce the same unto a new form: because the Gentiles are already entered into the Temple of Jerusalem, and shall shortly defile and overthrow the same utterly.

<sup>2</sup> Either that of Jerusalem which was a figure of the Church of Christ, or that heavenly Example, whereof verse 19, but the first liketh me better and the things following do agree thereunto. The sense therefore is, Thou seest all things in God's house almost from the passion of Christ to be disordered: and that not only the city of Jerusalem but also the court of the Temple is trampled underfoot by the nations, and by profane men whether Jews or strangers: and that only the Temple, that is, the body of the Temple, with the Altar, and a small company of good men which truly worship God, do now remain, whom God doth sanctify and confirm by his presence. Measure therefore this, even this true Church, or rather the true type of the true Church, omitting the rest and so describe all things from me that the true Church of Christ may be as it were a very little center, and the Church of Antichrist as the circle of the center, every way in length and breadth compassing about the same, that by way of prophecy thou mayest so declare openly, that the state of the Temple of God and the faithful which worship him, that is, of the Church, is much more straight than the Church of Antichrist.

2 <sup>1</sup>But the <sup>2</sup>Court which is without the Temple <sup>3</sup>cast out, and mete it not: for it is given unto the <sup>4</sup>Gentiles, and the holy city shall they tread under foot, <sup>5</sup>two and forty Months.

3 But <sup>1</sup>I will give power unto my two witnesses and they shall <sup>2</sup>prophesy a thousand two hundred and threescore days, clothed in sackcloth.

4 These <sup>1</sup>are two olive trees, and two candlesticks, standing before the God of the earth.

5 <sup>1</sup>And if any man will hurt them, fire proceedeth out of their mouths and devoureth their enemies:

for if any man would hurt them, thus must he be killed.

6 These have power to shut heaven, that it rain not in the days of their prophesying, and have power over waters to turn them into blood, and to smite the earth with all manner plagues, as often as they will.

7 <sup>1</sup>And when they have <sup>2</sup>finished their testimony, <sup>3</sup>the beast that cometh out of the bottomless pit, shall make war against them, and shall <sup>4</sup>overcome them, and kill them,

8 And their corpses shall lie in the <sup>1</sup>streets of the 11:2 <sup>1</sup> As if he should say, it belongeth nothing unto them to judge those which are without, 1 Cor. 5:12, which be innumerable: look unto those of the household only, or unto the house of the living God.

<sup>2</sup> He speaketh of the outward court, which was called the peoples court, because all men might come into that.

<sup>5</sup> Or a thousand and two hundred and threescore days as is said in the next verse: that is a thousand two hundred and threescore years, a day for a year as often in Ezekiel and Daniel, which thing I noted before, 2:10. The beginning of these thousand two hundred and threescore years, we account from the passion of Christ, whereby (the partition wall being broken down) we were made of two one, Eph. 2:14. I say one flock under one Shepherd, John 10:16 and the end of these years precisely falleth into the Popedom of Boniface the eighth who a little before the end of the year of Christ a thousand two hundred ninety four, entered the Popedom of Rome, in the feast of S. Lucie (as Bergomensis saith) having put in prison his predecessor Coelestinus, whom by fraud, under color of oracle, he deceived: for which cause, that well said of him, Intravit ut vulpes, regnavit ut leo, mortuus est ut canis. That is, he entered like a fox, reigned like a lion, and died like a dog. For if from a thousand two hundred ninety four years thou shalt take the age of Christ which he lived on the earth, thou shalt find there remaineth 1260 years, which are mentioned in this place and many others.

11:3 <sup>1</sup> I had rather translate it illud than illam, the Temple than the city: for God saith, I will give that Temple, and commit it unto my two witnesses, that is unto the Ministers of the word, who are few indeed, weak and contemptible: but yet two, that is, of such a number as one of them may help another, and one confirm the testimony of another unto all men, that from the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be made good amongst men, 2 Cor. 13:1.

<sup>2</sup> They shall exercise their office enjoined by me by the space of those thousand two hundred and sixty years, in the midst of afflictions though never so lamentable which is figuratively showed by the mourning garment.

11:4 <sup>1</sup> That is, the ordinary and perpetual instruments of spiritual grace, peace and light in my Church, which God by his only power preserved in this Temple. See Zech. 4:3.

11:5 <sup>1</sup> The power and efficacy of the holy ministry, and which is truly Evangelical, is declared both in earth and in heaven, protecting the administrators thereof, and destroying the enemies in this verse, virtue indeed divine most mightily showing itself forth in heaven, earth and the sea, verse 6, as it described, 2 Cor. 10:4, according to the promise of Christ, Mark 16:17. And this is the second place (as I said before) of the combats which the servants of God must needs undergo in the executing of their calling, and of the things that follow the same combats. In the combats or conflicts are these things: to overcome, in these two verses: to be overcome and killed, verse 7. After the slaughter follow these things, that the carcasses of the godly are laid abroad, verse 8 being unburied, are made a matter of scorn together of cursing and bitter execrations, verse 9, and that therefore gratulations are publicly and privately made, verse 10.

11:7 <sup>1</sup> That is, when they have spent those thousand two hundred and sixty years, mentioned verses 2 and 3, in publishing their testimony according to their office.

<sup>3</sup> Of which after Rev. 13. That beast is the Roman Empire, made long ago of civil, Ecclesiastical: the chief head whereof was then Boniface the eighth, as I said before: who lifted up himself in so great arrogancy (saith the author of Falsculus temporum) that he called himself Lord of the whole world, as well in temporal causes as in spiritual: There is an extant of that matter, written by the same Boniface most arrogantly, shall I say, or most wickedly, ca. unam sanctam, extra de majoritate & obedientia, and in the sixth of the Decretals (which is from the same author) many things are found of the same argument.

<sup>4</sup> He shall persecute most cruelly the holy men, and put them to death, and shall wound and pierce through with cursings both their names and writings. And that this was done to very many godly men by Boniface and others, the histories do declare, especially since the time that the odious and condemned name amongst the multitude first of the brethren Waldenses or Lugdunenses, then also of the Fratricels, was pretended, that good men might with more approbation be massacred.

11:8 <sup>1</sup> That is, openly at Rome: where at that time was a most great concourse of people, the year of Jubilee being then first ordained by Boniface unto the same end, in the year of Christ a thousand three hundred, example whereof is read, Rev. 1. Extra, de penitentis & remissionibus. So by one act he committed double injury against Christ, both abolishing his truth by the restoring of the type of the Jubilee, and triumphing over his members by most wicked superstitions. O religious heart! Now that we should understand the things of Rome, Saint John himself is the author, both after in the seventeenth Chapter almost throughout, and also in the circumscription now next following, when he saith, it is that great City (as Rev. 17; 18 he calleth it) and is spiritually termed Sodom and Egypt: that spiritually (for that must here again be repeated from before) Christ was there crucified. For the two first appellations signify spiritual wickednesses: the latter signifieth the show and pretence of good, that is, of Christian and sound religion. Sodom signifieth most licentious impiety and injustice: Egypt most cruel persecution of the people of God: and Jerusalem signifieth the most confident glorying of that city, as it were in true religion, being yet full of falsehood and ungodliness. Now who is ignorant that these things do rather, and more agree unto Rome than unto any other city? The commendations of the City of Rome for many years past are publicly notorious, which are not for me to gather. This only I will say that he long since did very well see what Rome is, who taking his leave thereof, used these verses:

great city, which <sup>2</sup>spiritually is called Sodom and Egypt, <sup>3</sup>where our Lord also was crucified.

9 And they of the people and kindreds, and tongues, and Gentiles, shall see their corpses <sup>1</sup>three days and an half, and shall not suffer their carcasses to be put in graves.

10 And they that dwell upon the earth, <sup>1</sup>shall rejoice over them and be glad, and shall send gifts one to another, for these two Prophets <sup>2</sup>vexed them that dwelt on the earth.

11 <sup>1</sup>But after <sup>2</sup>three days and an half, <sup>3</sup>the spirit of life coming from God, shall enter into them, and they <sup>4</sup>shall stand up upon their feet: and great fear shall come upon them which saw them.

12 And they shall hear a great voice from heaven, saying unto them, <sup>1</sup>Come up hither: And they shall ascend up to heaven in a cloud, <sup>2</sup>and their enemies shall see them.

13 <sup>1</sup>And the same hour shall there be a great earthquake, and the tenth part of the city shall fall, and in the earthquake shall be slain in number seven thousand: and the remnant were sore feared, <sup>2</sup>and <sup>3</sup>gave glory to God of heaven.

14 <sup>1</sup>The second woe is past, and behold, the third woe will come anon.

15 <sup>1</sup>And the seventh Angel blew the trumpet, and there were great voices in heaven, saying, <sup>2</sup>The kingdoms of the world are our Lord's, and his Christ's, and he shall reign for evermore.

16 <sup>1</sup>Then the four and twenty Elders, which sat before God on their seats, fell upon their faces and worshipped God.

17 Saying, We give thee thanks, Lord God Almighty, Which art, and which wast, and which art to come: for thou hast received thy great might, and hast obtained thy kingdom.

18 <sup>1</sup>And the Gentiles were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged, and that thou shouldest give reward unto thy servants the Prophets, and to thy Saints, and to them that fear thy Name, to small and great, and shouldest destroy them, which destroy the earth.

Roma vale, vidi, Satis est vidisse: revertar,

Quum lena, meretrix, scurra, cinadus ero.

Now farewell Rome, I have thee seen: It was enough to see:

I will return when as I mean, bawd, harlot knave to be.

11:8 <sup>2</sup> After a most secret kind of meaning and understanding.

<sup>3</sup> Namely in his members, as also he said unto Saul, Acts 9:5.

11:9 <sup>1</sup> That is, for three years and a half for so many years Boniface lived after his Jubilee as Bergomensis witnesseth.

11:10 <sup>1</sup> So much the more shall they by this occasion exercise the jollity of their Jubilee.

<sup>2</sup> The gospel of Christ, in the affliction of the world, and the ministry thereof, the savor of death unto death to those that perish, 2 Cor. 2:16.

11:11 <sup>1</sup> The third place as noted I before, is of the rising again of the Prophets from the dead, and their carrying up into heaven. For their resurrection is showed in this verse: their calling and lifting up into heaven, in the verse following.

<sup>3</sup> That is, the Prophets of God shall in a sort rise again, not the same in person (as they say) but in spirit, that is in the power and efficacy of their ministry, which S. John expressed before verses 5 and 6. And so the prophecy that is spoken of Elijah, is interpreted by the Angel to be understood of John the Baptist, Luke 1:17. For the same Boniface himself, who sought to kill and destroy them, was by the fire of God's mouth (which the holy ministry showeth and exhibiteth) devoured and died miserably in prison, by the endeavor of Satra Columensis, and Nogaretus a french knight, whom Philip the fair King of France sent into Italy but with a small power.

<sup>4</sup> That is, the most grievous heat of afflictions and persecution shall stay for a while, for the great amaze that shall arise upon that sudden and unlooked for judgment of God.

11:12 <sup>1</sup> They were called by God into heaven and taken out of this malignant world, into the heavenly Church, which also lieth hidden here in the earth, to exercise their calling secretly: as of whom this wretched world was unworthy, Heb. 11:38. For the Church of the wicked is by comparison called the earth or the world: and the Church of the godly heaven. So in ancient time amongst the godly Israelites: so amongst the Jews in the days of Manasseh and other

Kings, when the earth refused the heirs of heaven, we read that they lay hidden as heaven in the earth.

<sup>2</sup> Yet could they not hinder the secret ones of the Lord (as the Psalmist called them, Ps 83:4) but they that went on forward in his work.

11:13 <sup>1</sup> Bergomensis saith, in the year of our Lord 1301, this year a blazing star foretelling great calamity to come, appeared in heaven, in which year upon the feast of S. Andrew, so great an earthquake arose, as never before: which also continuing, by times, for many days, overthrew many stately houses. This saith he of the year next following the Jubilee: which S. John so many ages before, expressed word for word.

<sup>2</sup> They were indeed broken with present astonishment of mind, but did not earnestly repent as they ought to have done.

11:14 <sup>1</sup> He passeth unto the second history: which is the second part of this Chapter. S. John calleth these the second and third woes, having respect unto Rev. 9:12.

11:15 <sup>1</sup> Of whose sounding the trumpet Christ expressly foretold, Rev. 10:7, and this is the second part of this Chapter, containing a general history of the Christian Church, from the time of Boniface 8 unto the consummation of the victory declared by voice from heaven. In this history there are three branches: a preparation by the sound of the Angels trumpet: a narration by the voice of heavenly Angels and Elders: and a confirmation by sign.

<sup>2</sup> The narration hath two parts: an acclamation of the heavenly creatures, in this verse, and both an adoration by all the Elders, verse 16, and also a most ample thanksgiving, verses 17, 18. The sense of the acclamation is, Now the Lord is entered on his kingdom, and hath restored his Church, in which most mightily recovered from the profanation of the Gentiles, he may glorify himself. Namely, that which the Lord ordained when first he ordained his Church, that the faith of the Saints doth now behold as accomplished.

11:16 <sup>1</sup> As before, 7:11. This giving of thanks is altogether of the same content with the words going before.

11:18 <sup>1</sup> A speech of the Hebrew language, as much to say, as Gentiles being angry thine inflamed wrath came upon them and showed itself from heaven, occasioned by their anger and fury.

19 Then the Temple of God was <sup>1</sup>opened in heaven, and there was seen in the Temple the Ark of his covenant: and there were lightnings, and voices, and thunderings, and earthquake, and much hail.

1 And <sup>1</sup>there appeared a great wonder in heaven: <sup>2</sup>A woman clothed with the Sun, and the Moon was under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve Stars.

2 And <sup>1</sup>she was with child, and cried travailing in birth, and was pained ready to be delivered.

3 And there appeared another wonder in heaven: <sup>1</sup>for behold, a great red dragon having <sup>2</sup>seven heads, and ten <sup>3</sup>horns, and seven crowns upon his heads:

4 <sup>1</sup>And his tail drew the third part of the stars of heaven, and cast them to the earth. And the dragon <sup>2</sup>stood before the woman, which was ready to be delivered, <sup>3</sup>to devour her child, when she had brought it forth.

5 <sup>1</sup>So she brought forth a man <sup>2</sup>child, which should rule all nations with a rod of iron: and that her child was taken up unto God and to his throne.

6 <sup>1</sup>And the woman fled into the wilderness, where she hath a place prepared of God, that <sup>2</sup>they should feed her there a thousand, two hundred and

11:19 <sup>1</sup> This is the confirmation of the next prophecy before going by signs exhibited in heaven, and that of two sorts, whereof some are visible, as the passing away of the heaven, the opening of the Temple, the Ark of the covenant appearing in the Temple, and testifying the glorious presence of God, and the lightning: others apprehended by ear and such dull senses which bear witness in heaven and in earth to the truth of the judgments of God.

12:1 <sup>1</sup> Hitherto hath been the general prophecy comprehended in 2 parts, as I showed upon Rev. 11. Now shall be declared the first part of this prophecy, in this and the next chapter and the latter part in chapters 14, 15 and 16. Unto the first part, which is of the conflicting or militant Church belong 2 things. The beginning and the progress of the same in conflicts and Christian combats. Of which two, the beginning or upspring of the Church is described in this Chap. and the progress thereof in the Chap. following. The beginning of the Christian Church, we define to be from the first moment of her the conception of Christ, until the time wherein this Church was as it were weaned and taken away from the breast or milk of her Mother: which is the time when the Church of the Jews with their city and Temple was overthrown by the judgment of God. So we have in this chapter the story of 60 years and upwards. The parts of this chapter are three. The first is, the history of the conception and bearing in womb, in 4 verses. The second, an history of the birth from verse 5 unto verse 12. The third is, of the woman that had brought forth, unto the end of the chapter. And these several parts have every one their conflicts. Therefore in that first part are two things contained, one, the conception and bearing in womb in two verses: and another of the lying in wait of the Dragon against that should be brought forth, in the next 2 verses. In the first point are these things, the description of the mother, verse 1, and the dolours of childbirth, verse 2, all showed unto John from heaven.

<sup>2</sup> A type of the true and holy Church, which then was in the nation of the Jews. This Church (as is the state of the holy Church Catholic) did in itself shine about with glory given of God, trod under feet mutability and changeableness, and possessed the kingdom of heaven as the heir thereof.

12:2 <sup>1</sup> For this is that barren woman that brought not forth, of which Isa. 45:1, and Gal. 4:27, she cried out for good cause, and was tormented at that time, when in the judgment of all she seemed near unto death, and in means ready to give up the ghost by reason of her weakness and poverty.

12:3 <sup>1</sup> That is the devil or Satan (as is declared verse 9) mighty, angry, and full of wrath.

<sup>2</sup> Thereby to withstand those seven Churches spoken of, that is the Catholic Church, and that with kingly furniture and tyrannical magnificence: signified by the crowns set upon his heads, and if the same without controversy belonged unto him by proper right: as also he boasted unto Christ, Matt. 4:9. See after, upon Rev. 13:1.

<sup>3</sup> More than are the horns of the Lamb, or than the Churches are: so well furnished doth the tyrant brag himself to be, unto all manner of mischief.

12:4 <sup>1</sup> After the description of Satan followeth this action, that is, his battle offered unto the Church partly to that which is visible wherein the wheat is mingled with the chaff, and the good fish with that which is evil: a good part thereof, though in appearance it shined as the Stars shine in heaven, he is said to thrust down out of heaven and to pervert: for if it were possible he would pervert even the elect, Matt. 24:24, and partly to the elect members of the holy Catholic Church in the second part of this verse. Many therefore of the members of this visible Church (saith S. John) he overthrew and triumphed upon them.

<sup>2</sup> He withstood that elect Church of the Jews which was now ready to bring forth the Christian Church, and watched for that she should bring forth. For the whole Church, and whole body is compared unto a woman: and a part of the Church unto that which is brought forth as we have noted at large upon, Cant. 7:6.

<sup>3</sup> Christ mystical (as they call him) that is the whole Church, consisting of the person of Christ as the head, and of the body united thereunto by the Spirit, so is the name of Christ taken, 1 Cor. 12:12.

12:5 <sup>1</sup> The second history of the Church delivered of child: in which first the consideration of the child born, and of the Mother is described in 2 verses: secondly the battle of the Dragon against the young child, and the victory obtained against him 3 verses following: last of all is sung a song of victory, unto verse 12. Now S. John in consideration of the child born, noteth two things: for he describeth him, and his station or place in this verse.

<sup>2</sup> That is, Christ the head of the Church (the beginning, root and foundation whereof is the same Christ) endowed with kingly power, and taken up into heaven out of the jaws of Satan (who as a serpent did bite him upon the cross) that sitting upon the celestial throne he might reign over all.

12:6 <sup>1</sup> The Church of Christ which was of the Jews, after his assumption into heaven, hid itself in the world as in a wilderness, trusting in the only defense of God, as witnesseth S. Luke in the Acts of the Apostles.

<sup>2</sup> Namely the Apostles, and servants of God ordained to feed with the word of life, the Church collected both of the Jews and Gentiles, unless that any man will take the word alerent impersonally after the use of the Hebrews instead, of aleretur, but I like the first better. For he hath respect unto those two Prophets, of whom Rev. 11:3, as for the meaning of the 1260 days, look the same place.

7 And there was a battle in heaven, <sup>1</sup>Michael and his Angels, fought against the dragon, and the dragon fought and his angels.

8 <sup>1</sup>But they prevailed not, neither was their <sup>2</sup>place found anymore in heaven.

9 And the great dragon that old serpent, called the devil and Satan, was cast out, which deceiveth all the world: he was even cast into the earth, and his angels were cast out with him.

10 Then I heard a loud voice in heaven, saying, <sup>1</sup>Now is salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ: for the accuser of our brethren is cast down, which accused them before our God day and night.

11 But they overcame him by that blood of that Lamb, and by that word of their testimony, and they <sup>1</sup>loved not their lives unto the death.

12 Therefore rejoice, ye heavens, and ye that dwell in them. Woe to the inhabitants of the earth, and of the sea: for the devil is come down unto you, which hath great wrath, knowing that he hath but a short time.

13 And when <sup>1</sup>the dragon saw that he was cast unto the earth, he persecuted the woman which had brought forth the man child.

14 <sup>1</sup>But to the woman were given two wings of a great Eagle, that she might fly into the wilderness, into her <sup>2</sup>place where she is nourished for a <sup>3</sup>time, and times, and half a time, from the presence of the serpent.

15 <sup>1</sup>And the serpent cast out of his mouth water after the woman, like a flood, that he might cause her to be carried away of the flood,

16 <sup>1</sup>But the earth helped the woman, and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed up the flood, which the dragon had cast out of his mouth.

17 <sup>1</sup>Then the dragon was wroth with the woman, and went and made war with the remnant of her seed, which keep the commandments of God, and have the testimony of Jesus Christ.

18 <sup>1</sup>And I stood on the sea sand.

12:7 <sup>1</sup> Christ is the Prince of Angels, and head of the Church, who beareth that iron rod, the fifth verse. See the notes upon Daniel, Dan. 12:1. In this verse a description of the battle and of the victory in the two verses following. The Psalmist had respect unto this battle, Ps. 68:9 and Paul, Eph. 4:1 and Col. 2:15.

12:8 <sup>1</sup> The description of the victory, by denying of the thing in this verse, and by affirming the contrary in the next verse. As that Satan gained nothing in heaven but was by the power of God thrown down into the world, whereof he is the prince, Christ himself and his elected members standing still by the throne of God.

<sup>2</sup> They were cast out, so that they were never seen anymore in heaven.

12:10 <sup>1</sup> The song of victory or triumph containing first, a proposition of the glory of God and of Christ showed in that victory: secondly, it containeth a reason of the same proposition taken from the effects, as that the enemy is overcome in battle in this verse, and that the godly are made conquerors (and more than conquerors, Rom. 8:37) verse 11. Thirdly, a conclusion wherein is an exhortation unto the Angels, and the Saints, and unto the world, a prophecy of great misery, and of destruction procured by the devil against mankind, lest himself should shortly be miserable alone, verse 12.

12:11 <sup>1</sup> He is said in the Hebrew tongue, to love his life that esteemeth nothing more precious than his life: and on the other side, he is said not to love his life, who doubteth not to hazard it, wheresoever need requireth.

12:13 <sup>1</sup> The third part: an history of the woman delivered, consisting of two members, the second battle of Satan against the Christian Church of the Jewish nation, in four verses: and the battle intended against the seed thereof, that is against the Church of the Gentiles, which is called holy, by reason of the Gospel of Christ in the two last verses.

12:14 <sup>1</sup> That is, being strengthened with divine power: and taught by oracle, she fled swiftly from the assault of the devil, and from the common destruction of Jerusalem, and went into a solitary City beyond Jordan called Pella, as Eusebius telleth in the first Chapter of the third book of his Ecclesiastical history, which place God had commanded her by Revelation.

<sup>2</sup> Into that place where God had appointed her.

<sup>3</sup> That is, for three years and a half: so the same speech is taken,

Dan. 7:15. This space of time is reckoned in manner from that last and most grievous rebellion of the Jews, unto the destruction of the city and Temple, for their destruction or falling away, began in the twelfth year of Nero, before the beginning whereof, many foresigns and predictions were showed from heaven, as Josephus writeth, lib. 7, chap. 12, and Hegesippus, lib. 5, chap. 44, amongst which this is very memorable, that in the feast of Pentecost, not only a great sound and noise was heard in the Temple, but also a great voice was heard of many out of the Sanctuary which cried out to all, Let us depart hence. Now three years and a half after this defection was begun of the Jews, and those wonders happened, the City was taken by force, the Temple overthrown, and the place forsaken of God: and this compass of time Saint John noted in this place.

12:15 <sup>1</sup> That is, he inflamed the Romans and the nations, that they persecuting the Jewish people with cruel arms might by the same occasion invade the Church of Christ, now departed from Jerusalem and out of Judea. For it is an usual thing in Scripture that the raging tumults of the nations, should be compared unto waters.

12:16 <sup>1</sup> That is, there was offered in their place other Jews, unto the Romans and nations raging against that people: and it came to pass thereby that the Church of God was saved whole from that violence, that most raging flood of persecution which the Dragon vomited out being altogether spent in the destruction of those other Jews.

12:17 <sup>1</sup> Being set on fire by this means, he began to be more mad, and because he perceived that his purpose against the Christian Church of the Jewish remnant was come to nought, he resolved to fall upon her seed, that is, the Church gathered also by God of the Gentiles, and the holy members of the same. And this is that other branch, as I said upon verse 13, in which the purpose of Satan is showed, verse 17, and his attempt, verse 18.

12:18 <sup>1</sup> That is, a most mighty tempest, that he rushed upon the whole world (whose prince he is) to raise the floods and provoke the nations, that they might with their furious bellows toss up and down, drive here and there, and finally destroy the Church of Christ with the holy members of the same. But the providence of God resisted his attempt, that he might favor the Church of the Gentiles, yet tender and as it were green. The rest of the story of the Dragon is excellently prosecuted by the Apostle S. John hereafter in the twentieth chapter. For here the Dragon endeavoring to do mischief, was by God cast into prison.

13 1 The beast with many heads is described 12 which draweth the most part of the world to idolatry. 13 The other beast rising out of the earth, 15 giveth power unto him.

1 And I <sup>1</sup>saw a beast rise <sup>2</sup>out of the sea, having seven heads, and <sup>3</sup>ten horns, and upon his horns were ten crowns, and <sup>4</sup>upon his head <sup>5</sup>the name of blasphemy.

2 And the beast which I saw was <sup>1</sup>like a leopard, and his feet like a bear, and his mouth as the mouth of a Lion: <sup>2</sup>and the dragon gave him his power and his throne, and great authority.

3 <sup>1</sup>And I saw one of his heads as it were wounded to death, but his deadly wound was healed, and all the world wondered and followed the beast.

4 And they worshipped the dragon which gave power unto the beast, and they worshipped the beast, saying, Who is like unto the beast! who is able to war with him!

13:1 <sup>1</sup> The Apostle having declared the springing up of the Christian Church and the state of the Church from which ours taketh her beginning, doth now pass unto the story of the progress thereof, as I showed in the entrance of the former Chapter. And this history of the progress of the Church, and the battles thereof, is set down in this Chapter, but distinctly in two parts, one is of the civil Roman Empire, unto the tenth verse. Another of the body Ecclesiastical or prophetic, thence unto the end of the chapter. In the former part are showed these things: First the state of that Empire, in four verses: then the acts thereof in three verses: after the effect, which is exceeding great glory, verse 8. And last of all is commended the use: and the instruction of the godly against the evils that shall come from the same, verses 9, 10. The history of the state containeth a most ample description of the beast, first entire, verses 1, 2, and then restored after hurt, verses 3, 4.

<sup>2</sup> On the sand whereof stood the devil practicing new tempests against the Church, in the verse next beforegoing: what time the Empire of Rome was endangered by domestical dissensions, and was mightily tossed, having ever and anon new heads, and new Emperors. See in the seventeenth chapter and the eighth verse.

<sup>3</sup> Having the same instruments of power, providence, and most expert government which the Dragon is said to have had in Rev. 12:3.

<sup>4</sup> We read in chapter 12 and third verse, that the Dragon had seven crowns set upon seven heads: because the thief announceth himself to be proper Lord and Prince of the world: but this beast is said to have ten crowns set upon several, not heads, but horns: because the beast is behelden for all unto the Dragon, verse 2, and doth not otherwise reign them by law of subjection given by him, namely that he employ his horns against the Church of God. The speech is taken from the ancient custom and form of dealing in such case: by which they that were absolute kings did wear the diadem upon their heads: but their vassals and such as reigned by grace from them, wore the same upon their hoods: for so they might commodiously lay down their diadems when they came into the presence of their Sovereigns: as also their Elders are said, when they adored God which sat upon the throne, to have cast down their crowns before him, chap. 4, verse 10.

<sup>5</sup> Contrary to that which God of old commanded should be written in the head piece of the high Priest, that is, Sanctitas Jehova, Holiness unto the Lord. The name of blasphemy imposed by the Dragon, is (as I think) that which S. Paul saith in chapter 2 of his 2 Epistle to the Thessalonians, verse 4. He sitteth as God, and boasteth himself to be God. For this name of blasphemy both the Roman Emperors did then challenge unto themselves, as Suetonius and Dion do report of Caligula and Domitian: and after them the Popes of Rome did with full mouth profess the same of themselves, when they challenged unto themselves sovereignty in holy things: of which kind of sayings the sixth book of the Decretals, the Clementines, and the Extravagants, are very full. For these men were not content with that which Anglicus wrote in his Poetria (the beginning whereof is, Papa stupor mundi. The Pope is the wonder of the world. Nec Deus es, nec homo, sed neuter es inter utrunque. Thou art not God, nay art thou man, but neuter mixed of both: as the gloss witnesseth upon the sixth book: but they were bold to take unto themselves the very name of God, and to accept it given of other: according as almost an hundred and twenty years since, there was made for Sixtus the fourth, when he should first enter into Rome in his dignity Papal, a Pageant of triumph, and cunningly fixed upon the gate of the city he should enter at, having written upon it this blasphemous verse:

*Ora clo vocis mundi moderaris habenas,
Et merito in terris crederis esse deus.*

By oracle of thine own voice the world thou governeest all,
And worthily a God on earth, men think, and do thee call.

These and six hundred the like who can impute unto that modesty whereby good men of old would have themselves called the servants of the servants of God, verily either this is a name of blasphemy, or there is none at all.

13:2 <sup>1</sup> Swift as the Leopard, easily clasping all things, as the bear doth with his foot, and tearing and devouring all things with the mouth as doth the Lion.

<sup>2</sup> That is, he lent the same unto the beast to use, when he perceived that himself could not escape, but must needs be taken by the hand of the Angel, and cast into the bottomless pit, Rev. 20, yet did not he abandon the same utterly from himself, but that he might use it as long as he could.

13:3 <sup>1</sup> This is the other place that pertaineth to the description of the beast of Rome: that besides that natural dignity and amplitude of the Roman Empire, which was shadowed in the two former verses, there was added this also as miraculous, that one head was wounded as it were unto death, and was healed again, as from heaven, in the sight of all men. This head was Nero the Emperor, in whom the race of the Caesars fell from imperial dignity, and the government of the Commonweal was translated unto others: in whose hands the Empire was so cured and recovered unto health, as he seemed unto all so much the more deeply rooted and grounded fast, than ever before. And hence followed those effects, which are next spoken of: First an admiration of certain power, as it were sacred and divine sustaining the Empire and governing it: Secondly the obedience and submission of the whole earth in this verse: Thirdly, the adoration of the Dragon, and most wicked worshipping of Devils, confirmed by the Roman Emperors: Lastly, the adoration of the beast himself, who grew into so great estimation, as that both the name and worship of a God was given unto him, the fourth verse. Now there were two causes which brought in the minds of men this religion: the show of excellency, which bringeth with it reverence: and the show of power invincible, which bringeth fear. Who is like (say they) unto the beast? Who shall be able to fight with him?

5 <sup>1</sup>And there was given unto him a mouth, that spake great things and blasphemies, and power was given unto him, <sup>2</sup>to do two and forty months.

6 And he opened his mouth unto blasphemy against God, to blaspheme his Name, <sup>1</sup>and his tabernacle, <sup>2</sup>and them that dwell in heaven.

7 And it was given unto him to make war with the Saints, and to overcome them, and power was given him over every kindred, and tongue, and nation.

8 Therefore all that dwell upon the earth, shall worship him, <sup>1</sup>whose names are not written in the book of life of that Lamb, which was slain from the beginning of the world.

9 <sup>1</sup>If any man have an ear let him hear.

10 If any lead into captivity, he shall go into captivity: <sup>a</sup>if any kill with a sword, he must be killed by a sword: here is the patience and the faith of the Saints.

11 <sup>1</sup>And I beheld, another beast coming out of the earth, <sup>2</sup>which had two horns like the Lamb, but he spake like the dragon.

12 <sup>1</sup>And he did all that the first beast could do before him, and he caused the earth and them which dwell therein, <sup>2</sup>to worship the first beast whose deadly wound was healed.

13 <sup>1</sup>And he did great wonders, so that he made

13:5 <sup>1</sup>The second member containing an history of the acts of the beast, as I said verse 1. The history of them is concluded in two points, the beginning and the manner of them. The beginning is the gift of the Dragon, who put and inspired into the beast both his impiety against God and his eminity and injustice against all men, especially against the godly and those that were of the household of faith, the fifth verse. The manner of the acts or actions done, is of two sorts both impious in mind, and blasphemous in speech against God, his Church and the godly, verse six, and also most cruel and injurious in deeds, even such as were done of most raging enemies and of most insolent and proud conquerors, the seventh verse.

<sup>2</sup>Namely his actions and manner of dealing. As concerning those two and forty months, I have spoken of them before in the twelfth Chapter and second verse.

13:6 <sup>1</sup>That is, the holy Church, the true house of the living God.

<sup>2</sup>That is, the godly in several who hid themselves from his cruelty. For this bloody beast surcharged those holy souls most falsely with innumerable accusations for the Name of Christ, as we read in Justin Martyr, Tertullian, Arnobius, Minutius, Eusebius, Augustine, and others: which example the latter times followed most diligently in destroying the flock of Christ and we in our own memory have found by experience to our incredible grief. Concerning heaven, see the eleventh Chapter and twelfth verse.

13:8 <sup>1</sup>That is, such as are not from everlasting elect in Christ Jesus. For this is that Lamb slain, of which the fifth Chapter, verse six. These words I do with Aretas distinguish in this manner: Whose names are not written even from the laying of the foundation of the world, in the book of life, of the Lamb slain. And this distinction is confirmed by a like place hereafter, Rev. 17:8.

13:9 <sup>1</sup>The conclusion of this speech of the first beast, consisting of two parts, An exhortation to attentive audience in this verse: and a foretelling, which partly containeth threatenings against the wicked, and partly comforts for those which in patience and faith shalt wait for that glorious coming of our Lord and Savior Christ, the tenth verse.

13:11 <sup>1</sup>The second member of the vision, concerning the ecclesiastical dominion, which in Rome succeeded that which was politic, and is in the power of the corporation of false Prophets, and of the forgers of false doctrine. Wherefore the same body or corporation is called of S. John by the name of false prophet, Rev. 6:13, 19 and 20. The form of this beast is first described in this verse, then his acts, in the verses following, and the whole speech is concluded in the last verse. This beast is by his breed a Son of the earth (as they say) obscurely born, and by little and little creeping up out of his object estate.

<sup>2</sup>That is, in show he resembled the Lamb (for what is more mild or more humble than to be the servant of the servants of God) but in deed he played the part of the Dragon, and of the Wolf, Matt. 7:15. For even Satan changeth himself into an Angel of light, 2 Cor. 11:14, and what should his honest disciples and servants do?

13:12 <sup>1</sup>The history of the acts of this beast containeth in sum three things, hypocrisy, the witness of miracles and tyranny: of which the first is noted in this verse, the second in the 3 verses following: the third in the sixteenth and seventeenth verses. His hypocrisy is most full of leasing, whereby he abuseth both the former beast and the whole world: in that albeit he hath by his cunning, as it were by lime made of the former beast a most miserable ... or anatomy, usurped all his authority unto himself and most impudently exerciseth the same in the sight and view of him: yet he carrieth himself so, as if he honored him with most high honor, and did in very truth cause him to be honored of all men.

<sup>2</sup>For unto this beast of Rome, which of civil Empire is made an Ecclesiastical hierarchy, are given divine honors, and divine authority so far as he is believed to be above the Scriptures, which the gloss upon the Decretals declareth by this devilish verse,

Articulos solvit, synodumque facit generalem,

That is,

He changeth the Articles of faith, and giveth authority to general Counsels.

Which is spoken of the Papal power. So the beast is by birth, foundation, feat, and finally substance, one: only the Pope hath altered the form and manner thereof being himself the head both of that tyrannical Empire, and also of the false Prophets, for the Empire hath he taken unto himself, and thereunto hath added this cunning device. Now these words, whose deadly wound was cured are put here for distinction sake, as also sometimes afterwards: that even at that time the godly readers of this prophecy might by this sign be brought to see the things as present: as if it were said, that they might adore this very Empire that now is, whose head we have seen in our own memory to have been cut off, and to be cured again.

13:13 <sup>1</sup>The second point of the things done by the beast, is the credit of great wonders or miracles, appertaining to the strength of this impiety: of which signs some were given from above, as it is said, that fire was sent down from heaven by false sorcery, in this verse. Others were showed here below in the sight of the beast to establish idolatry, and deceive souls, which part S. John setteth forth beginning (as they say) at that which is last, in this manner: First the effect is declared in these words, He deceiveth the inhabitants of the earth, Secondly the common manner of working in two sorts, one of miracles. For the signs that were given him to do in the presence of the beasts: the other of the words added to the signs, and teaching the idolatry confirmed by those signs, Saying unto the inhabitants of the earth, that they should make an image unto the beasts which, etc. Thirdly, a special manner is declared: That is given unto him to put life into the image of the beast: and that such a kind of quickening, that the same both speaketh by answer unto those that ask counsel of it, and also pronounceth death against all those that do not obey nor worship it: all which things oftentimes by false miracles through the procurement and inspiration of the Devil, fire to come down from heaven on the earth, in the sight of men.

14 And deceived them that dwell on the earth by the signs which were permitted to him to do in the sight of the beast, saying to them that dwell on the earth, that they should make the <sup>1</sup>image of the <sup>2</sup>beast, which had the wound of a sword, and did live.

15 <sup>1</sup>And it was permitted to him to give a <sup>2</sup>spirit unto the image of the beast, so that the image of the beast should speak, and should cause that as many as would not worship the image of the beast should be killed.

16 <sup>1</sup>And he made all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and bond, to receive <sup>2a</sup> <sup>3</sup>mark in their right hand or in their foreheads.

17 And that no man might <sup>1</sup>buy or sell, save he that had the <sup>2</sup>mark or the name of the beast or the number of his name.

18 <sup>1</sup>Here is wisdom. Let him that hath wit, count the number of the beast: for it is the <sup>2</sup>number of have been effected and wrought in images. The histories of the Papists are full of examples of such miracles, the most of them feigned, many also done by the devil in images: as of old in the serpent, Gen. 3:1. By which examples is confirmed, not the authority of the beast, but the truth of God, and of these prophecies.

13:14 <sup>1</sup> That is, images by enallage or change of the number: for the worship of them ever since the second Council of Nice, hath been ordained in the Church by public credit, and authority contrary unto the Law of God.

<sup>2</sup> In the Greek the word is in the Dative case, as much to say, as unto the worship, honor and obeying of the beast: for by this maintenance of images this Pseudoprophetical beast doth mightily profit the beast of Rome, of whom long ago he received them. Wherefore the same is hereafter very fitly called the image of the beast, for that images have their beginning from the beast, and have their form or manner from the will of the beast, and have their end and use fixed in the profit and commodity of the beast.

13:15 <sup>1</sup> And of this miracle of the images of the beast (that is, which the beast hath ordained to establish idolatry) which miraculously speak and give judgment, or rather marvelously, by the fraud of the false prophets, the Papists books are full fraughted.

13:16 <sup>1</sup> The third place, is a most wicked and most insolent tyranny as was said before, usurped over the persons of men in this verse: and over their goods and actions, in the next verse. For he is said, both to bring upon all persons a tyrannous servitude, that as bondslaves they might serve the beast: and also to exercise over all their goods and actions, a peddler-like abuse of indulgences and dispensations (as they term them) amongst their friends, and against others to use most violent interdictions, and to shoot out cursings, even in natural and civil, private and public contracts, wherein all good faith ought to have place.

<sup>2</sup> That is, their Chrism, by which in the Sacrament (as they call it) of Confirmation, they make servile unto themselves, the persons and doings of men, signing them in their forehead and hands: and as for the sign left by Christ (of which Rev. 7:3) and the holy Sacrament of Baptism they make as void. For whom Christ hath joined unto himself by Baptism, this beast maketh challenge unto them by her greasy Chrism, which he doubteth not to prefer over Baptism, both in authority and efficacy.

13:17 <sup>1</sup> That is, have any traffic or intercourse with men, but they only those which have this anointing and consecration of Clearlyntonsure, as they call it. Read Gratian de Consecratione, distinct. s. c. omnes, cap. Spiritus, etc. of these matters.

<sup>2</sup> Here the false Prophets do require three things, which are set down in the order of their greatness, a character, a name and the number of the name. The meaning is, that man that hath not first their anointing and clerical tonsure or shaving: secondly holy orders, by reserving whereof is communicated the same of the beast: or finally hath not attained that high degree of Pontifical knowledge, and of the Law (as they call it) Canonical, and hath not as it were made up in account and cast the number of the mysteries thereof: for in these things consisteth the number of that name of the beast. And this is excellently set forth in the next verse.

13:18 <sup>1</sup> That is in this number of the beast consisteth that Popish wisdom, which unto them seemeth the greatest of all others. In these words S. John expoundeth that saying which went before of the number of the beast, what it hath above his mark or acconisance and his name. These things, saith S. John, the mark and the name of the beast, do easily happen unto any man: but to have the number of the beast, is wisdom: that is, only the wise and such as have understanding, can come by that number for they must be most illuminated doctors that attain thereunto, as the words following do declare.

<sup>2</sup> How great and of what denomination this number of the beast is, by which the beast accounted his wisdom, S. John declareth in these words. Dost thou demand how great it is? it is so great, that it occupieth the whole man: he is always learning, and never cometh to the knowledge thereof: he must be a man indeed that doth attain unto it. Askest thou of what denomination it is? verily it standeth of six throughout and perfectly ariseth of all the parts thereof in their several denominations (as they term them) it standeth of six by units, tens, hundreds, etc. so as there is no one part in the learning and order Pontifical, which is not either referred unto the head, and as it were the top thereof, or contained in the same: so fitly do all things in this hierarchy agree one with another, and with their head. Therefore that cruel beast Boniface the eighth doth commend by the number of six those Decretals which he perfected, in the proem of the sixth book. Which book (saith he) being to be added unto five other books of the same volume of Decretals, we thought good to name Sextum the sixth: that the same volume by addition thereof containing a senary, or the number of six books (which is a number perfect) may yield a perfect form of managing all things, and perfect discipline of behavior. Here therefore is the number of the beast, who poureth from himself all his parts and bringeth them all back again unto himself by his discipline in most wise and cunning manner. If any man desire more of this, let him read the gloss upon that place. I am not ignorant that other interpretations are brought upon this place: but I thought it my duty, with the good favor of all and without the offense of any, to propound mine opinion in this point. And for this cause especially, for that it seemed unto me neither profitable, nor like to be true, that the number of the beast, or of the name of the beast should be taken as the common sort of interpreters do take it. For this number of the beast teacheth, giveth out, imprinteth, as a public mark of such as be his, and esteemeth that mark above all others as the mark of those whom he loveth best. Now those other expositions seem rather to be far removed from this property and condition of that number: whether you respect the name Latinus or Titan, or another. For these the beast doth not teach, nor give forth nor imprint, but most diligently forbiddeth to be taught, and audaciously denieth: he approveth not these, but reproveth them: and hateth them that think so of this number, with an hatred, greater than that of Vatinus.

a man, and his number is six hundred threescore and six.

14 <sup>1</sup> The Lamb standeth on mount Zion: 4 with his chaste worshippers. 6 One Angel preacheth the Gospel. 8 Another foretelleth the fall of Babylon: 9 the third warneth that the beast be avoided. 13 A voice from heaven pronounceth them happy who die in the Lord. 16 The Lord's sickle thrust into the harvest, 18 and into the vintage.

1 Then I looked, and lo, a Lamb <sup>1</sup>stood on mount Zion, and with him an <sup>2</sup>hundred forty and four thousand, having his Father's <sup>3</sup>Name written in their foreheads.

2 And I heard a voice from heaven as the sound of many waters, and as the sound of a great thunder: and I heard the voice of harpers, harping with their harps.

3 And they sung as it were a new song before the throne, and before the four beasts, and the Elders: and no man could learn that song, but the hundred, forty and four thousand, which were bought from the earth.

4 These are they which are not defiled with women: for they are virgins: these follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth: these are bought from men, being the firstfruits unto God, and unto the Lamb.

5 And in their mouths was found no guile: for they are without spot before the throne of God.

6 ¶ <sup>1</sup>Then I saw <sup>2</sup>another Angel fly in the midst of heaven, having an everlasting Gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation and kindred, and tongue, and people,

7 <sup>1a</sup>Saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him: for the hour of his judgment is come: and worship him that made <sup>b</sup>heaven and earth, and the sea and the fountains of waters.

8 And there followed another Angel, saying, 'Babylon that great city is fallen, it is fallen: for she made all nations to drink of the wine of the <sup>1</sup>wrath of her fornication.

9 ¶ And the third Angel followed them, saying with a loud voice, <sup>1</sup>If any man worship the beast and his image, and receive his mark in his forehead, or on his hand,

10 The same shall drink of the wine of the wrath

14:1 <sup>1</sup> The history of the Church of Christ being finished for more than a thousand and three hundred years, at which time Boniface the eighth lived as before hath been said, there remaineth the rest of the history of the conflicting or militant Church, from thence unto the time of the last victory in three chapters. For first of all, as the foundation of the whole history, is described the standing of the lamb with his army and retinue in five verses, after his worthy acts which he hath done, and yet doth in most mighty manner, whilst he overthroweth Antichrist with the spirit of his mouth, in the rest of this chapter, and in the two following. Unto the description of the Lamb, are propounded three things: his situation, place and attendance: for the rest are expounded in the former visions, especially upon the fifth chapter.

<sup>2</sup> As ready girt to do his office (as Acts 6:56) in the midst of the Church which aforetime mount Zion did prefigure.

<sup>3</sup> As before 7:2. This retinue of the Lamb is described first by divine mark (as before 7:2) in this verse. Then by divine occupation, in that all and every one in his retinue most vehemently and sweetly (verse 2) do glorify the Lamb with a special song before God and his elect Angels: which song flesh and blood cannot hear, nor understand, verse 3. Lastly by their deeds done before, and their sanctification in that they were virgins, pure from spiritual and bodily fornication that is, from impiety and unrighteousness, that they followed the Lamb as a guide unto all goodness, and cleaved unto him that they are holy unto him as of grace redeemed by him: that in truth and in simplicity of Christ, they have exercised all these things, sanctimony of life, the direction of the Lamb, a thankful remembrance of the redemption by him: finally (to conclude in a word) that they are blameless before the Lord, verses 4, 5.

14:6 <sup>1</sup> The other part (as I said in the first verse) is of the acts of the Lamb, the manner whereof is delivered in two sorts, of his speech, and of his facts. His speeches are set forth unto verse 13 of this chapter, and his facts unto chapter 16. In the speech of the Lamb, which is the word of the Gospel, are taught in this place, these things: The service of the godly consisting inwardly of reverence towards God, and outwardly of the glorifying of him: the visible sign of which is adoration, verse 7. The overthrowing of wicked Babylon, verse 8, and the fall of every one of the ungodly which worship the beast, verses 9, 10, 11. Finally, the state of the holy servants of God both present, verse 11, and to come, most blessed, according to the promise of God, verse 15.

<sup>2</sup> This Angel is a type or figure of the good and faithful servants of God, whom God especially from that time of Boniface the eighth, hath raised up to the publishing of the Gospel of Christ, both by preaching and by writing. So God first, near unto the time of the same Boniface, used Peter Cassiodorus an Italian: after, Arnold de villa nova, a Frenchman, then Occam, Dante, Petrarck, after that Johannes de rupe casa, a Franciscan: after again, John Wycliff an Englishman, and so continually one or another unto the restoring of the truth and enlarging of his Church.

14:7 <sup>1</sup> That is, Babylon is destroyed by the sentence and judgment of God: the execution whereof S. John described, chap. 18. And this voice of the ministers of Christ hath continued since the time that Babylon (which is Rome) hath by deliberate counsel and manifest malice oppugned the light of the Gospel offered from God.

14:8 <sup>1</sup> Of her fornication, whereby God was provoked to wrath.

14:9 <sup>1</sup> That is, shall not worship God alone, but shall transfer his divine honor unto this beast, whether he doeth it with his heart or counterfeiting in show. For he (saith Christ) that denieth me before men, him will I deny before my Father, and his Angels, Matt. 10:32. And this is that voice of the holy ministry; which at this time is very much used of the holy and faithful servants of God. For having now sufficiently found out the public obstinacy of Babylon they labor not any longer to thunder out as against the same but to save some particular members by terror (as S. Jude speaketh) and to pluck them out of the public flame, or else by a vehement commiseration of their state to lead them away, they set before them eternal death, into which they rush unawares, unless in good time they return unto God, but the godly which are of their own flock, they exhort unto patience, obedience, and faith in the Lord Jesus, and charge them to give light by their good example, of good life unto others.

of God, yea, of the pure wine, which is poured into the cup of his wrath, and he shall be tormented in fire and brimstone before the holy Angels, and before the Lamb.

11 And the smoke of their torment shall ascend evermore: and they shall have no rest day nor night, which worship the beast and his name.

12 <sup>1</sup>Here is the patience of Saints: here are they that keep the commandments of God, and the faith of Jesus.

13 Then I heard a voice from heaven, saying unto me, Write, The dead which die <sup>1</sup>in the Lord, are fully blessed. Even so saith the Spirit: for they rest from their labors, and their <sup>2</sup>works follow them.

15 <sup>1</sup>And another Angel came out of the Temple, crying with a loud voice to him that sat on the cloud, <sup>4</sup>Thrust in thy sickle and reap, for the time is come to reap: for the <sup>4</sup>harvest of the earth is ripe.

16 And he that sat on the cloud, thrust in his sickle on the earth, and the earth was reaped.

17 <sup>1</sup>Then another Angel came out of the Temple, which is in heaven, having also a sharp sickle.

18 And another Angel came out from the altar, which had power over fire, and cried with a loud cry to him that had the sharp sickle, and said, Thrust in thy sharp sickle, and gather the clusters of the vineyard of the earth: for her grapes are ripe.

19 And the Angel thrust in his sharp sickle on the earth, and cut down the vines of the vineyard of the earth, and cast them into that great winepress of the wrath of God.

20 And the winepress was trodden without the city, <sup>1</sup>and blood came out of the winepress, unto the horse bridles, by the space of a thousand and six hundred furlongs.

14:12 <sup>1</sup> The patience, sanctification and justification by faith: the consequence whereof are rest, felicity, and glory eternal, in the heavenly fellowship of God and his Angels.

14:13 <sup>1</sup> That is for the Lord.

14:14 <sup>1</sup> The second part of this Chapter, as I said, verse 1. Of the acts and doings of Christ in overthrowing of Antichrist and his Church by the Spirit of his divine mouth: seeing that having been called back by word both publicly and privately unto his duty, and admonished of his most certain ruin: he yet ceaseth not to maintain and protect his own adherents, that they may do him service: and to afflict the godly with most barbarous persecutions. Of those things which Christ doeth, there are two kinds: one common or general in the rest of this chapter, another particular against that savage and rebellious beast and his worshippers in chapters 15 and 16. That common kind, is the calamity of wars spread abroad through the whole earth, and filling all things with blood, and that without respect of any person. This is figured or shadowed out in two types, of the harvest and vintage. Since the time that the light of the Gospel began to shine out, and since prophecy or preaching by the grace of God was raised up again, how horrible wars have been kindled in the world? how much human flesh hath been thrown to the earth by this divine reaping? how much blood (alas for woe) hath overflowed for these hundred years almost? all history do cry out, and this our age (if ever before) is now in horror, by reason of the rage of the sickle which Antichrist calleth for. In this place is the first type, that is of the harvest.

<sup>3</sup> As one that shall reign from God, and occupy place of Christ in this miserable execution.

<sup>4</sup> That is, a most fit and commodious instrument of Execution, destroyed all by hewing and thrusting through, for who may stand against God?

14:15 <sup>1</sup> Christ giveth a commandment in this verse. And the Angel executeth in the next verse.

14:17 <sup>1</sup> The other type (as I said, verse 14) is the vintage: the manner whereof is one with that which went before, if thou except this, that the grape gathering is more exact in seeking out everything, than is the harvest labor. This is therefore a more grievous judgment, both because it succeedeth the other, and because it is understood to be executed with great diligence.

14:20 <sup>1</sup> That is, it overflowed very deep, and very far and wide: the speech is by hyperbole or excessive, to signify the greatness of the slaughter. And these be those pleasant fruits forsooth, of the contempt of Christ, and desiring of Antichrist rather than him, which the miserable, mad, and blind world doth at this time reap.

15:1 <sup>1</sup> This is that other place of the acts of Christ, as I noted before, 14:14. Now therefore is showed a singular work of the judgment of God belonging to the overthrow of Antichrist and his forces of which divine work the preparation is described in this Chapter and the execution in the next. The preparation is first set down generally and in type in this verse: and is after particularly set forth in the rest of the Chapter.

<sup>2</sup> Of which Rev. 8:9, in pouring forth in the plagues of the world: for even these plagues do for the most part agree with those.

15:2 <sup>1</sup> There are two parts of the narration: one the confession of the Saints glorifying God, when they saw that preparation of the judgments of God, unto verse 4: another the vocation, instruction, and confirmation of those instruments which God hath ordained for the execution of his judgments, in 4 other verses.

<sup>2</sup> This part of the vision alludeth unto the sea or large vessel of brass in which the Priests washed themselves in the entrance of the Temple: for in the entrance of the heavenly Temple (as it is called, verse 5) is said to have been a sea of glass, most lightsome and clear, unto the commodity of choice mixed with fire, that is, as containing the treasury of the judgments of God, which he bringeth forth and dispenseth according to his own pleasure: for out of the former, the Priests were cleansed of old and out of this the ungodly are destroyed now, Rev. 4:6.

<sup>3</sup> That is, the Godly martyrs of Christ, who shall not give place even in miracles unto that beast: of these, see before, Rev. 13:17 and 14:9, 10.

<sup>4</sup> Glorified God, from the particular observation of the weapons and instruments of God's wrath, floating in the sea of glass.

1 And <sup>1</sup>I saw another sign in heaven, great and marvelous, seven <sup>2</sup>Angels having the seven last plagues: for by them is fulfilled the wrath of God.

2 <sup>1</sup>And I saw <sup>2</sup>as it were a glassy sea, mingled with fire, and <sup>3</sup>them that had gotten victory of the beast, and of his image, and of his mark, and of the number of his name, <sup>4</sup>stand at the glassy sea, having the harps of God,

3 And they sung <sup>1</sup>the song of Moses the <sup>2</sup>servant of God, and the song of the Lamb, saying, <sup>3</sup>Great and marvelous are thy works, Lord God Almighty: just and true are thy <sup>4</sup>ways, King of Saints.

4 <sup>1</sup>Who shall not fear thee, O Lord, and glorify thy name! for thou only art holy, and all nations shall come and worship before thee: for thy judgments are made manifest.

5 <sup>1</sup>And after that, I looked, and behold, the Temple of the tabernacle of Testimony was open in heaven.

6 And the seven Angels came out of the Temple, which had the <sup>1</sup>seven plagues, clothed in <sup>2</sup>pure and bright linen, and having their breasts <sup>3</sup>girded with golden girdles.

7 And therefore <sup>1</sup>four beasts gave unto the seven Angels seven golden vials full of the wrath of God which lived for evermore.

8 And the temple was full of the smoke of the glory of God and of his power, and <sup>1</sup>no man was able to enter into the Temple, till the seven plagues of the seven Angels were fulfilled.

16 <sup>2</sup> And <sup>17</sup> the Angels pour out the seven vials of God's wrath given unto them, and so divers plagues arise in the world, <sup>18</sup> to terrify the wicked, <sup>19</sup> and the inhabitants of the great city.

1 And <sup>1</sup>I heard a great voice out of the Temple, saying to the seven Angels, Go your ways, and poured out the seven vials of the wrath of God upon the earth.

2 <sup>1</sup>And the first went and poured out his vial upon the earth: and there fell a noisome and a grievous sore upon the men which had the <sup>2</sup>mark of the beast, and upon them which worshipped his image.

3 <sup>1</sup>And the second Angel poured out his vial upon the sea, and it <sup>2</sup>became as the blood of a dead man: and every living thing died in the sea.

4 <sup>1</sup>And the third Angel poured out his vial upon the rivers and fountains of waters, and they became blood.

5 And I heard the Angel of the waters say, Lord, thou art just, which art, and which wast: and Holy, because thou hast judged these things.

15:3 <sup>1</sup> That song of triumph which is Exod. 15:2.

<sup>2</sup> So is Moses called for honor's sake, as it is set forth, Deut. 34:10.

<sup>3</sup> This song hath two parts, one a confession, but particular in this verse, and general, in the beginning of the next verse: another, a narration of causes belonging to the confession, whereof one kind is eternal in itself, and most present unto the godly in that God is both holy, and alone God, another kind is future and to come, in that the elect taken out of the Gentiles (that is, out of the wicked ones and unbelieving: as Rev. 11:2) were to be brought unto the same state of happiness by the magnificence of the judgment of God, in the next verse.

15:5 <sup>1</sup> The second part of the narration (as was [noted,] verse 2) wherein first the authority of the whole argument and matter thereof is figured by a forerunning type of a temple opened in heaven, as Rev. 11:19, namely that all those things are divine and of God, that proceed from thence, in this verse. Secondly, the administrators or executors, come forth out of the Temple, verse 6. Thirdly, they are furnished with instruments of the judgments of God, and weapons fit for the manner of the same judgments, verse 7. Finally they are confirmed by testimony of the visible glory of God, in the last verse. A like testimony whereunto was exhibited of old in the Law, Exod. 40:34.

15:6 <sup>1</sup> That is, commandments to inflict those seven plagues. Here is the figure called Metonymy.

<sup>2</sup> Which was in old time a sign of the kingly or princely dignity.

<sup>3</sup> That is, girding was a sign of diligence, and the girdle of gold was a sign of sincerity and trustiness in taking in charge the commandments of God.

15:7 <sup>1</sup> Of these before, Rev. 4:7.

15:8 <sup>1</sup> None of those seven Angels might resume, till he had performed fully the charge committed unto him according to the decree of God.

16:1 <sup>1</sup> In the former Chapter was set down the preparation unto the work of God: here is delivered the execution thereof. And in this discourse of the execution, is a general commandment, in this verse, then a particular recital in order of the execution done by every of the seven Angels, in the rest of the chapter. This special execution against Antichrist and his crew, doth in manner agree unto that which was generally done upon the whole world, Rev. 8 and 9, and belongeth (if my conjecture fail me not) unto the same time. Yet herein they do differ one from another, that this was particularly effected upon the Princes and ringleaders of the wickedness of the world, the other generally against the whole world being wicked. And therefore these judgments are figured more grievous than those.

16:2 <sup>1</sup> The history of the first Angel, whose plague upon the earth, is described almost in the same words with that sixth plague of the Egyptians, Exod. 9:9. But it doth signify a spiritual ulcer, and that torture or butchery of conscience seared with an hot iron, which accuseth the ungodly within and both by truth of the word (the light whereof God hath now so long showed forth) and by bitterness stirreth up and forceth out the sword of God's wrath.

16:3 <sup>1</sup> The history of the second Angel who troubleth and molesteth the seas, that he may stir up the conscience of men sleeping in their wickedness. See Rev. 8:8.

<sup>2</sup> It was turned into rotten and filthy blood, such as is in dead bodies.

16:4 <sup>1</sup> The history of the third Angel striking the rivers, in this verse who proclaiming the justice of God, commendeth the same by a most grave comparison of the sins of men with the punishment of God: which is common to this place and that which went before. Wherefore also this praising is attributed to the Angel of the waters, a name common to the second and third Angels according as both of them are said to be sent against the waters, albeit, the one of the sea the other of the rivers, in two verses.

6 For they shed the blood of the Saints, and Prophets, and therefore hast thou given them blood to drink: for they are worthy.

7 <sup>1</sup>And I heard another out of the Sanctuary say, Even so, Lord God almighty, true and righteous are thy judgments.

8 <sup>1</sup>And the fourth Angel poured out his vial on the sun, and it was given to him to torment men with heat of fire,

9 And men boiled in great heat, and blasphemed the Name of God, which hath power over these plagues, and they repented not to give him glory.

10 <sup>1</sup>And the fifth Angel poured out his vial upon the throne of the beast, and the kingdom waxed dark, and they gnawed their tongues for sorrow.

11 And blasphemed the God of heaven for their pains, and for their sores, and repented not of their works.

12 <sup>1</sup>And the sixth Angel poured out his vial upon the great river <sup>2</sup>Euphrates, and the <sup>3</sup>water thereof dried up, <sup>4</sup>that the way of the Kings of the East should be prepared.

13 And I saw <sup>1</sup>three unclean spirits <sup>2</sup>like frogs come out of the mouth of that <sup>3</sup>dragon, and out of the mouth of that <sup>4</sup>beast, and out of the mouth of that <sup>5</sup>false prophet.

14 For they are the spirits of devils, working miracles, to go unto the kings of the earth, and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty.

15 <sup>1</sup>(<sup>a</sup>Behold I come as a thief. Blessed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked, and men see his filthiness.)

16 <sup>1</sup>And they gathered them together into a place called in Hebrew, <sup>2</sup>Armageddon.

17 <sup>1</sup>And the seventh Angel poured out his vial into the <sup>2</sup>air: and there came a loud voice out of the Temple of heaven from <sup>3</sup>the throne, saying,

16:7 <sup>1</sup> A confirmation of the praise before going, out of the sanctuary of God, whether immediately by Christ, or by some of his Angels, for Christ also is called another Angel, Rev. 3:8; 7:2; 12:1.

16:8 <sup>1</sup> The history of the fourth Angel, who throweth the plague upon the heaven and upon the Sun, of which Luke 21:26 the effects whereof are noted two. The one peculiar, that it shall scorch men with heat, in this verse. The other proceeding accidentally from the former, that their fury shall so much the more be enraged against God in the next verse, when yet (O wonderful mercy and patience of God) all other creatures are first stricken often and grievously by the hand of God before mankind by whom he is provoked: as the things beforegoing [do] declare.

16:10 <sup>1</sup> The story of the first Angel, who striketh the kingdom of the beast with two plagues abroad with darkness, within which biles and dolours most grievous, throughout his whole kingdom, that thereby he might wound the conscience of the wicked, and punish that most perverse obstinacy of the idolaters, whereof arose perturbation, and thence a furious indignation and desperate madness, raging against God and hurtful unto itself.

16:12 <sup>1</sup> The story of the sixth Angel, divided into his act, and the event thereof. The act is, that the Angel did cast out of his mouth the plague of a most glowing heat, wherewith even the greatest floods, and which most were wont to swell and overflow (as Euphrates) were dried up by the counsel of God in this verse. The event is, that the mere madness wherewith the wicked are enraged, that they may scorn the judgments of God, and abuse them furiously to serve their own turn, and to the executing of their own wicked outrage.

<sup>2</sup> The bound of the spiritual Babylon, and to the fortresses of the same, Rev. 9:14.

<sup>3</sup> So the Church of the ungodly, and kingdom of the beast is said to be left naked, all the defenses whereof, in which they put their trust being taken away from it.

<sup>4</sup> That is, that even they which dwell further off, may with more commodity make haste unto that sacrifice which the Lord hath appointed.

16:13 <sup>1</sup> That is, every of them bent their whole force, and conspired that by wonders, word and work, they might bring into the same destruction all Kings, Princes and Potentates of the world, cursedly bewitched of them by their spirits, and teachers of the vanity and impurity of the beast that committed fornication with the kings of the earth. And this is a right description of our times.

voking and calling forth to arms, as the trumpets, and furies of wars: as is declared in the next verse.

<sup>5</sup> That is, of that other beast, of which Rev. 13:11, for so he is called also Rev. 19:20 and 20:10.

16:15 <sup>1</sup> A parenthesis for admonition in which God warneth his holy servants who rest in the expectation of Christ, always to address their minds unto his coming, and to look unto themselves, that they be not shamefully made naked and circumvented of these unclean spirits, and so they be miserable unprepared at the coming of their Lord.

16:16 <sup>1</sup> Namely the Angel, who holily according to the commandment of God was to do sacrifice: notwithstanding that those impure spirits do the same wickedly as servants not unto God, but unto that beast that hath seven heads.

<sup>2</sup> That is, (to say nothing of other expositions) the mountain itself, or mountain places of Megiddo. Now it is certain by the holy Scripture, that Megiddo is a city and territory in the tribe of Manasseh, bordering upon Issachar and Asher, and was made famous by that lamentable overthrow of king Josiah, whereof 2 Kings 23:30; 2 Chron. 37:22; Zech. 12:11. In this mountain country God saith by figure and type, that the kings of the peoples which serve the beast shall meet together: because the Gentiles did always cast that lamentable overthrow in the teeth of the Church of the Jews unto their great reproach: and therefore were persuaded that that place should be most fortunate unto them (as they speak) and unfortunate unto the godly: but God here pronounceth, that that reproach of the Church, and confidence of the ungodly shall by himself be taken away, in the selfsame places where the nations persuaded themselves, they should mightily exult and triumph against God and his Church.

16:17 <sup>1</sup> The story of the seventh Angel unto the end of the chapter, in which first is showed by figure and speech, the argument of this plague, in this verse: and then is declared the execution thereof in the verses following.

18 <sup>1</sup>And there were voices, and thunderings, and lightnings, and there was a great earthquake, such as was not since men were upon the earth, even so mighty an earthquake.

19 <sup>1</sup>And the great city was divided into three parts: and the cities of the nations <sup>2</sup>fell: and that great <sup>3</sup>Babylon came in remembrance before God, <sup>4</sup>to give unto her the cup of the wine of the fierceness of his wrath.

20 And every isle fled away, and the mountains <sup>1</sup>were not <sup>2</sup>found.

21 <sup>1</sup>And there fell a great hail, like <sup>2</sup>talents out of heaven upon the men, and men blasphemed God, because of the plague of the hail: for the plague thereof was exceeding great.

1 Then <sup>1</sup>there came one of the seven Angels, which had the seven vials, and talked with me, saying unto me, Come: I will show <sup>2</sup>thee the <sup>3</sup>damnation of the great whore that sitteth upon many waters,

2 With whom have committed fornication the kings of the earth, and the inhabitants of the earth are drunken with the wine of her fornication.

3 <sup>1</sup>So he carried me away into the wilderness in the Spirit, and I saw a woman sit upon a <sup>2</sup>scarlet colored beast, full of names of blasphemy, which had seven heads, and ten horns.

4 And <sup>1</sup>the woman was arrayed <sup>2</sup>in purple and scarlet, and gilded with gold, and precious stones, and pearls, <sup>3</sup>and had a cup of gold in her hand full of abomination, and filthiness of her fornication.

5 <sup>1</sup>And in her forehead was a name written, A mystery, <sup>2</sup>that great Babylon that mother of whoredoms, and abominations of the earth.

6 <sup>1</sup>And I saw the woman drunken with the blood of Saints, and with the blood of the Martyrs

16:17 <sup>4</sup> That is, Babylon is undone, as is showed verse 16 and in the Chapters following. For the first onset (as I might say) of this denunciation, is described in this Chapter: and the last containing a perfect victory is described in those that follow.

16:18 <sup>1</sup> Now is declared the execution (as is said in verse 27) and the things that shall last come to pass in heaven and in earth, before the overthrow of the beast of Babylon: both generally, verse 18, and particularly in the cursed city, and such as have any familiarity therewith, in the 3 last verses.

16:19 <sup>1</sup> That seat or standing place of Antichrist.

<sup>3</sup> That harlot, of whom in the Chapter next following. Now this phrase to come into remembrance is after the common use of the Hebrew speech, but borrowed from men, attributed unto God.

16:20 <sup>1</sup> That is, were seen no more, or were no more extant. A borrowed Hebraism.

<sup>2</sup> Appeared not, which the Hebrews utter after this sort, were not, Gen. 5:24.

16:21 <sup>1</sup> The manner of the particular execution, most evidently testifying the wrath of God by the original and greatness thereof: the event whereof is the same with that which is, Rev. 9:12, and that which hath been mentioned in this Chapter, from the execution of the fourth Angel hitherto, that is to say, an incorrigible pertinency of the world in their rebellion, and an heart that cannot repent, verses 9 and 11.

<sup>2</sup> As it were about the weight of a talent was threescore pound, that is, six hundred groats, whereby is signified a marvelous and strange kind of weight.

17:1 <sup>1</sup> The state of the Church militant being declared, now followeth the state of the Church overcoming and getting victory, as I showed before in the beginning of chapter 10. The state is set forth in 4 chapters. As in the place foregoing I noted, that in that history the order of time was not always exactly observed, so the same is to be understood in this history, that it is distinguished according to the persons of which it treateth, and that in the several stories of the persons is severly observed in the time thereof. For first is delivered the story of Babylon destroyed, in this and the next chap. (for this Babylon out of all doubt shall perish before the 2 beasts and the Dragon). Secondly is delivered the destruction of both the two beasts, chap. 19. And lastly of the Dragon, chap. 20, in the story of the spiritual Babylon are distinctly set forth the state thereof in this chap. and the overthrow done from God, chap. 18. In this verse and that which followeth is a transition or passage unto the first argument, consisting of a particular calling of the Prophet (as often heretofore) and a general proposition.

17:3 <sup>1</sup> Henceforth is propounded the type of Babylon, and the state thereof in 4 verses. After a declaration of the type, in the rest of this chap., in the type are described two things, the beast (of whom chap. 13), in verse 3, and the woman that sitteth upon the beast, verses 4, 5, 6. The beast in process of time hath gotten somewhat more than was expressed in the former vision. First in that it is not read before that he was appareled in scarlet, a robe imperial and of triumph. Secondly, in that this is full of names of blasphemy: the other carried the name of blasphemy only in his head. So God did teach that this beast is much increased in impiety and injustice and doth in this last age, triumph in both these more insolently and proudly than ever before.

17:4 <sup>1</sup> That harlot, the spiritual Babylon, which is Rome. She is described by her attire, profession and deeds.

<sup>2</sup> In attire most glorious, triumphant, most rich, and most gorgeous.

<sup>3</sup> In profession, the nourisher of all, in this verse, and teaching her mysteries unto all, verse 5, setting forth all things most magnificently: but indeed most pernicious besotting miserable men with her cup, and bringing upon them a deadly giddiness.

17:5 <sup>1</sup> Deceiving with the title of religion, and public inscription of mystery: which the beast in times past did not bear.

17:6 <sup>1</sup> In manner of deeds: She is red with blood, and sheddeth it most licentiously, and therefore is colored with the blood of the Saints, as on the contrary part. Christ is set forth imbrued with the blood of his enemies; Isa. 3:1.

of JESUS: and when I saw her, <sup>2</sup>I wondered with great marvel.

7 <sup>1</sup>Then the Angel said unto me, Wherefore marvest thou? I will show thee the mystery of that woman, and of that beast that beareth her, which hath seven heads and ten horns.

8 <sup>1</sup>The beast that thou hast seen, <sup>2</sup>was and is not, and <sup>3</sup>shall ascend out of the bottomless pit, and shall go into perdition, and they that dwell on the earth, shall wonder (whose names are not written in the book of life from the foundation of the world) <sup>4</sup>when they beheld the beast that was, and is not, and yet is.

9 <sup>1</sup>Here is the mind that hath wisdom, The <sup>2</sup>seven heads <sup>3</sup>are seven mountains, whereon the woman sitteth: <sup>4</sup>they are also seven Kings.

10 <sup>1</sup>Five are fallen, <sup>2</sup>and one is, <sup>3</sup>and another is not yet come: and when he cometh, he must continue a short space.

11 <sup>1</sup>And the beast that was, and is not, is even 17:6 <sup>2</sup> A passage unto the second part of this chapter, by occasion given of S. John, as the words of the Angel do show, in the next verse.

17:7 <sup>1</sup> The second part or place, as I said, verse 1. The narration of the vision, promised in this verse, and delivered in the verse following. Now there is delivered first a narration of the beast and his story, unto verse 14. After, of the harlot, unto the end of the chap.

17:8 <sup>1</sup> The story of the beast hath a triple description of him. The first is a distinction of this beast from all that ever hath been at any time: which distinction is contained in this verse: The second is a delineation or painting out of the beast by things present, by which he might even at that time be known of the godly, and this delineation is according to his heads, verses 2, 10, 11. The third is an historical foretelling of things to come, and to be done by him: and these are ascribed unto his horns, verses 12, 13, 14. This beast is that Empire of Rome, of which I spake, chap. 13:11, according to the mutations and changes whereof which then had already happened, the holy Ghost hath distinguished and set out the same. The Apostle distinguisheth this beast from all others in these words. The beast which thou sawest, was and is not. For so I expound the words of the Apostle for evidence's sake as I will further declare in the notes following.

<sup>2</sup> The meaning is, that beast which thou sawest before (Rev. 13:1) and which yet thou hast now seen, was, (I say was) even from Julius Caesar in respect of beginning, rising up, station, glory, dominion, manner and stock, from the house of Julius: and yet is not now the same, if thou look unto the house and stock for the dominion of this family was translated unto another, after the death of Nero from the other unto a third, from a third unto a fourth, and so forth was varied and altered by innumerable changes. Finally, the Empire is one, as it were one beast: but exceedingly varied by kindreds, families, and persons. It was therefore (saith S. John) in the kindred or house of Julius: and now it is not in that kindred, but translated unto another.

<sup>3</sup> As if he should say, Also the same that is, shall shortly not be: but shall ascend out of the depth, or out of the sea (as was said, Rev. 13:1) that is, shall be a new stock from amongst the nations without difference, and shall in the same state go unto destruction or ruin, and perish: and so shall successively new Princes or Emperors come and go, arise and fall, the body of the beast remaining still, but tossed with so many and often alterations, as no man can but marvel that this beast was able to stand and hold out, in so many mutations. Verily no Empire that ever was tossed with so many changes, and as it were with so many tempests of the sea, ever continued so long.

<sup>4</sup> That is as many as have not learned the providence of God, according to the faith of the Saints, shall marvel at these grievous and often changes when they shall consider, the selfsame beast, which is the Roman Empire, to have been, not to be, and to be and still molested with perpetual mutation, and yet in the same to stand and continue. This in mine opinion is the most simple exposition of this place, and confirmed by the event of the things themselves. Although by the last change also, by which the Empire, that before was civil became Ecclesiastical, is not obscurely signified by these words: of which two, the first exercised cruelty upon the bodies of the saints: the other also upon their souls: the first by human order and policy, the other under the color of the law of God, and of Religion, raged and imbrued itself with the blood of the godly.

17:9 <sup>1</sup> An exhortation preparing unto audience, by the same argument, with that of Christ: He that hath ears to hear, let him hear. Wherefore, for mine own part, I had rather read in this place, Let there be here a mind, etc. So the Angel passeth fully unto the second place of this description.

<sup>2</sup> Very children know what that seven hilled city is, which is so much spoken of, and whereof Virgil thus reporteth, And compasseth seven towers in one wall: that city it is, which when John wrote these things had rule over the kings of the earth: It was and is not, and yet it remaineth this day, but it is declining to destruction.

<sup>3</sup> This is the painting out of the beast by things present (as I said before) whereby S. John endeavored to describe the same, that he might both be known of the godly in that age, and be further observed and marked of posterity afterwards. This delineation hath one type, that is, his heads, but a double description or application of the type: one permanent from the nature of itself, the other changeable, by the working of men. The description permanent, is by the seven hills, in this verse, the other that fleeteth, is from the seven kings, verses 10, 11. And here it is worthy to be observed, that one type hath sometimes two or more applications, as seemeth good unto the holy Ghost to express either one thing by divers types, or divers things by one type. So I noted before, of the seven spirits, Rev. 1:4. Now this woman that sitteth upon seven hills, is the city of Rome, called in times past of the Greeks, ... i. of seven tops or crests, and of Varro, septiceps, i. of her seven heads (as here) of seven heads, and of others, septicolis, i. standing upon seven hills.

<sup>4</sup> The beginning of these Kings or Emperors is almost the same with the beginning of the Church of Christ, which I showed before, Rev. 11:1. Namely from the year 35, after the passion of Christ, what time the Temple and Church of the Jews was overthrown. In which year it came to pass by the providence of God that that saying The beast was and is not, was fulfilled before that the destruction of the Jews immediately following came to pass. That was the year from the building of the city of Rome, 109, from which year S. John both numbered the Emperors which hitherto hath been, when he wrote these things, and foretelleth two others next to come: and that with this purpose, that when this particular prediction of foretelling of things to come, should take effect the truth of all other predictions in the Church might be the more confirmed. Which sign God of old mentioned this in the Law, Deut. 18, and Jeremiah confirmeth, Jer. 28:8.

17:10 <sup>1</sup> Whose names are these: the first, Servius Sulpicius Galba, who was the seventh Emperor of the people of Rome, the second Marcus Salvius Otho, the third Aulus Vitellius, the fourth, Titus Flavius Vespasianus, the fifth, Titus Vespasianus his son of his own name.

<sup>3</sup> Nerua. The Empire being now translated from the family of Flavius. This man reigned only one year, four months, and nine days, as the history writers do tell.

17:11 <sup>1</sup> This is spoken by the figure synecdoche, as much to say as that head of the beast which was and is not, because it is cut off, and Nerua

13 <sup>1</sup>These have one mind, and shall give their power and authority unto the beast.

14 These shall fight with the <sup>1</sup>Lamb, and the Lamb shall overcome them: <sup>2</sup>for he is Lord of Lords, and King of Kings: and they that are on his side, called, and chosen, and faithful.

15 <sup>1</sup>And he said unto me, The waters which thou sawest, where the whore sitteth, <sup>2</sup>are people, and multitudes, and nations, and tongues.

16 And the ten <sup>1</sup>horns which thou sawest upon the beast, are they that shall hate the whore, and shall make her desolate, and naked, and shall eat her flesh, and burn her with fire.

CHAPTER 17

<sup>1</sup> Tim. 6:15

17 <sup>1</sup>For God hath put in their hearts to fulfill his will, and to do with one consent for to give their kingdom unto the beast, until the words of God be fulfilled.

CHAPTER 18

<sup>a</sup> Rev. 14:8
Isa. 21:9
Jer. 51:8

18 And that woman which thou sawest, is that <sup>1</sup>great city which reigned over the kings of the earth.

18 <sup>2</sup>The horrible destruction of Babylon set out. 11, 16, 18 The merchants of the earth, who were enriched with the pomp and luxuriousness of it, weep and wail: 20 but all the elect rejoice for that just vengeance of God.

1 <sup>1</sup>And after these things, I saw another <sup>2</sup>Angel come down from heaven, having great power, so that the earth was lightened with his glory,

2 And he cried out mightily with a loud voice, <sup>1</sup>saying, <sup>2</sup>It is fallen, it is fallen, Babylon that great city, and is become the habitation of devils, and the hold of all foul spirits, and a cage of every unclean and hateful bird.

in so short time extinguished. How many heads there were, so many beasts there seemed to be in one. See the like speech in Rev. 13.3

<sup>3</sup> Though in number and order of succession he be the eighth, yet he is reckoned together with one of these heads, because Nerua and he were one head. For this man obtained authority together with Nerua, and was Consul with him, when Nerua left his life.

<sup>4</sup> Namely, to molest with persecutions the Churches of Christ, as the histories do accord, and I have briefly noted, Rev. 2:10.

17:12 <sup>1</sup> The third place of this description as I said, verse 18, is a prophetic prediction of things to come which the beast should do, as in the words following S. John doth not obscurely signify, saying, which have not yet received the kingdom, etc. For there is an Antithesis or opposition between these kings, and those that went before. And first the persons are described, in this verse, then their deeds in the two verses following.

<sup>2</sup> That is, arising with their kingdoms out of the Roman beast: at such time as that political Empire began by the craft of the Popes greatly to fall.

<sup>3</sup> Namely, with the second beast whom we called before a false prophet, which beast, ascending out of the earth got unto himself all the authority and power of the first beast, and exerciseth the same before his face, as was said, Rev. 14:11, 12. For when the political Empire of the West began to bow downwards, there both arose those ten kings, and the second beast took the opportunity offered to usurp unto himself all the power of the former beast. These kings long ago, many have numbered and described to be ten and a great part of the events plainly testifieth the same in this our age.

17:13 <sup>1</sup> That is, by consent and agreement, that they may conspire with the beast, and depend upon his beck. Their story is divided into three parts, counsels, acts, and events. The counselors some of them consist in communicating of judgments and affections: and some in communicating of power, which they are said to have given unto this beast in this verse.

17:14 <sup>1</sup> With Christ and his Church, as the reason following doth declare, and here are mentioned the facts and the events which followed for Christ's sake, and for the grace of God the Father towards those that are called, elected, and are his faithful ones in Christ.

17:15 <sup>1</sup> This is the other member of the narration as I said verse 7, belonging unto the harlot, showed in the vision, verse 3. In this history of the harlot, these 3 things are distinctly propounded, what is her magnificence in this verse, what is her fall, and by whom it shall happen unto her, in the two verses following: and lastly, who that harlot is, in the last verse. This place which by order of nature should have been the first, is therefore made the last, because it was more fit to be joined with the next Chap.

<sup>2</sup> That is, as unconstant and variable as the waters. Upon this foundation sitteth this harlot as Queen, a vain person upon that which is vain.

17:16 <sup>1</sup> The ten Kings as verse 12. The accomplishment of this fact and event, is daily increased in this our age by the singular providence and most mighty government of God. Wherefore the facts are propounded in this verse, and the cause of them in the verses following.

17:17 <sup>1</sup> A reason rendered from the chief efficient cause, which is the providence of God, by which alone S. John by inversion of order affirmeth to have come to pass, both that the Kings should execute upon the harlot, that which pleased God, and which he declared in the verse next beforegoing: and also that by one consent and counsel, they should give their kingdom unto the beast, etc., verses 13, 14. For as these being blinded have before depended upon the beck of the beast that lifteth up the harlot, so it is said that afterward it shall come to pass, that they shall turn back, and shall fall away from her when their hearts shall be turned into better state by the grace and mercy of God.

17:18 <sup>1</sup> That is, Rome that great City, or only City (as Justinian calleth it) the King and head whereof was then the Emperor, but now the Pope, since that the condition of the beast was changed.

18:1 <sup>1</sup> The second place (as I said before, 17:1) of the history of Babylon, is of the woeful fall and ruin of that whore of Babylon. This historical prediction concerning her, is threefold. The first a plain and simple foretelling of her ruin in three verses, the second a figurative prediction by the circumstances, thence, unto verse 20. The third, a confirmation of the same by sign or wonder, unto the end of the Chapter.

<sup>2</sup> Either Christ the eternal word of God the Father (as often elsewhere) or a certain Angel, and one deputed unto this service: but thoroughly furnished with greatness of power, and with light of glory, as the ensign of power.

18:2 <sup>1</sup> The prediction or foretelling of her ruin, containing both the fall of Babylon, in this verse, and the cause thereof uttered by way of allegory concerning her spiritual and carnal wickedness, that is, her most great impiety and injustice, in the next verse: her fall is first simply declared of the Angel: and then the greatness thereof is showed here by the events, when he saith it shall be the seat and habitation of devils, of wild beasts and of cursed souls, as of old, Isa. 13:21, and often elsewhere.

3 For all nations have drunken of the wine of the wrath of her fornication, and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and the merchants of the earth are waxed rich of the abundance of her pleasures.

4 <sup>1</sup>And I heard another voice from heaven say, <sup>2</sup>Go out of her, my people, that ye be not <sup>3</sup>partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues:

5 For her sins are <sup>1</sup>come up into heaven, and God hath remembered her iniquities.

6 <sup>1</sup>Reward her, even as she hath rewarded you, and give her double according to her works: and in the cup that she hath filled to you, fill her the double.

7 Inasmuch as she glorified herself, and lived in pleasure, so much give ye to her torment and sorrow: for she saith <sup>1</sup>in her heart, I sit being a queen, and am <sup>2</sup>no widow, and shall <sup>3</sup>see no mourning.

8 Therefore shall her plagues come at <sup>1</sup>one day, death, and sorrow, and famine, and she shall be burnt with fire: for that God which condemneth her, is a strong Lord,

9 And the <sup>1</sup>kings of the earth shall bewail her, and lament for her, which have committed fornication, and lived in pleasure with her, when they shall see that smoke of that her burning,

10 And shall stand afar off for fear of her torment, saying, Alas, alas, that great city Babylon, that mighty city: for in one hour is thy judgment come.

11 <sup>1</sup>And the merchants of the earth shall weep and wail over her: for no man buyeth their ware anymore.

12 The ware of gold, and silver, and of precious stone, and of pearls, and of fine linen, and of purple, and of silk, and of scarlet, and of all manner of Thynewood, and of all vessels of ivory, and of all vessels of most precious wood, and of brass, and of iron, and of marble, 13 And of cinnamon, and odors, and ointments, and frankincense, and wine, and oil, and fine flour, and wheat, and beasts, and sheep, and horses, and chariots, and servants, and souls of men.

14 (<sup>1</sup>And the <sup>2</sup>apples that thy soul lusted after, are departed from thee, and all things which were fat and excellent, are departed from thee, and thou shalt find them no more.)

15 The merchants of these things which were waxed rich, shall stand afar off from her, for fear of her torment, weeping and wailing.

16 And saying, Alas, alas, that great city, that was clothed in fine linen and purple, and scarlet, and gilded with gold, and precious stones, and pearls.

17 <sup>1</sup>For in one hour so great riches are come to desolation. And every shipmaster, and all the people that occupy ships and shipmen, and whosoever traffic on the sea, shall stand afar off.

18 And cry, when they see that smoke of that her burning, saying, What city was like unto this great city?

19 And they shall cast dust on their heads, and cry, weeping, and wailing, and say, Alas, alas that great city, wherein were made rich all that had ships on the sea by her coastlines: for in one hour she is made desolate.

20 <sup>1</sup>O heaven, rejoice of her, and ye holy Apostles

18:4 <sup>1</sup> The second prediction, which is of the circumstances of the ruin of Babylon: of these there are two kinds: one going before it: as that beforehand the godly are delivered unto the ninth verse: the other following upon her ruin, namely the lamentation of the wicked and rejoicing of the godly, unto the twentieth verse.

<sup>2</sup> Two circumstances going before the ruin, are commanded in this place: one is, that the godly depart out of Babylon: as I mentioned, chapter 12, to have been done in time past, before the destruction of Jerusalem: this charge is given here, and in the next verse. The other is, that every one of them occupy themselves in their own place, in executing the judgment of God, as it was commanded the Levites of old, Exod. 32:27, and that they sanctify their hands unto the Lord, verses 6, 7, 8.

<sup>3</sup> Of his commandment there are two causes to avoid the contagion of sin, and to shun the participation of those punishments that belong thereunto.

18:5 <sup>1</sup> He useth a word which signifieth the following of sins one after another, and rising one another in such sort, that they grew at length to such an heap that they came up even to heaven.

18:6 <sup>1</sup> The provocation of the godly, and the commandment of executing the judgments of God, stand upon three causes which are here expressed: the unjust wickedness of the whore of Babylon, in this verse her cursed pride opposing itself against God, which is the fountain of all evil actions, verse 7, and her most just damnation by the sentence of God, verse 8.

<sup>3</sup> I shall taste of none.

18:8 <sup>1</sup> Shortly and at one instant.

18:9 <sup>1</sup> The circumstances following the fall of Babylon, or the consequences thereof (as I distinguished them, verse 4) are two. Namely the lamentation of the wicked unto verse 19: and the rejoicing of the godly, verse 20. This most sorrowful lamentation, according to the person of them that lament, hath three members, the first whereof is the mourning of the kings and mighty men of the earth, in two verses. The second is the lamentation of the merchants that traffic by land thence unto verse 16. The third is the wailing of those that merchandise by sea, verses 16, 17, 18. In every [one] of these the cause and manner of their mourning is described in order, according to the condition of those [that] mourn, with observation of that which best agreeth unto them.

18:11 <sup>1</sup> The lamentation of those that trade by land, as I distinguished immediately before.

18:14 <sup>1</sup> An apostrophe, or turning of the speech by imitation, used for more vehemence, as if those merchants, after the manner of mourners should in passionate speech speak unto Babylon, though now utterly fallen and overthrown. So Isa. 12:9, and in many other places.

<sup>2</sup> By this is meant that season which is next before the fall of the leaf, at what season fruits ripen, and the word signifieth such fruits as are longed for.

18:17 <sup>1</sup> The manner of mourning used by them that trade by sea.

18:20 <sup>1</sup> The other consequent unto the other ruin of Babylon, is the exultation or rejoicing of the godly in heaven and in earth, as was noted, verse 9.

and Prophets: for God hath punished her, to be revenged on her for your sakes.

21 <sup>1</sup>Then a mighty Angel took up a stone, like a great millstone, <sup>b</sup>and cast it into the sea, saying, With such violence shall that great city Babylon be cast and shall be found no more.

22 <sup>1</sup>And the voice of harpers, and musicians and of pipers, and trumpeters shall be heard no more in thee, and no craftsman, of whosoever craft he be, shall be found anymore in thee: and the sound of a millstone shall be heard no more in thee.

23 And the light of a candle shall shine no more in thee: and the voice of the bridegroom and of the bride shall be heard no more in thee: for thy merchants were the great men of the earth: and with thine enchantment were deceived all nations.

24 And in her was found the <sup>1</sup>blood of the Prophets <sup>2</sup>and of the Saints, and of all that were slain upon the earth.

1 And <sup>1</sup>after these things I heard a great voice of a great multitude in heaven, saying, <sup>2,3</sup>Hallelujah, salvation, and glory, and honor, and power be to the Lord our God.

2 For true and righteous are his judgments: for he hath condemned the great whore which did corrupt the earth with her fornication, and hath avenged the blood of his servants shed by her hand.

3 And again they said, <sup>1</sup>Hallelujah: and that her smoke rose up for evermore.

4 And the four and twenty Elders, and the four beasts fell down, and worshipped God that sat on the throne, saying, Amen, Hallelujah.

5 <sup>1</sup>Then a voice came out of the <sup>2</sup>throne, saying, Praise our God, all ye his servants, and ye that fear him, both small and great.

6 And I heard <sup>1</sup>like a voice of a great multitude, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of strong thunderings, saying, Hallelujah: for the Lord that God that Almighty one hath reigned.

7 Let us be glad and rejoice, and give glory to him: for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made <sup>1</sup>herself ready.

8 And to her was granted, that she should be arrayed with <sup>1</sup>pure fine linen and shining, for the fine <sup>2</sup>linen is the <sup>3</sup>righteousness of Saints.

9 <sup>1</sup>Then he said unto me, Write, <sup>a</sup>Blessed are they which are called unto the Lamb's supper. And he said unto me, These words of God are true.

10 <sup>1</sup>And I fell before his feet, <sup>b</sup>to worship him, but he said unto me, See thou do it not: I am thy fellow servant, and one of thy brethren, which have the

18:21 <sup>1</sup> The third prediction, as I said verse 1, standing of a sign, and the interpretation thereof: the interpretation thereof is in 2 sorts, first by a simple propounding of the thing itself, in this verse, and then by declaration of the events in the verses following.

18:22 <sup>1</sup> The events are two, the one of them opposite unto the other for amplification sake. There shall be, saith he, in Babylon no mirth nor joy at all, in this and the next verse, but all heavy and lamentable things from the bloody slaughters of the righteous and the vengeance of God coming upon it for the same.

18:24 <sup>1</sup> That is shed by bloody massacres, and calling for vengeance.

<sup>2</sup> That is, proved and found out, as if God had appointed a just inquiry, concerning the impiety, unnaturalness and injustice of those men.

19:1 <sup>1</sup> This chapter hath in sum two parts, one transitory or of passage unto the things that follow unto verse 10, another historical of the victory of Christ gotten against both the beasts unto the end of the chapter, which I said was the second history of this argument, Rev. 17:1. The transition hath two places, one of praising God for the overthrow done unto Babylon in 4 verses, and another likewise of praise, and Prophetical, for the coming of Christ unto his kingdom, and his most royal marriage with his Church, thence unto the tenth verse. The former praise has three branches, distinguished after the ancient manner of those that sing: . . . , that is, an invitation or provocation in 2 verses, . . . , a response or answer in the third verse, and . . . , a close or joining together in harmony: all which I thought good of purpose to distinguish in this place, lest any man should with Porphyrius, or other like dogs, object to Saint John of the heavenly Church, a childish and idle repetition of speech.

<sup>3</sup> The proposition of praise with exhortation in this verse, and the cause thereof, in the next verse.

19:3 <sup>1</sup> The song of the Antiphony or response, containing an amplification of the praise of God, from the perpetual and most certain testimony of his divine judgment as was done at Sodom and Gomorrah, Gen. 19.

19:5 <sup>1</sup> The second place of praise as I said verse 1, which first is commanded from God in this verse: and then is in most ample manner pronounced of the creatures, both because they see that kingdom of Christ to come, which most they desire, verse 6, also because they see that the Church is called forth to be brought home: into the house of her husband by holy marriage unto the fellowship of his kingdom, verses 7, 8. Wherefore S. John is commanded to write in a book the Epiphonema, or acclamation joined with a divine testimony, verse 9.

19:6 <sup>1</sup> Without the Temple in heaven.

19:7 <sup>1</sup> Namely unto that holy marriage both herself in person in this verse and also furnished of her spouse with marriage gifts princely and divine is adorned and prepared in the next verse.

19:8 <sup>1</sup> As an ensign of Kingly and priestly dignity: which dignity Christ bestoweth upon us, Rev. 1:6.

<sup>2</sup> This is a gift given by the husband for marriage sake and a most choice ornament, which Christ bestoweth upon us, as upon his spouse.

<sup>3</sup> Good works which are lively testimonies of faith.

19:9 <sup>1</sup> Namely the Angel, as appeareth by the next verse.

19:10 <sup>1</sup> The particular history of this verse is brought in by occasion, and as it were besides the purpose, that Saint John might make a public example of his own infirmity, and of the modest sanctimony of the Angel, who hath renounced for himself the divine honors, and recalled all the servants of God, unto the worship of him alone: as also Rev. 22:8.

<sup>2</sup>testimony of Jesus, Worship God: for the testimony of <sup>3</sup>Jesus is the Spirit of prophecy.

11 <sup>1</sup>And I saw <sup>2</sup>heaven open, and behold a white horse, and he that sat upon him was called faithful and true, and he judgeth and fighteth righteously.

12 And his eyes were as a flame of fire, and on his head were many crowns: and he had a name written, that no man knew but himself.

13 And he was clothed with a garment dipped in blood, and his name is called, THE WORD OF GOD.

14 <sup>1</sup>And the hosts which were in heaven, followed him upon white horses, clothed with fine linen white and pure.

15 <sup>1</sup>And out of his mouth went out a sharp sword, that with it he should smite the heathen: for he shall rule them with a rod of iron, for he it is that treadeth the winepress of the fierceness and wrath of Almighty God.

16 <sup>1</sup>And he hath upon his garment, and upon his thigh, a name written, <sup>d</sup>THE KING OF KINGS AND LORD OF LORDS.

17 <sup>1</sup>And I saw an Angel stand in the <sup>2</sup>sun who cried with a loud voice, saying, to all the fowls that did fly by <sup>3</sup>the midst of heaven, come, and gather yourselves together unto the supper of the great God,

18 That ye may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh

<sup>d</sup> Rev. 17:14
1 Tim. 6:15

of high captains, and the flesh of mighty men, and the flesh of horses, and of them that sit on them, and the flesh of all freemen, and bondmen, and of small and great.

19 <sup>1</sup>And I saw the beast, and the kings of the earth, and their hosts gathered together to make battle against him that sat on the horse, and against his army.

20 But the beast <sup>1</sup>was taken, and with him <sup>2</sup>that false Prophet that wrought miracles before him, whereby he deceived them that received the beast's mark, and them that worshipped his image. These both were alive cast into a lake of fire burning with brimstone.

21 And the remnant were slain with the sword of him that sitteth upon the horse, which cometh out of his mouth, and all the fowls were filled full with their flesh.

1 And <sup>1</sup>I saw an Angel come down from heaven, having the key <sup>2</sup>of the bottomless pit, and a great chain in his hand.

2 And he took the dragon that old serpent, which is the devil and Satan, and he bound him <sup>1</sup>a thousand 19:10 <sup>2</sup> Which are commanded to bear witness of Jesus.

19:11 <sup>1</sup> The second place of this Chapter (as I said verse 1) is of the victory gotten by Christ against both the beasts: in which first Christ is described as one ready to fight, unto verse 16, then is showed the battle to be begun, thence unto verse 18: lastly is set forth the victory unto the end of the Chapter. In this place do shine most excellent properties of Christ as our heavenly Judge and revenger, according to his person, company, effects, and names.

<sup>2</sup> Properties belonging to his person, that he is heavenly, judge, faithful, true, just, in this verse, searching out all things ruling over all, to be searched out of none, verse 12, the trumpet, and the very essential word of God, verse 13.

19:14 <sup>1</sup> The company or retinue of Christ, holy, innumerable, heavenly, judicial, royal and pure.

19:15 <sup>1</sup> The effects of Christ prepared unto battle, that with his mouth he striketh the Gentiles, ruleth and destroyeth.

19:16 <sup>1</sup> The name agreeing unto Christ according to the former properties, expressed after the manner of the Hebrews.

19:17 <sup>1</sup> The second member as I said, verse 11. A reproachful calling forth of his enemies unto battle: in which not themselves (for why should they be called forth of the king of the world, or provoked being his subjects? for that is not comely) but in their hearing, the birds of the air are called to eat their carcasses.

<sup>2</sup> That is, openly, and in sight of all, as Num. 25:4 and 2 Sam. 12:11.

<sup>3</sup> That is, through this inferior heaven, and which is nearer unto us: a Hebrew phrase.

19:19 <sup>1</sup> The third member (as was said, verse 11) of the victory obtained by Christ. Unto this appertaineth two things: his bucking with the beast and his forces in this verse: and the event most magnificent, described after the manner of men, in the verses following. All these things are plain.

19:20 <sup>1</sup> Namely, that beast with seven heads, of which before, Rev. 13:1 and 17:3.

<sup>2</sup> That is, that beast with two heads, of which Rev. 13:11. See also Rev. 16:14.

20:1 <sup>1</sup> Now followeth the third place of the prophetic history, which is of the victory whereby Christ overcame the dragon, as I note, Rev. 7:1. This place must necessarily be joined with the end of chapter 12 and be applied unto the just understanding thereof. This chapter hath two parts, one of the dragon overcome, unto verse 10, the other of the resurrection and last judgment unto the end of the chapter. The history of the dragon is double: First of the first victory after which he was bound by Christ unto verse 6. The second is of the last victory, whereby he has thrown down into everlasting punishment, thence unto verse 10. This first history happened in the first time of the Christian Church, when the dragon thrown down from heaven by Christ, went about to molest the new birth of the Church in the earth, Rev. 12:17, 18. For which cause I gave warning, that this story of the Dragon must be annexed unto that place.

<sup>2</sup> That is of hell, whither God threw down the Angels which had sinned, and bound them in chains of darkness to be kept unto damnation, 2 Pet. 2:4; Jude 6.

20:2 <sup>1</sup> The first whereof (continuing this history with the end of chapter 12) is the 36 year from the passion of Christ, when the Church of the Jews being overthrown, Satan assayed to invade the Christian Church gathered of the Gentiles, and to destroy part of her seed, Rev. 12:17. The thousandth year falleth precisely upon the times of that wicked Hildebrand, who was called Gregory the seventh a most damnable Necromancer and sorcerer, whom Satan used as an instrument when he was loosed out of bonds, thenceforth to annoy the Saints of God with most cruel persecutions, and the whole world with dissensions, and most bloody wars: as Benno the Cardinal reporteth at large. This is the first victory gotten over the dragon in the earth.

years:

3 And cast him into the bottomless pit, and he shut him up, and sealed the door upon him, that he should deceive the people <sup>1</sup>no more till the thousand years were fulfilled: for after that he must be loosed for <sup>2</sup>a little season.

4 <sup>1</sup>And I saw <sup>2,3</sup>seats: and they sat upon them, and judgment was given unto them, and I saw the souls of them that were <sup>4</sup>beheaded for the witness of Jesus, and for the word of God, and which <sup>5</sup>did not worship the beast, neither his image, neither had taken his mark upon their foreheads or on their hands: and they lived, and reigned with Christ a thousand years.

5 <sup>1</sup>But the rest of the dead men <sup>2</sup>shall not live again, until the thousand years be finished: this is the first resurrection.

6 Blessed and holy is he, that hath part in the first resurrection: for on such the <sup>1</sup>second death hath no power: but they shall be the Priests of God and of Christ, <sup>2</sup>and shall reign with him a thousand years.

7 <sup>1</sup>And when the <sup>2</sup>thousand years are expired, Satan shall be loosed out of his prison,

8 <sup>1</sup>And shall go out to deceive the people, which are in the four quarters of the earth: even <sup>4</sup>Gog and Magog, to gather them together to battle, whose number is as the sand of the Sea.

9 And they went up into the <sup>1</sup>plain of the earth, and they compassed the tents of the Saints about, and the beloved city: but <sup>2</sup>fire came down from God out of heaven, and devoured them.

10 <sup>1</sup>And the devil that deceived them, was cast into a lake of fire and brimstone, where that beast and that false prophet are, and shall be tormented even day and night for evermore.

11 <sup>1</sup>And I saw a great <sup>2</sup>white throne, and one that sat on it, <sup>3</sup>from whose face fled away both the earth and heaven, and their place was no more found.

12 And I saw the dead, both great and small stand before <sup>1</sup>God: and the <sup>2</sup>books were opened, and <sup>3</sup>another book was opened, which is the book <sup>3</sup>of life, and the dead were judged of those things, which were written in the books, according to their works.

13 <sup>1</sup>And the sea gave up her dead, which were in her, and death and hell delivered up the dead, which were in them: and they were judged every man according to their works.

20:3 <sup>1</sup> Namely, with that public and violent deceit which he attempted before, Chapter 12, and which after a thousand years (alack for woe) he most mightily procured in the Christian world.

<sup>2</sup> Which being once expired, the second battle and victory shall be, of which verses 7, 8.

20:4 <sup>1</sup> A description of the common state of the Church of Christ in earth in that space of a thousand years, for which the devil was in bonds: in which first the authority, life, and common honor of the godly, is declared, verse 4. Secondly, newness of life is preached unto others by the Gospel, after that space, verse 5. Finally, he concludeth with promises, verse 6.

<sup>3</sup> This was a type of the authority of the good and faithful servants of God in the Church, taken from the manner of men.

<sup>5</sup> Of the Martyrs which suffered after that both the beasts were now risen up, Chapter 13, for these three things are expounded.

20:5 <sup>1</sup> Whoever shall lie dead in sin, and not know the truth of God.

<sup>2</sup> They shall not be renewed with that newness of the life by the enlightening of the Gospel of the glory of Christ. For this is the first resurrection, by which the souls of the godly do rise from their death. In the second resurrection their bodies shall rise again.

20:6 <sup>1</sup> That whereby both body and soul, that is, the whole man is addicted and delivered unto eternal death. So Rev. 2:11.

<sup>2</sup> A return unto the intended history, by resuming the words which are in the end of the fourth verse.

20:7 <sup>1</sup> The second history, of the latter victory of Christ, as was said verse 1. In which are summarily described the work, overthrow and eternal punishment of Satan.

<sup>2</sup> Of which I spake, verse 2. Then therefore shall be given unto him liberty to rage against the Church, and to molest the Saints for the sins of men: unto whom the faithful shall have associated themselves more than was meet, tasting with them of their impurity of doctrine and life.

20:8 <sup>1</sup> The work or act of Satan (which is the first member as I distinguished in the verse beforegoing) to deceive the whole world, even unto the uttermost nations thereof: to arm them against the people of God, in this verse, and to besiege and oppress the Church, with his whole strength, in the verse following.

20:9 <sup>1</sup> As if he said insomuch that the whole face of the earth, how great soever it is was filled.

<sup>2</sup> The wrath of God, consuming the adversaries, and overthrowing all their enterprises, Heb. 10:27. And this is the second member mentioned, verse 7, the overthrow of Satan.

20:10 <sup>1</sup> The third member, eternal destruction against those that are overcome: as I noted in the same place.

20:11 <sup>1</sup> The second part of this Chapter, in which is described the judge, in this verse, and the last judgment in the verse following.

<sup>2</sup> That is, a tribunal seat most Princelike and glorious: for so doth the Greek word also signify.

<sup>3</sup> That is, Christ, before whom when he cometh unto judgment, heaven and earth shall perish for the greatness of his majesty, 2 Pet. 3:7, 10, etc.

20:12 <sup>1</sup> That is, Christ the judge, 2 Cor. 5:10.

<sup>2</sup> As it were, our books of reckoning or accompts: that is, the testimony of our conscience, and of our works, which by no means can be avoided. This is spoken after the manner of men.

<sup>3</sup> The book of the eternal decree of God, in which God the Father hath elected in Christ according to the good pleasure of his will, those that shall be heirs of life. This also is spoken according to the manner of men.

20:13 <sup>1</sup> This is a prevention or an answer to an objection: for happily some man will say, but they are dead, whom the sea, death and the grave hath consumed, how shall they appear before the judge? S. John answereth by resurrection from death, whereunto all things (however repugnant) shall minister and serve at the commandment of God, as Dan. 12.

14 <sup>1</sup>And death, and hell were cast into the lake of fire: this is the second death.

15 And whosoever was not found written in the book of life, was cast into the lake of fire.

21 <sup>2</sup> He describeth new Jerusalem descending from heaven, 6 The bride the Lamb's wife, 12 and the glorious building of the city, 19 garnished with precious stones, 22 whose Temple the Lamb is.

1 And <sup>1</sup>I saw <sup>a</sup>a new heaven, and a new earth: for the <sup>b</sup>first heaven, and the first earth were passed away, and there was no more sea.

2 <sup>1</sup>And I John saw the holy city new Jerusalem come down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride trimmed for her husband.

3 <sup>1</sup>And I heard a great voice out of heaven, saying, Behold, the Tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them: and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be their God with them.

4 <sup>c</sup>And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes, and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, neither crying, neither shall there be anymore pain: for the first things are passed.

5 <sup>1</sup>And he that sat upon the throne, said, <sup>d</sup>Behold, I make all things new, and he said unto me, Write: for these things are faithful and true.

6 And he said unto me, <sup>e</sup>It is done, I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end: I will give to him that is athirst, of the well of the water of life freely.

7 He that overcometh, shall inherit all things, and I will be his God, and he shall be my Son.

8 But the fearful and unbelieving, and the abominable and murderers, and whoremongers, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars shall have their <sup>1</sup>part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone, which is the second death.

9 <sup>1</sup>And there came unto me one of the seven Angels, which had the seven vials full of the seven last plagues, and talked with me, saying, Come: I will show thee the bride the Lamb's wife.

10 And he carried me away in the spirit to a great and <sup>1</sup>an high mountain, and he showed me <sup>2</sup>that great city, that holy Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God,

11 Having the glory of God, and her shining was like unto a stone most precious, as a jasper stone clear as crystal, 12 <sup>1</sup>And had a great wall and high, and had <sup>2</sup>twelve gates, and at the gates <sup>3</sup>twelve Angels, and the names written which are the twelve tribes of the children of Israel.

13 On the East part there were three gates, and on the North side three gates, on the South side three gates, and on the West side three gates.

20:14 <sup>1</sup> The last enemy which is death shall be abolished by Christ (that he may no more make any attempt against us), 1 Cor. 15:16, and death shall feed upon the reprobate in hell for evermore, according to the righteous judgment of God, in the next verse.

21:1 <sup>1</sup> Now followeth the second part of the history prophetic (as I said, Rev. 1 and 11:1) of the future estate of the Church in heaven after the last judgment, unto the fifth verse of the next chapter, in this are two things briefly declareth. The station, seat, or place thereof, verse 1. Then her state and condition in the verses following. Before the state of the Church described, is set down the state of the whole world, that there shall be a new heaven, and a new earth, as Isa. 65:17 and 66:12 and 2 Pet. 3:13, and this is the seat or place of the Church, in which righteousness shall dwell.

21:2 <sup>1</sup> The state of this glorious Church is first described generally, unto verse 8 and then specially and by parts, in the verses following. The general description consisteth in a vision showed afar off, verse 2, and in speech spoken from heaven. In the general these things are common that the Church is holy, new, the workmanship of God, heavenly, most glorious, the spouse of Christ, and partaker of this glory in this verse.

21:3 <sup>1</sup> The Church is described by the speech first of an Angel, in two verses, then of God himself in 4 verses. The Angel's speech describeth the glory of the Church by the most familiar cohabitation of God therewith, by communication of all manner [of] good things according to the covenant, in this verse: and by removing or putting far away of all evil things in the verse following.

21:5 <sup>1</sup> In the speech of God himself describing the Church, is first a certain exordium, or entrance, verse 5. Then followeth a magnificent description of the Church, by the present and future good things of the same in 3 verses following. In the exordium God challengeth to himself the restoring of all the creatures of which verse 1 and witnesseth the calling of S. John unto the writing of these things, in this verse.

21:6 <sup>1</sup> The description of the Church is of three sorts, by the abolishing of old things: by the being of present things in God, that is of things eternal and by the communication of all good things with the godly, verse 6. If so be they shall strive manfully, verse 7. But the reprobate are excluded from thence, verse 8.

21:8 <sup>1</sup> Their lot, and inheritance as it were.

21:9 <sup>1</sup> A transition unto the particular describing of the heavenly Church by the express calling of Saint John in this verse, and his rapt up by the Spirit, in confirmation of the truth of God in the verse following.

21:10 <sup>1</sup> He meaneth the place and stately seat of the Church, shadowed out in a mountain.

<sup>2</sup> A type of that Church which is one, ample, or Catholic, holy celestial, built of God, in this verse: and glorious in the verse following. This type propounded generally, is after particularly declared, verse 12, etc.

21:12 <sup>1</sup> A particular description (as I noted, verse 2) of the celestial Church. First, by the essential parts of the same, under the similitude of a city to verse 12. Secondly, from foreign accidents, unto the end of the chapter. Thirdly, by the effects, in the beginning of the next chapter, the essential parts are noted the matter and the form in the whole work: of these the superfluities and foundation of the wall are entire parts (as they use to be called) which parts are first described in figure, unto verse 14 and afterward more exactly.

<sup>3</sup> He meaneth the Prophets, who are the messengers of God, and watchmen of the Church.

14 And the wall of the city had <sup>1</sup>twelve foundations, and in them the names of the Lamb's twelve Apostles.

15 <sup>1</sup>And he that walked with me, had a golden reed, to measure the city withal, and the gates thereof, and the wall thereof.

16 <sup>1</sup>And the city lay <sup>2</sup>foursquare, and the length is as large as the breadth of it, and he measured the city with the reed, twelve thousand furlongs: and the length, and the breadth, and the height of it are equal.

17 And he measured the wall thereof an hundred forty and four cubits, by the measure of man, that is, of the <sup>1</sup>Angel.

18 <sup>1</sup>And the building of the wall of it was of jasper: and the city was pure gold, like unto clear glass.

19 And the foundations of the wall of the city were garnished with all manner of precious stones: the first foundation was jasper: the second of Sapphire: the third of a Chalcedony: the fourth of an Emerald:

20 The fifth of a Sardonyx: the sixth of a Sardius: the seventh of a Chrysolite: the eighth of a Beryl: the ninth of a Topaz: the tenth of a Chrysoprase: the eleventh of a Jacinth: the twelfth an Amethyst.

21 And the twelve gates were twelve pearls, and every gate is of one pearl, and the <sup>1</sup>street of the city is pure gold, as shining glass.

22 And I saw no Temple therein: for the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb are the Temple of it.

23 <sup>f1</sup>And their city hath no need of the Sun, neither of the Moon to shine in it: for the glory of God did light it: and the Lamb is the light of it.

26 And the glory and honor of the Gentiles shall be brought unto it.

27 And there shall enter into it none unclean thing, neither whatsoever worketh abomination or lies: but they which are written in the Lamb's book of life.

22 <sup>1</sup>The river of water of life is showed, <sup>2</sup>and the tree of life: <sup>6, 7</sup>Then followeth the conclusion of this prophecy, <sup>8</sup>where John declareth, that the things herein contained are most true. <sup>13</sup>And now the third time repeateth these words, All things come from him, who is the beginning and the end.

1 And <sup>1</sup>he showed me a pure river of water of life, clear as crystal, proceeding out of the throne of God, and of the Lamb.

2 In the midst of the street of it, and of either side of the river was the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and gave fruit every month: and the leaves of the tree served to heal the nations with.

3 And there shall be no more curse, but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it, and his servants shall serve him.

4 And they shall see his face, and his Name shall be in their foreheads.

5 <sup>a</sup>And there shall be no night there, and they need no candle, neither light of the Sun: for the Lord God giveth them light, and they shall reign for evermore.

6 <sup>1</sup>And he said unto me, These words are faithful and true: and the Lord God of the holy Prophets sent his Angel to show unto his servants the things which must shortly be fulfilled.

7 Behold, I come shortly. Blessed is he that keepeth

21:14 <sup>1</sup> That is, foundation stones, according to the number of the gates, as is showed verse 19.

21:15 <sup>1</sup> A transition unto a more exquisite description of the parts of the Church, by finding out the measure of the same by the Angel that measured them.

21:16 <sup>1</sup> The measure and form most equal, in 2 verses.

21:17 <sup>1</sup> He addeth this, because the Angel had the shape of a man.

21:18 <sup>1</sup> The matter most precious and glittering which the presence of God maketh most glorious.

21:21 <sup>1</sup> By street, he meaneth the broadest place of the city.

21:23 <sup>1</sup> The second form of particular description (as I said, verse 12) from foreign and outward accidents: which are these, Light from God himself, in this verse, glory from men, verse 24, perfect security from all harm, verse 25. Finally such truth and incorruption of glory (verse 26) as can bear and abide with it, nothing that is inglorious, the last verse.

22:1 <sup>1</sup> Here is absolved and finished the description of the celestial Church (as I showed before, Rev. 21:12) by the effects in 5 verses, and then this book is concluded in the rest of the chapter. The effects proceeding from God, who dwelleth in the Church are these: the everlasting grace of God in this verse, the eternal living of the godly, as Rev. 2:7, the eternal fruits which the godly bring forth unto God, themselves and others, verse 2, freedom and immunity from all evil, God himself taking pleasure in his servants and they likewise in their God, verse 3. The beholding and sight of God, and sealing of the faithful from all eternity, verse 4, the light of God, and an everlasting kingdom and glory, verse 5.

22:6 <sup>1</sup> The whole book is concluded and made up by a confirmation, and a salutation. The confirmation hath three places: The words of the Angel unto verse 15, the words of Christ: verses 16, 17, and the obstation made by S. John from divine authority, thence unto verse 20. By speech of the Angel this prophecy is confirmed unto verse 8 and then he speaketh of the use of this book in the verses following. The prophecy is first confirmed by the Angel from the nature thereof, that it is faithful and true. Secondly from the nature of the efficient cause, both principal which is God, and instrumental, which is the Angel in this verse. Thirdly from the promises of God concerning his coming to effect all these things, and concerning our salvation, verse 7. Fourthly, from the testification of S. John himself, verse 8. The rest of the speech of the angel tending to the same and S. John interrupted or brake off by his unadvised act of worshipping him, in the same verse which the Angel forbidding, teacheth him that adoration must be given not to him, but only to God, as for himself, that he is of such nature and office, as he may not be adored: which thing also was in like manner done, Rev. 16:10.

the words of the prophecy of this book.

8 And I am John, which saw and heard these things: and when I had heard and seen, <sup>b</sup>I fell down to worship before the feet of the Angel which showed me these things.

9 But he said unto me, See thou do it not: for I am thy fellow servant, and of thy brethren the Prophets, and of them which keep the words of this book: worship God.

10 <sup>1</sup>And he said unto me, <sup>2</sup>Seal not the words of the prophecy of this book: for the time is at hand.

11 <sup>1</sup>He that is unjust, let him be unjust still: and he which is filthy, let him be filthy still: and he that is righteous, let him be righteous still: and he that is holy, let him be holy still.

12 <sup>1</sup>And behold, I come shortly, and my reward is with me, <sup>2</sup>to give to every man according as his work shall be.

13 I am <sup>d</sup>Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the first and the last.

14 Blessed are they, that do his Commandments, <sup>1</sup>that their right may be in the tree of Life, and may enter in through the gates into the City.

<sup>b</sup> Rev. 19:10

<sup>c</sup> Rom. 2:6

<sup>d</sup> Rev. 1:8

Rev. 21:6

Isa. 41:44

Isa. 34:6

15 For without shall be dogs and enchanters, and whoremongers, and murderers, and idolaters, and whosoever loveth or maketh lies.

16 <sup>1</sup>I Jesus have sent mine Angel, to testify unto you these things in the Churches: I am the root and the generation of David, and the bright morning star.

17 And the Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come: and let him that is athirst, come: and <sup>4</sup>let whosoever will, take of the water of life freely.

18 <sup>1</sup>For I protest unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book, If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book.

19 And if any man shall diminish of the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy City, and from those things which are written in this book.

20 <sup>1</sup>He which testifieth these things, saith, Surely I come quickly, Amen. Even so, come Lord Jesus.

21 <sup>1</sup>The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all, AMEN.

THE END

22:10 <sup>1</sup> The Angel returneth unto his former speech: in which he teacheth the use of this book, both towards ourselves, in this and the next verse and in respect of God for declaration of his truth, thence unto verse 15.

<sup>2</sup> That is, propound this prophecy openly unto all, and conceal no part of it. The contrary whereunto is commanded, Isa. 8:6 and Dan. 8:26.

22:11 <sup>1</sup> An objection prevented. But there will be some that will abuse this occasion unto evil, and will wrest this Scripture unto their own destruction, as Peter saith. What then saith the Angel, the mysteries of God must not therefore be concealed, which it hath pleased him to communicate unto us. Let them be hurtful unto others, let such be more and more vile in themselves, whom this Scripture doth not please: yet others shall be further conformed thereby unto righteousness and true holiness. The care and reformation of these may not be neglected, because of the voluntary and malicious offense of others.

22:12 <sup>1</sup> The second place belonging unto the use of this book, as I said, verse 10. Also (saith God by the Angel) though there should be no use of this book unto men; yet it shall be of this use unto me, that it is a witness of my truth unto my glory, who will come shortly to give and execute just judgment, in this verse: who have taught that all these things have their being in me, in verse 13, and have denounced blessedness unto my servants in the Church, verse 14, and reprobation unto the ungodly, verse 15.

22:14 <sup>1</sup> The blessedness of the godly set down by their title and interest thereunto: and their fruit in the same.

22:16 <sup>1</sup> The second place of confirmation, as I said, is the speech of Christ, ratifying the vocation of S. John, and the authority of his calling and testimony, both from the condition of his own person being God and man, in whom all the promises of God are Yea and Amen, 2 Cor. 1:20: and also from the testification of other persons, by the acclamation of the holy Ghost, who here is as it were an honorable assistant of the marriage of the Church as the spouse: and of every of the godly as members: and finally from the thing present, that of their own knowledge and accord they are called forth unto the participation of the good things of God, verse 17.

22:18 <sup>1</sup> The obtestation of Saint John (which is the third place of the confirmation, as was noted, verse 6) joined with a curse of execration, to preserve the truth of this book entire and uncorrupted, in two verses.

22:20 <sup>1</sup> A divine confirmation or sealing of the obtestation: first from Christ avouching the same, and denouncing his coming against all those that shall put their sacrilegious hands hereunto: then from Saint John himself, who by a most holy prayer calleth Christ to take vengeance of them.

22:21 <sup>1</sup> The salutation Apostolical, which is the other place of the conclusion, as I said, verse 6, and is the end of almost every Epistle: which we wish unto the Church, and to all the holy and elect members thereof in Christ Jesus our Lord, until his coming to judgment, Come Lord Jesus, and do it. Amen, again, Amen.

A FORM OF PRAYER TO BE USED IN PRIVATE HOUSES EVERY MORNING & EVENING

Morning Prayer.

Almighty God and most merciful father, we do not present ourselves here before thy Majesty, trusting in our own merits or worthiness, but in thy manifold mercies, which hast proved to hear our prayers and grant our requests, which we shall make to thee in the name of thy beloved Son Jesus Christ our Lord, who also hath commanded us to assemble ourselves together in his name, with full assurance, that he will not only be amongst us, but also be our mediator and advocate to thy Majesty, that we may obtain all things which shall seem expedient to thy blessed will, for our necessities. Therefore we beseech thee sweet Father, to turn thy loving countenance towards us, and impute not unto us our manifold sins and offenses, whereby we most justly deserve thy wrath and sharp punishment, but rather receive us to thy mercy, for Jesus Christ's sake, accepting his death and passion as a just recompense for all our offenses, in whom only thou art pleased, and through whom thou canst not be offended with us. And seeing that of thy great mercy we have quietly passed this night: Grant (O heavenly Father) that we may bestow this day wholly in thy service, so that all our thoughts, words, and deeds, may redound to the glory of thy name and good ensample of all men, who seeing our good works, may glorify thee our heavenly Father. And forasmuch as of thy mere favor and love, thou hast not only created us to thine own similitude and likeness, but also hast chosen us to be heirs with thy dear son Jesus Christ, of that immortal kingdom, which thou preparedst for us before the beginning of the world: we beseech thee to increase our faith and knowledge, and to lighten our hearts with thy holy spirit, that we may in the meantime live in godly conversation and integrity of life, knowing that Idolaters, adulterers, covetous men, contentious persons, drunkards, gluttons and suchlike, shall not inherit the kingdom of God.

And because thou hast commanded us to pray one for another, we do not only make request (O Lord) for ourselves, and for them that thou hast already called to the true understanding of thy heavenly will, but for all people and nations of the world, who as they know by thy wonderful works, that thou art God over all, so they may be instructed by thy holy spirit, to believe in thee, their only Savior and Redeemer, but forasmuch as they cannot believe, except they hear, nor cannot hear but by preaching, and none can preach, except he be sent: therefore (O Lord) raise up faithful distributors of thy mysteries, who setting apart all worldly respects, may both in their life and doctrine only seek thy glory. Continually confound Satan, Antichrist, with all hirelings, whom thou hast already cast off into a reprobate sense, that they may not by sects, schisms, heresies, and errors, disquiet thy little flock. And because, O Lord, we be fallen into the latter days and dangerous times, wherein ignorance hath gotten the upper hand, and Satan by his Ministers seeks by all means to quench the light of thy Gospel: we beseech thee to maintain thy cause against those ravening Wolves and strengthen all thy servants, whom they keep in prison and bondage. Let not thy long suffering be an occasion, either to increase their tyranny, or to discourage thy children: neither yet let our sins and wickedness, be an hindrance to thy mercies, but with speed (O Lord) consider their great misery. For thy people Israel many times by their sin provoked thine anger and thou punishedst them by thy just judgment, yet though their sins were never so grievous, if they once returned from their iniquity, thou receivedst them to mercy. We therefore most wretched sinners bewail our manifold sins, and earnestly repent us of our former wickedness, and ungodly behavior towards thee: and whereas we cannot of ourselves purchase thy pardon, yet we humbly beseech thee for Jesus Christ's sake, to show thy mercy upon us, and receive us again to thy favor: Grant us dear Father these our requests, and all other things necessary for us, and thy whole Church, according to thy promise in Jesus Christ our Lord. In whose name we beseech thee, as he hath taught us, saying: Our Father which art in heaven, ect.

Evening Prayer.

O Lord God, Father everlasting, and full of pity, we acknowledge and confess, that we be not worthy to lift up our eyes to heaven, much less to present ourselves before thy Majesty, with confidence that thou wilt hear our prayers, and grant our requests: if we consider our own deservings: for our consciences do accuse us, and our sins do witness against us, and we know that thou art an upright Judge, which dost not justify the sinners and wicked men, but punisheth the faults of all such as transgress thy commandments: yet most merciful Father, since it hath pleased thee to command us to call on thee in all our troubles and adversities, promising even then to help us, when we feel ourselves, (as it were) swallowed up of death and desperation, we utterly renounce all worldly confidence, and fly to thy sovereign bounty as our only stay and refuge: beseeching thee not to call to remembrance our manifold sins and wickedness, whereby we continually provoke thy wrath and indignation against us, neither our negligence and unkindness, which have neither worthily esteemed, nor in our lives sufficiently expressed the sweet comfort of thy Gospel revealed unto us, but rather to accept the death and obedience of thy Son Jesus Christ, who by offering up his body in sacrifice once for all hath made a sufficient recompense for all our sins. Have mercy therefore upon us, O Lord, and forgive us our offenses. Teach us by thy holy Spirit, that we may rightly weigh them, and earnestly repent for the same. And so much the rather, O Lord, because that the reprobate and such as thou hast forsaken, cannot praise thee, nor call upon thy name, but the repenting heart, the sorrowful mind, the conscience oppressed, hungering and thirsting for thy grace, shall ever set forth thy praise and glory.

And albeit we be but worms and dust, yet thou art our Creator, and we be the work of thine hands: yea, thou art our Father, and we thy Children: thou art our Shepherd, and we thy flock: thou art our Redeemer, and we thy people whom thou hast bought: thou art our God, and we thine inheritance. Correct us not therefore in thine anger (O Lord) neither according to our deserts punish us, but mercifully chastise us with a fatherly affection, that all the world may know at what time soever a sinner doth repent him of his sin from the bottom of his heart, thou wilt put away all his wickedness out of thy remembrance, as thou hast promised by thy holy Prophet.

Finally, forasmuch as it hath pleased thee to make the night for man to rest in, as thou hast ordained him the day to travail in, grant O dear Father, that we may continually watch for the time that our Lord Jesus Christ shall appear for our deliverance out of this mortal life, and in the mean season, that we be not overcome by any fantasies, dreams, or other temptations, may fully set our minds upon thee, love thee, fear thee, and rest in thee. Furthermore, that our sleep be not excessive or overmuch, after the insatiable desires of our flesh, but only sufficient to content our weak nature, that we may be the better disposed to live in all godly conversation, to the glory of the holy Name, and profit of our brethren. So be it.

A godly prayer to be said at all times.

Honor and praise be given to thee, O Lord God Almighty, most dear Father of heaven, for all thy mercies and loving-kindnesses showed unto us, in that it hath pleased thy gracious goodness, freely and of thine own accord to elect and choose us to salvation before the beginning of the world: And even like continual thanks be given to thee, for creating us after thine own image, for redeeming us with the precious blood of thy dear Son, when we were utterly lost: for sanctifying us with thy holy Spirit in the revelation and knowledge of thy word: for helping and succoring us in all our needs and necessities, for saving us from all dangers of body and soul, for comforting us so fatherly in all our tribulations and persecutions, for sparing us so long, and giving us so large a time of repentance. These benefits O most merciful Father, like as we acknowledge to have received them of thy only goodness, even so we beseech thee for thy dear Son Jesus Christ's sake, grant us always thy holy Spirit, whereby we may continually grow in thankfulness towards thee, to be led into all truth, and comforted in all adversities. O Lord strengthen our faith, kindle it more in ferventness and love towards thee, and our neighbors for thy sake: suffer us not (most dear Father) to receive thy word any more in vain: but grant us always the assistance of thy grace and holy Spirit, that in heart, word, and deed, we may sanctify and do worship to thy name, help to amplify and increase thy kingdom, and whatsoever thou sendest, we may be hardly well content with thy good pleasure and will. Let us not lack the thing, O Father, without the which we cannot serve thee: but bless thou so all the works of our hands, that we may have sufficient, and not be chargeable but rather helpful unto others. Be merciful O Lord to our offenses, and seeing our debt is great which thou hast forgiven in Jesus Christ, make us to love thee and our neighbors so much the more: be thou our Father, Captain, and defender in all temptations: hold thou us by thy merciful hand, that we may be delivered from all inconveniences, and end our lives in the sanctifying and honoring of thy holy name, through Jesus Christ our Lord and only Savior.

Let thy mighty hand and outstretched arm (O Lord) be still our defense, thy mercy and loving-kindness in Jesus Christ thy dear Son our salvation, thy true and holy word our instruction, thy grace and holy Spirit our comfort and consolation unto the end and in the end. So be it.

O Lord increase our faith.

A Confession for all estates and times.

O Eternal God and most merciful Father, we confess and acknowledge here before thy divine Majesty, that we are miserable sinners, conceived and born in sin and iniquity, so that in us there is no goodness. For the flesh evermore rebelleth against the spirit, whereby we continually transgress thy holy precepts and commandments: and so purchase to ourselves through thy just judgment, death and damnation. Notwithstanding (O heavenly Father) forasmuch as we are displeased with ourselves for the sins that we have committed against thee, and do unfeignedly repent us of the same, we most humbly beseech thee for Jesus Christ's sake to show thy mercy upon us, to forgive us all our sins, and increase thy holy Spirit in us, that we acknowledging from the bottom of our hearts, our own unrighteousness, may from henceforth not only mortify our sinful lusts and affections, but also bring forth such fruits as may be agreeable to thy most blessed will, not for the worthiness thereof, but for the merits of thy dearly beloved Son Jesus Christ our only Savior, whom thou hast already given an oblation and offering for our sins, and for whose sake we are certainly persuaded that thou wilt deny us nothing that we shall ask in his name, according to thy will. For thy Spirit doth assure our consciences, that thou art our merciful Father, and so lovest us thy children through him, that nothing is able to remove thy heavenly grace and favor from us. To thee therefore (O Father) with the Son, and the holy Ghost, be all honor and glory world without end. Amen.

A prayer to be said before a man begin his work.

O Lord God most merciful Father and Savior, seeing it hath pleased thee to command us to travail, that we may relieve our need, we beseech thee of thy grace so to bless our labors, that thy blessing may extend unto us, without the which we are not able to continue, and that this great favor may be a witness unto us of thy bountifulness and assistance, so that thereby we may know the fatherly care that thou hast over us.

Moreover (O Lord) we beseech thee that thou wouldest strengthen us with thy holy Spirit, that we may faithfully travail in our estate and vocation, without fraud or deceit, and that we may endeavor ourselves to follow thine holy ordinance, rather than to seek to satisfy our greedy affections or desire to gain.

And if it please thee (O Lord) to prosper our labor, give us a mind also to help them that need, according to that ability that thou of thy mercy shalt give us: And knowing that all good things come of thee, grant that we may humble ourselves to our neighbors, and not by any means lift ourselves above them which have not received so liberal a portion as of thy mercy thou hast given unto us. And if it please thee to try and exercise us by greater poverty and need than our flesh would desire, that thou wouldest yet (O Lord) grant us grace to know that thou wilt nourish us continually, through thy bountiful liberality, that we be not so tempted, that we fall into distrust, but that we may patiently wait till thou fill us, not only with corporal graces and benefits, but chiefly with thine heavenly and spiritual treasures, to the intent we may always have more ample occasion to give thee thanks, and wholly to rest upon thy mercies. Hear us O Lord of mercy, through Jesus Christ thy Son our Lord, Amen.

A prayer for the whole estate of Christ's Church.

Almighty God and most merciful Father, we humbly submit ourselves and fall down before thy majesty, beseeching thee from the bottom of our hearts, that this seed of thy word now sown amongst us, may take such deep root, that neither the burning heat of persecution cause it to wither, neither the thorny cares of this life choke it, but that as seed sown in a good ground, it may bring forth thirty, sixty, and an hundredfold, as thy heavenly wisdom hath appointed. And because we have need continually to crave many things at thy hands, we humbly beseech thee (O heavenly Father) to grant us thy holy Spirit, to direct our petitions, that they may proceed from such a fervent mind, as may be agreeable to thy most holy will, and seeing that our infirmity is able to do nothing without thy help, and that thou art not ignorant with how many and great temptations we poor wretches are on every side enclosed and compassed, let thy strength (O Lord) sustain our weakness, that we being defended with the force of thy grace, may be safely preserved against all assaults of Satan, who goeth about continually like a roaring Lion, seeking to devour us. Increase our faith (O merciful Father) that we do not swerve at any time from thy heavenly word, but augment in us hope and love, with a careful keeping of all thy commandments, that no hardness of heart, no hypocrisy, no concupiscence of the eyes, nor enticements of the world do draw us away from thy obedience. And seeing we live now in these most perilous times, let thy fatherly providence defend us against the violence of our enemies, which seek all means to oppress thy truth.

Furthermore, forasmuch as by thy holy Apostle we be taught to make our prayers and supplications for all men: We pray not only for ourselves here present, but beseech thee also to reduce all such as be yet ignorant from the miserable captivity of blindness and error, to the pure understanding and knowledge of thy truth, that we all with one accord and unity of mind may worship thee our only God and Savior. And that all Pastors, Shepherds, and Ministers, to whom thou hast committed the dispensation of thy holy word, and charge of thy chosen people, may both in their life and doctrine be found faithful, setting only before their eyes thy glory, and that by them all poor sheep which wander and go astray, may be gathered and brought home to thy fold.

Moreover, because the hearts of Rulers are in thy hands, we beseech thee to direct and govern the hearts of all Kings, Princes, and Magistrates, to whom thou hast committed the sword: Especially (O Lord) according to our bounden duty, we beseech thee to maintain and increase the Honorable estate of the King's Majesty, and all his most noble Counselors and Magistrates, with all the spiritual Pastors and Ministers, and all the whole body of this commonweal. Let thy fatherly favor so preserve them, and thy holy spirit so govern their hearts, that they may in such sort execute their office, that thy religion may be purely maintained, manners reformed, and sin punished, according to the precise rule of thy holy word: and for that we be all members of the mystical body of Jesus Christ, we make our requests unto thee (O Heavenly Father) for all such as are afflicted with any kind of cross or tribulation: as war, plague, famine, sickness, poverty, imprisonment, persecution, banishment, or any other kind of thy rods, whether it be calamity of body, or vexation of mind, that it would please thee to give them patience and constancy, till thou send them full deliverance out of all their troubles. Root out from hence, O Lord, all ravening Wolves, which to fill their bellies, seek to destroy thy flock. And show thy great mercies upon those our brethren in other countries, which are persecuted, cast into prison, and daily condemned for the testimony of thy truth. And although they be utterly destitute of all man's aid, yet let thy sweet comfort never depart from them, but so inflame their hearts with thy holy spirit, that they may boldly and cheerfully abide such trial as thy godly wisdom shall appoint: So that at length as well by their death, as by their life, the kingdom of thy dear Son Jesus Christ, may increase and shine through all the world. In whose name we make our humble petitions unto thee, as he hath taught us.

Our father, ect.

A prayer against the Devil and his manifold tentations, made by S. Augustine.

There wanted a tempter, and thou wast the cause that he was wanting: there wanted time and place, and thou wast the cause: that they wanted. The tempter was present, and there wanted neither place nor time, but thou heldest me back that I should not consent.

The tempter came full of darkness as he is, and thou didst harden me that I might despise him. The tempter came armed and strongly, but to the intent he should not overcome me, thou didst restrain him and strengthen me. The tempter came transformed into an Angel of light, and to the intent he should not deceive me, thou didst rebuke him, and to the intent I should know him, thou didst enlighten me. For he is the great red dragon the old serpent, called the Devil and Satan, which hath seven heads and ten horns, whom thou hast created to take his pleasure in this huge and broad sea, wherein there creep living wights innumerable, and beasts great and small, that is to say, divers sorts of fiends which practiceth nothing else day and night, but goeth about seeking whom he may devour, except thou resist him O Lord Jesus. For it is that old dragon which draweth down the third part of the stars of heaven with his raise, and casteth them to the ground, which with his venom poisoneth the waters of the earth, that as many men as drink of them, may die, which trampleth upon gold, as if it were mire, and is of opinion that Jordan shall run into his mouth and which is made of such a mold that he feareth no man: And who shall save us from his chaps, O Lord Jesus? who shall pluck us out of his mouth, saving thou O Lord, who hast broken the head of this great Dragon? Help us Lord, spread out thy wings over us O Lord, that we may flee under them from the face of this Dragon that pursueth us: and fence thou us from his horns with thy shield: For this is his continual endeavor, this is his only desire to devour the souls that thou hast created. And therefore we cry unto thee O God, deliver us from our daily adversary, who whether we sleep or wake, whether we eat or drink, or whether we be doing of any thing else presseth upon us by all kind of means, assaulting us day and night with trains and policies, and shooting his venomous arrows at us, sometimes openly, and sometimes privily to slay our souls. And yet such is our great madness O Lord, that whereas we see the dragon continually in a readiness to devour us with open mouth, we nevertheless do sleep, and rejoice in our own slothfulness, as though we were out of his danger, who desireth nothing else but to destroy us. Our mischievous enemy to the intent to kill us, watcheth continually and never sleepeth, and yet will not we awake from sleep to save ourselves. Behold he hath pitched infinite snares before our feet, and filled all our ways with sundry traps to catch our souls. And who can escape O Lord Jesus, so many and great dangers? He hath laid snares for us in our riches, in our poverty, in our meat, in our drink, in our pleasures, in our sleep, and in our waking. He hath set snares for us in our words, and our works in all our life. But thou, O Lord, deliver us from the net of the fowler, and from hard words that we may give praise to thee, saying: Blessed be the Lord who hath not given us to be a prey for their teeth: our soul is delivered as a sparrow out of the fowler's net, the net is broken and we have escaped.

The Confession of the Christian faith.

Ibelieve and confess my Lord God, eternal, infinite, immeasurable, incomprehensible, and invisible, one in substance, and three in person, Father, Son, and holy Ghost, who by his almighty power and wisdom, hath not only of nothing created heaven and earth, and all things therein contained, and man after his own image, that he might in him be glorified, but also by his fatherly providence governeth, maintaineth, and preserveth the same, according to the purpose of his will.

I believe also and confess Jesus Christ the only Savior and Messiah, who being equal with God, made himself of no reputation, but took on him the shape of a servant, and became man, in all things like unto us, except sin, to assure us of mercy and forgiveness: for when through our Father Adam's transgression, we were become children of perdition, there was no means to bring us from the yoke of sin and damnation, but only Jesus Christ our Lord, Who giving us that by grace, which was by nature his, made us through faith the children of God, who when that fullness of time was come, was conceived by the power of the holy Ghost, born of the Virgin, Mary (according to the flesh) and preached in earth the Gospel of Salvation, till at length by tyranny of the Priests, he was guiltlessly condemned under Pontius Pilate, the President of Jury, and most slanderously hanged on the Cross between two thieves, as a notorious trespasser, where taking upon him the punishment of our sins, he delivered us from the curse of the law.

And forasmuch as he being only God, could not feel death, neither being only man, could overcome death, he joined both together, and suffered his humanity to be punished with most cruel death, feeling in himself the anger and severe judgment of God, even as he had been in extreme torments of hell, and therefore cried with a loud voice, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? Thus of his mercy: without compulsion, he offered up himself as the only sacrifice to purge the sins of all the world, so that all other sacrifices for sin, are blasphemous and derogate from the sufficiency hereof, which death, albeit it did sufficiently reconcile us to God, yet the Scriptures commonly do attribute our regeneration to his resurrection, For as by rising again from the grave, the third day he conquered death, even so the victory of our faith standeth in his resurrection: and therefore without the one, we cannot feel the benefits of the other. For as by his death sin was taken away, so our righteousness was restored by his resurrection. And because he would accomplish all things, and take possession for us in his kingdom, he ascended into heaven, to enlarge the same kingdom, by the abundant power of his spirit, by whom we are most assured of his continual intercession towards God the Father for us.

And although he be in heaven as touching his corporal presence, where the Father hath now set him at his right hand, committing unto him the administration of all things, as well in heaven above, as in earth beneath: yet is he present with us his members, even to the end of the world, in preserving and governing us with his effectual power and grace: who when all things are fulfilled, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Prophets, since the world began, will come in the same visible form, in the which he ascended, with an unspeakable Majesty, power, and company, to separate the Lambs from the Goats, the elect from the reprobate: So that none, whether he be alive then, or dead before, shall escape his judgment.

Moreover, I believe and confess the holy Ghost, God equal with the Father, and the Son, who regenerateth and sanctifieth us, ruleth and guideth us unto all truth, persuading most assuredly in our consciences that we be the children of God, brethren to Jesus Christ, and fellow heirs with him of life everlasting: yet notwithstanding it is not sufficient to believe that God is omnipotent and merciful, that Christ hath made satisfaction, or that the holy Ghost hath his power and effect, except we do apply the same benefits to us which are God's elect.

I believe therefore and confess one holy Church, which as members of Jesus Christ, the only head thereof, consent in faith, hope, and charity, using the gifts of God, whether they be temporal or spiritual, to the profit and furtherance of the same, which Church is not seen to man's eye, but only known to God, who of the lost sons of Adam, hath ordained some as vessels of wrath to damnation, and hath chosen others as vessels of his mercy to be saved: the which in due time he calleth to integrity of life, and godly conversation, to make them a glorious Church in himself.

But that Church which is visible, and seen to the eye, hath three tokens and marks whereby it may be known. First, the word of God contained in the old and new Testament, which as it is above the authority of the same Church, and only sufficient to instruct us in all things concerning salvation: so it is left for all degrees of men, to read and understand. For without this word, neither Church, Counsel, nor decree, can establish any point touching salvation: The second is, the holy Sacraments, to wit, of Baptism, and the Lord's Supper, which Sacraments Christ hath left unto us, as holy signs and seals of God's promises. For as by Baptism once received, is signified, that we (as well Infants as others of age and discretion) being strangers from God by original sin, are received into his family and congregation, with full assurance, that although this root of sin lie hid in us, yet to the Elect it shall not be imputed: So the Supper declareth that God as a most provident Father, doth not only feed our bodies, but also spiritually nourisheth our souls with the graces and benefits of Jesus Christ, (which the Scripture calleth eating of his flesh, and drinking of his blood) neither must we in the administration of these Sacraments, follow man's fantasy, but as Christ himself hath ordained, so must they be administered, and by such as by ordinary vocation are thereunto called. Therefore whosoever reserveth and worshippeth these Sacraments, or contrariwise contemneth them in time and place, procureth to himself damnation.

The third mark of this Church, is Ecclesiastical Discipline, which standeth in admonition and correction of faults. The final end whereof is Excommunication, by the consent of the Church determined, if the offender be obstinate: And besides this Ecclesiastical Discipline, I acknowledge to belong to his Church, a politic Magistrate, that ministereth to every man justice, defending the good and punishing the evil. To whom we must render honor and obedience in all things which are not contrary to the word of God. And as Moses, Hezekiah, Josiah, and other good rulers, purged the Church of God from superstition and idolatry, so the defense of Christ's Church appertaineth, to Christian Magistrates, against all Idolaters and Heretics, as Papists, Anabaptists, with such like limbs of Antichrist, to root out all doctrine of Devils and men, as the Mass, Purgatory, Limbus patrum, prayers to Saints, and for the dead, free-will, distinction of meats, apparel, and days, vows of single life, presence at Idol service, man's merits with such like, which draw us from the society of Christ's church, wherein standeth only remission of sins purchased by Christ's blood to all them that believe, they be Jews or Gentiles, and lead us to vain confidence in creatures and trust in our own imaginations, the punishment whereof although God oftentimes deferreth in this life, yet after the general resurrection, when our souls and bodies shall rise again to immortality, they shall be damned to unquenchable fire, and then we which have forsaken all man's wisdom, to cleave unto Christ, shall hear the joyful voice, Come ye blessed of my father, inherit the Kingdom prepared for you from the beginning of the world: and so shall go triumphing with him in body and soul to remain everlastingly in glory, where we shall see God face to face, and shall no more need to instruct one another, we shall all know him from the highest to the lowest. To whom with the Son and the holy Ghost, be all praise, honor and glory now and ever. So be it.

FINIS.

THE MAGNA CARTA

Magna Carta (Latin for Great Charter, originally issued in 1215), required King John of England to proclaim certain rights (pertaining to freemen), respect certain legal procedures, and accept that his will was bound by the law. It explicitly protected certain rights of the King's subjects, whether free or fettered—and implicitly supported what became the writ of habeas corpus, allowing appeal against unlawful imprisonment. The Magna Carta is arguably the most significant early influence to clearly put into writing that king and citizen, lord and vassal were equally accountable to the rule of law. It is this important (and biblical) concept that led to the rule of constitutional law today in the English speaking world.

PREAMBLE: John, by the grace of God, king of England, lord of Ireland, duke of Normandy and Aquitaine, and count of Anjou, to the archbishop, bishops, abbots, earls, barons, justiciaries, foresters, sheriffs, stewards, servants, and to all his bailiffs and liege subjects, greetings. Know that, having regard to God and for the salvation of our soul, and those of all our ancestors and heirs, and unto the honor of God and the advancement of his holy Church and for the rectifying of our realm, we have granted as underwritten by advice of our venerable fathers, Stephen, archbishop of Canterbury, primate of all England and cardinal of the holy Roman Church, Henry, archbishop of Dublin, William of London, Peter of Winchester, Jocelyn of Bath and Glastonbury, Hugh of Lincoln, Walter of Worcester, William of Coventry, Benedict of Rochester, bishops; of Master Pandulf, subdeacon and member of the household of our lord the Pope, of brother Aymeric (master of the Knights of the Temple in England), and of the illustrious men William Marshal, earl of Pembroke, William, earl of Salisbury, William, earl of Warenne, William, earl of Arundel, Alan of Galloway (constable of Scotland), Waren Fitz Gerold, Peter Fitz Herbert, Hubert De Burgh (seneschal of Poitou), Hugh de Neville, Matthew Fitz Herbert, Thomas Basset, Alan Basset, Philip d'Aubigny, Robert of Roppesley, John Marshal, John Fitz Hugh, and others, our liegemen.

1. In the first place we have granted to God, and by this our present charter confirmed for us and our heirs forever that the English Church shall be free, and shall have her rights entire, and her liberties inviolate; and we will that it be thus observed; which is apparent from this that the freedom of elections, which is reckoned most important and very essential to the English Church, we, of our pure and unconstrained will, did grant, and did by our charter confirm and did obtain the ratification of the same from our lord, Pope Innocent III, before the quarrel arose between us and our barons: and this we will observe, and our will is that it be observed in good faith by our heirs forever. We have also granted to all freemen of our kingdom, for us and our heirs forever, all the underwritten liberties, to be had and held by them and their heirs, of us and our heirs forever.

2. If any of our earls or barons, or others holding of us in chief by military service shall have died, and at the time of his death his heir shall be full of age and owe "relief," he shall have his inheritance by the old relief, to wit, the heir or heirs of an earl, for the whole barony of an earl by £100; the heir or heirs of a baron, £100 for a whole barony; the heir or heirs of a knight, 100 shillings, at most, and whoever owes less let him give less, according to the ancient custom of fees.

3. If, however, the heir of any one of the aforesaid has been under age and in wardship, let him have his inheritance without relief and without fine when he comes of age.

4. The guardian of the land of an heir who is thus under age, shall take from the land of the heir nothing but reasonable produce, reasonable customs, and reasonable services, and that without destruction or waste of men or goods; and if we have committed the wardship of the lands of any such minor to the sheriff, or to any other who is responsible to us for its issues, and he has made destruction or waster of what he holds in wardship, we will take of him amends, and the land shall be committed to two lawful and discreet men of that fee, who shall be responsible for the issues to us or to him to whom we shall assign them; and if we have given or sold the wardship of any such land to anyone and he has therein made destruction or waste, he shall lose that wardship, and it shall be transferred to two lawful and discreet men of that fee, who shall be responsible to us in like manner as aforesaid.

5. The guardian, moreover, so long as he has the wardship of the land, shall keep up the houses, parks, fishponds, stanks, mills, and other things pertaining to the land, out of the issues of the same land; and he shall restore to the heir, when he has come to full age, all his land, stocked with ploughs and wainage, according as the season of husbandry shall require, and the issues of the land can reasonable bear.

6. Heirs shall be married without disparagement, yet so that before the marriage takes place the nearest in blood to that heir shall have notice.

7. A widow, after the death of her husband, shall forthwith and without difficulty have her marriage portion and inheritance; nor shall she give anything for her dower, or for her marriage portion, or for the inheritance which her husband and she held on the day of the death of that husband; and she may remain in the house of her husband for forty days after his death, within which time her dower shall be assigned to her.

8. No widow shall be compelled to marry, so long as she prefers to live without a husband; provided always that she gives security not to marry without our consent, if she holds of us, or without the consent of the lord of whom she holds, if she holds of another.

9. Neither we nor our bailiffs will seize any land or rent for any debt, as long as the chattels of the debtor are sufficient to repay the debt; nor shall the sureties of the debtor be distrained so long as the principal debtor is able to satisfy the debt; and if the principal debtor shall fail to pay the debt, having nothing wherewith to pay it, then the sureties shall answer for the debt; and let them have the lands and rents of the debtor, if they desire them, until they are indemnified for the debt which they have paid for him, unless the principal debtor can show proof that he is discharged thereof as against the said sureties.

10. If one who has borrowed from the Jews any sum, great or small, die before that loan be repaid, the debt shall not bear interest while the heir is under age, of whomsoever he may hold; and if the debt fall into our hands, we will not take anything except the principal sum contained in the bond.

11. And if anyone die indebted to the Jews, his wife shall have her dower and pay nothing of that debt; and if any children of the deceased are left under age, necessaries shall be provided for them in keeping with the holding of the deceased; and out of the residue the debt shall be paid, reserving, however, service due to feudal lords; in like manner let it be done touching debts due to others than Jews.

12. No scutage nor aid shall be imposed on our kingdom, unless by common counsel of our kingdom, except for ransoming our person, for making our eldest son a knight, and for once marrying our eldest daughter; and for these there shall not be levied more than a reasonable aid. In like manner it shall be done concerning aids from the city of London.

13. And the city of London shall have all its ancient liberties and free customs, as well by land as by water; furthermore, we decree and grant that all other cities, boroughs, towns, and ports shall have all their liberties and free customs.

14. And for obtaining the common counsel of the kingdom anent the assessing of an aid (except in the three cases aforesaid) or of a scutage, we will cause to be summoned the archbishops, bishops, abbots, earls, and greater barons, severally by our letters; and we will moreover cause to be summoned generally, through our sheriffs and bailiffs, and others who hold of us in chief, for a fixed date, namely, after the expiry of at least forty days, and at a fixed place; and in all letters of such summons we will specify the reason of the summons. And when the summons has thus been made, the business shall proceed on the day appointed, according to the counsel of such as are present, although not all who were summoned have come.

15. We will not for the future grant to anyone license to take an aid from his own free tenants, except to ransom his person, to make his eldest son a knight, and once to marry his eldest daughter; and on each of these occasions there shall be levied only a reasonable aid.

16. No one shall be distrained for performance of greater service for a knight's fee, or for any other free tenement, than is due therefrom.

17. Common pleas shall not follow our court, but shall be held in some fixed place.

18. Inquests of novel disseisin, of mort d'ancestor, and of darrein presentment shall not be held elsewhere than in their own county courts, and that in manner following; We, or, if we should be out of the realm, our chief justiciar, will send two justiciaries through every county four times a year, who shall alone with four knights of the county chosen by the county, hold the said assizes in the county court, on the day and in the place of meeting of that court.

19. And if any of the said assizes cannot be taken on the day of the county court, let there remain of the knights and freeholders, who were present at the county court on that day, as many as may be required for the efficient making of judgments, according as the business be more or less.

20. A freeman shall not be amerced for a slight offense, except in accordance with the degree of the offense; and for a grave offense he shall be amerced in accordance with the gravity of the offense, yet saving always his "contentment"; and a merchant in the same way, saving his "merchandise"; and a villein shall be amerced in the same way, saving his "wainage" if they have fallen into our mercy; and none of the aforesaid ameracements shall be imposed except by the oath of honest men of the neighborhood.

21. Earls and barons shall not be amerced except through their peers, and only in accordance with the degree of the offense.

22. A clerk shall not be amerced in respect of his lay holding except after the manner of the others aforesaid; further, he shall not be amerced in accordance with the extent of his ecclesiastical benefice.

23. No village or individual shall be compelled to make bridges at river banks, except those who from of old were legally bound to do so.

24. No sheriff, constable, coroners, or others of our bailiffs, shall hold pleas of our Crown.

25. All counties, hundred, wapentakes, and tithings (except our demesne manors) shall remain at the old rents, and without any additional payment.

26. If anyone holding of us a lay fee shall die, and our sheriff or bailiff shall exhibit our letters patent of summons for a debt which the deceased owed us, it shall be lawful for our sheriff or bailiff to attach and enroll the chattels of the deceased, found upon the lay fee, to the value of that debt, at the sight of law worthy men, provided always that nothing whatever be thence removed until the debt which is evident shall be fully paid to us; and the residue shall be left to the executors to fulfill the will of the deceased; and if there be nothing due from him to us, all the chattels shall go to the deceased, saving to his wife and children their reasonable shares.

27. If any freeman shall die intestate, his chattels shall be distributed by the hands of his nearest kinsfolk and friends, under supervision of the Church, saving to every one the debts which the deceased owed to him.

28. No constable or other bailiff of ours shall take corn or other provisions from anyone without immediately tendering money therefor, unless he can have postponement thereof by permission of the seller.

29. No constable shall compel any knight to give money in lieu of castle-guard, when he is willing to perform it in his own person, or (if he himself cannot do it from any reasonable cause) then by another responsible man. Further, if we have led or sent him upon military service, he shall be relieved from guard in proportion to the time during which he has been on service because of us.

30. No sheriff or bailiff of ours, or other person, shall take the horses or carts of any freeman for transport duty, against the will of the said freeman.

31. Neither we nor our bailiffs shall take, for our castles or for any other work of ours, wood which is not ours, against the will of the owner of that wood.

32. We will not retain beyond one year and one day, the lands those who have been convicted of felony, and the lands shall thereafter be handed over to the lords of the fees.

33. All kydells [fish traps] for the future shall be removed altogether from Thames and Medway, and throughout all England, except upon the seashore.

34. The writ which is called praecipe shall not for the future be issued to anyone, regarding any tenement whereby a freeman may lose his court.

35. Let there be one measure of wine throughout our whole realm; and one measure of ale; and one measure of corn, to wit, "the London quarter"; and one width of cloth (whether dyed, or russet, or "halberget"), to wit, two ells within the selvedges; of weights also let it be as of measures.

36. Nothing in future shall be given or taken for a writ of inquisition of life or limbs, but freely it shall be granted, and never denied.

37. If anyone holds of us by fee-farm, either by socage or by burage, or of any other land by knight's service, we will not (by reason of that fee-farm, socage, or burage), have the wardship of the heir, or of such land of his as if of the fee of that other; nor shall we have wardship of that fee-farm, socage, or burage, unless such fee-farm owes knight's service. We will not by reason of any small serjeancy which anyone may hold of us by the service of rendering to us knives, arrows, or the like, have wardship of his heir or of the land which he holds of another lord by knight's service.

THE MAGNA CARTA

38. No bailiff for the future shall, upon his own unsupported complaint, put anyone to his "law", without credible witnesses brought for this purposes.

39. No freemen shall be taken or imprisoned or disseised or exiled or in any way destroyed, nor will we go upon him nor send upon him, except by the lawful judgment of his peers or by the law of the land.

40. To no one will we sell, to no one will we refuse or delay, right or justice.

41. All merchants shall have safe and secure exit from England, and entry to England, with the right to tarry there and to move about as well by land as by water, for buying and selling by the ancient and right customs, quit from all evil tolls, except (in time of war) such merchants as are of the land at war with us. And if such are found in our land at the beginning of the war, they shall be detained, without injury to their bodies or goods, until information be received by us, or by our chief justiciar, how the merchants of our land found in the land at war with us are treated; and if our men are safe there, the others shall be safe in our land.

42. It shall be lawful in future for anyone (excepting always those imprisoned or outlawed in accordance with the law of the kingdom, and natives of any country at war with us, and merchants, who shall be treated as if above provided) to leave our kingdom and to return, safe and secure by land and water, except for a short period in time of war, on grounds of public policy, reserving always the allegiance due to us.

43. If anyone holding of some escheat (such as the honor of Wallingford, Nottingham, Boulogne, Lancaster, or of other escheats which are in our hands and are baronies) shall die, his heir shall give no other relief, and perform no other service to us than he would have done to the baron if that barony had been in the baron's hand; and we shall hold it in the same manner in which the baron held it.

44. Men who dwell without the forest need not henceforth come before our justiciaries of the forest upon a general summons, unless they are in plea, or sureties of one or more, who are attached for the forest.

45. We will appoint as justices, constables, sheriffs, or bailiffs only such as know the law of the realm and mean to observe it well.

46. All barons who have founded abbeys, concerning which they hold charters from the kings of England, or of which they have long continued possession, shall have the wardship of them, when vacant, as they ought to have.

47. All forests that have been made such in our time shall forthwith be disafforsted; and a similar course shall be followed with regard to river banks that have been placed "in defense" by us in our time.

48. All evil customs connected with forests and warrens, foresters and warreners, sheriffs and their officers, river banks and their wardens, shall immediately be inquired into in each county by twelve sworn knights of the same county chosen by the honest men of the same county, and shall, within forty days of the said inquest, be utterly abolished, so as never to be restored, provided always that we previously have intimation thereof, or our justiciar, if we should not be in England.

49. We will immediately restore all hostages and charters delivered to us by Englishmen, as sureties of the peace of faithful service.

50. We will entirely remove from their bailiwicks [offices], the relations of Gerard of Athee (so that in future they shall have no bailiwick in England); namely, Engelard of Cigogne, Peter, Guy, and Andrew of Chanceaux, Guy of Cigogne, Geoffrey of Martigny with his brothers, Philip Mark with his brothers and his nephew Geoffrey, and the whole brood of the same.

51. As soon as peace is restored, we will banish from the kingdom all foreign born knights, crossbowmen, serjeants, and mercenary soldiers who have come with horses and arms to the kingdom's hurt.

52. If anyone has been dispossessed or removed by us, without the legal judgment of his peers, from his lands, castles, franchises, or from his right, we will immediately restore them to him; and if a dispute arise over this, then let it be decided by the five and twenty barons of whom mention is made below in the clause for securing the peace. Moreover, for all those possessions, from which anyone has, without the lawful judgment of his peers, been disseised or removed, by our father, King Henry, or by our brother, King Richard, and which we retain in our hand (or which as possessed by others, to whom we are bound to warrant them) we shall have respite until the usual term of crusaders; excepting those things about which a plea has been raised, or an inquest made by our order, before our taking of the cross; but as soon as we return from the expedition, we will immediately grant full justice therein.

53. We shall have, moreover, the same respite and in the same manner in rendering justice concerning the disafforestation or retention of those forests which Henry our father and Richard our brother afforested, and concerning the wardship of lands which are of the fee of another (namely, such wardships as we have hitherto had by reason of a fee which anyone held of us by knight's service), and concerning abbeyes founded on other fees than our own, in which the lord of the fee claims to have right; and when we have returned, or if we desist from our expedition, we will immediately grant full justice to all who complain of such things.

54. No one shall be arrested or imprisoned upon the appeal of a woman, for the death of any other than her husband.

55. All fines made with us unjustly and against the law of the land, and all ameracements, imposed unjustly and against the law of the land, shall be entirely remitted, or else it shall be done concerning them according to the decision of the five and twenty barons whom mention is made below in the clause for securing the peace, or according to the judgment of the majority of the same, along with the aforesaid Stephen, archbishop of Canterbury, if he can be present, and such others as he may wish to bring with him for this purpose, and if he cannot be present the business shall nevertheless proceed without him, provided always that if any one or more of the aforesaid five and twenty barons are in a similar suit, they shall be removed as far as concerns this particular judgment, others being substituted in their places after having been selected by the rest of the same five and twenty for this purpose only, and after having been sworn.

56. If we have disseised or removed Welshmen from lands or liberties, or other things, without the legal judgment of their peers in England or in Wales, they shall be immediately restored to them; and if a dispute arise over this, then let it be decided in the marches by the judgment of their peers; for the tenements in England according to the law of England, for tenements in Wales according to the law of Wales, and for tenements in the marches according to the law of the marches. Welshmen shall do the same to us and ours.

57. Further, for all those possessions from which any Welshman has, without the lawful judgment of his peers, been disseised or removed by King Henry our father, or King Richard our brother, and which we retain in our hand (or which are possessed by others, and which we ought to warrant), we will have respite until the usual term of crusaders; excepting those things about which a plea has been raised or an inquest made by our order before we took the cross; but as soon as we return (or if perchance we desist from our expedition), we will immediately grant full justice in accordance with the laws of the Welsh and in relation to the foresaid regions.

THE MAGNA CARTA

58. We will immediately give up the son of Llywelyn and all the hostages of Wales, and the charters delivered to us as security for the peace.

59. We will do towards Alexander, king of Scots, concerning the return of his sisters and his hostages, and concerning his franchises, and his right, in the same manner as we shall do towards our other barons of England, unless it ought to be otherwise according to the charters which we hold from William his father, formerly king of Scots; and this shall be according to the judgment of his peers in our court.

60. Moreover, all these aforesaid customs and liberties, the observances of which we have granted in our kingdom as far as pertains to us towards our men, shall be observed by all of our kingdom, as well clergy as laymen, as far as pertains to them towards their men.

61. Since, moreover, for God and the amendment of our kingdom and for the better allaying of the quarrel that has arisen between us and our barons, we have granted all these concessions, desirous that they should enjoy them in complete and firm endurance forever, we give and grant to them the underwritten security, namely, that the barons choose five and twenty barons of the kingdom, whomsoever they will, who shall be bound with all their might, to observe and hold, and cause to be observed, the peace and liberties we have granted and confirmed to them by this our present Charter, so that if we, or our justiciar, or our bailiffs or any one of our officers, shall in anything be at fault towards anyone, or shall have broken any one of the articles of this peace or of this security, and the offense be notified to four barons of the foresaid five and twenty, the said four barons shall repair to us (or our justiciar, if we are out of the realm) and, laying the transgression before us, petition to have that transgression redressed without delay. And if we shall not have corrected the transgression (or, in the event of our being out of the realm, if our justiciar shall not have corrected it) within forty days, reckoning from the time it has been intimated to us (or to our justiciar, if we should be out of the realm), the four barons aforesaid shall refer that matter to the rest of the five and twenty barons, and those five and twenty barons shall, together with the community of the whole realm, distrain and distress us in all possible ways, namely, by seizing our castles, lands, possessions, and in any other way they can, until redress has been obtained as they deem fit, saving harmless our own person, and the persons of our queen and children; and when redress has been obtained, they shall resume their old relations towards us. And let whoever in the country desires it, swear to obey the orders of the said five and twenty barons for the execution of all the aforesaid matters, and along with them, to molest us to the utmost of his power; and we publicly and freely grant leave to everyone who wishes to swear, and we shall never forbid anyone to swear. All those, moreover, in the land who of themselves and of their own accord are unwilling to swear to the twenty five five and twenty to help them in constraining and molesting us, we shall by our command compel the same to swear to the effect foresaid. And if any one of the five and twenty barons shall have died or departed from the land, or be incapacitated in any other manner which would prevent the foresaid provisions being carried out, those of the said five and twenty barons who are left shall choose another in his place according to their own judgment, and he shall be sworn in the same way as the others. Further, in all matters, the execution of which is entrusted, to these five and twenty barons, if perchance these twenty five are present and disagree about anything, or if some of them, after being summoned, are unwilling or unable to be present, that which the majority of those present ordain or command shall be held as fixed and established, exactly as if the whole five and twenty had concurred in this; and the said five and twenty shall swear that they will faithfully observe all that is aforesaid, and cause it to be observed with all their might. And we shall procure nothing from anyone, directly or indirectly, whereby any part of these concessions and liberties might be revoked or diminished; and if any such things has been procured, let it be void and null, and we shall never use it personally or by another.

62. And all the will, hatreds, and bitterness that have arisen between us and our men, clergy and lay, from the date of the quarrel, we have completely remitted and pardoned to everyone. Moreover, all trespasses occasioned by the said quarrel, from Easter in the sixteenth year of our reign till the restoration of peace, we have fully remitted to all, both clergy and laymen, and completely forgiven, as far as pertains to us. And on this head, we have caused to be made for them letters testimonial patent of the lord Stephen, archbishop of Canterbury, of the lord Henry, archbishop of Dublin, of the bishops aforesaid, and of Master Pandulf as touching this security and the concessions aforesaid.

63. Wherefore we will and firmly order that the English Church be free, and that the men in our kingdom have and hold all the aforesaid liberties, rights, and concessions, well and peaceably, freely and quietly, fully and wholly, for themselves and their heirs, of us and our heirs, in all respects and in all places forever, as is aforesaid. An oath, moreover, has been taken, as well on our part as on the part of the barons, that all these conditions aforesaid shall be kept in good faith and without evil intent.

Given under our hand, the above named and many others being witnesses, in the meadow which is called Runnymede, between Windsor and Staines, on the fifteenth day of June, in the seventeenth year of our reign.

THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

Adopted by Congress on July 4, 1776

The Unanimous Declaration of the Thirteen United States of America

When, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bonds which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. That whenever any form of government becomes destructive to these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security. Such has been the patient sufferance of these colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former systems of government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over these states. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has refused his assent to laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his governors to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of representation in the legislature, a right inestimable to them and formidable to tyrants only.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved representative houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused for a long time, after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the legislative powers, incapable of annihilation, have returned to the people at large for their exercise; the state remaining in the meantime exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within.

He has endeavored to prevent the population of these states; for that purpose obstructing the laws for naturalization of foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migration hither, and raising the conditions of new appropriations of lands.

He has obstructed the administration of justice, by refusing his assent to laws for establishing judiciary powers.

He has made judges dependent on his will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has erected a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in times of peace, standing armies without the consent of our legislature.

He has affected to render the military independent of and superior to civil power.

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our consti-tion, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his assent to their acts of pretended legislation:

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us:

For protecting them, by mock trial, from punishment for any murders which they should commit on the inhabitants of these states:

For cutting off our trade with all parts of the world:

For imposing taxes on us without our consent:

For depriving us in many cases, of the benefits of trial by jury:

For transporting us beyond seas to be tried for pretended offenses:

For abolishing the free system of English laws in a neighboring province, establishing therein an arbitrary government, and enlarging its boundaries so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule in these colonies:

For taking away our charters, abolishing our most valuable laws, and altering fundamentally the forms of our governments:

For suspending our own legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever.

He has abdicated government here, by declaring us out of his protection and waging war against us.

He has plundered our seas, ravaged our coasts, burned our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people.

He is at this time transporting large armies of foreign mercenaries to complete the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of cruelty and perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the head of a civilized nation.

THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

He has constrained our fellow citizens taken captive on the high seas to bear arms against their country, to become the executioners of their friends and brethren, or to fall themselves by their hands.

He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavored to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian savages, whose known rule of warfare, is undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions.

In every stage of these oppressions we have petitioned for redress in the most humble terms: our repeated petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people.

Nor have we been wanting in attention to our British brethren. We have warned them from time to time of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations, which, would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, enemies in war, in peace friends.

We, therefore, the representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress, assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the name, and by the authority of the good people of these colonies, solemnly publish and declare, that these united colonies are, and of right ought to be free and independent states; that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as free and independent states, they have full power to levy war, conclude peace, contract alliances, establish commerce, and to do all other acts and things which independent states may of right do. And for the support of this declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor.

THE ARTICLES OF CONFEDERATION AND PERPETUAL UNION

Between The States of

New Hampshire, Massachusetts-bay, Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia.

ARTICLE I

The Stile of this Confederacy shall be “The United States of America.”

ARTICLE II

Each state retains its sovereignty, freedom, and independence, and every power, jurisdiction, and right, which is not by this Confederation expressly delegated to the United States, in Congress assembled.

ARTICLE III

The said States hereby severally enter into a firm league of friendship with each other, for their common defense, the security of their liberties, and their mutual and general welfare, binding themselves to assist each other, against all force offered to, or attacks made upon them, or any of them, on account of religion, sovereignty, trade, or any other pretense whatever.

ARTICLE IV

The better to secure and perpetuate mutual friendship and intercourse among the people of the different States in this Union, the free inhabitants of each of these States, paupers, vagabonds, and fugitives from justice excepted, shall be entitled to all privileges and immunities of free citizens in the several States; and the people of each State shall free ingress and regress to and from any other State, and shall enjoy therein all the privileges of trade and commerce, subject to the same duties, impositions, and restrictions as the inhabitants thereof respectively, provided that such restrictions shall not extend so far as to prevent the removal of property imported into any State, to any other State, of which the owner is an inhabitant; provided also that no imposition, duties or restriction shall be laid by any State, on the property of the United States, or either of them.

If any person guilty of, or charged with, treason, felony, or other high misdemeanor in any State, shall flee from justice, and be found in any of the United States, he shall, upon demand of the Governor or executive power of the State from which he fled, be delivered up and removed to the State having jurisdiction of his offense.

Full faith and credit shall be given in each of these States to the records, acts, and judicial proceedings of the courts and magistrates of every other State.

ARTICLE V

For the most convenient management of the general interests of the United States, delegates shall be annually appointed in such manner as the legislatures of each State shall direct, to meet in Congress on the first Monday in November, in every year, with a power reserved to each State to recall its delegates, or any of them, at any time within the year, and to send others in their stead for the remainder of the year.

No State shall be represented in Congress by less than two, nor more than seven members; and no person shall be capable of being a delegate for more than three years in any term of six years; nor shall any person, being a delegate, be capable of holding any office under the United States, for which he, or another for his benefit, receives any salary, fees or emolument of any kind.

Each State shall maintain its own delegates in a meeting of the States, and while they act as members of the committee of the States.

In determining questions in the United States in Congress assembled, each State shall have one vote.

Freedom of speech and debate in Congress shall not be impeached or questioned in any court or place out of Congress, and the members of Congress shall be protected in their persons from arrests or imprisonments, during the time of their going to and from, and attendance on Congress, except for treason, felony, or breach of the peace.

ARTICLE VI

No State, without the consent of the United States in Congress assembled, shall send any embassy to, or receive any embassy from, or enter into any conference, agreement, alliance or treaty with any King, Prince or State; nor shall any person holding any office of profit or trust under the United States, or any of them, accept any present, emolument, office or title of any kind whatever from any King, Prince or foreign State; nor shall the United States in Congress assembled, or any of them, grant any title of nobility.

No two or more States shall enter into any treaty, confederation or alliance whatever between them, without the consent of the United States in Congress assembled, specifying accurately the purposes for which the same is to be entered into, and how long it shall continue.

No State shall lay any imposts or duties, which may interfere with any stipulations in treaties, entered into by the United States in Congress assembled, with any King, Prince or State, in pursuance of any treaties already proposed by Congress, to the courts of France and Spain.

No vessel of war shall be kept up in time of peace by any State, except such number only, as shall be deemed necessary by the United States in Congress assembled, for the defense of such State, or its trade; nor shall any body of forces be kept up by any State in time of peace, except such number only, as in the judgement of the United States in Congress assembled, shall be deemed requisite to garrison the forts necessary for the defense of such State; but every State shall always keep up a well-regulated and disciplined militia, sufficiently armed and accoutered, and shall provide and constantly have ready for use, in public stores, a due number of filed pieces and tents, and a proper quantity of arms, ammunition and camp equipage.

No State shall engage in any war without the consent of the United States in Congress assembled, unless such State be actually invaded by enemies, or shall have received certain advice of a resolution being formed by some nation of Indians to invade such State, and the danger is so imminent as not to admit of a delay till the United States in Congress assembled can be consulted; nor shall any State grant commissions to any ships or vessels of war, nor letters of marque or reprisal, except it be after a declaration of war by the United States in Congress assembled, and then only against the Kingdom or State and the subjects thereof, against which war has been so declared, and under such regulations as shall be established by the United States in Congress assembled, unless such State be infested by pirates, in which case vessels of war may be fitted out for that occasion, and kept so long as the danger shall continue, or until the United States in Congress assembled shall determine otherwise.

ARTICLE VII

When land forces are raised by any State for the common defense, all officers of or under the rank of colonel, shall be appointed by the legislature of each State respectively, by whom such forces shall be raised, or in such manner as such State shall direct, and all vacancies shall be filled up by the State which first made the appointment.

ARTICLE VIII

All charges of war, and all other expenses that shall be incurred for the common defense or general welfare, and allowed by the United States in Congress assembled, shall be defrayed out of a common treasury, which shall be supplied by the several States in proportion to the value of all land within each State, granted or surveyed for any person, as such land and the buildings and improvements thereon shall be estimated according to such mode as the United States in Congress assembled, shall from time to time direct and appoint.

The taxes for paying that proportion shall be laid and levied by the authority and direction of the legislatures of the several States within the time agreed upon by the United States in Congress assembled.

ARTICLE IX

The United States in Congress assembled, shall have the sole and exclusive right and power of determining on peace and war, except in the cases mentioned in the sixth article—of sending and receiving ambassadors—entering into treaties and alliances, provided that no treaty of commerce shall be made whereby the legislative power of the respective States shall be restrained from imposing such imposts and duties on foreigners, as their own people are subjected to, or from prohibiting the exportation or importation of any species of goods or commodities whatsoever—of establishing rules for deciding in all cases, what captures on land or water shall be legal, and in what manner prizes taken by land or naval forces in the service of the United States shall be divided or appropriated—of granting letters of marque and reprisal in times of peace—appointing courts for the trial of piracies and felonies committed on the high seas and establishing courts for receiving and determining finally appeals in all cases of captures, provided that no member of Congress shall be appointed a judge of any of the said courts.

The United States in Congress assembled shall also be the last resort on appeal in all disputes and differences now subsisting or that hereafter may arise between two or more States concerning boundary, jurisdiction or any other causes whatever; which authority shall always be exercised in the manner following. Whenever the legislative or executive authority or lawful agent of any State in controversy with another shall present a petition to Congress stating the matter in question and praying for a hearing, notice thereof shall be given by order of Congress to the legislative or executive authority of the other State in controversy, and a day assigned for the appearance of the parties by their lawful agents, who shall then be directed to appoint by joint consent, commissioners or judges to constitute a court for hearing and determining the matter in question: but if they cannot agree, Congress shall name three persons out of each of the United States, and from the list of such persons each party shall alternately strike out one, the petitioners beginning, until the number shall be reduced to thirteen; and from that number not less than seven, nor more than nine names as Congress shall direct, shall in the presence of Congress be drawn out by lot, and the persons whose names shall be so drawn or any five of them, shall be commissioners or judges, to hear and finally determine the controversy, so always as a major part of the judges who shall hear the cause shall agree in the determination: and if either party shall neglect to attend at the day appointed, without showing reasons, which Congress shall judge sufficient, or being present shall refuse to strike, the Congress shall proceed to nominate three persons out of each State, and the secretary of Congress shall strike in behalf of such party absent or refusing; and the judgement and sentence of the court to be appointed, in the manner before prescribed, shall be final and conclusive; and if any of the parties shall refuse to submit to the authority of such court, or to appear or defend their claim or cause, the court shall nevertheless proceed to pronounce sentence, or judgement, which shall in like manner be final and decisive, the judgement or sentence and other proceedings being in either case transmitted to Congress, and lodged among the acts of Congress for the security of the parties concerned: provided that every commissioner, before he sits in judgement, shall take an oath to be administered by one of the judges of the supreme or superior court of the State, where the cause shall be tried, "well and truly to hear and determine the matter in question, according to the best of his judgement, without favor, affection or hope of reward:" provided also, that no State shall be deprived of territory for the benefit of the United States.

All controversies concerning the private right of soil claimed under different grants of two or more States, whose jurisdictions as they may respect such lands, and the States which passed such grants are adjusted, the said grants or either of them being at the same time claimed to have originated antecedent to such settlement of jurisdiction, shall on the petition of either party to the Congress of the United States, be finally determined as near as may be in the same manner as is before prescribed for deciding disputes respecting territorial jurisdiction between different States.

The United States in Congress assembled shall also have the sole and exclusive right and power of regulating the alloy and value of coin struck by their own authority, or by that of the respective States—fixing the standards of weights and measures throughout the United States—regulating the trade and managing all affairs with the Indians, not members of any of the States, provided that the legislative right of any State within its own limits be not infringed or violated—establishing or regulating post offices from one State to another, throughout all the United States, and exacting such postage on the papers passing through the same as may be requisite to defray the expenses of the said office—appointing all officers of the land forces, in the service of the United States, excepting regimental officers—appointing all the officers of the naval forces, and commissioning all officers whatever in the service of the United States—making rules for the government and regulation of the said land and naval forces, and directing their operations.

The United States in Congress assembled shall have authority to appoint a committee, to sit in the recess of Congress, to be denominated "A Committee of the States," and to consist of one delegate from each State; and to appoint such other committees and civil officers as may be necessary for managing the general affairs of the United States under their direction—to appoint one of their members to preside, provided that no person be allowed to serve in the office of president more than one year in any term of three years; to ascertain the necessary sums of money to be raised for the service of the United States, and to appropriate and apply the same for defraying the public expenses—to borrow money, or emit bills on the credit of the United States, transmitting every half-year to the respective States an account of the sums of money so borrowed or emitted—to build and equip a navy—to agree upon the number of land forces, and to make requisitions from each State for its quota, in proportion to the number of white inhabitants in such State; which requisition shall be binding, and thereupon the legislature of each State shall appoint the regimental officers, raise the men and cloath, arm and equip them in a solid-like manner, at the expense of the United States; and the officers and men so cloathed, armed and equipped shall march to the place appointed, and within the time agreed on by the United States in Congress assembled. But if the United States in Congress assembled shall, on consideration of circumstances judge proper that any State should not raise men, or should raise a smaller number of men than the quota thereof, such extra number shall be raised, officered, cloathed, armed and equipped in the same manner as the quota of each State, unless the legislature of such State shall judge that such extra number cannot be safely spread out in the same, in which case they shall raise, officer, cloath, arm and equip as many of such extra number as they judge can be safely spared. And the officers and men so cloathed, armed, and equipped, shall march to the place appointed, and within the time agreed on by the United States in Congress assembled.

The United States in Congress assembled shall never engage in a war, nor grant letters of marque or reprisal in time of peace, nor enter into any treaties or alliances, nor coin money, nor regulate the value thereof, nor ascertain the sums and expenses necessary for the defense and welfare of the United States, or any of them, nor emit bills, nor borrow money on the credit of the United States, nor appropriate money, nor agree upon the number of vessels of war, to be built or purchased, or the number of land or sea forces to be raised, nor appoint a commander in chief of the army or navy, unless nine States assent to the same: nor shall a question on any other point, except for adjourning from day to day be determined, unless by the votes of the majority of the United States in Congress assembled.

The Congress of the United States shall have power to adjourn to any time within the year, and to any place within the United States, so that no period of adjournment be for a longer duration than the space of six months, and shall publish the journal of their proceedings monthly, except such parts thereof relating to treaties, alliances or military operations, as in their judgement require secrecy; and the yeas and nays of the delegates of each State on any question shall be entered on the journal, when it is desired by any delegates of a State, or any of them, at his or their request shall be furnished with a transcript of the said journal, except such parts as are above excepted, to lay before the legislatures of the several States.

ARTICLE X

The Committee of the States, or any nine of them, shall be authorized to execute, in the recess of Congress, such of the powers of Congress as the United States in Congress assembled, by the consent of the nine States, shall from time to time think expedient to vest them with; provided that no power be delegated to the said Committee, for the exercise of which, by the Articles of Confederation, the voice of nine States in the Congress of the United States assembled be requisite.

ARTICLE XI

Canada acceding to this confederation, and adjoining in the measures of the United States, shall be admitted into, and entitled to all the advantages of this Union; but no other colony shall be admitted into the same, unless such admission be agreed to by nine States.

ARTICLE XII

All bills of credit emitted, monies borrowed, and debts contracted by, or under the authority of Congress, before the assembling of the United States, in pursuance of the present confederation, shall be deemed and considered as a charge against the United States, for payment and satisfaction whereof the said United States, and the public faith are hereby solemnly pledged.

ARTICLE XIII

Every State shall abide by the determination of the United States in Congress assembled, on all questions which by this confederation are submitted to them. And the Articles of this Confederation shall be inviolably observed by every State, and the Union shall be perpetual; nor shall any alteration at any time hereafter be made in any of them; unless such alteration be agreed to in a Congress of the United States, and be afterwards confirmed by the legislatures of every State.

And Whereas it hath pleased the Great Governor of the World to incline the hearts of the legislatures we respectively represent in Congress, to approve of, and to authorize us to ratify the said Articles of Confederation and perpetual Union. Know Ye that we the undersigned delegates, by virtue of the power and authority to us given for that purpose, do by these presents, in the name and in behalf of our respective constituents, fully and entirely ratify and confirm each and every of the said Articles of Confederation and perpetual Union, and all and singular the matters and things therein contained: And we do further solemnly plight and engage the faith of our respective constituents, that they shall abide by the determinations of the United States in Congress assembled, on all questions, which by the said Confederation are submitted to them. And that the Articles thereof shall be inviolably observed by the States we respectively represent, and that the Union shall be perpetual. In Witness whereof, we have hereunto set our hands in Congress.

DONE at Philadelphia, in the State of Pennsylvania, the 9th day of July, in the Year of our Lord 1778, and in the third year of the independence of America.

The aforesaid articles of confederation were finally ratified on the first day of March 1781; the state of Maryland having, by their Members in Congress, on that day acceded thereto, and completed the same.

THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES

We the People of the United States, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America.

ARTICLE I

Section I

All legislative Powers herein granted shall be vested in a Congress of the United States, which shall consist of a Senate and House of Representatives.

Section II

The House of Representatives shall be composed of Members chosen every second Year by the People of the several States, and the Electors in each State shall have the Qualifications requisite for Electors of the most numerous Branch of the State Legislature.

No Person shall be a Representative who shall not have attained to the Age of twenty five Years, and been seven Years a Citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an Inhabitant of that State in which he shall be chosen.

Representatives and direct Taxes shall be apportioned among the several States which may be included within this Union, according to their respective Numbers, which shall be determined by adding to the whole Number of free Persons, including those bound to Service for a Term of Years, and excluding Indians not taxed, three fifths of all other Persons.

The actual Enumeration shall be made within three Years after the first Meeting of the Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent Term of ten Years, in such Manner as they shall by Law direct. The Number of Representatives shall not exceed one for every thirty Thousand, but each State shall have at Least one Representative; and until such enumeration shall be made, the State of New Hampshire shall be entitled to choose three, Massachusetts eight, Rhode Island and Providence Plantations one, Connecticut five, New York six, New Jersey four, Pennsylvania eight, Delaware one, Maryland six, Virginia ten, North Carolina five, South Carolina five and Georgia three.

When vacancies happen in the Representation from any State, the Executive Authority thereof shall issue Writs of Election to fill such Vacancies.

The House of Representatives shall choose their Speaker and other Officers; and shall have the sole Power of Impeachment.

Section III

The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, chosen by the Legislature thereof, for six Years; and each Senator shall have one Vote.

Immediately after they shall be assembled in Consequence of the first Election, they shall be divided as equally as may be into three Classes. The Seats of the Senators of the first Class shall be vacated at the Expiration of the second Year, of the second Class at the Expiration of the fourth Year, and of the third Class at the Expiration of the sixth Year, so that one third may be chosen every second Year; and if Vacancies happen by Resignation, or otherwise, during the Recess of the Legislature of any State, the Executive thereof may make temporary Appointments until the next Meeting of the Legislature, which shall then fill such Vacancies.

No person shall be a Senator who shall not have attained to the Age of thirty Years, and been nine Years a Citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an Inhabitant of that State for which he shall be chosen.

The Vice President of the United States shall be President of the Senate, but shall have no Vote, unless they be equally divided.

The Senate shall choose their other Officers, and also a President pro tempore, in the absence of the Vice President, or when he shall exercise the Office of President of the United States.

The Senate shall have the sole Power to try all Impeachments. When sitting for that Purpose, they shall be on Oath or Affirmation. When the President of the United States is tried, the Chief Justice shall preside: And no Person shall be convicted without the Concurrence of two thirds of the Members present.

Judgment in Cases of Impeachment shall not extend further than to removal from Office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any Office of honor, Trust or Profit under the United States: but the Party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to Indictment, Trial, Judgment and Punishment, according to Law.

Section IV

The Times, Places and Manner of holding Elections for Senators and Representatives, shall be prescribed in each State by the Legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by Law make or alter such Regulations, except as to the Place of Choosing Senators.

The Congress shall assemble at least once in every Year, and such Meeting shall be on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by Law appoint a different Day.

Section V

Each House shall be the Judge of the Elections, Returns and Qualifications of its own Members, and a Majority of each shall constitute a Quorum to do Business; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and may be authorized to compel the Attendance of absent Members, in such Manner, and under such Penalties as each House may provide.

Each House may determine the Rules of its Proceedings, punish its Members for disorderly Behavior, and, with the Concurrence of two-thirds, expel a Member.

Each House shall keep a Journal of its Proceedings, and from time to time publish the same, excepting such Parts as may in their Judgment require Secrecy; and the Yeas and Nays of the Members of either House on any question shall, at the Desire of one fifth of those Present, be entered on the Journal.

Neither House, during the Session of Congress, shall, without the Consent of the other, adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other Place than that in which the two Houses shall be sitting.

THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES

Section VI

The Senators and Representatives shall receive a Compensation for their Services, to be ascertained by Law, and paid out of the Treasury of the United States. They shall in all Cases, except Treason, Felony and Breach of the Peace, be privileged from Arrest during their Attendance at the Session of their respective Houses, and in going to and returning from the same; and for any Speech or Debate in either House, they shall not be questioned in any other Place.

No Senator or Representative shall, during the Time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil Office under the Authority of the United States which shall have been created, or the Emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time; and no Person holding any Office under the United States, shall be a Member of either House during his Continuance in Office.

Section VII

All bills for raising Revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives; but the Senate may propose or concur with Amendments as on other Bills. Every Bill which shall have passed the House of Representatives and the Senate, shall, before it become a Law, be presented to the President of the United States; If he approve he shall sign it, but if not he shall return it, with his Objections to that House in which it shall have originated, who shall enter the Objections at large on their Journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If after such Reconsideration two thirds of that House shall agree to pass the Bill, it shall be sent, together with the Objections, to the other House, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if approved by two thirds of that House, it shall become a Law. But in all such Cases the Votes of both Houses shall be determined by Yeas and Nays, and the Names of the Persons voting for and against the Bill shall be entered on the Journal of each House respectively. If any Bill shall not be returned by the President within ten Days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him, the Same shall be a Law, in like Manner as if he had signed it, unless the Congress by their Adjournment prevent its Return, in which Case it shall not be a Law.

Every Order, Resolution, or Vote to which the Concurrence of the Senate and House of Representatives may be necessary (except on a question of Adjournment) shall be presented to the President of the United States; and before the Same shall take Effect, shall be approved by him, or being disapproved by him, shall be repassed by two thirds of the Senate and House of Representatives, according to the Rules and Limitations prescribed in the Case of a Bill.

Section VIII

The Congress shall have Power To lay and collect Taxes, Duties, Imposts and Excises, to pay the Debts and provide for the common Defence and general Welfare of the United States; but all Duties, Imposts and Excises shall be uniform throughout the United States;

To borrow money on the credit of the United States;

To regulate Commerce with foreign Nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian Tribes;

To establish an uniform Rule of Naturalization, and uniform Laws on the subject of Bankruptcies throughout the United States;

To coin Money, regulate the Value thereof, and of foreign Coin, and fix the Standard of Weights and Measures;

To provide for the Punishment of counterfeiting the Securities and current Coin of the United States;

To establish Post Offices and Post Roads;

To promote the Progress of Science and useful Arts, by securing for limited Times to Authors and Inventors the exclusive Right to their respective Writings and Discoveries;

To constitute Tribunals inferior to the supreme Court;

To define and punish Piracies and Felonies committed on the high Seas, and Offenses against the Law of Nations;

To declare War, grant Letters of Marque and Reprisal, and make Rules concerning Captures on Land and Water;

To raise and support Armies, but no Appropriation of Money to that Use shall be for a longer Term than two Years;

To provide and maintain a Navy;

To make Rules for the Government and Regulation of the land and naval Forces;

To provide for calling forth the Militia to execute the Laws of the Union, suppress Insurrections and repel Invasions;

To provide for organizing, arming, and disciplining the Militia, and for governing such Part of them as may be employed in the Service of the United States, reserving to the States respectively, the Appointment of the Officers, and the Authority of training the Militia according to the discipline prescribed by Congress;

To exercise exclusive Legislation in all Cases whatsoever, over such District (not exceeding ten Miles square) as may, by Cession of particular States, and the acceptance of Congress, become the Seat of the Government of the United States, and to exercise like Authority over all

Places purchased by the Consent of the Legislature of the State in which the Same shall be, for the Erection of Forts, Magazines, Arsenals, dock-Yards, and other needful Buildings; And

To make all Laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into Execution the foregoing Powers, and all other Powers vested by this Constitution in the Government of the United States, or in any Department or Officer thereof.

Section IX

The Migration or Importation of such Persons as any of the States now existing shall think proper to admit, shall not be prohibited by the Congress prior to the Year one thousand eight hundred and eight, but a tax or duty may be imposed on such Importation, not exceeding ten dollars for each Person.

The privilege of the Writ of Habeas Corpus shall not be suspended, unless when in Cases of Rebellion or Invasion the public Safety may require it.

No Bill of Attainder or ex post facto Law shall be passed.

No capitation, or other direct, Tax shall be laid, unless in Proportion to the Census or Enumeration herein before directed to be taken.

No Tax or Duty shall be laid on Articles exported from any State.

No Preference shall be given by any Regulation of Commerce or Revenue to the Ports of one State over those of another: nor shall Vessels bound to, or from, one State, be obliged to enter, clear, or pay Duties in another.

No Money shall be drawn from the Treasury, but in Consequence of Appropriations made by Law; and a regular Statement and Account of the Receipts and Expenditures of all public Money shall be published from time to time.

THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES

No Title of Nobility shall be granted by the United States: And no Person holding any Office of Profit or Trust under them, shall, without the Consent of the Congress, accept of any present, Emolument, Office, or Title, of any kind whatever, from any King, Prince or foreign State.

Section X

No State shall enter into any Treaty, Alliance, or Confederation; grant Letters of Marque and Reprisal; coin Money; emit Bills of Credit; make any Thing but gold and silver Coin a Tender in Payment of Debts; pass any Bill of Attainder, ex post facto Law, or Law impairing the Obligation of Contracts, or grant any Title of Nobility.

No State shall, without the Consent of the Congress, lay any Imposts or Duties on Imports or Exports, except what may be absolutely necessary for executing its inspection Laws: and the net Produce of all Duties and Imposts, laid by any State on Imports or Exports, shall be for the Use of the Treasury of the United States; and all such Laws shall be subject to the Revision and Control of the Congress.

No State shall, without the Consent of Congress, lay any duty of Tonnage, keep Troops, or Ships of War in time of Peace, enter into any Agreement or Compact with another State, or with a foreign Power, or engage in War, unless actually invaded, or in such imminent Danger as will not admit of delay.

ARTICLE II

Section I

The executive Power shall be vested in a President of the United States of America.

He shall hold his Office during the Term of four Years, and, together with the Vice-President chosen for the same Term, be elected, as follows:

Each State shall appoint, in such Manner as the Legislature thereof may direct, a Number of Electors, equal to the whole Number of Senators and Representatives to which the State may be entitled in the Congress: but no Senator or Representative, or Person holding an Office of Trust or Profit under the United States, shall be appointed an Elector.

The Electors shall meet in their respective States, and vote by Ballot for two persons, of whom one at least shall not lie an Inhabitant of the same State with themselves. And they shall make a List of all the Persons voted for, and of the Number of Votes for each; which List they shall sign and certify, and transmit sealed to the Seat of the Government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate. The President of the Senate shall, in the Presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the Certificates, and the Votes shall then be counted. The Person having the greatest Number of Votes shall be the President, if such Number be a Majority of the whole Number of Electors appointed; and if there be more than one who have such Majority, and have an equal Number of Votes, then the House of Representatives shall immediately choose by Ballot one of them for President; and if no Person have a Majority, then from the five highest on the List the said House shall in like Manner choose the President. But in choosing the President, the Votes shall be taken by States, the Representation from each State having one Vote; a quorum for this Purpose shall consist of a Member or Members from two-thirds of the States, and a Majority of all the States shall be necessary to a Choice. In every Case, after the Choice of the President, the Person having the greatest Number of Votes of the Electors shall be the Vice President. But if there should remain two or more who have equal Votes, the Senate shall choose from them by Ballot the Vice-President.

The Congress may determine the Time of choosing the Electors, and the Day on which they shall give their Votes; which Day shall be the same throughout the United States.

No person except a natural born Citizen, or a Citizen of the United States, at the time of the Adoption of this Constitution, shall be eligible to the Office of President; neither shall any Person be eligible to that Office who shall not have attained to the Age of thirty-five Years, and been fourteen Years a Resident within the United States.

In Case of the Removal of the President from Office, or of his Death, Resignation, or Inability to discharge the Powers and Duties of the said Office, the same shall devolve on the Vice President, and the Congress may by Law provide for the Case of Removal, Death, Resignation or Inability, both of the President and Vice President, declaring what Officer shall then act as President, and such Officer shall act accordingly, until the Disability be removed, or a President shall be elected.

The President shall, at stated Times, receive for his Services, a Compensation, which shall neither be increased nor diminished during the Period for which he shall have been elected, and he shall not receive within that Period any other Emolument from the United States, or any of them.

Before he enter on the Execution of his Office, he shall take the following Oath or Affirmation:

“I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the Office of President of the United States, and will to the best of my Ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States.”

Section II

The President shall be Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States, and of the Militia of the several States, when called into the actual Service of the United States; he may require the Opinion, in writing, of the principal Officer in each of the executive Departments, upon any subject relating to the Duties of their respective Offices, and he shall have Power to Grant Reprieves and Pardons for Offenses against the United States, except in Cases of Impeachment.

He shall have Power, by and with the Advice and Consent of the Senate, to make Treaties, provided two thirds of the Senators present concur; and he shall nominate, and by and with the Advice and Consent of the Senate, shall appoint Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls, Judges of the supreme Court, and all other Officers of the United States, whose Appointments are not herein otherwise provided for, and which shall be established by Law: but the Congress may by Law vest the Appointment of such inferior Officers, as they think proper, in the President alone, in the Courts of Law, or in the Heads of Departments.

The President shall have Power to fill up all Vacancies that may happen during the Recess of the Senate, by granting Commissions which shall expire at the End of their next Session.

Section III

He shall from time to time give to the Congress Information of the State of the Union,

THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES

and recommend to their Consideration such Measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient; he may, on extraordinary Occasions, convene both Houses, or either of them, and in Case of Disagreement between them, with Respect to the Time of Adjournment, he may adjourn them to such Time as he shall think proper; he shall receive Ambassadors and other public Ministers; he shall take Care that the Laws be faithfully executed, and shall Commission all the Officers of the United States.

Section IV

The President, Vice President and all civil Officers of the United States, shall be removed from Office on Impeachment for, and Conviction of, Treason, Bribery, or other high Crimes and Misdemeanors.

ARTICLE III

Section I

The judicial Power of the United States, shall be vested in one supreme Court, and in such inferior Courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish. The Judges, both of the supreme and inferior Courts, shall hold their Offices during good Behavior, and shall, at stated Times, receive for their Services a Compensation which shall not be diminished during their Continuance in Office.

Section II

The judicial Power shall extend to all Cases, in Law and Equity, arising under this Constitution, the Laws of the United States, and Treaties made, or which shall be made, under their Authority; to all Cases affecting Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls; to all Cases of admiralty and maritime Jurisdiction; to Controversies to which the United States shall be a Party; to Controversies between two or more States; between a State and Citizens of another State; between Citizens of different States; between Citizens of the same State claiming Lands under Grants of different States, and between a State, or the Citizens thereof, and foreign States, Citizens or Subjects.

In all Cases affecting Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls, and those in which a State shall be Party, the supreme Court shall have original Jurisdiction. In all the other Cases before mentioned, the supreme Court shall have appellate Jurisdiction, both as to Law and Fact, with such Exceptions, and under such Regulations as the Congress shall make.

The Trial of all Crimes, except in Cases of Impeachment, shall be by Jury; and such Trial shall be held in the State where the said Crimes shall have been committed; but when not committed within any State, the Trial shall be at such Place or Places as the Congress may by Law have directed.

Section III

Treason against the United States, shall consist only in levying War against them, or in adhering to their Enemies, giving them Aid and Comfort. No Person shall be convicted of Treason unless on the Testimony of two Witnesses to the same overt Act, or on Confession in open Court.

The Congress shall have power to declare the Punishment of Treason, but no Attainder of Treason shall work Corruption of Blood, or Forfeiture except during the Life of the Person attainted.

ARTICLE IV

Section I

Full Faith and Credit shall be given in each State to the public Acts, Records, and judicial Proceedings of every other State. And the Congress may by general Laws prescribe the Manner in which such Acts, Records and Proceedings shall be proved, and the Effect thereof.

Section II

The Citizens of each State shall be entitled to all Privileges and Immunities of Citizens in the several States.

A Person charged in any State with Treason, Felony, or other Crime, who shall flee from Justice, and be found in another State, shall on demand of the executive Authority of the State from which he fled, be delivered up, to be removed to the State having Jurisdiction of the Crime.

No Person held to Service or Labour in one State, under the Laws thereof, escaping into another, shall, in Consequence of any Law or Regulation therein, be discharged from such Service or Labour, But shall be delivered up on Claim of the Party to whom such Service or Labour may be due.

Section III

New States may be admitted by the Congress into this Union; but no new States shall be formed or erected within the Jurisdiction of any other State; nor any State be formed by the Junction of two or more States, or parts of States, without the Consent of the Legislatures of the States concerned as well as of the Congress.

The Congress shall have Power to dispose of and make all needful Rules and Regulations respecting the Territory or other Property belonging to the United States; and nothing in this Constitution shall be so construed as to Prejudice any Claims of the United States, or of any particular State.

Section IV

The United States shall guarantee to every State in this Union a Republican Form of Government, and shall protect each of them against Invasion; and on Application of the Legislature, or of the Executive (when the Legislature cannot be convened) against domestic Violence.

ARTICLE V

The Congress, whenever two thirds of both Houses shall deem it necessary, shall propose Amendments to this Constitution, or, on the Application of the Legislatures of two thirds of the several States, shall call a Convention for proposing Amendments, which, in either Case, shall be valid to all Intents and Purposes, as part of this Constitution, when ratified by the Legislatures of three fourths of the several States, or by Conventions in three fourths thereof, as the one or the other Mode of Ratification may be proposed by the Congress; Provided that no Amendment which may be made prior to the Year One thousand eight hundred and eight shall in any Manner affect the first and fourth Clauses in the Ninth Section of the first Article; and that no State, without its Consent, shall be deprived of its equal Suffrage in the Senate.

ARTICLE VI

All Debts contracted and Engagements entered into, before the Adoption of this Constitution, shall be as valid against the United States under this Constitution, as under the Confederation.

This Constitution, and the Laws of the United States which shall be made in Pursuance thereof; and all Treaties made, or which shall be made, under the Authority of the United States, shall be the supreme Law of the Land; and the Judges in every

The Amendments to the Constitution

AMENDMENT 1

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

AMENDMENT 2

A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed.

AMENDMENT 3

No Soldier shall, in time of peace be quartered in any house, without the consent of the Owner, nor in time of war, but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

AMENDMENT 4

The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.

AMENDMENT 5

No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.

AMENDMENT 6

In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the Assistance of Counsel for his defence.

AMENDMENT 7

In Suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by a jury, shall be otherwise re-examined in any Court of the United States, than according to the rules of the common law.

AMENDMENT 8

Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

AMENDMENT 9

The enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

AMENDMENT 10

The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES

AMENDMENT 11

The Judicial power of the United States shall not be construed to extend to any suit in law or equity, commenced or prosecuted against one of the United States by Citizens of another State, or by Citizens or Subjects of any Foreign State.

AMENDMENT 12

The Electors shall meet in their respective states, and vote by ballot for President and Vice-President, one of whom, at least, shall not be an inhabitant of the same state with themselves; they shall name in their ballots the person voted for as President, and in distinct ballots the person voted for as Vice-President, and they shall make distinct lists of all persons voted for as President, and of all persons voted for as Vice-President and of the number of votes for each, which lists they shall sign and certify, and transmit sealed to the seat of the government of the United States, directed to the President of the Senate;

The President of the Senate shall, in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, open all the certificates and the votes shall then be counted; The person having the greatest Number of votes for President, shall be the President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of Electors appointed; and if no person have such majority, then from the persons having the highest numbers not exceeding three on the list of those voted for as President, the House of Representatives shall choose immediately, by ballot, the President. But in choosing the President, the votes shall be taken by states, the representation from each state having one vote; a quorum for this purpose shall consist of a member or members from two-thirds of the states, and a majority of all the states shall be necessary to a choice. And if the House of Representatives shall not choose a President whenever the right of choice shall devolve upon them, before the fourth day of March next following, then the Vice-President shall act as President, as in the case of the death or other constitutional disability of the President.

The person having the greatest number of votes as Vice-President, shall be the Vice-President, if such number be a majority of the whole number of Electors appointed, and if no person have a majority, then from the two highest numbers on the list, the Senate shall choose the Vice-President; a quorum for the purpose shall consist of two-thirds of the whole number of Senators, and a majority of the whole number shall be necessary to a choice. But no person constitutionally ineligible to the office of President shall be eligible to that of Vice-President of the United States.

AMENDMENT 13

1. Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction.
2. Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

AMENDMENT 14

1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.

2. Representatives shall be apportioned among the several States according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each State, excluding Indians not taxed. But when the right to vote at any election for the choice of electors for President and Vice-President of the United States, Representatives in Congress, the Executive and Judicial officers of a State, or the members of the Legislature thereof, is denied to any of the male inhabitants of such State, being twenty-one years of age, and citizens of the United States, or in any way abridged, except for participation in rebellion, or other crime, the basis of representation therein shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of such male citizens shall bear to the whole number of male citizens twenty-one years of age in such State.

3. No person shall be a Senator or Representative in Congress, or elector of President and Vice-President, or hold any office, civil or military, under the United States, or under any State, who, having previously taken an oath, as a member of Congress, or as an officer of the United States, or as a member of any State legislature, or as an executive or judicial officer of any State, to support the Constitution of the United States, shall have engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the same, or given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof. But Congress may by a vote of two-thirds of each House, remove such disability.

4. The validity of the public debt of the United States, authorized by law, including debts incurred for payment of pensions and bounties for services in suppressing insurrection or rebellion, shall not be questioned. But neither the United States nor any State shall assume or pay any debt or obligation incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States, or any claim for the loss or emancipation of any slave; but all such debts, obligations and claims shall be held illegal and void.

5. The Congress shall have power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article.

AMENDMENT 15

1. The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

2. The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

AMENDMENT 16

The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes, from whatever source derived, without apportionment among the several States, and without regard to any census or enumeration.

AMENDMENT 17

The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, elected by the people thereof, for six years; and each Senator shall have one vote. The electors in each State shall have the qualifications requisite for electors of the most numerous branch of the State legislatures.

When vacancies happen in the representation of any State in the Senate, the executive authority of such State shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies: Provided, That the legislature of any State may empower the executive thereof to make temporary appointments until the people fill the vacancies by election as the legislature may direct.

This amendment shall not be so construed as to affect the election or term of any

THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES

Senator chosen before it becomes valid as part of the Constitution.

AMENDMENT 18

1. After one year from the ratification of this article the manufacture, sale, or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into, or the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes is hereby prohibited.

2. The Congress and the several States shall have concurrent power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

3. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the legislatures of the several States, as provided in the Constitution, within seven years from the date of the submission hereof to the States by the Congress.

AMENDMENT 19

The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex.

Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

AMENDMENT 20

1. The terms of the President and Vice President shall end at noon on the 20th day of January, and the terms of Senators and Representatives at noon on the 3d day of January, of the years in which such terms would have ended if this article had not been ratified; and the terms of their successors shall then begin.

2. The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall begin at noon on the 3d day of January, unless they shall by law appoint a different day.

3. If, at the time fixed for the beginning of the term of the President, the President elect shall have died, the Vice President elect shall become President. If a President shall not have been chosen before the time fixed for the beginning of his term, or if the President elect shall have failed to qualify, then the Vice President elect shall act as President until a President shall have qualified; and the Congress may by law provide for the case wherein neither a President elect nor a Vice President elect shall have qualified, declaring who shall then act as President, or the manner in which one who is to act shall be selected, and such person shall act accordingly until a President or Vice President shall have qualified.

4. The Congress may by law provide for the case of the death of any of the persons from whom the House of Representatives may choose a President whenever the right of choice shall have devolved upon them, and for the case of the death of any of the persons from whom the Senate may choose a Vice President whenever the right of choice shall have devolved upon them.

5. Sections 1 and 2 shall take effect on the 15th day of October following the ratification of this article.

6. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several States within seven years from the date of its submission.

AMENDMENT 21

1. The eighteenth article of amendment to the Constitution of the United States is hereby repealed.

2. The transportation or importation into any State, Territory, or possession of the United States for delivery or use therein of intoxicating liquors, in violation of the laws thereof, is hereby prohibited.

3. The article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by conventions in the several States, as provided in the Constitution, within seven years from the date of the submission hereof to the States by the Congress.

AMENDMENT 22

1. No person shall be elected to the office of the President more than twice, and no person who has held the office of President, or acted as President, for more than two years of a term to which some other person was elected President shall be elected to the office of the President more than once. But this Article shall not apply to any person holding the office of President, when this Article was proposed by the Congress, and shall not prevent any person who may be holding the office of President, or acting as President, during the term within which this Article becomes operative from holding the office of President or acting as President during the remainder of such term.

2. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several States within seven years from the date of its submission to the States by the Congress.

AMENDMENT 23

1. The District constituting the seat of Government of the United States shall appoint in such manner as the Congress may direct: A number of electors of President and Vice President equal to the whole number of Senators and Representatives in Congress to which the District would be entitled if it were a State, but in no event more than the least populous State; they shall be in addition to those appointed by the States, but they shall be considered, for the purposes of the election of President and Vice President, to be electors appointed by a State; and they shall meet in the District and perform such duties as provided by the twelfth article of amendment.

2. The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

AMENDMENT 24

1. The right of citizens of the United States to vote in any primary or other election for President or Vice President, for electors for President or Vice President, or for Senator or Representative in Congress, shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or any State by reason of failure to pay any poll tax or other tax.

2. The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

AMENDMENT 25

1. In case of the removal of the President from office or of his death or resignation, the Vice President shall become President.

2. Whenever there is a vacancy in the office of the Vice President, the President shall nominate a Vice President who shall take office upon confirmation by a majority vote of both Houses of Congress.

3. Whenever the President transmits to the President pro tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives his written declaration that he is unable to discharge the powers and duties of his office, and until he transmits to them a written declaration to the contrary, such powers and duties shall be discharged by the Vice President as Acting President.

4. Whenever the Vice President and a majority of either the principal officers of the executive departments or of such other body as Congress may by law provide, transmit to the President pro tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives their written declaration that the President is unable to discharge the powers and duties of his office, the Vice President shall immediately assume the powers and duties of the office as Acting President.

Thereafter, when the President transmits to the President pro tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives his written declaration that no inability exists, he shall resume the powers and duties of his office unless the Vice President and a majority of either the principal officers of the executive department or of such other body as Congress may by law provide, transmit within four days to the President pro tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives their written declaration that the President is unable to discharge the powers and duties of his office. Thereupon Congress shall decide the issue, assembling within forty eight hours for that purpose if not in session. If the Congress, within twenty one days after receipt of the latter written declaration, or, if Congress is not in session, within twenty one days after Congress is required to assemble, determines by two thirds vote of both Houses that the President is unable to discharge the powers and duties of his office, the Vice President shall continue to discharge the same as Acting President; otherwise, the President shall resume the powers and duties of his office.

AMENDMENT 26

1. The right of citizens of the United States, who are eighteen years of age or older, to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of age.
2. The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

AMENDMENT 27

No law, varying the compensation for the services of the Senators and Representatives, shall take effect, until an election of Representatives shall have intervened.
